American Manufacturing Employes To Vote Saturday Morning For AFL Bargaining Agency

National Labor Relations Board Will Conduct Poll---Plant Nearly 100 Percent Organized

Federal Labor Union 21983, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, will go to a National Labor Board voting poll this Saturday, May 6, to indicate its members' desire to be the bargaining agent in the American Manufacturing Company plant.

The vote was asked by the management after the union had presented a proposed agreement for negotiation. The union's books show a membership of approximately 65 out of a possible 70. The outcome of the election appears to be certain that the decision will be unanimous for the American Federation union.

No other organization is involved in the election, which is being held with the consent of both the company and the union.

Voting will be done at the Chattanooga Vocational and Technical School at Second and Chestnut Streets, and will be supervised by Paul Stikes, of the labor board.

Hours of voting will be from 10 a.m. until 12 o'clock, on Saturday, May 6.

NOTICE

Chattanooga Central Labor Union will meet Monday night in regular session, Central Labor Hall, West Seventh Street, at 7:30 p.m. All delegates are requested and expected to be present.

Contractors Sign New Wage Contract With No Serious Trouble

Local 51, Sheel Metal Workers, and Local 122, Roofers, report the signing of their new wage contracts calling for an increase from $1 per hour to $1.25.

Practically all of the contractors have signed the contract, with the result that only four or five of the craftsmen are now unemployed.

The negotiations were conducted without any loss of time from work.

British Workers In Opposition To Conscription

London.—Vigorous opposition to conscription was voiced on April 25 by the National Labor Council, speaking for labor throughout Great Britain.

The council demanded that the government "apply itself with energy and confidence to the practical task of developing and organizing national resources through a system of voluntary service."

"There is not the slightest evidence of failure of the voluntary system," the council said in reminding the government of its pledge, renewed in March, that it would not resort to conscription in peace time.

Everybody is getting all set for spring cleaning. Went around with a friend yesterday who was selecting new wall paper.

You know where to find the label on wall paper, of course. You simply look down each side of the roll as it unwinds, and there it is. And, remember to look for it, because not all patterns are union-made, although practically all the stores have some union-made wall paper.

And an Elevator Constructor told about the boy he was teaching. . . . It never occurred to him that the kid could not read a rule and he asked him to measure a little gadget.

"It measures 2 inches and 2 little marks," the apprentice said.

It Pays to Advertise

A traveler seeking advertisements for a local paper called at the village grocer's. Upon presenting his card, he was surprised when the gray-haired proprietor said, "Nothing doing. Been established 30 years and never advertised."

Turning to leave, the traveler said, "Excuse me, sir, but what is that building on the hill?"

"The village church," said the grocer.

"Been there long?" asked the traveler.

"About 300 years."

"Well," replied the traveler, "they still ring the bell."

Destruction of Craft Unions Prevented by AFL Amendments to Labor Relations Act

One of the major objects of the amendments to the National Labor Relations Act proposed by the American Federation of Labor is to prevent th National Labor Relations Board from continuing, in violation of the letter and spirit of the National Labor Relations Act, its well established policy of destroying craft unions, which are fundamental elements in the A. F. of L. structure.

The pamphlet recently issued by the American Federation of Labor explaining its amendments to the Labor Act contains a strong indictment of the policy of the Labor Board opposing the A. F. of L. craft unions. Declaring that its amendments "are designed to prevent the Board from destroying the integrity of the craft unit," the Federation said:

Destruction of Crafts Prevented

Many craft unions are threatened with dissolution and destruction by Board decrees. The extent and immediacy of this danger cannot be too strongly stressed. The present Act confers upon the Board the power to decide the unit for collective bargaining. The A. F. of L. in supporting the Act was assured that this provision did not empower the Board to dissolve or destroy craft units where such units existed, nor did Congress intend that the Board should favor any form of unionism.

On May 15, 1935, Senator Wagner, speaking in the United States Senate, said:

"Anyone familiar with these laws will recognize at once that there is nothing in the pending bill which places the stamp of governmental favor on any particular type of union."

Historical Structure of Craft Organizations Threatened

However, Board member Edwin Smith, who has written a number of dissenting opinions opposing the contentions of A. F. of L. unions, is committed to the policy that the Act will be best effectuated in most cases by merging craft units with so-called industrial units. In the Allis Chalmers Company case Mr. Edwin Smith wrote a dissenting opinion against the craft groups in which he said:

". . . By this psuedo democratic method a determination of the greatest consequence to the other employees in the plant is left in the hands of groups known to be hostile to industrial organization."

Chairman Madden and Board member Donald Wakefield Smith have refused so far to go along completely with Edwin Smith. However, a tendency has been exhibited by Donald Wakefield Smith to join with Edwin Smith. In a three-man Board, danger to A. F. of L. organizations is readily apparent when one member of the Board is definitely committed to a philosophy that condemns craft units. The A. F. of L. cannot speculate on the permanency or consistency of the two remaining members. In the light of the past attitude of the Board, the chances are that one or the other member will join Edwin Smith when a crucial contest will arise in a precedent making case.

"Globe Doctrine" a Subterfuge. Not a Guarantee of Freedom of Choice

Aside from the danger of Edwin Smith's dissenting opinion becoming the majority opinion of the Board, its present decisions do not give protection to crafts. The Board makes great claim to afford such protection by adopting what it terms the "Globe Doctrine." This doctrine, as stated by the Board, is as follows:

"Where the considerations are evenly balanced, the determining factor is the desire of the men themselves."

Superficially the doctrine appears to be fair, but no more subtle device has been conceived by an administrative body to permit abuse of discretion.

First it is well to point out that regardless of the fairness or unfairness of this doctrine the members of the Board are not agreed whether the Board has the power to make such a rule. Mr. Edwin Smith has officially stated in respect to the doctrine: "—I feel the Board is here abandoning its necessary judicial function." Thus if another member of the Board is won over to his view this acclaimed principle of justice will be abandoned.

Next, the Board has led the public to believe that this doctrine merely follows the rule set forth in the Railway Labor Act and the New York Labor Relations Act. That unit is vested in the craft groups by operation of law.

Under the Globe doctrine the right to vote on the unit depends on the will of the Board.. The Board may or may not permit the workers to vote for a unit as it sees fit. The Board has made certain that it can deny the craft the right to vote whenever it is so disposed by injecting the subtle indefinable phrase "where the considerations are evenly balanced." And who determines what these "considerations" are? And who determines when the considerations are "evenly balanced?" The Board of course. By this unique device the Board may and does play favorites. It need only conclude that the considerations are not evenly balanced and thereby deny a vote to the workers.

For example in the Fried-Ostermann case the employer manufactured both clothing and gloves. They were separate departments. Glov making has beena separate craft during the entire history of organized labor.

The glove workers were practically one hundred per cent members of the A. F. of L. Glove Workers Union. The majority of the clothing workers were members of a clothing workers union not affiliated with the A. F. of L. A dispute arose over representation for the glove workers.

The clothing workers requested the Board to fuse the clothing workers and glove workers and declare them one unit, so that by the fusion the glove workers union would be destroyed. The Board did so and thus the glove workers were forced out of the A. F. of L. into the rival clothing workers union. The Board obligingly discarded the Globe Doctrine "and the desires of the workers themselves" for the benefit of the rival to the A. F. of L. union.

Thus we can see how far from the N. Y. and Railway Labor Acts the Board has departed. Under the N. Y. and Railway Labor Acts the Board has no say whatsoever concerning the right of a craft to vote for its unit and this right is guaranteed all craft workers. Under the Globe doctrine the right becomes a mere matter of grace.

Let ti be further noted that even where the Globe doctrine is applied, nevertheless, the form of the ballot is such as to require the workers to select a representative rather than a unit. Employees may very well wish to maintain their craft integrity but be represented by an industrial union. This right is denied them, and once having voted for an industrial representative the craft is for all practical purposes forever engulfed.

Thus the Board deliberately perverts the law by confounding the selection of a representative with the dsignation of a unit so as to aid the exponents of rival unions, and to compel the craft unions to change their form and structure if they want to compete with rival unions.

Board Deprives Single Employee Free Choice of Bargaining Agent

Under the same power to decide units, the Board has held that a singl employee cannot constitute a unit, and therefore cannot be bargained for by his union. In a recent decision (Finch case) the Board went so far as to hold that a carpenter who had voted for his A. F. of L. union could not refuse to oe represented by a C. I. O. liquor distillery workers organization. Everyone knows that in this country there are countless plants where single A. F. of L. craftsmen, such as stationary engineers, electricians, carpenters and the like, are employed.

This holding of the Board not only denies the A. F. of L. worker the right to be represented by his union, but also forces him to be represented by a "group known to be hostile" to his interests.

Moreover, without invoking the majority rule, an individual craftsman in such a case can be forced to abandon his membership in the union with which he has been affiliated for years and be compelled to surrender any insurance benefits he has, by a closed shop contract enforced upon him. Chairman Madden vigorously dissented in this case.

Obviously the majority decision is devised and intended to permit rival and dual unions to invade craft fields which they are otherwise unable to do.

Board's Assumed Discretion to Prescribe Industry-Wide Bargaining Unit Threatens to Destroy A. F. of L. Unions

Finally the Board has in one case established a precedent by which it can destroy existing A. F. of L. unions, prevent effective unionization in th future and eliminate the A. F. of L. from entire industries.

In the Longshoremen's case, the Board ruled that all Longshore employees of all employers on the Pacific Coast constituted the bargaining unit. As a result of that decision many A. F. of L. locals, some having almost 100 per cent membership in entire cities, were denied the right to be bargained by the C. I. O. It is impossible to fully describe the viciousness of that decision.

The very Board that justifies many of its actions on the theory that it wishes to preserve the right of free choice to employees has, by that decision, imposed its will on thousands of A. F. of L. employees, through this device of "industry wide" units. More reprehensible is the adroitness with which the Board conjures up reasons for denying or granting th apeplication of th rule in other cases.

Our amendments effectively eliminate a repetition or extension of the kind of decision we have discussed. Under them craft units will be protected. However, the workers in a craft can still be represented by whatever union they wish, be it industrial or craft.

The amendments prevent a repetition of he Board's arbitrary and destructive Longshoremen's decision. The Board will no longer be able to substitute its chosen representative for the one chosen by the employees.

The A. F. of L. recognizes that in many instances it is desirable to bargain on an industry-wide basis. Indeed such industry-wide bargaining, when it is done on a voluntary basis, is encouraged. We welcome that type of spirit of cooperation and not by compulsion. The amendments permit voluntary industry-wide bargaining.

AFL HEAD ATTACKS NLRB POLICY URGES AMENDMENT OF LABOR ACT AND NEW FIVE-MAN BOARD

Washington.—In a strong presentation of the case of the American Federation of Labor against the national labor relations board, President William Green, of the federation, asked congress to amend the national labor relations act and replace the present three-man board with a five-man board of curtailed power.

Testifying before the senate labor and education committee on amendments to the labor act asked by the A. F. of L., President Green attacked present members of the labor board for "distorting the act into an instrument of oppression." He accused them of establishing precedents "whereby the so-called economic philosophy of one labor group is encouraged and sustained, while that of another is suppressed and even obliterated.

He demanded amendments to the act that would prohibit any board from discrimination against A. F. of L. unions in favor of the industrial unions of the CIO. "The abuse of power by the board," he added, "threatens the continued existence of the oldest labor organization in the country."

He did not mention the newly nominated member of the board, Dr. William M. Leiserson, now chairman of the national mediation board, but charged that member Edwin S. Smith had influenced the other two members of the board "to support the cause of the CIO." He charged, specifically, that member Donald Wakefield Smith, whom Leiserson will replace, had shown a tendency to join the other Smith in decisions against the A. F. of L.

Green denounced the more drastic amendments of Senator Burke, Senator Holman, and Representative Clare Hoffman, which are supported by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Those legislaive proposals, which are entirely incompatible with the purposes of the act," Green said, "would destroy its guarantees and bring on worse evils than those which the act was intended to overcome."

Green outlined the A. F. of L. amendments, sponsored by Senator Walsh as designed to make it mandatory for the board to investigate union petitions for certification elections, but discretionary for employer petitions; to outlaw company unions more effectively, while preventing legitimate unions from being considered company unions "as in the past;" to prevent the board from invalidating union contracts; to protect the craft union against board rulings, and procedural amendments to be discussed before the committee by Joseph A. Padway, A. F. of L. general counsel.

To these, he said, the A. F. of L. will add another, similar to a pending house amendment, abolishing the present board and creating a new board of five members to be known as the "Federal Labor Board."

"To put it bluntly," he said, "all classes of the public as well as the A. F. of L. no longer respect the administration of the act by this board.

"If this feeling becomes widespread so that there is a refusal everywhere on the part of the A. F. of L. unions to seek relief under the act because of fear of the board's administration, industrial strife and conflict will be the result and the ultimate aim of the act will be destroyed. I say it is imperative that the present personnel be displaced if only to restore confidence and respect in the minds of millions of American workers."

Two Union Men Big Factors in Play Facilities

"Rudy" Olgiati and "Ed" Hargraves Have Earned Southwide Acclaim Due to 'Nooga's Program Under Commissioner Cooke's Department

"Only those who take leisurely what the people of the world are busy about can be busy about what the people of the world take leisurely."

A Chinese philosopher uttered this truth years ago, but it is equally as true in this modern age.

An existence which is all work and no play affords no time for the finer and more pleasant things in life of which this Chinese sage, Chang Ch'so, wrote.

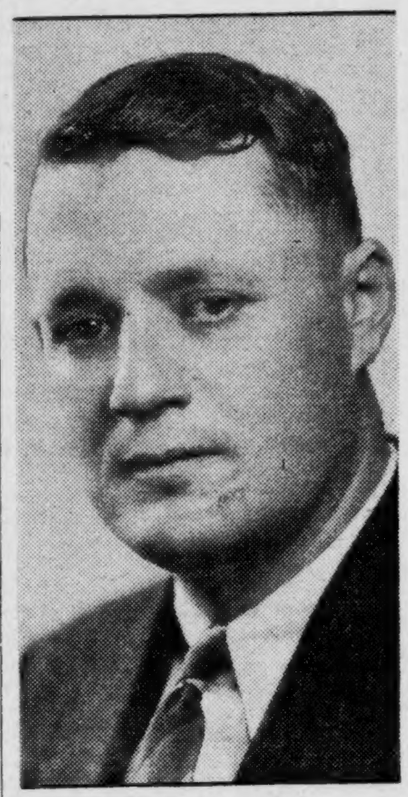
The Greeks and the Romans realized this early, and thus placed a major emphasis on providing leisure hours for play and time for the arts. By so doing they developed a superior man in many respects.

The people of this Western world have been schooled from each succeeding generation in that adage—all work and no play makes Jack a very dull boy.

But the trouble in America has been that all too frequently Jack has had neither the leisure nor facilities for play, at least, until recent years. He has not sat by choice at a desk or stood before a man-made machine from sun-up 'till sun-down, but rather has he done so by necessity.

Organized labor came along a comparatively few years ago to make great strides in providing the leisure that ancient civilization learned was so imperative to their growth and happiness.

The development of leisure by labor for Jack was brought about through shortening of the work-day and work-week for the adults and for the Nation's youth, through compulsory anti-child labor laws.



P. R. OLGIATI

Following the paving of this road for time-to-play, came a nation-wide movement to establish play and recreation on a much wider scope than heretofore. This demand was strengthened in depression years when thousands of men and women lost their jobs. In their leisure they sought and needed something to do.

Chattanooga fell in line with this recreation movement almost with its inception, through the interest of the City Department of Public Utilities, Grounds and Buildings, of which R. M. (Bob) Cooke is the Commissioner.

Commissioner Cooke was fortunate in the selection of P. R. Olgiati, to supervise this expansion program, for Olgiati was well schooled in the City's parks and playground needs.

And the Commissioner was wise in assigning J. Edward Hargraves to the position of City Director of Recreation.

Olgiati went with the Department in a minor capacity in April, 1935. His ability was quickly recognized by Cooke, who elevated him to the post of Assistant Superintendent shortly after the Commissioner was elected for his first term, and later advanced him to the office of Superintendent.

Although Olgiati is more frequently designated in the press as Superintendent of Parks and Playgrounds, he has served in a much broader cap city. As his knowledge of the internal operations of the Department grew, more and more responsibility was entrusted to him by Cooke. And actually Olgiati has, on more than one occasion, assumed full charge of the Department's affairs in the absence from the City of Cooke.

Born on Cumberland Mountain, in the little community of Groueli, Olgiati moved to Chattanooga at the age of 9, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Olgiati, and has lived here since.

Educated in the Chattanooga public schools, Olgiati afterward entered the building construction work, and has been an active member of organized labor for eighteen years.

Olgiati served his apprenticeship in the bricklayers union and soon thereafter became a leader in the organized labor movement in Chattanooga and Tennessee.

He was elected President of the Chattanooga Bricklayers Union in 1931, and again for a second term, at the organization's last election, but Olgiati actually has held practically every executive post which is within the power of his Union to confer. He has been active in the affairs of the central body, serving as a delegate to it from his local, as well as a delegate to the Tennessee Federation of Labor.

With this background, Olgiati was exceptionally well equipped to supervise an expansion and construction program for city parks and playgrounds. The needs of the laboring people were entirely familiar to this leader of the movement Because of this knowledge, it is not surprising that his program has attracted favorable attention.

ED HARGRAVES

Olgiati's first job was that of constructing four softball diamonds in Warner Park, later to be known as "Cooke Field", in honor of the Commissioner. This undertaking, back in 1925, gave Chattanooga its first real softball center, and resulted in interest in this sport springing up with the rapidity of mushrooms.

He next was entrusted with the supervision of a huge construction program at Lovell Field, to tie up with the increasing interest in aviation. Olgiati started this program through aid of WPA, in 1936. Since then more than $1,000,000 has been spent on expanding and developing Chattanooga's municipal airport.

"I do not suppose the City has more than $30,000 invested in these improvements," he said, entirely too modest to mention the fact that Chattanooga now has one of the best airports in the country. And this work has caused scores of young men to become interested in the study of aviation.

After these improvements came numerous others with which Olgiati was charged with supervision, all these were to lead to Chattanooga raising its recreation and playground standards to among the best in the South.

The City erected community houses in its congested residential areas, built shelter houses in its parks and playgrounds, constructed its first swimming pool and lighted softball diamond for its Negro population, improved its golf course, took steps to bring its playgrounds and parks up to standards, and made many other strides in the first four years of Olgiati's supervision.

The Department, for example, began its enlargement program with one softball field. It now has six well-lighted fields and five unlighted fields. It has increased its number of playgrounds from 22 to 34, added to the play center equipment, and otherwise improved its play and recreation places.

And so it was that the placing of so much emphasis on the need for more out-of-door exercise and recreation led to employment of J. Edward Hargraves as Director of Recreation.

Hargraves was born in Chattanooga November 4, 1902. The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hargraves, he was educated at Baylor, the University of Chattanooga, Emory and Henry College and Chattanooga College of Law.

He entered the teaching profession in 1927 as a member of the faculty of Hardy Junior High School, and in July, 1934, became the City's Director of Recreation.

It has been the duty of Ed Hargraves to insure proper use of these facilities for play and out-of-door recreation provided by the Department of Public Utilities, Grounds and Buildings, under Olgiati's supervision, and the two have made an excellent team.

In 1935, Hargraves organized 106 senior softball teams. He was successful in completing this task in one year. These teams were organized into a city-wide softball federation, and played their first season in 1935.

Hardly had he instituted his softball program than Hargraves began to turn his attention to amateur baseball, which had reached a low ebb in Chattanooga. He was instrumental in setting up the Mid-South Athletic Association and the American Baseball Congress in 1935. These two organizations gave Chattanooga's amateur baseball teams a regional tournament and a world series tournament, the latter played at Battle Creek, Michigan.

Hargraves next became interested in expanding the City's tennis activities, and this resulted in bringing to Chattanooga last year the largest tennis tournament in the South, in which there were 752 entries in the singles and doubles.

Interesting it is that the City's Director of Recreation does not go about his endeavors in an aimless fashion, but rather with a definite purpose in view. His theory is that good wholesome fun "is the birthright of every child in Chattanooga, white or colored," basing his program on a feeling "that it breeds character, patriotism, safety and health."

Hargraves has given great thought to community center pro-

Meet the New Volume

This is Number One of the twenty-fourth volume of The Labor World. We start off on a new volume with an issue which we believe most people will agree is about as interesting in material and as an exposition of the printing art as other spring editions.

Merchants have been most kind to our paper. Possibly the merchants believe that readers of The Labor World have been very kind to them in return. Notwithstanding various up and downs in the weekly newspaper world, labor papers in particular, we pledge the new volume to follow our past history of presenting a sane and honest picture of organized labor in our community.

The Labor World is an asset to this community, we believe. While we never hesitate in entering into a controversy where our cause and the community's welfare is concerned, even though the scrap becomes long and drawn out, The Labor World is never found in the camp of scaremongers or hare-brained projects.

Our business policy has been to approach merchants on the basis of selling an advertising investment. They are never asked to "contribute" an advertisement because "the boys" would be pleased. When it seems to us that a mrchant has that idea in mind, he is told that his advertisement is not desired. Unless he believes that he gets good returns from his Labor World investment, we lose interest.

It has been the purpose of The Labor World, under the ownership and control of the local labor movement, to faithfully reflect the views at least of the majority of local workers; to be conservative and reasonable, yet uncompromising where principle is involved. In national and state matters affecting the workers, it has endeavored to follow the lead of the American Federation of Labor and the Tennessee Federation of Labor, both of which organizations have granted the title of official organ for this territory. It has made earnest efforts to lend what assistance was possible in the upbuilding of Chattanooga. It has studiously avoided any taint of personal feeling on the part of its publishers, and has religiously followed the lead of its owners—Chattanooga Central Labor Union—in all matters in which organized labor is interested.

Again, it may not be amiss upon this occasion to recall that in meeting the countless handicaps and discouragements which are the lot of the labor paper editor, encouraging words, hearty support and patient tolerance of friends, both in and outside of Chattanooga, have been an inspiration during the four years' incumbency of the editor to "carry on," in the hope that The Labor World might be of some service to the great cause which it represents.

To the end that the importance of the labor press may be more generally impressed we present this issue, and if it shall prove of some value to our movement, as well as a bit of pleasure to our readers, we shall be amply compensated for the many weeks of tedious toil incident to its compilation.

This issue marks, incidentally, the twenty-fourth anniversary of The Labor World.

The Noble Red Man

"Tarzan" Brown, a Narragansett Indian, of Alton, R. I., won the Marathon race to Boston the other day by more than a quarter of a mile. The course is 26 miles, 385 yards; and he finished it, mainly through a driving rain, in 2 hours, 28 minutes and 51.1 seconds. In fact, he made the fastest score over this distance that has ever been clocked. There were no time pieces, at least no portable ones, when Pheidippides set the pace that September day in 490, B. C.; and he had taken part in a hot battle before starting.

Aside from the speed he made, there are two unusual things about Brown's achievement. Not that he is an Indian. Indians have won races before; they have almost a habit of winning them. When Cortes came to Mexico, Indian runners were carrying fresh fish from the Gulf of Mexico to the royal palace every day, over a mountain pass more than 7,000 feet above sea level.

The thing that surprises most Americans is that Brown lives in Rhode Island. Most of us think of Indians as creatures of the Wild West. But there are quite a few Indians in New England, New York, Wisconsin and Minnesota; and in all states west. The Indian has been increasing a little in numbers, not declining, in the last few years.

But the really astounding thing is that the Indian winner of this terrific race is a stone mason, and said frankly that he was running for a job.

For Refugee Children

Another "Wagner bill," more correctly a Wagner-Rogers joint resolution, is before Congress. It ought to pass. What Senator Wagner has done for American labor is known to all; but this is something different. It is a resolution authorizing the admission to this country of 10,000 refugee children from Germany this year and the same number next.

"Provided, that satisfactory assurances are given that such children will be supported and properly cared for through the voluntary action of responsible citizens or responsible private organizations of the United States and consequently will not become public charges."

The provision for such assurance is so nearly made already that it may be taken for granted. The Nonsectarian Committee for German Refugee Children and the Quaker organization of the American Friends Service Committee, which never failed yet, are committed to it heart and soul. already offered to receive these children; and medical examination will insure that they are sound Thousands of families in more than 40 states have in body and mind. Also, they will go to families of their own faiths.

It is an unusual thing to do; but the tyranny of Nazism calls for unusual remedies. As Chester M. Wright said when the question was laid before him, "We won't know they're here." Twenty thousand children in two years, cared for by guaranteed effort, will not make a microscopic difference in our own affairs—but the difference it will make with the children is untellable.

Labor cannot speak too strongly on this point.

How Holland Did It

Holland—the right name for the country is the Netherlands, but more people understand at once the first name used—is doing some uncommonly fine work in housing, especially considering where she started from. In 1900, more than 80 per cent of her low-income people lived in one- and two-room houses. Now, only 25 per cent are so housed, and the proportion is dropping each year.

Yet Holland is a little country, 300 square miles larger than the state of Maryland. Her natural resources are small, and have not grown. Her population is 700 per square mile; she was put to high expense in the World War and the depression; no unusual luck has come her way. How can she make such progress in a social work like housing?

By will and grit. By learning, rather suddenly, that she was allowing a bad mistake to be made, reversing her tactics—and sticking to the new way with the stubbornness that wore out Spain.

I Didn't Think...

"You condemn cheap labor on lodge night, but you patronize it on pay-day!"

UNION LABEL LIBEL

By HY HURDLE

An article and cartoon appearing in the April issue of The Railway Clerk and reprinted by permission.

"I didn't think to ask for th' union label" is a tag that is bein' worn by th' thinkin' apparatus of so many union workers that we can easily see one reason why th' workin' class o' people are so often spoke of as bein' their own worst enemies.

"It's a double-dyed cinch," he went on, "that if every union member in America was to start in tomorrer an' demand th' union label o every article they bought, there would be a decided change in th' economic life of our country before Saturday night. It'd be a change for th' betterment o' all classes o' workers, especially them unorganized workers that produce so much o' th' stuff that union workers buy.

"Th' union label on a article means that th' article was made by union workers, drawin' union rates o' pay, an' th' shame of it is that such a small percentage o' us union workers ever ask to see that union label on a article that we go to buy. In lots o' cases, in fact, I'd like to believe that in most cases, this indifference to th' union label is due to th' buyin' worker not thinkin' about it at th' time. But in a good many instances union-made goods are passed up by bargain-minded union buyers because you can't buy a union-made article with a sweat-shop price tag on it an' some of our brothers an' sisters go shoppin' with th' idear that, so far as they're individually concerned, a retail bargain is worth more than a wholesale principle. Such union members as them are libels on th' union label they carry themselves.

"But, as is sometimes th' case o' that kind o' union-user, th' 'u' was th' biggest letter in the word 'union'—he never give a thought to th' 'u' in th' same word. In other words, he was in favor of a airtight, ironbound union an' a leak-proof workin' agreement as regardin' his own class o' labor. Th' union was strictly a personal affair with him an' he never considered unionism as it affected other kinds o' workin' people an' his thoughts never dwelt on th' principles of unionism in general application.

"I always had a suspicion that he was a union-user, an' my suspicions was confirmed one pay-day when I run into him on th' street as he come out of a bargain store with his arms full o' bundles. He didn't even blush when he spied me. In fact, he walked right up an' stopped an' commenced to cuss about th' local growler.

"It seemed that he had filed a nifty overtime claim with th' growler some days previous an' it wasn't gittin' th' handlin' he thought it should have. He was burnin' about it an' he performed with his mouth so long that he worked hisself into a dither an' dropped one of his bundles. It busted open an' I noticed that he had been purchasin' hisself some shirts. I noticed they was marked "MADE IN JAPAN" as I helped him to pick em up.

"Even then I didn't say nothin'. He kept on cussin' th' growler an' fin'ly worked hisself around to exhortin' about unionism in general an' he got plumb full o' hisself. He flung up his chin an' there was a her in each of his eyeballs as he says: 'I believe in th' strict enforcement of every rule in our contract with no shadings nor exceptions. I am a union man. I always will be a union man because I believe in unionism an' all it stands for!'

"'Yeah! I says, you are a hot union man. You pay union dues an' git union hours that afford you enough time off to come to town an' spend your union pay-check. An' what happens to your union principles then? How do you spend your union-protected money? W'y you got enough bundles in your arms right now to make Santa Claus hump-shouldered an' you have made th' rounds of every cheap store in town an' there's a bargain in every bundle—not a union label in the lot! You puff up your chest an' point to your own union label which is your union card, but you libel that label in th' way you express your lack o' union principles!'

"'Here you are now, a union man with a arm full o' no-bill products. You condemn cheap labor on lodge night, but you patronize it on pay-day. Too many "high-wage" criers are cheap buyers. An' a man, like you, that spends so much time harpin' on unionism an' then does his personal buyin' without regard for th' union label, is like a soldier that spends most o' his time trainin' for war an' then, when th' enemy appears, surrenders without firin' a shot!

"'Th' simplest an' most convenient way for each union man to contribute his share towards th' general welfare of unionism is to insist on th' union label bein' displayed on everything he buys!'"

Memphis Movement Owes Much to Labor Editor

"Jake" Has Fought and Remained "True-Blue" Despite All Kinds of Adversity

Twenty-two years ago come June a delegation of Memphis trade unionists came to Chattanooga to talk things over with Jake Cohen. When they departed, Jake packed his bags and trekked down to what T. J. (Brush) Smith terms "the town on Wolf Crick."

Jake has been living over on the other side of the state ever since, but he has never relinquished the many ties of friendships made when he lived in Chattanooga. He edited the Labor World here.

When the visiting unionists — Horace Johnson, W. N. Page and the late Jimmy Seats—dropped in to see Jake in June, 1917, they made him an offer to edit the Memphis Labor Review. He accepted, moved to Memphis and has directed organized labor's paper there continuously except for four years when he served as Shelby County register.

"I believe in taking 40 and making 60 and being at peace with the world," Jake once said in summing up his philosophy. Then, in the next breath, he declared:

"But I'll fight when I have a good reason to fight—for organized labor or non-organized labor."

And such has been his habits. At present, Jake is back as editor of the Memphis Labor Review, a position he re-assumed in the fall of 1938, after serving four years as register.

Jake Cohen is 61 years old. He was born in Odessa, Russia, and at the age of 12 came to the United States. His first job was in Baltimore as a cigarmaker's apprentice. Six months later he fired himself because he didn't like the smell of tobacco.

Before he was 13, Jake had slipped on a pair of overalls and was at work in a Baltimore machine shop as an apprentice.

At night, young Cohen went to school and studied the English language.

"It was dangerous in those days to join the union," Jake once recalled. "The man who first talked to me whispered. I joined."

J. COHEN

That was about 48 years ago that the unionist whispered to Jake and ever since he has been preaching, shouting and writing for the cause of the labor movement.

As a young man, he worked at his trade in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, and finally to the West Coast. Later he returned to the East and eventually went to Knoxville, where he worked at his trade as a machinist in the railroad shops.

Memphis unionists recognized Jake's ability as a leader and organizer soon after he came to Memphis. The Machinists' Union honored him with nearly every office within its organization.

Back in 1922, Jake was in the thick of the railroad brotherhood's strike. He worked day and night with the strikers' committee and after long night rallies often went to his office to dictate and supervise editorials and news stories for his paper. In one of these articles, he criticized the action of the late Federal Judge Ross. As a result, he was cited by the court and sentenced to 30 days in jail for contempt. Jake appealed the case, however, and the higher court refused to uphold the Ross sentence.

Before he retired in 1934 as president of the Memphis Trades and Labor Council and also the Tennessee Federation of Labor, he had served as president of the Memphis Central Body for eight years. In this capacity and without salary, he was the key figure in a labor movement of more than than 15,000 members, representing 50- odd crafts with a weekly payroll of more than $500,000.

Back in 1933, Jake was leading a campaign to organize the unorganized in his city and West Tennessee. During the midst of this vigorous campaign he received a death threat in a poison pen letter, believed to have been sent him by communists.

"It is an insult to all Southern labor," he declared when the wage differential bobbed up in NRA codes. "The organized crafts have their representatives in Washington to watch out for their interests but most of the white collar group is not represented."

"Put on your fighting clothes," urged Jake during a mammoth rally of unorganized workers during this vigorous campaign which was highlighted on Labor Day, 1933, when Cohen led 25,000 marchers down Memphis' main street in a gigantic show of strength. Later that night the marchers gathered to hear Donald Richberg, then NRA general counsel and co-author of the Recovery Act. The 1933 Labor Day celebration was one of the most outstanding ever staged in the Bluff City.

Jake Cohen's biography reads like an Horatio Alger story. He has rubbed elbows with the late Arthur Brisbane, famous newspaper columnist; traveled with Jack London, the novelist and — Jake has gone hungry.

During all his years, he has worked untiringly for the uplift of the man who earns his living by the sweat of his brow. Never has he been too busy to drop his personal business and go out to a meeting in an attempt to light an organization flame in a gathering of workers.

Capital Highlights

BY GEORGE KNAPP

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Railroad Retirement Board, here in Washington, is doing some investigating work that within its narrower field rivals the WPA. Most people will be greatly surprised to be told that 1,720,688 persons actually worked on the railroads of the United States in 1937. Most folks thought the number of railroad workers had dropped to not much more than a million. But wait:

The largest number working on our railroads in any one month that year was 1,174,434, or 68.2 per cent of the grand total.

The average number was 1,115,077, or 64.7 per cent of the total.

The number who worked in each of the twelve months was 904,636, or 52.5 per cent of the total.

The number who worked less than 6 months that year was 534,934, or 31 per cent of all railroaders employed that year, and,

There were 436,637 railroad workers or 25.3 per cent of them all, who put in less than four months in the year.

If you will find any other set of figures that give a more appalling picture of the uncertainty of employment in big business, let me know. I have been looking for them a long time without finding them.

Dr. H. H. [illegible]ett, chief of soil conservation in the Department off Agriculture, gave an enlightening lecture on that subject to the House Labor Committee.

He told the Congressmen that more than 100,000,000 acres of crop land, some among our best, was completely finished with crop raising now, because of erosion. He told them that this represented about the same area as New England, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. We are losing every day, as the result of erosion, 200 forty acre farms; and the direct losses to farmers alone, not counting other losses, is nearly $400,000,000.

But he gave them the cure—or at least the thing that will stop or greatly check erosion. Make the CCC a permanent thing, and a big enough thing to use all over the country to check the waste of soil. Uncle Sam now has 355 soil conservation camps, with about 70,000 CCC lads in them, and they are doing uncommonly good work.

Amen from this pew. The CCC would be worth while of itself. But with erosion-stopping, reforestation and forest fire-fighting, it is a standing army against the less friendly moods of nature—and a thundering fine training as well.

One of the best things about the president's first reorganization order is that it practically eliminates the relief bill of Senator Byrnes. That bill, which also unified relief, had some bad features. It would require a jobless man or woman to exhaust his or her unemployment insurance before getting a relief job; and unemployment insurance is frequently as low as $5 a week, sometimes lower.

The Byrnes bill, too, would require the states to put up one-third of the cost of the Works Progress Administration. That would kill all white collar projects; for the Federal government bears this expense now—and it is one of the most valuable producing expenses. Not to mention other things, the white collar projects include all the splendid research which the WPA has done on health as well as on social matters; and its series of guide-books, far from complete, is admittedly the greatest collection of facts on American history and personality ever brought together.

And in the last few years, more than a million grown folks have learned to read through the WPA.

Labor Editor Woodmansee Re-elected To Springfield Board of Education

Springfield, Ill.—Robert E. Woodmansee, editor and publisher of the Illinois Tradesman, headed the list in the recent election for members of the Springfield Board of Education, polling 12,587 votes.

Mr. Woodmansee carried the unanimous endorsement of the organized labor movement here. He is finishing his twenty-sixth year as a member of the school board, of which he is the president.

Michigan Court Upholds Right of Martin's Auto Workers to Control Plymouth Local

Detroit, Mich.—The Michigan Supreme Court handed down a decision sustaining the verdict of Circuit Judge DeWitt H. Merriam which gave control of the funds, properties, membership rolls and authority of Plymouth Local No. 51, International Union, United Automobile Workers of America, headed by Homer Martin.

The sustaining decision once again conclusively demonstrates that the UAW, under the leadership of Mr. Martin, has acted legally and in the best interests of the membership.

The Circuit Court decision case was handed down in February by Judge Merriam after a revolt of the membership swept from power the CIO-Lamotte-Communist clique. The CIO-Communist group contested the legality of the election which swept them into oblivion, but lost their plea.

Pat McCartney, international executive board member in charge of Chrysler affairs, commented:

"This decision only proves further that we have acted legally and constructively for the welfare of the workers and for the union as a whole."

Railway Rate Injustices Hold DOWN Wages of Tennessee Labor

DISCRIMINATION against southern shippers in favor of those of the North and East is mainly responsible for the lower wages paid by industries of the South. Our manufacturers must sell their products chiefly in northern and eastern consuming centers. They must compete with manufacturers located in the favored sections who enjoy preferential freight rates to these markets approximating an advantage of 39 per cent over our own shippers. These consuming centers are interested only in WHAT IT COSTS TO BUY OUR GOODS DELIVERED. Our cost of delivering being so much higher than our competitors pay, our southern manufacturers must CUT PRODUCTION COSTS to offset this handicap. It is inevitable that wage levels must remain lower. When our manufacturers are unable to meet competition in the large consuming centers there are FEWER JOBS for our workers as a matter of course.

This is Labor's problem as well as that of the manufacturer; and Labor should, in its own vital interest, add its full weight to the public opinion which is now demanding that this injustice in freight rates be ended. Rate differentials against southern shippers is, in effect, a tariff wall against our products. If it did not exist our manufacturers could pay wages equal to those of like industries in the North and East, and we could manufacture into FINISHED PRODUCTS many of the raw materials we must now ship to plants in those sections.

Tennessee can become one of the most prosperous industrial sections of the Nation, with plenty of jobs for everybody at the national average wage level—but not so long as this discrimination in freight rates is permitted to continue.

Major Problem Which Faces Almost All Industry in the South Is FREIGHT RATE DIFFERENTIALS

THE REPORT to President Roosevelt on the Economic Conditions of the South, from a study made by the National Emergency Council, makes this reference to the discrimination in freight rates: "In addition to absentee ownership and the high cost of credit, the major problem which faces almost all industry in the South is that of freight rate differentials. The present interterritorial freight rates which apply on movements into other areas of many southern manufactured and semifinished goods, and some agricultural products and raw materials, handicap the development of industry in the South. This disadvantage works a hardship particularly with regard to shipments into the important northeastern territory. This region, containing 51 per cent of the nation's population, is the greatest consuming area. The southeastern manufacturer sending goods across the boundary into this region is at a relative disadvantage of approximately 39 per cent in the charges which he has to pay as compared to the rates for similar shipments entirely within the eastern rate territory.

"In effect, this difference in freight rates creates a man-made wall to replace the natural barrier long since overcome by modern railroad engineering. Both actual and potential southern manufacturers are hampered because attractive markets are restricted by the existence of a barrier that is now completely artificial. The southern producer, attempting to build up a large scale production on the decreasing cost principle, finds his goods barred from wider markets in the nation's most populous areas. In marketing his products over the wall he is forced to absorb the differences in freight charges . . . . Handicapped In its efforts to industrialize, the economic life of the South has been squeezed to a point where the purchasing power of the southern people does not provide an adequate market for its own industries, nor an attractive market for those of the rest of the country."

Americans Pay Three Billion Dollars Annually for Their Medical Care

Most of This Tremendous Burden Falls on Working Men and Women; United Effort to Prevent and Control Disease Visioned Possible and Practicable.

By CONSTANCE KENT

Medical care costs the people of the United States approximately three billion dollars per year. This is a sizable sum. But is it enough to justify all the discussion about it? Pleasure cars and the gasoline to operate them cost us over twice as much annually as the bill for medical care. Yet nobody groans about the hardship which pleasure-car expense entails. If the failure to buy medical care carried no more penalty than the failure to buy a pleasure car, and if we could purchase medical care when we pleased and when it suited our incomes, we should have no excuse for calling "medical costs" a "problem" and seeking a way to solve it.

But are medical-care bills and auto bills comparable? To most persons the question sounds absurd. Nevertheless, it is often asked, or at least, implied. So perhaps we had better be prepared to answer this question or to have a set of counter-queries. We might ask, for example:

Postponing Medical Care Is Dangerous

"Have you ever known a case where failure to buy a pleasure car was followed by the death penalty? Have you ever heard a man say: 'Well, Mary, maybe the Joneses can afford scarlet fever for their child, but we can't for Junior. Tell Doc to forget about that scarlet fever diagnosis, and treat the kid for colic'? Have you ever heard a woman observe thoughtfully: 'John, I believe now is a good time to turn in my old scar for a down-payment on another operation. Of course, if the hospital won't make me a good allowance, I'll wait till used-scar prices go up'?"

The truth is, you can't dictate to Illness. You can't, for instance, tell an attack of erysipelas to go away and come back after the wheat is harvested, or after the factory reopens, or after the furniture is paid for. You can, of course, put off calling a doctor until one of these desirable events takes place. By such restraint, you may save a bill, but you also run a risk that your family will have to pay the undertaker instead of the doctor.

There are some persons who are too careless, stupid or prejudiced to seek medical care at all. But most people want the comfort and assurance of a doctor's service when sickness strikes them or any one of their family. Most people do not want to suffer the pains and anxieties of sickness without relief, or to put their lives in jeopardy; but neither do they want to meet an uncertain and possibly large cost, to mortgage 10 per cent or 20 per cent or even 50 per cent of this or of next year's income—an income already committed to regular family expenditures. Neither do they want to accept charity!

Sickness Costs Cannot Be Foreseen

These are bitter "choices"—sometimes so bitter that they might be said to constitute no choice at all. Yet they are the choices which confront at one time or another the bulk of American families, self-respecting, self-supporting, but with no back-log of savings. And the fear of bills keeps many people from seeking medical care early in an illness, when generally speaking, most can be accomplied for cure or prevention.

The costs of sickness are generally unpredictable. They are also very uneven. For every thousand persons, on the average, about half will have no sickness during a year, and will have to spend nothing for medical care except perhaps a little for home remedies. About one-third of these thousand persons will have moderate sickness bills, and the remainder will have heavy bills. About 200 persons in the thousand will have to bear over 40 per cent of the total costs of medical care for the whole group for the year. And no person can tell in advance whether he or his family will fall in the lucky 500, the moderately lucky 300, or the unfortunate 200.

Illness Hits All Groups

Who is to blame for this predicament in which most of us at any time may, and too often actually do, find ourselves? Certainly not the doctor. Many a doctor gives more free care than is fair to his own family. Certainly not the person who is ill. The real culprit is the nature of Illness—its unpredictability and its complete indifference to income status. People with Ford incomes do not buy Cadillacs! But people with Ford incomes are stricken with costly illnesses as often as people who own Cadillacs; in fact, more often.

Is there no answer except deprivation, debt or charity? Yes; for as other articles in this series will describe, a good many physicians, many wage-earners, farmers, employers, co-operative associations and local, state and national governments have undertaken plans to prevent and control disease, to reduce its financial burden, or to spread its costs so they will not fall with crushing weight upon some people every year.

Striking Teamsters Charge Conspiracy Of Big Department Stores Company To Destroy Chicago Unionism

CHICAGO.—Officers of the Chicago Federation of Labor, in conjunction with all affiliated organizations, are rallying Chicago's trade union forces to defeat Wieboldt Stores, Inc., in a bitter dispute with truck drivers called out on strike by Furniture Chauffeurs and Helpers Union, Local No. 711, and Baggage and Parcel Drivers Union, Local No. 725, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America.

The company owns six large department stores in the Chicago Chicago Association of Commerce area and has the support of the and all of he major department stores in its fight to prevent organization of its drivers, which has been branded a conspiracy to destroy the Chicago labor movement.

The strike, called after the store management refused to reinstate an employe discharged for union activity, had been under way a week before violence flared; and then the Chicago Employers' Association, a notorious strikebreaking organization, stepped into the controversy and things began to happen.

"Labor Terrorism" Charged

A "helper" on a Wieboldt truck was fatally shot. The big daily newspapers immediately branded it "labor terrorism" and in full page advertisements, the Cook County Retail Council, with which are affiliated the larger retail stores, offered a $5,000 reward for information leading up to the arrest and conviction of the murderer. Of the slaying, Daniel D. Carmell, the unions' attorney, said:

"Remember, the Chicago Employers' Association is in the picture, as is the Hargraves Detective Agency and other strikebreaking, union-busting groups and remember the testimony before the La-Follette Civil Liberties Committee. This will tell you why the truck, when told to go a specific route where police protection was provided, did not follow this route but was found ten blocks off of the route with two cases of whisky in the back of the truck (where the "helper" was shot).

Injunction Excuse Sought

"The Employers' Association was looking for an excuse to get an injunction against the unions. Nothing had developed in the entire fight to give them an excuse. The man was shot because they were trying to build up evidence against the unions; and when the $5,000 reward they are offering is paid and there is an honest investigation, the $5,000 will convict the men who are making the charge against the union in this strike."

The anti-picketing injunction which the employers expected was not forthcoming.

Drivers Vote A.F. of L.

The Wieboldt drivers voted 59 to 1 for the A.F. of L. union, defeating the Wieboldt Employes Organization, a company union, in a collective bargaining election supervised by Harry E. Scheck, commissioner of conciliation for the United States Department of Labor. Sixty-five of the 72 chauffeurs and helpers employed by the Wieboldt organization are striking for union recognition and against a so called efficiency system which has been highly profitable to the company.

Boy howdy, did I have a good time last Sunday. I spent the day at home with the wife and children and did enjoy so much the strawberry short cake we had for lunch as it was made from Erskine cake and Grant Patten Cream. With these two products being 100 per cent union made, I am sure it was the best that anyone could have had.

Bros. Howard Shelton is still in the hospital suffering from an infection of the throat. Hope he will recover soon. We miss him at our meetings.

And be sure to look for the union label on the Benn Hubb peanut butter. You will find it on the jar and don't forget that all the information I can get this is the first peanut butter to bear the union label in the history of organized labor, so let's everyone name this to our grocer and ask him for it. Congratulations to Mr. Sanford Bennett for making this possible.

Harry Hopkins Says PFC Must Do Something About Complaints of Lending Policies—Praise of Judson King Fully Justified—"Jim" Mead Urges WPA Expansion.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington. — Harry Hopkins never has been in bad with newspaper men of Washington; in fact, he is a prime favorite with most of them. But he has written a letter to Jesse Jones, head of the RFC, which in substance is going the rounds. The Merry Go-Round Quotes this paragraph:

"Jesse, I'm getting hundreds of squawks about RFC lending policies every day. So are you, so is the White House, so is the SEC. Now this can't go on. You'll just have to get down off your high horse, and do something about it."

And since 90 per cent of all complaints about the RFC is the failure to lend to small business, plus an undue deference to the opinion of bankers when any one wants a loan that will help break open some monopoly, one can bet that Senator "Jim" Mead, of New York, who has fought longer and harder on this than anyone else, is chuckling through the whole six feet of him.

Nothing else that is even suggented would give such a boost to employment as loans that would put heart into small business.

I would like to say, from fourteen years of personal acquaintance, that Judson King deserves every word of the enthusiastic praise bestowed on him by the 500 liberals at the banquet in his honor, and by the president who couldn't come. From before our personal acquaintance began, have classed Judson King as the greatest pamphleteer in North America; and anyone who listens to the piffle that pamphleteering is no longer effective need only to follow the work of Judson King.

Pamphleteering is effective when done right. Jud is a glutton for facts, a fanatic at getting them right, and a crusader in every way of his time for labor and liberalism. If we had more pamphleteers like Jud, the control by high finance of 80 per cent of the daily press of the country wouldn't be half as dangerous as it is now.

Senator Mead is trying to increase President Roosevelt's $1,750,000,000 for relief in the fiscal year of 1940 by $500,000,000 for the WPA. Very early in the session, before the president had issued his first reorganization order, Mead had put in a bill making the public works administration a permanent part of the interior department, and appropriating $500,000,000 for its first year.

Labor will stick to Mead and tight on this matter as he has always stuck to labor. No activity in the United States is in more need of revival than construction. No branch of labor has been harder hit by the depression than the building trades; not even the musicians, for they have begun to climb back. Under the present circumstances, the federal government is about the only thing around that can spend this sum on work which will not only furnish work much needed now, but bring permanent benefits.

Good luck to Senator Mead.

A. F. of L. Urges Congress to Reject Any Reduction in Taxes for Federal Unemployment Compensation

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The American Federation of Labor has placed itself on record as strongly opposing reduction of taxes collected for the payment of Federation unemployment compensation.

In a letter to Chairman Robert L. Daughton and other members of the House Ways and Means Committee, President William Green of the Federation declared that a reduction, probably followed by state action, would have a disastrous effect on unemployment compensation funds and benefit systems.

President Green's letter said:

"The American Federation of Labor is concerned about the proposal that the Federal tax of 3 per cent on payrolls under Title IX of t Social Security Act should be reduced. It is only the uniformity of the Federal tax which has encouraged states to enact unemployment compensation laws and to build up fund from which benefits could be paid.

"If the Federal tax is reduced, few states would be able resist the pressure from employers to equalize interstate competitive conditions by reducing their taxes to the level of the lowest state, or to the new low level established by the Federal law. The effect on the funds and benefit systems would be disastrous.

"In many states any material reduction in the tax rates now would make it impossible to pay even the existing scale of benefits.

Benefits Not Adequate

"No state is paying benefits which by any reasonable standards can be considered satisfactory. No reduction of rates should be considered until more adequate benefits are adopted and have been paid for a long period of time for the effect on the funds to be certain.

"The present low standards of benefits, proposed in Federal draft bills used by most states in framing their own laws, were never considered adequate. They were proposed in the belief that they were the utmost that could be paid if the tax rate were 3 per cent. Half the members of the Committee on Economic Security, which drafted the Social Security Act, believes that the tax rate should be higher.

Cut Vigorously Opposed

"It is unreasonable now, after only one year of benefit experience and with inadequate benefits, to reduce the tax. Benefits must be substantially raised before any change in tax rate should be considered. We strongly urge you to vote against any reduction."

Green's letter directed attention to Social Security Board recommendations to extend coverage to all employers with one or more employes instead of to employers with eight or more workers as at present. The board recommended that the payroll tax be limited to the first $3,000 of annual wages instead of all salaries as at present.

The A. F. of L. had no objection to this tax limitation if the coverage of the act was "extended over employers of one or more at any time," the letter said.

If we take away from the strong man the right to hit the little man on the head with a club, is that, too, great curtailment of liberty?—Louis McHenry Howe.

TENNESSEE'S CHALLENGE

Both Man, Mosquito Are Malaria's Preys

THE THREAT OF MALARIA

Malaria is a parasite which preys on both man and mosquito, and can be controlled by breaking its life cycle at either point, said Dr. L. W. Diggs of the University of Tennessee's College of Medicine, speaking at a "Malarial Symposium" being held at U. T. this spring. In describing the life cycle of the malarial parasite, Dr. Diggs brought out the following facts:

Malarial fever and malarial infection are caused by a microscopic organism which infests the red blood cells of the body and which is transmitted to man by the mosquito. The mosquito acquires the parasite by sucking blood from a human being who has the mature sexual forms of the parasite in his blood. The conditions within the stomach of certain types of mosquito are suitable for the further development of the male and female parasites and for reproduction.

Following fertilization the parasite passes through the stomach wall of the mosquito and attaches itself to the stomach—where it grows, divides and develops into a cyst or bag-like structure containing numerous parasites. The cyst ultimately ruptures, liberating the infective forms which finally become concentrated in the mosquito's salivary glands. When the mosquito infested with such malarial organisms bites a human being, some of the parasites escape into the blood stream and tissues around the wound, and being actively mobile rapidly spread over the body.

For the first one to three weeks or longer, the parasite is not demonstrable in the blood of man, but it rapidly multiplies inside of the body, and ultimately reappears in the blood stream in large numbers. The red blood cell becomes destroyed by the growing and expanding organisms within its membrane. The chill and the highest fever come at the time the largest number of red blood cells are being destroyed, and are thought to be due to the toxic structures liberated by the parasite and by the injured cells. The type of fever caused by the malarial organism varies with the species of parasite.

The diagnosis of malaria is made by the demonstration of the causative organism in the blood. A drop of blood is taken on a clean slide, stained and examined under the microscope. When the symptoms are due to malaria the parasites are demonstrable in the blood.

The state, through its public health laboratories, offers facilities for examination of blood smears for malaria. Before taking treatment for malaria, the diagnosis should be established or confirmed by laboratory methods, for treatment is expensive and often unpleasant and many diseases besides malaria are capable of causing chills and fever and producing symptoms which resemble malaria.

In order to control malaria the life cycle of the malarial parasite must be broken at some point; either by killing off the parasites in the body of man or by destroying the mosquito which transmits the disease. In spite of extensive investigation of all phases of malaria for many years, there remain many unsolved problems. It is the hope of the staff of the University of Tennessee that it will be able through studies and research now in progress to uncover new information which will be useful in eradicating the disease.

Malaria is one of the south's major health problems. The health of the people is directly concerned with its economic status, and the solution of the malarial problem will do much to increase the economic efficiency of the south and make possible a better utilization and conservation of its natural resources.

Still Holds Good!

Were it not for the labor press, the labor movement would not be what it is today, and any man who tries to injure a labor paper is a traitor to the cause.

—Samuel Gompers.

ICC Ruling Upholds Right to Protect Workers in Railroad Mergers

Washington, D. C.—The Interstate Commerce Commission, by a 6 to 4 vote, held it had authority to prescribe provisions for protection of labor in authorizing rail consolidation and leasing agreements.

A three-member division of the commission was criticized by railroads last October when it included labor-protecting provisions in approving consolidation of the Louisiana & Arkansas Railway Co. and the Louisiana, Arkansas & Texas Railway Co., and leasing of the Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf Railway Co. by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co.

Railroads contended the ICC did not have authority to condition the lease and merger with provisions that would guarantee employes against wage cuts, job losses, or expenses incidental to transfer.

The full commission, rejecting the protests, issued a conditional order for the leasing of the Rock Island & Gulf. The commission authorized the merger without prescribing its own labor-protecting clauses on grounds that the merged company adhered to a 1936 Washington agreement between rail labor and capital which was designed to protect labor.

These conditions, the ICC found "are broader than those of the conditions we heretofore imposed" and the employes would be protected fully.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Frequently automobiles coming out of a private road or driveway feel that they have undisputed right to enter the main thoroughfare. Recently, this question was sent to me:

"Does a driver of a car entering a street or road from a private road or driveway have the right-of-way over all vehicles approaching on the stret or road?"

No—decidedly not.

The driver should stop to see that the street or road is reasonably clear. The driver of a vehicle on the street or road may not know there is a private road or driveway there.

You are not in the line of traffic when you come on to a road from a private driveway, so until you are sure you can get into the line of traffic without an accident, wait—be alert—be careful.

IT'S SMART TO DRIVE CAREFULLY.

More Than 98 Percent of 1938 Wage Items Correctly Reported to Bureau Of Old-Age Insurance

Examination of more than 76,000 old-age insurance accounts, at the request of wage-earners desiring statements of their reported earnings, has revealed that less than 2 per cent show a difference between the total as reported by the employers and that which the worker believed should be credited to him, according to Louis A. Stein, Jr., the social security board's field office manager, in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Approximately 4.67 per cent of all the requests received by the bureau of old-age insurance came from the states in this region, according to Mr. Stein. These include Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina and Tennessee. The largest number, about 34 per cent, came from New York state, and the smallest percentage of requests, 2.21, from the Rocky mountain states.

Mr. Stein explained that John J. Corson, director of the bureau of old-age insurance, had announced in June, 1938, that statements of wage credits for 1937 could be obtained for the asking. It was also stated at that time that, for the wage-earner's convenience, postcard inquiry forms had been made available at all social security board field offices. An employee, it was suggested, could obtain one of these forms either by writing to the manager of the office or by a personal call. It was also explained that the manager would assist any applicant in filling it out and in answering any questions concerning the old-age insurance program. Since then these forms have been made available by many union labor headquarters, offices of business concerns, and other organizations.

The greater part of the requests for statements of earnings, Mr. Stein explained, have come from workers who had some doubt that the wages they had earned had been reported by their employers. To all requests the bureau of old-age insurance has replied promptly and in many cases has been able to locate the missing wage items and credit them to the wage-earner's account. In cases where the accounting section of the bureau has not been able to do this, it has referred the inquiry to the board's field office managers who personally interview the employer.

DEMOCRACY IS IN HEART

(From the New York Times)

A few days ago the eastern conference of the German-American League for Culture, meeting in Newark, openly proclaimed its "devotion to the American democratic system and its opposition to the race hate preached by the German-American Bund and allied groups." On the following day spokesmen for 2,000 members of the same organization in Detroit sent President Roosevelt a letter, approving his "condemnation of the dictator nations" and recognizing "the dangers that Nazism and Fascism constitute to the civilized world today."

We hope and believe that the great majority of German-American citizens, like the great majority of all our citizens, will fervently support these positions. We hope and believe, too, that Americans of other than German descent will give these fellow-citizens their encouragement and sympathy. Americanism is not in the blood—it is in the heart and mind.

LEISERSON IS APPOINTED TO PLACE ON NLRB

WASHINGTON, D. C.—William M. Leiserson, chairman of the National Mediation Board, has been appointed by President Roosevelt to take the place of Donald Wakefield Smith on the National Labor Relations Board.

Smith's reappointment has been vigorously opposed by the American Federation of Labor and the appointment of Leiserson is regarded as a Federation victory.

By contacts, by habit, by experience, and by a large number of qualities, Leiserson is regarded as qualified for the Labor Board job. He graduated from the University of Wisconsin, and was an intimate pupil of John R. Commons, famous sociologist. He was deputy Industrial Commissioner of Wisconsin. He was chairman of the Labor Adjustment Board of the men's clothing industry in Rochester, N. Y. He has held half a dozen Federal offices. He has been arbiter in—well, he would have to look to say how many industrial disputes. Printing, clothing, oil shipping, telegraphs, railroads—he has had a hand in all of them.

For five years, he has been with the National Mediation Board; which in 1934 was created to take the place of an earlier railroad labor board, formed in 1926. The change in law and agency, except in name, was not half so important as the improvement in personality. Only once since he was there have railroad labor disputes been within spy-glass distance of a real, honest-to-goodness strike.

Leiserson was born in Esthonia, one of the Baltic states, 56 years ago. He is a scant 5 feet 6, above sea level, strongly built, round headed, light haired, eyes of an indeterminate gray.

A.—It is taken from the wood and bark of trees of the laurel family. Commercial camphor comes from a tree extensively cultivated in Japan and on the island of Formosa. It is extracted from chipped wood by steam distillation.

Q.—Is whalebone the bone of a whale?

A.—It is not really bone, but plates of a horny material called baleen, which hang down from the roof of the "right" whale's mouth. They are used in straining the small animal matter on which the whale feeds. A ton or more is taken from one whale, according to Dr. G. A. Canning, U-T zoologist.

Q.—How did we come to use "O. K." as an expression of approval?

A.—There are several explanations of the derivation. One, that it is from the Choctaw word "Okeh," which means "it is so and in no other way." Others say the expression was handed down by an Indian chief named Old Koeko who used his initials as a sign of indorsement. A humorist once claimed that Andrew Jackson originated the expression by marking official papers O. K. or "Orl Korrect."

Q.—What is the difference between visible and invisible smoke?

A.—Visible smoke contains soot which is the result of imperfect combustion of the fuel (either wood, coal or oil). Smoke is not visible when combustion is perfect, for it contains only water vapor, carbon dioxide, and other gases.

Q.—What is the meaning of "one inch of rain?"

A.—The fall of water which measures one inch in height. If measured over a surface one inch square, it would be one cubic inch of water. Ten inches of snowfall equals in water content one inch of rain.

Unions Ask Supreme Court to Review Lower Court Order Enjoining Picketing

Washington, D. C.—Three A. F. of L. unions have asked the Supreme Court to review lower court decisions enjoining them from picketing shops of the Union Premier Food Stores Co., in Philadelphia.

An injunction was issued in the Eastern Pennsylvania Federal District Court on the grounds that no labor dispute existed to bring the controversy under the Norris-LaGuardia act prohibiting anti-picketing injunctions. The Third Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the order.

The controversy arose from a jurisdictional dispute between the A. F. of L. unions and a CIO union, involving the question of which organization represented a majority of the food company's employes.

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly.

Taxation is a dull subject. Most people can't make bright remarks about it. Talk at parties or other affairs where people gather for enjoyment is not about taxation.

In other words, people don't like to talk about taxation. They growl about paying taxes and show interest when a specific matter of local taxation is up, as pavement of a highway, for example, but they don't say much about the general subject of taxation and what it means to the nation.

At least this has been the case up to recently. Now taxation is forcing itself on the people as a subject of discussion and some people are actually thinking about it, too.

Which is all to the good. Taxation has got to be talked about and the people have got to determine where they stand on it. If they don't, they are due for a big bump and not in the far distant future, either.

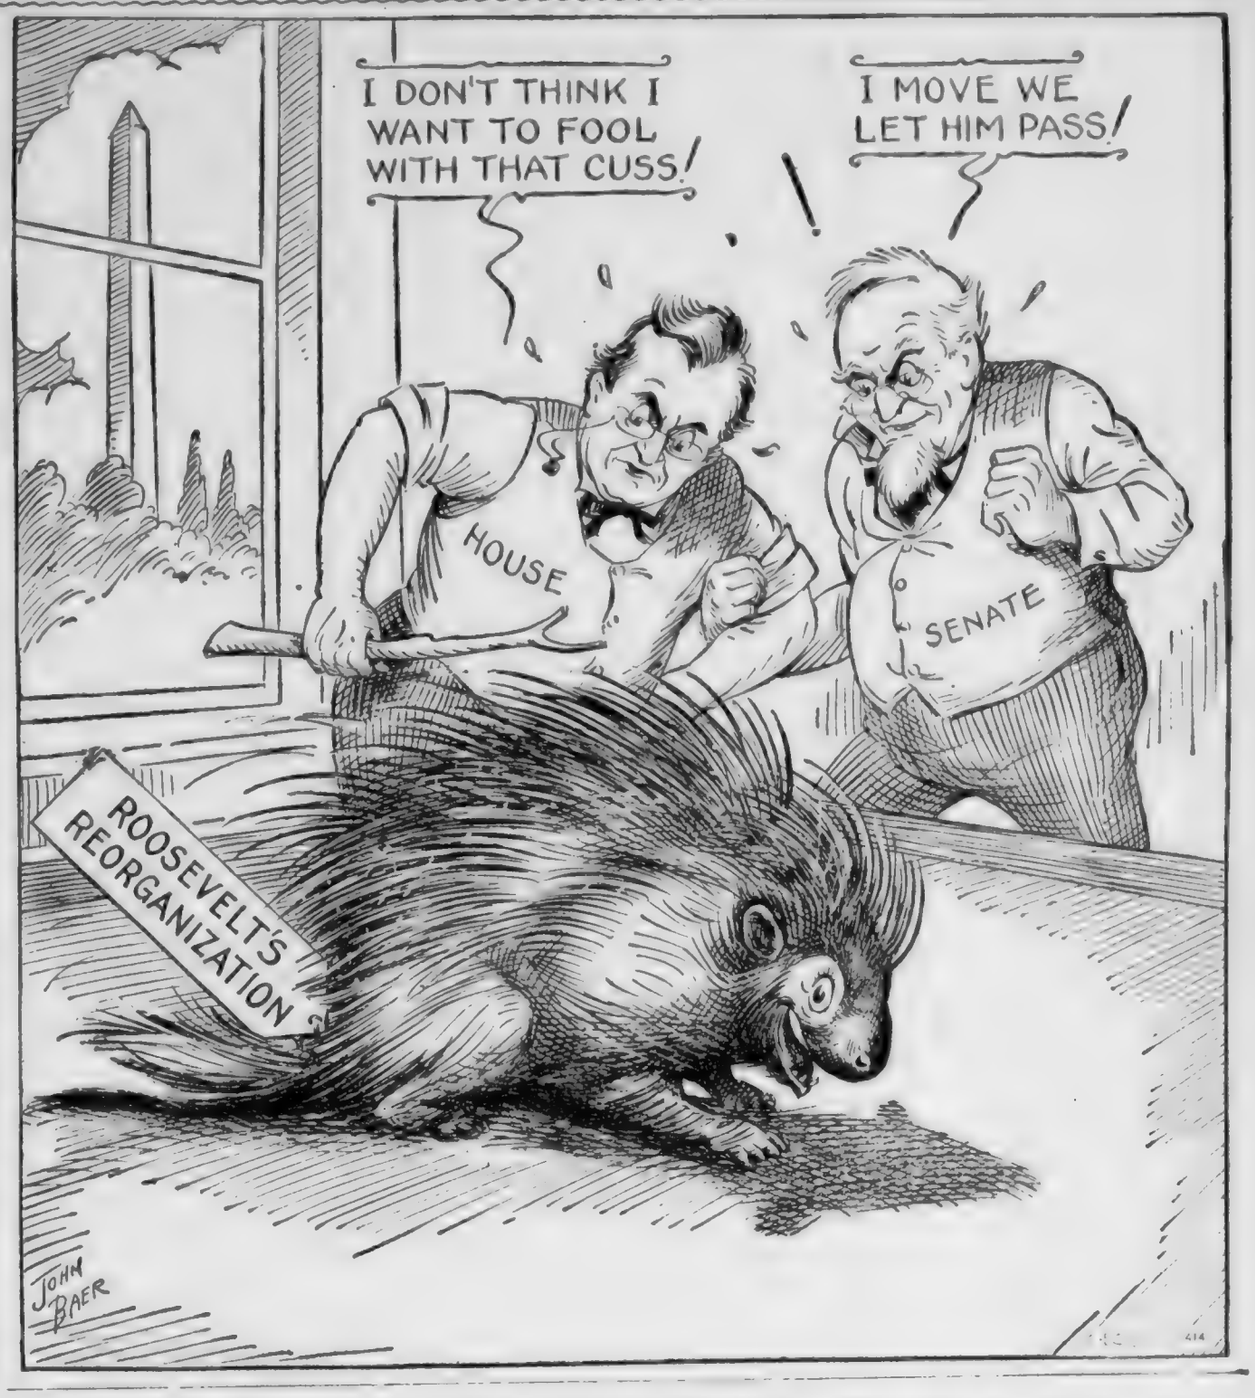
With a national debt far higher than ever before, which shows not the slightest indication of decreasing, it's time taxation became the livest kind of subject.

The Porcupine!

By Baer



Some theorists, who have been influential in New Deal councils, say a big national debt is nothing to worry about. Forget it, they say.

That is bunk of the bunkiest kind. A big debt, for nations or individuals, is nothing to cause rejoicing. The experience of mankind since the beginning of history teaches that.

The theory has been that big government spending, which makes a big national debt, produces abounding prosperity and than can be paid off almost painlessly.

Well, we've had some half-dozen years of trying this theory and it hasn't worked.

Slowly the idea that a huge national debt is not exactly a thing to make merry about, is gaining ground.

What to do, is being asked more and more.

This interest in taxation is reflected in labor's opposition to sales taxes and punitive chain store taxation and in labor's stand on changes in Federal tax laws.

Over a year ago, in January, 1938, the American Federation of Labor Executive Council declared for modification or repeal of the capital gains and undistributed profits taxes.

Now comes the Brookings Institution, recognized as one of the nation's leading research agencies and suggests a detailed plan of tax modification to bring increased industrial expansion and INCREASED EMPLOYMENT.

Brookings Institution proposes, among other things, complete elimination of the capital stock and undistributed profits taxes, reduction of social security taxes to a "pay-as-you-go" basis for financing old age benefits.

The institution says the nation is confronted with a situation where a clear-cut choice must be made, whether "to continue the present tax system, which arrests the flow of funds into capital enterprises, or to modify the system in the interest of industrial expansion, greater employment and higher standards of living."

An expansion of capital enterprise, it added, is the only means of solving the unemployment problem, decreasing the burden of relief and increasing progressively the nation's standard of living.

Brookings Institution may be right or wrong in its tax recommendations.

Point is that the program calls for thorough study, as do other tax proposals.

If the present economic system can't be made to provide work for all, the nation will have to make up its mind to try something else. No system can long tolerate having a quarter of its working population unemployed. If taxation changes will help to put the idle to work, they are bound to come.

The nation as yet has given no real indication of wanting an entirely different economic system.

But if the present system can't be made to work more efficiently, another system will take its place, whether for good or evil, no one can say.

Union Contract Signed By Los Angeles Hotel

President Green Interceded With Members of Danish Royalty Not to Stop at the Ambassador While It Was on Organized Labor's Unfair List.

Los Angeles, Calif.—The Ambassador Hotel of Los Angeles, one of the leading hotels of the Pacific Coast, has settled its differences with the Culinary Unions and is no longer on the unfair list of the Los Angeles Central Labor Council.

An interesting side light in connection with this controversy, now happily ended, is in the fact that President Green of the American Federation of Labor personally interceded with royalty not to stop at the hotel while it was on the unfair list.

To the credit of the Prince and Princess of Denmark and their immediate advisers it should be recorded that they promptly cancelled their reservations at the hotel in response to a straight forward plea of President Green.

Florida State Senate Creates Labor Dept.

Tallahassee, Fla. — Florida labor's No. 1 bill of its legislative program, providing for the establishment of a state department of labor, has been passed by the State Senate.

Adoption of the bill is regarded as evidence of the soundness of the State Federation of Labor's policy of presenting carefully drawn factual statements in support of proposed legislation. The need for a state labor department was strongly presented in statements submitted by President Charles E. Silva of the state organization and members of the executive committee, who are serving as labor's legislative representatives.

The Effect of the General Strike Of 1938 on French Organized Labor

Walkout Was Ordered As Protest Against Anti-Labor Policy of French Government; Thousands of Workers Were Arrested and Many Jailed; Communists Exploited Labor Unrest.

Robert J. Watt of the American Federation of Labor is a member of the Governing Body of the International Labor Organization, General Secretary of which is the United States Government is affiliated. During his attendance at the recent quarterly session of the Governing Body, Mr. Watt secured considerable information regarding the circumstances which led up to the general strike in France late in 1938 and the effect of the strike on the French labor movement. On his return to the United States, Mr. Watt prepared a "Memorandum on the Labor Situation in France," which he submitted to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. The text of the memorandum is included in this article.

BY ROBERT J. WATT

American Workers' Delegate to the International Labor Organization

After conferring with Leon Jouhaux (secretary-general of the French Federation of Labor), Walter Schevenels (international secretary of the International Federation of Trade Unions), and other labor leaders in France, it would appear that the movement in that country is in a somewhat difficult position.

Beginning with 1936, when the established labor movement led by Jouhaux had 800,000 members, an amalgamation took place bringing in about 250,000 Communists.

Shortly after this, when the Popular Front Government was elected, about 4,000,000 members were taken into the trade union movement with the result that the Communists played a large part in assuming the leadership of the Federation, although they only secured two positions out of eight on the Executive of the Federation.

With the defeat of the People's Front during 1938 and the newly elected government steadily moving toward the right, the new labor movement suffered severe losses and lost 2,000,000 of their 5,000,000 members.

It is quite apparent that during this period Jouhaux and his colleagues were forced to counteract strongly the attitude of the Communists, who were in the vast majority in the Federation, and act accordingly.

Origin of One-Day Strike

Then came the Congress of the Federation and the unanimous decision by the Congress to call a 24 hour strike in France against what was interpreted by the delegates to the Congress as an attempt to destroy the 40-hour week, collective bargaining and the representation of workers in industry.

The date of the general strike was fixed for November 30, 1938, by the Council of the Federation, with the announcement that it was in opposition and protest against the application of the decrees by the government, which, according to the Congress, all but nulified the gains of the Federation under the Popular Front government.

Troops Mobilized as Strike Breakers

The executive of the Federation had taken every precaution that no disorder would occur on the day of the strike . . . that work would be resumed on the following day; but the government decided in the meantime to take measures against the strikers, and mobilize troops to take the places of those who were engaged in what was termed 'essential services.'

This fea. on the part of the workers of being court-martialled seriously affected the strike, although the leaders, including Jouhaux, claim that it was 60 per cent effective in the field of private industry.

The government immediately took action and many thousands of arrests were made; workers were fined and sentenced to jail, and in the meantime employers had dismissed many of their workers.

Employers Discharged Thousands

Although at this period government officials were claiming that the strike had weakened the defense of France and prejudiced the manufacture of necessary arms and equipment, the labor leaders point out that at the moment such claims were being put forward the employers were discharging thousands of skilled workers because of their participation in the strike.

There are good reasons to believe that the government used the strike as a vehicle to strike a blow and disrupt the Federation, chiefly because they believed that the strike was a 'manoeuvre' on the part of the Communists for political purposes.

What is evident now is that the Federation for a considerable period will be in a state of transition. The general strike, I believe, exposed to all many general weaknesses.

If it is going to continue as a powerful labor movement it would seem that its activities would have to be focussed more on the economic problem of the workers and less on political problems. Many of its leaders admit that more consideration must be given to securing benefits for its members within the framework of the capitalist system of France.

However, much depends upon international problems on one hand, and the unity of the democracies in defending themselves against the encroachment of the totalitarian countries on the other.

It would seem that if France and other democratic countries are compelled to agree to the continued demands of Germany and Italy the labor movement of France and other European countries will be weakened and probably their present struggle will be short-lived.

House Passes Bill to Extend Life of FHA Two Years

Washington, D. C.—The House passed the bill extending the life of the Federal Housing Administration for two years, from next June 30. The bill as passed raises to $4,000,000,000 instead of $3,000,000,000 the amount of houses that it can insure. The FHA itself wanted a limit of $6,000,000,000.

Two things were sharply fought and decisively beaten. The Republicans tried to strike out any increase; but were beaten. Congressman Cochrane of Missouri put in an amendment which would keep land values from being boosted. He said he had known of cases where a valuation of $40,000 was boosted to $170,000, and one of $170,000 to more than $300,000.

The Cochrane amendment was adopted by a vote of 199 to 142. That is not a strictly party vote.

Municipal Employes of Jacksonville Join American Federation of Labor

Jacksonville, Fla.—Employes of the City Commission of Jacksonville and other city departments have been joining the American Federation of Labor in scores. Labor union officials are confident that before long all of the city employes will become full-fledged union members.

This splendid result is to a very large extent due to Fred M. Balz, chairman of the City Commission, who has co-operated one hundred per cent in the matter of organizing city employes.

There has been a fairly regular mail and passenger service to South America for about 10 years. The same kind of service crossed the Pacific nearly three years ago. It will cross the Atlantic next—the survey voyage of the Yankee Clipper shows that. And still people talk about the vast expanse of the world.

VICTORY FOR UNION FOLLOWS LOCKOUT

Columbus, O.—A brief lockout ended when the Universal Concrete Pipe Co., of this city signed an agreement with the Laborers' Union. Agreement followed a conference between employer and union representatives and R. J. Stevenson of the National Labor Relations Board.

The lockout began when 25 out of the 34 employes signed union membership application blanks. Company representatives canvassed the workers in their homes, seeking to stop the union organizing, but to no avail, and the lockout resulted.

Following the conference between the labor board representative, company and union officials, a contract was entered into which provides for an eight cents an hour wage increase and a union shop.

The pipe company operates union plants in Cleveland, Pittsburgh and New York.

Supreme Court Holds New Farm Act Valid, Reversing Old Decision; Stops Flank Attack on Labor Law

Washington, D. C.—The Supreme Court has rendered three important and far-reaching decisions. It laid down a broad definition of interstate commerce, which not only agrees with facts but stops a flank attack on the National Labor Relations Act. It upheld the act on marketing tobacco, which is identical in principle with the AAA, which was destroyed by the court in the first Roosevelt administration. It ruled that past membership in the Communist party is no ground for deportation.

And it did all these things by divided votes; the first by five to two, the others by six to two.

Firm Held Subject to NLRB

The Somerville Manufacturing Co. of New Jersey resisted an order by the NLRB on the ground that it was not engaged in interstate commerce. The company tailors fabrics into women's clothes. But the fabrics belong to the Lee Sportswear Co. of New York, who send them to New Jersey and take them back for distribution. Justice Stone and four others, Justice Frankfurter not participating, held that this was interstate commerce, and that though a small business, it came under the law.

Justice McReynolds dissented, declaring that the decision was a "terrible weapon for destroying the states." Justice Butler agreed.

Roberts Writes Farm Decision

The decision on the tobacco case was written by Justice Roberts. Three years ago Justice Roberts wrote the decision that knocked out the Agricultural Adjustment Act, on the ground that farming is a local issue. This time he upheld the law, because:

"The statute . . . purports to be solely a regulation of interstate commerce, which it reaches and affects at the throat where tobacco enters the stream of commerce—the marketing warehouse."

Justices Butler and McReynolds dissented. Justice Stone, who dissented from the former decision; Justice Roberts, who wrote the decision three years ago, and Chief Justice Hughes, who joined in it, and the three new justices, Black, Reed and Frankfurter, made up the majority.

Strecker Deportation Barred

The third case is not so conclusive as the others. The court merely held that former membership in a Communist organization did not justify deporting a man now. The court might have taken over the old revival hymn, that "long as the lamp holds out to burn, the vilest sinner may return."

"If this alien (Strecker) is guilty of the charge against him," said Justice McReynolds in a majority opinion, "the public should be relieved of his presence now. That he is an undesirable is made manifest."

The court upheld a rate cut made by the Pennsylvania commission, but Justice Frankfurter wrote a separate opinion, in which Justice Black joined, chiding the court for basing its judgment on the Smyth vs. Ames case of 41 years ago.

grams, primarily so for adult citizens and those of intermediate age, preparatory to utilizing to the fullest extent these newly constructed community center structures.

This young leader has made many other strides in his recreation work for Chattanooga, including: organization the Cherokee Hiking Club, in 1936; the Co-Harda Negro Little Theater, one of the few in the South, and sponsoring of group picnics with play leadership, at Warner Park.

Discussing his program, Hargraves said the division's objective may best be expressed in its motto: Building a Better Chattanooga.

His success is reflected in numerous ways, including the all-time attendance record of last year's softball games, with 800,000 spectators at Warner Park and 425,000 spectators at the colored softball games at Lincoln Park.

It is reflected in the total playground attendance for 1938, that reached a total of 375,000, the largest in the City's history. This is surprising, considering that Hargraves has made a special study of playground activity.

And, reflecting the efforts expended by these two men, Olgiati and Hargraves, to give Chattanoogans better facilities to play, it is not surprising that this City is now recognized by national recreational authorities as one of the best recreation centers in the nation.

It is, however, surprising that P. R. Olgiati and J. Edward Hargraves have time for other interests. Olgiati is a leader in the Alton Park Baptist Church, a member of the Masonic Lodge and a 32nd degree Scotish Rite Mason and a member of Alhambra Shrine. Ed Hargraves is a member of Kappa Phi Kappa, Sigma Delta Kappa, the latter a national legal fraternity; Junior Order, Odd Fellows; Elks; and he, too, is active in his church, St. Elmo Southern Methodist.

Can you keep a Secret?

A FEW PEOPLE don't even yet understand how Sears can and do give you such high quality, and still charge you so little money for it.

Maybe we can explain it—once and for all.

What makes price?
Manufacturing costs
Transportation costs!
Handling costs!
And the cost of doing business!

All these things determine the figures that go onto the price ticket—if these four price factors are high, it just naturally follows that the price has got to be high If they are low then the price can be correspondingly low—without injuring the quality—or without shrinking anybody's pay-envelope anywhere along the line

Sound economy, therefore, would seem to dictate —in the interests of the consumer, meaning you—that every constructive device possible for holding down manufacturing, transportation, handling and business operation costs should be sought out and applied.

In other words, the answer to nation-wide consumer benefits and "the more abundant life" is the elimination of waste in manufacturing and distribution.

Sears merchandise is manufactured as efficiently as is humanly possible, in competent factories, in which the cost-cutting magic of straight-line, mass production constantly operates in your behalf. The same economic law, which has given you $3000 automobiles for less than a thousand dollars, has given you Sears "better goods for less money."

Sears merchandise travels, from factory to you, over the shortest possible route—meaning low freight costs.

Sears merchandise goes through the fewest possible number of hands—meaning low handling costs.

Sears buys for cash, and serves you, without fuss or feathers, in simple practical stores located outside the high rent district. We even omit some of the graceful gestures and niceties with which more expensive stores humor you—for the sole purpose of holding down prices, on the theory that, whereas the moneyed few demand and want to pay for these extras, the great rank and file prefer to have us put our money, and theirs, into the goods

Vincennes Slum-Clearance Project To Set Lowest Rental Mark for New Dwellings in North

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Lowest rentals for new dwellings reached in northern cities in this century will be charged the 83 low-income families who will reside in the first Vincennes, Indiana, slum-clearance rehousing development, it was announced here by Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, as he approved construction bids for the project.

According to closely figured estimates submitted to Straus, shelter rentals in the first project to get under way in Indiana are expected to be $2.2[illegible] per week for a typical house, containing living room, two bedrooms, bath, kitchen-dining room combinations, and utility room.

It is estimated the project will be completed within six months, providing jobs for several hundred workmen on site during construction.

Buildings of Concrete

Administrator Straus said that net construction costs include the structural, plumbing, heating and electrical costs of dwellings, thus comprising the same items as private residential construction costs compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics on the basis of building permit figures.

The dwellings will consist of one-story "twin" houses, with ample space in the front, rear and on the sides for gardens and flower beds. Construction will be of concrete walls, concrete joists and floors, with frame roof construction covered by asbestos shingles. The buildings will be painted inside and outside and all ceilings will be plastered. Heat will be provided by individual coal burning cabinet heaters, with gas for cooking. Each unit will be provided with a utility room.

Prevailing Wage to Be Paid

All dwelling units are designed to last at least 60 years and will provide comfortable shelter, with no sacrifice in living standards being made to achieve rentals low enough for people of the slums to pay. In addition, prevailing wages will be paid the laborers, masons, painters, plumbers, carpenters, plasterer electricians, landscapers and others employed on the job in conformity with the provisions of the United States Housing Act.

Unless the breach in the ranks of labor can be healed and the millions of toilers brought together, the great accomplishments in membership growth, in improved wages and working conditions, and in progressive legislation will be in jeopardy. The difficulties are not insurmountable and must be solved for the protection and progress of the labor movement.—Daniel J. Tobin.

Railway Clerks Victorious Over Company Uuion

Chicago.—Victory by a decisive majority over a "company union" on the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern Railroad was achieved by the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes in an election conducted by the National Mediation Board, G. B. Goble, vice-president of the international union, announces.

The brotherhood, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, received 333 votes; the "company union," 291. The "dummy" organization was the last in the territory covered by Goble, which includes Illinois, Wiconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and parts of Missouri and Kentucky. The railroad is owned by United States Steel Corp. and because of its wealth and power was hard to crack. The clerks' union lost a collective bargaining election in 1937 by only 29 votes. An agreement covering wages, hours and working conditions for over 700 employes is to be negotiated soon.

COMPANY UNIONS BANNED BY A. F. L. AM_NDMENTS TO LABOR RELATIONS

When the National Labor Relations Act became a Federal statute law in 1935 the American Federation of Labor believed that the phraseology designed to end the existence of company unions would bring about the abolition of these monstrous anti-labor excresences imposed on our industrial system by subversive employers.

But the National Labor Relations Board in its opposition to the American Federation of Labor has, by arbitrary and unwarranted interpretation of the terminology of the Act, used the company union section to weaken and even destroy A. F. of L. unions.

The amendments to the Labor Relations Act proposed by the American Federation of Labor in the Walsh Bill definitely and in unmistakable language proscribe company unions. In its recently issued pamphlet explaining its amendments the A. F. of L. reviewed the devious methods by which the Labor Relations Board has interpreted the company union section of the Act against the American Federation of Labor and described the A. F. of L. amendments designed to bring this maladministration to an end. The Federation said:

"Company Unions" Prohibited

"Company unions" must be eliminated. The present act does not condemn company unions in express terms. In fact, the phrase "company union" is not even mentioned. The evil is only partially met by vague, indirect language.

Moreover, this language has been interpreted to the detriment of the interests of the A. F. of L.

It is still possible under the present act (indeed it has been so held) for a company union to appear on a ballot, win an election, and be certified by the Board. At present when a company union is barred from the ballot it is only after a prolonged proceeding. As hereafter shown, our amendments will remedy this.

Company Unions Defined

The A. F. of L. amendments make a forthright approach to the problem. We define the term "labor organization" so as to expressly exclude "company unions" from that definition. In this manner it is made certain that company unions can obtain none of the benefits of the Act. Then a new definition is added to the Act:

"The term 'company union' means any agency, committee, employes' association or employe representation plan, which exists for the purpose, in whole or in part, of dealing with an employer or employers concerning grievances or terms or conditions of employment, which the employer creates, dominates, controls or maintains."

This definition accomplishes two results: It outlaws "company unionism"—crude and subtle—and it prevents the Board from classifying and outlawing legitimate labor organizations as company unions.

Although the Board does not directly order the disestablishment of A. F. of L. unions, the Board has put A. F. of L. unions in the same class as company unions without actually ordering their disestablishment by voiding A. F. of L. contracts, by upsetting elections they won, and by forbidding employers from recognizing them.

After the decision of the Supreme Court in the Consolidated Edison Company case our rivals took the position that the Board should designate A. F. of L. unions as company unions so that the Board could disestablish them altogether.

Employer Activities on Behalf of Company Unions Outlawed. Board Prejudice Suppressed

The amendments do not permit employer interference in favor of company unions, but they do change the language of the present Act so as to prevent the Board's prejudicial "interference" with the lawful rights of A. F. of L. unions. They define company unions, but purposely do not use the word "interfere." The reason is clear.

If the Board had properly interpreted the word "interfere" no harm would have resulted. But the Board has not done so. It arbitrarily and capriciously has seized upon that word and used it as a means to invalidate A. F. of L. contracts, to upset A. F. of L. elections, and to prohibit recognition of A. F. of L. unions. The amendments end this practice and at the same time prevent employer interference in support of company unions by express and definite inhibitions.

If an employer interferes in the creation of an organization or if an employer interferes in the maintenance of an organization, or if the employer interfere so as to dominate, or control an organization, then he has committed an unfair labor practice for which the penalties of the law will follow.

Every union man knows what a company union is. He knows that a company union is an organization set up by the employer (created, which he runs through his puppets (dominates and controls) and to which he contributes support (maintains). Thus it is definite that any and all acts of employers by which company unions are created or maintained are included within and prohibited by the terms "creates, controls, dominates or maintains."

The amendments revise the unfair labor practices now existing so as to specifically make it an unfair practice

"To create, maintain, recognize for the purpose of collective bargaining, or bargain with any company union."

It is also provided that

"No Company union shall be permitted a place on any ballot for any purpose."

Thus by these amendments, employers cannot recognize company unions; employers cannot bargain with company unions; employers cannot enter into contracts with company unions; nor can company unions be placed on any ballots.

Likewise quick action may be had on the issue of company unionism by disposing of it in connection with a petition for certification of representatives instead of waiting for the more complex and delayed procedure involved in an unfair labor practice case.

The A. F. of L. is confident that these amendments will go a long way toward the complete elimination of company unions—certainly much further than does the present act.

rnburn Urges American Mobilization Buying Power for Union Label Goods

Nation-Wide Purchase of Products Made in United States Will Benefit Both Labor and Business, While Money Spent for Imported Goods Increases Unemployment and Burdens Tax Payers, He Says.

Washington, D. C.—An ever-broadening market for goods produced and services rendered by trade union members is the strongest element in restoring prosperity to pre-depression levels, I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor Union Trades Department, declared in a radio address here, over a National Broadcasting company network, emphasizing the importance of the thirtieth anniversary of the establishment of the Department.

The union label, shop card and service button, Mr. Ornburn said, are emblems which "stand for American labor standards including higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions. They are a continual boycott against sweatshops and insanitary conditions. They are a perpetual strike against child labor and low-paid women workers. And, finally, they are the emblems of a union crusade for higher standards of living.

Hours of Labor Reduced

"For the past fifty-eight years, the American Federation of Labor has consistently advocated the three basic principles which are now generally accepted as a foundation for permanent prosperity. Through Labor Unions, hours of labor have been reduced from 72 hours a week to 40 and one-half hours a week. By decreasing hours more jobs are created, which is the only method through which America can re-employ its millions of jobless men and women workers.

Importance of Higher Wages

"The second great principle advocated by the American Federation of Labor is a wage adequate to raise a family according to American standards, which include not only the necessities of life, but also the educational, cultural, recreational values that go with our modern civilization. From an economic standpoint, higher wages for all willing workers would create a national income that would guarantee industrial stability.

Billions Lost During Depression

Recently, before the Temporary National Economic Committee of the United States Senate, noted economists brought out the startling statement that since 1929, because of the depression, wage and salary earners have lost 120 billion dollars, farmers have lost 38 billion dollars, and stockholders have lost 20 billion dollars. In other words, these three groups of society would have had a total of 178 billion dollars more income if the economic machine had continued to produce each year as much as it did in 1929.

Increased Buying Power Necessary

"To create more jobs, to pay more wages to more people, it is necessary at the same time to create a demand for those goods which the new hands produce. In order to increase purchasing power which is conceded to be the principal factor in our recovery program it is also important that all workers receive an income higher than prevailing wage scales. When consumers buy goods made by organized workers they automatically increase buying power and that, in turn, creates better times.

Buy Union-Made Goods

"Not only does the American Federation of Labor advocate the purchase of union-made goods by American consumers, but we also urge the buying of American-made products. We have approved the campaign of economic boycotts as a protest against the racial and religious persecution in Germany and the atrocious bombing of innocent women and children by Japan in China.

"The union label is the best guarantee that products are manufactured in America. The purchase of American-made goods is not only a patriotic duty, but it will greatly help business recovery of American industries. The consumer can greatly assist in this campaign by patronizing only those firms that sell union label goods. They are always American-made.

"A good illustration of what buying American can do to help our own workers and industries is found in the recent action of our government in raising the tariff 25 per cent on all German goods, including Czecho-slovakia. When the importation of shoes from Czecho-slovakia stops, thousands of American shoe worners will find employment in our boot and shoe industries. This will create purchasing power and increase employment in other lines. It is one of our solutions of our economic difficulties and the sooner America discovers this fact the quicker we shall emerge from disastrous depression.

End of Czech Trade Agreement Aids American Labor

"A potential market for more than $30),000 worth of American manufactured goods, providing employment for more than 75,000 workers has been opened in the United States through the cancellation of the Czechs Trade Treaty and this withdrawal of trade concessions extended to other countries under that pact. America can now obtain a firmer hold on the domestic sale of glassware, pottery, gloves, textile and other products as well as shoes. This is an example of what it means when the American Federation of Labor urges our consumers to buy American products.

National Economic Independence Urged

"The best way to prevent America's being drawn into another world war is for the Western Hemisphere to become economically independent. We have all the products in the new world to become self-sufficient and if we develop our domestic trade among Pan-American countries there will be less possibility of our becoming engaged in Old World entanglements.

"Our union label crusade will improve business conditions. It will help the ultimate consumer to realize that only by purchasing American made products can he help American industry and he will learn that by purchasing union label products he will raise American standards in every community.

Unemployment Caused by Imported Goods

"It is unnecessary to urge our citizens in this day of world travail to be loyal to American institutions which are an example for every other nation in the world, but we feel it is necessary to call all citizens' attention to the fact that by buying American-made and union-made goods that they are expressing their loyalty and patriotism in a substantial manner.

"Every dollar of American money that is spent for foreign-made products is lost to American workers and adds to the unemployment rolls as well as to the burden of the taxpayer. If these goods were manufactured in America, our own men and women would be given useful occupations at home and the unemployment problem would be solved. It is the effort to establish commerce in order to gain foreign trade that involves nations in world conflicts.

"Why not keep our able-bodied men at home and at work, making the products that America consumes instead of sending them to European battlegrounds again?

"In this connection, I believe that the women consumers of this country could play a dramatic part in preventing our participation in a foreign war. Our nation is the greatest purchaser of Oriental products and consequently so long as we buy these goods we are financing their war. If the women of America would boycott all Japanese goods until Japan stops its aggressive war against China, the economic effect on this imperialistic nation would be so great that it would end the war. At the same time it would prevent our nation from becoming involved in foreign entanglements.

"When the consuming public knows the real value of the union label and the principles for which it stands, this problem of humanity will come into its own.

"In conclusion I desire to appeal to all Americans to buy union-made and American-made products. If you would like to know how to create more jobs for American workers; if you would like to aid in raising wage levels of union workers, and if you would like to assist in bringing back better times to America, then buy union label, union-made products and use union services!"

Production of Goods Worth 80 Billion In 1940 Urged as Depression Cure

New Kenington, Pa.—An end to the depression may be brought about if labor, industry, agriculture and the Federal government unite in an effort to produce $80,000,000,000 worth of goods in 1940, the Aluminum Workers Forum here was told.

The speaker was Dr. Mordecai Ezekial, economist of the department of agriculture, who emphasized that the plan was his own and not the government's.

Dr. Ezekial emphasized that his "jobs for all" plan would be successful only if all four groups participated. To encourage participation, he said, he would have the government guarantee industry and agriculture to pay cost price for everything produced and not sold.

Associated Actors and Artists Make Big Progress in Concert, Radio and Night Club Fields

Chicago.—Contracts with the Columbia Concert Corporation and the N. B. C. Artists' Service, subsidiaries, respectively, of the Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting Co., have been signed by the American Guild of Musical Artists. The concert bureaus are the largest in the United States and have branches in New York City, Chicago and Los Angeles. The contracts bind the bureaus to a code of practices which will increase the income of the concert artists affected.

Conferences with smaller bureaus in the Chicago area are under way; and, with this contract as a basis for all negotiations, the union expects to eliminate the chiseling which has been prevalent in the concert field for many years.

Also in accord with the union is the Chicago City Opera Co., producers of grand opera. Its agreement recognizes the union as the sole collective bargaining agency, increases salaries for soloists, although the same rate of pay for chorus members prevails, guarantees a full measure of employment security and improvements in working conditions which will increase the income of employes in the long run.

Big Radio Station Signs

The union is a branch of the Associated Actors and Artists of America, an American Federation of Labor affiliate. Signing of this agreement means that the Chicago City Opera Co. will be 100 per cent union for the first time, as it is in accord with other A. F. of L. unions.

Several other branches report unprecedented progress in a coast to coast drive to organize the entertainment field. Long all-a-week work schedules and low wages are being replaced by more equitable hours and pay.

Increases ranging from 15 to 50 per cent were secured under an agreement entered into by the American Federation of Radio Artists and WGN, Inc., covering all actors and singers on that station's staff. WGN is owned by the Chicago Tribune and is one of the largest radio stations in the country.

Other Chicago Gains

Agreements with about 45 night clubs and restaurants have been signed with the American Federation of Actors since the union began a drive to establish itself in Chicago six months ago. Around 90 per cent of Chicago's theatrical agencies are in line with this union.

The Chicago Film Laboratories, Atlas Educational Films and the Burton Holmes Studios have signed with the Screen Actors' Guild. The Wilding Picture Corp. has been under contract with the union for some time. This makes all major studios in Chicago, primarily producers of industrial pictures, signatories to an agreement which increases pay and improves working conditions. Studios in New York City, Hollywood and Detroit have been 100 per cent union for the last year and a half.

Total membership of the Associated Actors and Artists of America is about 35,000, largest in its history.

Q. What is meant by the term "dry cleaning"?

A. The term implies the use of a substance other than soap and water in cleaning materials. It is not always "dry" cleaning, for liquid solvents are most frequently used. However, the dry cleaning solvents do not affect the physical properties of the material as does the soap-and-water solution, according to Dr. C. A. Buehler, U. T. chemist.

Handbag Workers Sign Up Three Frisco Firms

San Francisco, Cal.—Charles Bruno, president of Local Union No. 31, International Ladies' Handbag, Pocketbook and Novelty Workers Union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, announced that the local had negotiated union agreements with the following firms: Degan Belting Company, Storek Leather Products Company and Graton-Knight Company.

The contracts call for closed union shops; 40-hour 5-day week; time and a half for all overtime, with double pay for holidays; increases in wages with minimums ranging from 50 to 80 cents per hour; protection against unjust discharge or discrimination and the establishment of impartial machinery for the adjustment of all disputes.

The contracts were signed for two years.

PICKETS ON ROLLER SKATES

Pittsburgh.—To attract attention to their strike, pickets used roller skates to patrol the Coca Cola Bottling Company's plant where 75 truck drivers went on strike.

A company spokesman said a union shop demand of the Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers remained the chief obstacle in settlement of the strike. The company claimed it had offered a wage agreement that is 10 per cent higher than present rates in the beverage industry here.

Chattanooga Teachers Union Has History of Steady Progress In Spite of Obstructions

The Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' Federation was organized in the fall of 1932. Among its first officers were: Stanton E. Smith, president; G. W. Swingley, first vice-president; Zada Crouch, second vice-president; G. Leslie Poe, treasurer; Mrs. Stewart Rogers, financial secretary, and Paul Morris, sergeant-at-arms. Other prominent leaders in the movement were: J. B. Brown, F. H. Trotter, J. D. Bales, C. C. Burgess, Mrs. C. C. Burgner, Mrs. Stanton E. Smith, Mrs. Ethel Stroud, Charles MacCathey, Virginia Munney, Katherine Munsey, Jean Pettit, W. C. Bales. Labor leaders who helped to get the organization started and familiar with the principles of union labor were: Paul Aymon, T. R. Cuthbert, A. C. Kamin and R. M. Cooke. For several years all general meetings were held at the University of Chattanooga.

The retrenchments, lack of security of teaching positions, threats of shortened school terms, and reduction of salaries, as well as the tax delinquences and general uneasiness attendant upon those days of the depression in 1932 had made the teachers feel the need of an organization in which they could voice their opinions without fear of dismissal and would make possible collective bargaining. Miss Allie Mann, of the schools of Atlanta, on two occasions addressed an interested group of Chattanooga teachers and described the benefits that had come to Atlanta teachers by having a group not directly connected with the city government, such as the Central Labor Union, to back them in their pleas for justice for teachers and advancement of the schools of the community. A study of the constitution and the literature of the American Federation of Teachers, an organization affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, convinced the teachers of Chattanooga that this was the best vehicle available for a forward drive. Soon a charter was obtained and the membership grew more than 50 per cent of the teachers of both the city and county school systems within a short while.

From 1932 to 1935 the Teachers Federation was very busy. It sent representatives regularly to the Central Labor Body. Then the teachers became familiar with the problems of other unions and sought to explain the problems of the schools and the school teachers to the patrons of the public schools in organized labor. Together these groups were able to adjust many difficulties in the school system, such as reinstating teachers who had been discharged, arranging for county children to stay in the junior high schools where they had been enrolled, and the working out of an agreeable form of a School Board Bill for the city which would abolish the office of Commissioner of Education and substitute a School Board to manage the schools of the city. (This bill was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. It passed the Legisalture in 1933 with a referendum to the people of the city, but was defeated by the referendum vote.)

In 1925 the Teachers Federation, again with the help of organized labor, succeeded in getting two bills passed by the Legislature which were in line with the best educational theory and which the Federation felt would not only protect the teachers' interests, but would improve the general conditions in the schools. These were a Teachers' Tenure Bill setting up the requirement of an A.B. or B.S. degree for all future employes and a Salary Bill giving a livable wage to all teachers and basing the individual teacher's salary on experience and training. Identical bills for both city and county were passed. The Salary Bills were tested in the State Supreme Court. The County Salary Bill was declared unconstitutional, while the city bill was remanded on a statement of fact. This case has never been decided. The benefits from the Tenure Bill will not be denied by any teacher. No teachers without adequate training have since been employed and the feeling of security each teacher has means conservation of energy otherwise wasted in worry.

In 1937 the Teachers' Federation made a compromise salary scale which was more acceptable to the City Commission and the general teaching body. This bill carried in it the repeal of the former Salary Law and the means of putting the compromise measure into effect by definitely fixing a tax to be used for that purpose. The bill was passed by the Legislature as a referendum to the people, but was defeated when the popular election was held.

Since then the Federation has tried at various times to work out some scale of salaries that would be financially workable and yet do justice to the principle of consideration of both training and service. All such compromises have ended in failure.

The Chattanooga group has been recognized, however, in the State Teachers' Association, where Stanton Smith served on a committee to draft a State Tenure Bill and in the American Federation of Teachers, where both he and Mrs. Smith have held positions of vice-president. Mr. Smith is now a national organizer in the Southern Division of the American Federation of Teachers.

Wagner Offers Legislation For Housing Census

Washington, D. C. — Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York has introduced a bill providing for a housing census at five-year intervals, beginning in 1940. Such a census is supported by organized labor.

"The various programs of the government to raise the standards of living through improved housing conditions, to relieve the financial distress of home owners, and to promote the extension of the construction industry, have had to proceed without adequate statistical information as to the nature and scope of the problems at hand," Wagner said.

Wagner read a letter from President Green of the American Federation of Labor urging that a census be undertaken in order to "insure the most economical, efficient and intelligent development of our housing and home building programs."

California judges say that the law of that state makes it unlawful for their workers to make bargains with an employer, and at the same time, unlawful to belong to a union. In most states and co. tries those things go together very well.

Sleeping Car Porters Trim Company Union

Chicago. — Another "company union" on the railroads has been given a knockout blow, this time by the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, American Federation of Labor affiliate. The brotherhood won the right to represent buffet car, parlor car and coach porters on the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, defeating the Porters Industrial Organization by a 42-to-9 vote in an election conducted by the National Mediation Board.

A nation-wide organization drive is now under way by this international, which was given jurisdiction over train porters at the mid-winter session of the A. F. of L. Executive Council. The union expects to bring at least 2,000 men into the A. F. of L.

IT WAS LIKE THIS

A certain gentleman was very fond of golf, and of a little refreshment after the game. He arrived home very late one night, and was met by his wife in the hall.

"Well, and what excuse have you got to offer for coming home at this unearthly hour?" she asked angrily.

"It was like this, my dear. I was playing golf with some friends and—"

"Playing golf!" she cried in disgust. "Are you trying to tell me you can play golf in the dark?"

"Oh, yes, that's easy, my dear," he said quickly. "You see, we were using the night clubs."

Low Rent Housing Boon to Every Strata of Civic Interest in Chattanooga

Squalor and Misery Being Replaced By Pretty, Modern Homes--Hundreds Employed

Where last year's decaying shells of bathless houses stood, will now rise brick apartment buildings with green lawns between. This is Chattanooga's College Hill slum area.

How is such an ambitious plan taking place? Who is behind it? Where is the money coming from?

Before answering these questions, let's rub the Alladin's lamp and command the genii to cause new apartment buildings to appear.

The project, nine blocks in length, will take in the territory between Main street on the south, Poplar street on the east, West Twelfth street on the north, and Grove street on the west.

This area was selected as the first United States Housing Authority's slum clearance project in Chattanooga because it was one of the worst slum districts. Its population is almost entirely colored, but the next local project is to be white.

In the preliminary inspection of the College Hill area, only five bathtubs were found among the 850 families.

"A dramatic photograph could be made of the original five bathtubs stacked next to truckloads of shining new bathroom fixtures about to be unloaded in the area," said A. T. Johnson, one of the Chattanooga directors.

The families began to move out almost immediately after the preliminary inspections, and when the wrecking crews began work only vacant shacks resounded to the rippings of crowbars.

The new buildings will be "row houses," one, two, and three stories high and cut into three, four, or five-room apartments. Built of brick, with tile roofs and plastered walls, "They'll be as nice as the average middle class home," said Glenn Young, secretary-treasurer of the Chattanooga board of directors.

Every kitchen is to have its own electric range and refrigerator, with good-quality plumbing fixtures.

There will be no streets within the bounds of the area—only back-entrance driveways for deliveries. The fronts of apartments will face open courts, while every apartment will have its own backyard on the ground outside or below.

Just a Few of the "Homes" to be Replaced By the Chatta. Housing

Lest the apartments be like dormitories, each building is to be made up of only several apartments with space between for walkways and plots of grass.

And these attractive apartments are to rent for about $16 a month! Only families of rigidly limited income, however, will be permitted to live in them.

The wrecking and construction bids were let to private contractors who employ individual workmen of their own selection. That is—the government does not dictate to them whom they shall hire. Young says that more than 2,000 workmen all together are now employed or will likely find employment with the contractors.

The entire estimated cost of this one project is $2,262,000—most of which will be paid to the contractors, and for building material.

Is this construction a federal government project for the purpose of manufacturing jobs?—or is it a long range program in social planning designed with foresight and an eye to good business practice?

To begin with, it is the direct result of local initiative. Last June, a group of Chattanooga men got together and put an "enabling act" through the Tennessee legislature. The federal government requires that the state legislatures grant this "permission" before a locality can do business with the U. S. H. A.

Five men were then selected to make up a board of directors for the purpose of "getting in on" part of the $800,000,000 appropriated by congress for the U. S. H. A. Members of the board are P. H. Wood, chairman; T. R. Cuthbert; Prof. S. J. McCallie, Maurice Poss and A. T. Johnson. R. Glenn Young is secretary-treasurer.

These local men direct the activities of the Chattanooga housing authority which planned, is building, owns, and will operate every U. S. H. A. project in this city.

Here's how the U. S. H. A. plan works. The federal government makes a loan to a locality to build a low rent housing project. The loan is not to cover more than 90 per cent of the total development cost of the project, and is not to run more than 60 years.

A low interest rate on this money is charged—usually about 3 or 3¼ per cent.

The U. S. H. A. has no connection with the F. H. A., which was established "to encourage the flow of private capital into the large and small scale construction of homes for families with enough income to have credit standing, and to protect these families from unfair or exorbitant credit practices."

The U. S. H. A. "exists solely to rehouse the lowest income third" those families who live under poor sanitary conditions with a low standard of living.

After a loan is made to a locality, the U. S. H. A. pays yearly subsidies to the local project. These contributions are for the purpose of bridging the gap between the total annual charges against the project, and the rents which the slum dwellers can afford to pay.

It is claimed by the federal government that the U. S. H. A. projects not only raise the standard of living of the lower third but also

Bottle-Making Is One of World's Oldest Arts

President Clarence Avery Tells Most Interesting Story of Chattanooga Glass Company's Products

Though the origin of the modern bottle is lost in the mists of antiquity, we have a fairly good index in the water skins, milk skins and wine skins of the nomadic tribes of the East today.

If you were to strike inland even a few score leagues from the French cafes of the Algeria, with their glittering array of ultra-modern bottles, you would find an oasis inhabited by a nomadic tribe that has not changed its habit since the days of Abraham.

And on the pole of each tent you would find hanging a skin bottle, its mouth tied with a thong—probably the oldest type of container in the world, and sealed today in exactly the same way as its prototype was sealed by the wandering tribesmen of thousands of years ago.

Such "bottles" must have been one of the earliest inventions of man. For in even the most primitive stage of human life, some container for liquids is an immediate necessity.

It was a long step forward when men learned to mould clay and make his jars of pottery. How early pottery was discovered, no one can tell to a certainty, but excavations in Crete have uncovered a civilization dating back to 2500 B. C., in which the art of pottery had advanced so far as to produce wonderfully painted pottery jars.

We know, too, that the ancient Egyptians had discovered the art of glazing pottery, thus sealing the pores of the earthenware, and preventing loss by evaporation. In fact, the art of glazing pottery must have taken shape hundreds of years before this time.

Once the glazing material was discovered, it was but a natural step for the Egyptians to consider making containers of this material. Thus, probably, glass came into use, and as early as 2000 B. C., the making of really fine glass became established.

Glass bottles began to come into fairly common use from the 15th century onward, but the origin of glass is still in doubt. Many theories have been advanced by ancient writers to explain its mystery, but they can, at most, simply recount what tradition tells.

Some writers say that Egyptians discovered glass; others claim it was the discovery of the Chinese. Probably the most accurate account of its origin, and certainly a very plausible one, is that related by C. Pliney the Second in his "History of the World," volume 37, chapter 27. According to Pliney, some traders who had been gathering nitre, sought, along the banks of the Belsus river, stones on which to mount a tripod to cook their food. Not finding any, they were obliged to use blocks of nitre taken from their cargo. Under the heat of the fire, the sand coming into contact with the nitre, which acted as a flux, formed a vitreous substance—"glass."

Composition of glass was originally a great secret, known only to alchemists, who guarded it with jealous care. Subsequently some knowledge of the ingredients and their properties spread to others, who put it to practical use; but all of these early manufacturers guarded with care the secret of their formulas.

In a general way it may be stated that glass is made from silica (i.e. sand) mixed with some form of alkali such as carbonate of soda (i.e. soda-ash), sulphate of soda (i.e. salt cake), potash or some other fluxing compound of them. To these ingredients is added lime, either in the form of ground limestone, burnt lime or dolomite.

The ingredients, thoroughly mixed together, must be heated to a very high temperature, approximately 2600 degrees Farhenheit, and they must be held at that temperature for some time to permit the completion of the chemical actions that convert thte mixture into molten glass.

Upon the purity of materials, their degree of fineness, and the proportion in which they are used, depend the color, quality, toughness or brittleness, and density of the glass produced. For instance, the finest glass produced, and a glass with which more care is taken, with the ingredients that go into its manufacture, is that used by oculists and optimetrists.

Probably the next in importance is cut glass tableware. This is made from a batch consisting of 85 per cent potash. The batch for crystal glass contains a larger per cent of red lead, as well as potash. The lead is used to keep the glass from being too brittle so it can be easily pressed and carved.

Then comes the electric light bulb, also containing a large quantity of red lead. Next comes window glass, the batch of which consists mainly of sand, soda-ash and limestone. An interesting feature in regard to window glass is that the average person considers it white glass. As a matter of fact, if you will look at the edge of a piece of this glass you will see that it is green. Green is the natural color of glass and flint is made by decolorizing the batch.

Glass bottles were originally blown by mouth on pipes, then in open clay or wooden moulds. The clay moulds were lined with several pieces of straw which prevented the glass sticking and also allowed the glass to turn in the mould. The method consisted of gathering the glass from a pot furnace on an iron pipe. The gob of glass was then rolled out to a working shape on an iron plate. After the proper shape and consistency of the glass had been ob-

Harmonious Relations Between Union and Management Shining Example at Chattanooga Glass Company

Harmony between labor and management through the years is a beacon light that has shone on the thirty-eight years of progress of the Chattanooga Glass company in Alton Park.

Since the Chattanooga Glass company started operations in 1901 three unions have been organized and are still in operation. Harmonious relationship between the company and glass factory employes, comprising union branches No. 92, No. 156 and No. 108, has made happy, useful and efficient men and excellent working conditions.

Soon after machinery began to turn at the plant the bottle blowers, who had come from various places, organized Branch No. 92, Glass Bottle Blowers' association, United States and Canada. This union was already affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The branch soon joined the Trades and Labor Council, which is now the Central Labor Union.

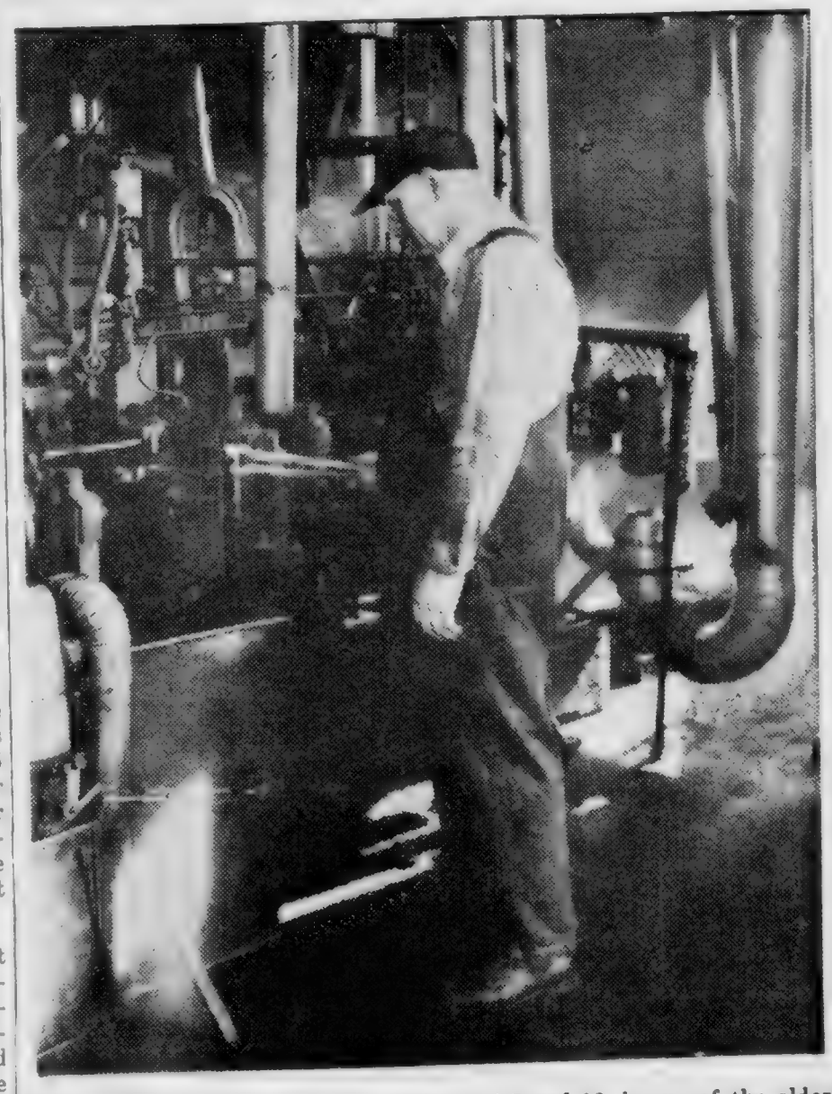
By 1918 and 1919 new bottle manufacturing machinery was being rapidly installed in plants all over the country. The "feeder" process, as it is called, completely revolutionized the glass industry. Before the installations of this machinery, bottle making was a highly skilled hand trade, requiring a long apprenticeship. Now it is a semi-skilled trade.

Among those who were displaced by the bottle machine are Clifford (Squire) Camp, M. F, McDonald, who now owns three grocery stores; John Woods, who went into the grocery business, changed to the hardware business, and after a successful career, recently retired, and K. Miller, a St. Elmo grocer.

In 1937 the glass house employes in the various departments of the Chattanooga Glass company organized Branch No. 156. The present officers are C. F. Lawson, president; B. L. Haley, vice-president; G. L. Rogers, secretary; C. E. Milton, recording and corresponding secretary, and R. R. Patterson, treasurer.

The colored glass factory employes in 1937 organized Branch No. 108. Present officers are Joseph Healington, president; Oscar Flint, vice-president; John Farrow, secretary; Edward Brown, recording and corresponding secretary, and John Brown, treasurer.

Officers of venerable and dignified Branch No. 92 are Jess A. Hisey, president; James Doremus, vice-president; H. A. Patterson, secretary; William Bland, recording and corresponding secretary, and John Fort, treasurer.



William Bland, secretary of Glassblowers' Local 92, is one of the oldest members, serving at the trade for more than fifty years. He started when glass was blown by mouth. Today, the machines do everything but talk.

Labor's Part in Our American Education

By George L. Googe

Madam Chairman and Delegates to the Convention of the American Federation of Teachers: I am very happy to attend this history-making convention of the classroom teachers of the United States. I consider it a distinct honor and privilege and the culmination of something I have personally looked forward to all during my career in the labor movement, because I know some of the abuses and the denials of academic freedom throughout the country.

The reason I know so much about the problems confronting the public school teachers is that I have had some very, very close experience with teachers, particularly after leaving the public school system myself. I think you can get some idea of the advantages of teacher organization, the difficulties confronted by the officers of your great national federation in bringing about the organization of school teachers, and the advancement of our school system if I tell you of some of my experiences in Savannah, my home city.

When I first became president of the central labor union in my city some fifteen or sixteen years ago, we had a county school board of education. It was the typical self-perpetuating board of education. By that I mean, that under its charter grant of authority from the state legislature, the board of education consisted of twelve distinguished local citizens who served for a period of life, and upon the death of one member of the board, the remaining members elected the new memebr to fill the vacancy. Now you can imagine in an old aristocratic southern community just what degree of academic freedom was permitted in our school system.

I remember that the first prolem to confron* my central labor union was the fact that some of the members of the various local unions reported that the month previous a group of teachers had gotten together and decided to form a social club. They drafted a constitution of the social club, and briefly, all that the constitution amounted to was that the teachers could join their association. Their dues would be their proportional share of the refreshments at the meetings. The purpose of the organization was better to carry out the policies of the superintendent of the school system. These brave teachers went in and showed their proposed constitution to the superintendent of the schools. He immediately tore it up, threw it in the waste-basket, insulted the teachers, and told them that it was the beginning of socialism in the school system in my community.

The central body decided it was time for action, that it was time to break up that system. We put out a ticket for the state legislature and with a most vigorous, bitter local campaign we were able to elect three members of the legislature pledged, to give the community and the citizens the right to elect their own school board for a reasonable term of years. With the assistance of the great Atlanta Teachers association and the Georgia Federation of Labor and our local legislators, we were able to get an amendment to the county charter, making an independent, free school board.

As a result of that accomplishment, we were able immediately to elect representatives of organized labor on the school board. Later, we were able, as a result of getting control of the board—of course, our first step was to fire the superintendent and hire one who had some social point of view—completely to organize the teachers in that system. We did that with the assistance of the new superintendent of schools, because the teachers were rather timid souls in that community. Since then we have been successful even in having members of the teachers union placed on our school board. That shows you some of the progress that has been made when the labor movement takes an interest in the school system; and it shows what can be accomplished by concentrated effort of the labor movement behind our tachers and our public school system.

My friends, I was particularly interested in your discussion night before last, the discussion the many cases of denial of demic freedom. The American eration of Labor has always as one of its fundamental ples the advancement of the lic school system in this and we have always realized the only way you can bring elevation of our educational tutions is to have as the stone academic freedom.

I know that some of you heard many cases here and many of you know of abortive secution of teachers, but I tell you that I know of no where there has been more cution of school teachers than the city of Memphis, Tenn., the automratic, dictatorial machine forced at the teachers send in their charter and them the freedom of associati

We are confident that we eventually be able again to up an organization in the Memphis. This country of like this organization in tion assembled, is at the point of the road. We know has happened to other coun We know the abominable per tion that is taking place in totalitarian states of Europe know the inroads of fascism are being made in this country want to say to this organiz in convention assembled, that

Memphis Labor Unions Have Home All Their Own

Has Proven a Haven In Depressions and a Joy and Profit During Prosperous Times

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Fourteen years ago this spring Memphis unionists started the ball rolling to acquire a Union Labor Temple. This interesting account of the work of the men behind the project has been prepared especially for THE LABOR WORLD by John T. Burns, I. T. U. member and president of the Memphis Labor Temple Board.)

In the late spring of 1924, a movement which had been smoldering for months, sprang into life with the appointment of a committee by the Memphis Trades and Labor Council to inquire into the feasibility of acquiring a home for Organized Labor in this city. This committee was composed of the late Oscar I. Kruger, city commissioner; C. N. F. Reddick, at that time president of the council; Jake Cohen, editor of the Labor Review; W. N. Page, of the Typographical Union, and D. A. Pitts of the Painters.

On July 9, 1924, the committee entered into an agreement to buy the property of the old Higbee school at the corner of Beale and Lauderdale streets and running back to Jessamine street in the rear. The project was financed as follows: Some years before a subdivision catering to trades unionists was opened on the outskirts of Memphis and they donated a plot of ground to the Trades and Labor Council to be used as a park. This plot of ground and the contents of the council's strong box were accepted for $8,375 on the purchase price, which amounted to $50,000. Nine notes of $2,000 each, payable annually were made; followed on the tenth anniversary by a $16,000 note, the remainder to be paid in two notes of $3,000 each and one of $2,625.

This left Organized Labor with a home, an empty treasury and a large indebtedness. Added to this was the fact that the building was without furnishings of any sort. The committee reported to the Trades Council and that body decided to increase the per capita tax of all unions affiliated with the council to 25 cents per month, 20 cents of which was to go to the Temple fund. Then things really happened. Several large unions withdrew from the council on the grounds that the council had no right to levy a tax on them. One member of the committee of five which purchased the property was withdrawn as his local pulled away from the council.

The other members of the committee then formed a body known as the Labor Temple Board with Mr. Pitts as president, Mr. Reddick as secretary-treasurer and Mr. Kruger as chairman of the board. This body invited each local union affiliated to send a delegate to represent them and the body thus formed was later incorporated as the Memphis Labor Temple, Inc., which has charge of the financial affairs of the Temple.

Three local unions, the Street Railway men, the Painters and the Plasterers each advanced the Temple $1,000 and this money was used to furnish the building. A. F. Foster was installed as custodian and still serves in that capacity.

The Street Car union rented office space and installed their secretary in the building, and for some time he and the custodian had things to themselves during the daylight hours. From this small start conditions have improved until at present office space is at a premium and other locals will move in as soon as they can obtain space. At night some of these offices serve as committee rooms and as a meeting place for some of the smaller locals. The affairs of the Temple have never been conducted on a strictly business basis but more along fraternal lines; for instance, a small local seeking a meeting place was only asked to pay what they had paid at the hall from which they moved.

Thus it is that a hall for a meeting may cost one local $10 and the next one to occupy it may get by for $3. Of course the larger unions require more seating space and it takes more energy to remove burned matches, cigar and cigarette stubs, etc.

There are two large halls on the main floor and one on the second floor the size of the two combined. In addition there are two rooms on the second floor capable of caring for small locals and another large enough to hold a medium-sized crowd. There is also a meeting hall on the third floor, as well as two smaller rooms, and lavatories on all three floors. A well-equipped kitchen on the first floor adds to the convenience of the place when locals want to serve food and drinks to their membership.

Had it not been for the fact that organized labor in Memphis had a home, many of the weaker locals would have been forced out of existence during the depression or maintained only a skeleton of an organization. As it was many organizations were unable to pay their rent and it was up to the Temple board to carry them, and some of them were as much as three years behind with their rent, but to their credit it must be said that every one of them met its obligations when conditions improved so that they could. It is this spirit of loyalty which has made service a real pleasure.

During the good years preceding the depression the board was meeting its obligations before they fell due, at one time being more than three years ahead of its schedule, but when memberships began to dwindle and treasuries shrank to the vanishing point, the Temple board declared a moratorium and had to go into their funds to meet current expenses. Rentals also decreased to the point where their payment was almost an outstanding event.

Another bad effect of the depression was that with the loss of active members the various locals reduced the number of members on whom they paid per capita tax, and despite the improvement of conditions, they have not increased the rolls to anything like what they formery were.

Offsetting this to some extent has been the organization of new locals and to these the Temple has extended a helping hand and offered a meeting place until they become established. Many of these people are new to the trades union movement and to them the payment of dues of any kind is an expenditure of doubtful value.

All of the locals which withdrew from time to time returned to the fold until at present there are approximately fifty unions meeting in the Temple. There are a few others which pay per capita tax on the building but meet elsewhere. Several auxiliaries also hold their meetings here.

In 1936 it became necessary to extend the last two notes on the building for a period of three years. The one for $3,000 which would have been due July 9 this year was paid on Jan. 9, thus saving six months' interest. There is at present outstanding the last note in the original series, $2,625 and accrued interest, which will be due on July 9, 1940; an obligation of $4,500 due the Painters' local and $500 due the Street Railway division. With the exception of the one first named, all of this is held by members of organized labor and the writer knows of several unions with idle money which would like to take over that obligation.

With the exception of D. A. Pitts, who is chairman of the house committee, none of the original committee which purchased the property is a delegate to the board. The officers are John T. Burns, president, now serving his thirteenth year; H. E. Wilson, first vice-president, who has served ten years; A. F. Foster, recording secretary, who has also served as custodian so long everybody calls him "Pop," and Roy Bailey, second vice-president, and Arthur P. Siler, financial secretary, are making their bows as officers, although both have been faithful members for a number of years. The officers include a printer, a steamfitter, a machinist, a carpenter and a postoffice clerk. The house committee boasts a painter, a steamfitter, a machinist, an elevator constructor and a carpenter, while the auditing committee includes a barber, a photo-engraver and an electrician.

N. Y. DRAUGHTSMEN SIGN GOOD CONTRACT

New York, N. Y.—Officials of Guild-Local 66 of the International Federation of Technical Engineers', Architects', and Draftsmen's Unions, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, announced that a closed shop agreement had been signed with the Law Pipe Railing corporation. Outstanding provisions of the contract are the ones establishing salary increases of $15 per week for all employes but apprentices, who received an increase of $10 per week and the 40-hour week.

Spokesmen for the union said the Law Pipe Railing corporation, which is a member of the Allied Building Metal Industries, Inc., an employers' association, fought the union and used the association with the latter's cooperation as an excuse for not signing a closed shop agreement, even though every drafting room employe was a member of the union.

The corporation was summoned by the union before the State Labor Relations Board, which certified Guild-Local 66 as the sole bargaining agent.

The contract extends to August 24, 1939, which is the date of the corporation contract. On that date Guild-Local 66 intends to negotiate for new salary schedules.

In all other respects the contract is automatically renewed each year, unless 30 days prior to yearly expiration notice is served by either party regarding a desired change.
expiration of the General Bronze

In addition to the salary increases other provisions of the contract include:

All employes to be hired through union and identified through the current membership card; union seal to appear on all drawings; vacations, 11 legal holidays and sick leave with pay; 5-day, 40-hour week of 8 hours per day; time and a half for overtime on week days, including Saturdays; double time for overtime for Sundays and holidays; maximum of 15 work hours overtime allowed per week; no work allowed on Labor Day; 2 weeks notice of termination of employment by either party in the case of those employed a year or over, otherwise only one week's notice is to be given; disputes to be handled through an Arbitration Board.

The salary schedule until August 24, 1939, is:

Squad bosses, $70 and over per week.

Senior—A, $65 per week.
Senior—B, $60 per week.
Junior, $55 per week.
Apprentice, $30 per week.

Contract negotiations were conducted by George H. Holland, president, and J. Lawrence Raimist, chairman of the Collective Bargaining and Labor Relations Committee of Guild-Local 66.

The Sure Way

When A. Barton Hepburn assumed the headship of the Chase National bank, he received this from an old friend up at Albany, one who had been in the legislature with him:

"Now that you are away up among the Wall Street elect, at the right hand of those tip-top magnates of finance, tell me this—and it shall be confidential: What is the safe, sure way to make money in the stock market?"

Hepburn's reply was the busy man's:

"Guess right. This is not confidential."

Reform of Court System Demanded, Says Attorney

Knoxville. — Tennessee lawyers must answer a "public demand" for reform of the state court system, declared Charles S. Coffey, prominent Chattanooga attorney, in an article published in the current "Tennessee Law Review." The bar is expected to take the lead in bringing about a simplified court procedure, he asserted.

Attorney Coffey's article appears in the April issue of the legal magazine, which is the official publication of the Tennessee Bar Association. It is edited by the students and faculty of the University of Tennessee College of Law.

"There is a real need and a definite demand on the part of the informed public that something be done to remedy the delays, the exorbitant expense, and the uncertainty of litigation in the courts. It is not unnatural that lawyers should come to enjoy the game of pleading, and perhaps of tripping each other up in technicalities; but a lawsuit is not a game to the client," said the attorney.

"Many litigants can adjudge with a considerable degree of accuracy the merits of their own cause of action, and few complain when the decision on the merits goes against them. What they cannot comprehend is the technical, and, to them, circuitous and complicated methods of the lawyers and courts in getting down to the essential facts and issues."

The Chattanooga attorney's urge for simplification of court procedure follows a move initiated at the Law Institute held at the University of Tennessee last October. A resolution favoring reform was adopted by more than 300 lawyers attending the institute.

The first step toward reform must be the enactment of a bill by the state legislature which will give the Supreme Court full power to make rules of procedure for state courts, said Attorney Coffey. At present, the legislature itself has this power.

"The legislature not only lacks the experience, but it does not have the time nor the opportunity to study the subject and deal adequately with all phases of the preparation of a code of procedure. The members of the Supreme Court are, of course, the best qualified body to write such a set of rules."

Once the Supreme Court has the power to reform the court system, it will be possible to use the new Federal Court rules of civil procedure as a model, Attorney Coffey continued. A high degree of uniformity in the state courts as well as the Federal courts can be attained by following this model code, he said.

Q.—What is the meaning of the phrase, "Gone Up Salt River," and how did it originate.

A.—The phrase is used in referring to defeated political candidates, meaning that they have passed to oblivion. It is believed to have originated from the Salt river of Kentucky — a turbulent tributary of the Ohio river — up which robbers carried their loot to escape capture in the early days of America.

Q.—What is the value of a nickel made in 1874 and a 25-cent piece made in 1879? T. E. H., Brownsville.

A.—The query Box has received many questions lately regarding the value of old coins. To answer one of these questions, we can give only the selling price of the coin as listed in the catalogues of coin companies. This does NOT mean, of course, that every such coin is worth the list price. In the first place, coin companies ususally sell UNUSED coins at the list price and a used coin decreases in value. Also, there is the problem of finding a buyer who will give that price. Hence, we suggest that persons write to the coin companies themselves to determine the actual value of old coins. Two such companies are: Tatum Stamp and Coin Co., Springfield, Mass.; B. Mehl, Fort Worth, Tex.

Teachers' Credit Union Supplies a Needed Service

Has Loaned Over $11,000 to Members Without Loss of Single Dollar

ORGANIZATION IS FEDERALLY CHARTERED

In greater number than ever before, individuals with a common interest are coming together to form organizations in which they may invest a small amount of money and from which they may borrow in time of need.

Usually called credit unions or credit associations, these organizations are much more than the coldly filling-in of blanks on marble counters and then wondering whether the money will be forthcoming.

In most credit unions members know pretty well what each other is making, and often much about his personal affairs—his number of children, whether he is extravagant, and how his sick wife is getting along.

The common interest is an important factor since members of the same profession or employes of one company have interests which only they themselves can fully understand and appreciate.

The Chattanooga Hamilton County Teachers Federal Credit Union is a good example of these co-operative associations which promote thrift among their members and create a source of credit for provident and productive purposes. A provident purpose generally is regarded as one which would be of servive to the member borrower and his family.

The teachers' credit union is one of several thousand credit unions among different types of workers, chartered by the federal government.

This affiliation with the federal government means that the local group, organized and managed by the teachers themselves, abide by certain regulations, approved by the government as making for successful operation.

The local teachers' organization made the first entry in its books on Nov. 11, 1935. Since that time of small beginning, the assets have grown until now they exceed $3,000, and since that autumn day four years ago have loaned about $11,000 without a single loss!

In compliance with federal government regulations, the teachers have a board of directors of at least five members which directs and controls the operation of the union and elects officers, a credit committee of at least three members which considers and passes or rejects loan applications, and a supervisory committee of three members which audits the books at least quarterly.

The present board of directors is made up of seven members—with E. E. Harris, of Brainerd Junior High school, as president. Mrs. F. P. Garvin, of Central, is first vice-president; Stanton E. Smith, of Chattanooga High school, is secretary; and W. P. Selcer, also of Chattanooga High school, is treasurer. The three other members of the board are C. C. Burgner, principal of Tyner High school; C. P. Parsons, assistant principal of the Vocational school, and Sherman Pauls, a teacher at the Vocational school.

On the credit committee are Creed F. aBtes, Jr., principal of Chattanooga High school; R. Roy Austin, principal of Dickinson Junior High school, and Miss Margaret O'Grady, teacher at Chattanooga High school.

The supervisory committee members are O. C. Kirkman, principal of the Vocational school; Sam Harris, Vocational school, and Mrs. George Rice, Central.

Who are members of the credit union?

Any employe of the department of education of the city of Chattanooga or the board of education of Hamilton county, or any member of such employe's immediate family, are eligible for membership.

A person desiring to become a member fills out an application card which is considered by the board of directors. On it he states how many shares of stock he subscribes to. He may subscribe to more later.

The members of the union own stock in the corporation which may be bought in monthly payments as low as 25 cents. To minimize bookkeeping, however, it is advised that at least one dollar per share per month be paid. At present only 20 shares of the regular five dollars-a-share stock may be purchased by any one member.

Dividends on the stocq are declared by the directors and members at their annual meeting on the fourth Saturday in January.

It is interesting that in 1937 the credit union declared a 3 per cent dividend and in 1938 a 6 per cent dividend.

This is an especially fine record since the federal government rules that dividends may be paid only from the balance of earnings remaining after epenses have been paid and 20 per cent of the net earnings have been set aside as a reserve for possible bad loans.

The interest charged on loans is 1 per cent per month on the unpaid balance which amounts to 6½ per cent a year.

So, besides being a credit institution, the Teachers' Credit union furnishes a place for them to invest small sums of money and re-Nalize a fair return on their investment. Moreover, the money is as safe as safe can be. Not only does the government require that the money be deposited in a federal reserve bank, or a bank insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, but at least once a year sends an examiner of the farm credit administration to audit the books, or requires that an independent audit by a practicing public accountant be made.

Only One State Is Now Without Workmen's Compensation Law

Washington, D. C.—House Bill No. 423 of the legislature of Arkansas, signed by Gov. Bailey, becomes the next-to-the-last brand new workmen's compensation act that can pass any American state. Mississippi and Arkansas were the last two states without such a law; now Mississippi lags alone.

The law provides a three-member compensation, requires employers to insure with companies approved by the state insurance commissioner, allows appeals from the commission to the courts, and fixes a maximum of $7,000 as the sum that can be collected.

Gov. Bailey, in signing, said that the measure was approved by the overwhelming sentiment of the state. The organized workers of Mississippi are resolving grimly that they will not be blocked another ttime.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Pedestrian, walk with the lights. Do not ignore this warning. The lights are put up for your protection and should be used accordingly. There are just as many pedestrians trying to "beat" the lights as there are auto drivers. Why take a chance? Why invite trouble?

Contrary to all instructions issued in newspapers, magazines and other publications, pedestrians still walk along the right-hand side of the highway.

Everyone is too prone to blame the auto driver when we as pedestrians could exercise more care at crossings and on our highways.

Life will be longer, sweeter, and safer, if we use just ordinary common sense in walking and driving.

What is the common reason that some cars veer to one side when the brakes are applied?

(a) Something is wrong with the steering mechanism.

(b) Brakes are not equalized.

(c) Rear axles are loose.

What do you think is the answer? This is it:

If the brake lining grips more firmly on one wheel than on another, the car is apt to veer to one side when the brakes are applied. The car should be taken to a competent service man to have the brakes equalized.

People no longer leave footprints on the sands of time. They leave motor grease on the concrete.

United Textile Workers of America Convention on May 8 to Organize Strong A. F. of L. Affiliate

Delegates Meeting in Nation's Capital Will Map Wage-Hour Campaign, Organization Drive and Establishment of Organization on Permanent Basis — Charter to Be Received and Officers Elected to Serve Until 1940.

Washington, D. C.—The United Textile Workers of America—the bona fide U. T. W. of A., as established by court decisions and the A. F. of L.—will hold a special convention in Washington, D. C., beginning May 8.

The convention was called by action of the Providence convention of the organization, held last December. It will map out a program of organization, deal with the problem of wages and hours, review the status of National Labor Board cases, and receive official investment of the United Textile Workers charter by President William Green, American Federation of Labor, it was announced by Francis J. Gorman, president of the U. T. W. A. Officers will also be elected to serve until the regular convention, to be held in 1940.

"Among other business of the convention," Gorman stated, "will be the establishing of Federations on a permanent basis and the adoption of resolutions essential to the promotion of mass organization in the textile industry and necessary to protect it against forces from within and without who seek to destroy it."

Gorman revealed that the call and credentials have been sent out to 500 locals, but the Textile Workers Organizing Committee had seized about half of this number by calling in U. T. W. charters. However, every former U. T. W. local will receive credentials, and that qualification and representation will be "in accordance with the constitution of the United Textile Workers of America." Only those locals who resolve to support the International Union, its constitution and its purposes, he stated, would be seated in the convention.

TWOC Rump Parley

One week later, it was revealed, a rump convention will be held in Philadelphia under the leadership of Sidney Hillman and the Textile Workers Organizing Committee.

"This rump parley," Gorman stated, "represents a futile attempt on the part of Hillman to steal the U. T. W. and make it a subsidiary of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

"After spending more than a million dollars in an effort to operate a dummy organization of textile workers which he controls through his stooge, Emil Rieve," Gorman continued, "he is making a last desperate attempt to sanctify his flagrant disrespect for the democratic rights of the textile workers through the so-called convention in Philadelphia."

How Conventions Differ

The diffreence in the two conventions, Gorman said, are:

"First: The Washington convention will be composed only of textile workers, elected democratically by the local unions of the United Textile Workers of America. The delegates to this convention will be men and women from the textile mills."

On the other hand, Gorman charged, the Philadelphia convention will be controlled by men and women who never worked a day in the mills in their lives, and, he says, who are only using the textile workers to advance their own selfish and political fortunes.

"Second: The Washington convention has the only legal right to use the title United Textile Workers of America, while the Philadelphia meeting will only use the U. T. W. temporarily as a legal fire-escape by which to evade the consequences of their illegal, autocratic mismanagement of the textile organizing drive, their violation of the CIO agreement which created the organizing committee, and the flouting of the constitution of the United Textile Workers.

"It will be the last stand of Hillman and Rieve to destroy the charter rights and the democratic expression of the U. T. W. locals and the International Union."

Court Settles Issue

Every court case in which action has been taken against the TWOC for its illegal performances, Gorman pointed out, has resulted in victory for the International Union, and its loyal leadership, and has firmly established as the only legitimate document the constitution of the United Textile Workers of America.

"Arbitrary rules, fake constitutions and regulations drawn up by unknown persons in the name of the Textile Workers Organizing Committee, and without any advice or guidance from the officers and members of the U. T. W. of A," Gorman declared, "have been thrown out of court."

The Rhode Island and Anniston, Ala., cases, he disclosed, have resulted in the TWOC being charged with violatiton of the U. T. W. constitution, and with fraud.

"These decisions," Gorman said, "constituted sweeping victories for the right of the organized textile workers to democratic control over their own organization, and in equally sweeping condemnations for the dictatorial policies originated in the offices of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers in New York City."

Fake Democracy Proposed

"Because of the wholesale rebellion of textile workers against the undemocratic and ignorant procedure of the TWOC," he continued, "there is now arising feeble talk of the Hillman-Rieve rump organization according a measure of democracy to the textile workers—a ruse which they, of course, will readily see through.

"This move is too late. Their brazen methods have demoralized organization in the textile industry. Not over 2,500 workers in the South are paying dues at present.

"It was only with the creation of the Southern Textile Federation that a ray of hope burned for the textile workers. Now, convinced that they will actually have a hand again in guiding their union destinies, the textile workers have responded in overwhelming numbers to the reconstitution of the United Textile Workers of America."

To Fight Pay Recommendation

All of the textile unions of the United States are on record for the 40-cent minimum wage for textiles. Recently the industry committee set up under the wage-hour law recommended 32½ cents. A public hearing will be held on this recommendation and the officers of the United Textile Workers of America will appear at the hearing in opposition to the 32½-cent minimum and in favor of the 40 cents. All local unions should demand this rate, President Gorman said. Silk and rayon workers will also be affected by this decision. In fact, approximately 600,000 workers come within the scope of this particular textile group.

President Gorman announced that a number of secretaries in the TWOC are not submitting these reports from his office to their local unions by orders of Hillman and Rieve. He wants the membership to demand all the information available on this controversy so that they may be able to act intelligently without pressure from those outside the industry.

are going to prevent the establishment of a dictatorship and fascist control of our institutions and government in this country, it is going to be by this organization and similar organizations being able to carry to accomplishment the goals and ideals that will be adopted and enumerated in your progran for the future.

The American Federation of Labor believes most immovably in the freedom of the teachers to teach the truth, no matter who may not like the truth. Teachers may not be able to teach by a curriculum and textbooks which are uncensored by any predatory interests in this country. We advocate and we are demanding that the history of the labor movement be included in our public history.

A survey by a distinguished committee of the American Federation of Labor, led mainly by committee members from this great national federation, found that less than one-tenth of 1 per cent of the space in the history books in our public school system is devoted to history of the labor movement in this country. Isn't it high time that labor demanded that the citizens of the future—yes, the employers as well as the employes — have some knowledge of the history of the labor movement in this country? We demand a revision of our histories so that the children in our schools can know something of the heroes of peace as well as the heroes of war.

We believe that current events of the past should be taught in our school system in the light of their social implications and not in the light of propaganda for those whose personal interests and predatory self-aggrandizement are are served in the teaching.

The American Federation of Labor, as far back as 1925, when the first effort was made to impose upon the school teachers of this country the abominable teachers' oath, issued a crying call to the people of America to oppose this terrible injustice. The American Federation of Labor's position has always been that teachers should not be insulted by singling them out to have to take a special oath of allegiance, because we realize that teachers are the same as any other citizens and those who would impose the abominable teachers' oath do it for the predatory reason of trying to intimidate the teachers by forcing them to take the oath. I know that the members of this great federation will recall that it was the American Federation of Labor which, through its president, was the first group which came out forcefully against the imposition of the teachers' oath and has consistently opposed it.

The American Federation of Labor has always felt that the teachers should have civil liberties, and they are fighting militantly for those liberties. We do not believe, as some believe in many communities of the country, that the teacher ought to be denied any of the civil liberties, any of the rights to participate in politics, in civic activities, nor should they have any of their freedom abridged in any way, shape, or form.

I want to say that if we are going to make effective the civil liberties of the teachers of the United States and Canada it can be done in only one way, and that is by solidifying the united teachers with the great labor movement and completely organizing the teachers from one end of this country to the other.

The American Federation of Labor has made one of its main endeavors the economic and social protection of the children of this country. You heard explained last night the history of the American Federation of Labor and its affiliated activities for the child labor amendments, for the various child labor laws throughout the states, for compulsory school attendance in every section of America. It has been the labor movement, through our city central bodies and the state federations of labor which have led the fight for free textbooks, and it might interest some of the delegates here to know that even down in the south, in the rural communities, we are making remarkable progress.

In the last two years three of the southern states have put in free textbooks for all the children throughout their entire state school systems. We believe in the necessity of well-equipped and modern school buildings, and to that we pledge our utmost support. We want small classrooms, in well-equipped new buildings.

The American Federation of Labor has always joined with this great federation in the program for educational advancement, recognizing the need for state funds to supplement local funds for education in most of the communities, the same as we believe in federal aid to supplement local and state funds in education.

The American Federation of Labor, my friends, was the first group in America to demand that the federal government give federal aid to education. It was the American Federation of Labor, with the assistance of the then existing teachers' organization in the city of Atlanta, which succeeded in getting Senator Smith and Congressman Hughes to introduce and start through congress the Smith-Hughes vocational act.

There have grown up in recent years abuses in vocational education. I am sure some of you have heard of just what happened in some of the outlying districts of the southern states. Under the guise of using WPA funds three years ago in the construction of vocational trade schools, industrialists were building factories, but getting the factories approved in Washington under the name of vocational trade schools to house prison industries and run-away manufacturing plants. They were using federal vocational education funds to pay for foremen and superintendents of these factories and instructing the workers who were without compensation to learn how to operate garment machines and hosiery machines.

As a result of this and many, many other abuses, the American Federation of Labor went to congress and threatened to ask congress to refuse to appropriate additional money for vocational education until we had a thorough housecleaning of the administration of vocational education in this country. As a result of this endeavor, the commissioner of education of the United States, Dr. Studebaker, appointed a committee of nine as an advisory board to the United States commissioner of education, with labor, employers and school teachers to advise him in the administration of federal vocational education funds.

It happened to be my privilege to serve as one of the representatives of the American Federation of Labor and to continue to serve on that advisory board to the commissioner of education. As a result of the investigation of the abuses that this committee found, acting for the American Federation of Labor, the president appointed a committee on education to study the entire system of vocational education in this country and to advise him and the congress in completely renovating the system of vocational education in its administration.

This committee's work was so constructive, in the judgment of the president of the United States, that he increased the scope of the committee to make a thorough investigation of all phases of education in America, and to submit its report and recommendations to the congress of the United States. As a result of that, we are confident that at the next session of congress there will be established the principle of federal aid to education, distributing the federal funds on the basis of need, not on the basis of the ability of communities and states to pay, because the American Federation of Labor and any other true believer in public education knows that discriminations in opportunity for education of the children of this country must be wiped out if democracy means anything in America. If democracy does mean anything in America, it means that our children, no matter in what section of the country they may be born or unfortunate to be, shall be entitled to equal educational opportunity. This principle legislation which has the President's approval in principle place aid to the school system identically the same basis as eral aid in the construction highways.

Highways are important, friends. This government has spent through federal aid dreds of millions of dollars ally for the construction of ways, and it is high time that put the children of America the same plane, giving them much consideration as we give carts and automobiles in Am

For many years the American Federation of Labor has been sirous of a united movement a constructive, co-operative, teachers' organization to put effect our program for economic protection of teachers. I want pause a brief moment to emphasize the things the American eration of Labor advocates for nomic protection of teachers.

We want salaries professionally fit. I am reminded of the I went into Charlotte, N. C. few years ago to organize school teachers. I was asked the teachers should organize was told that they were a pi

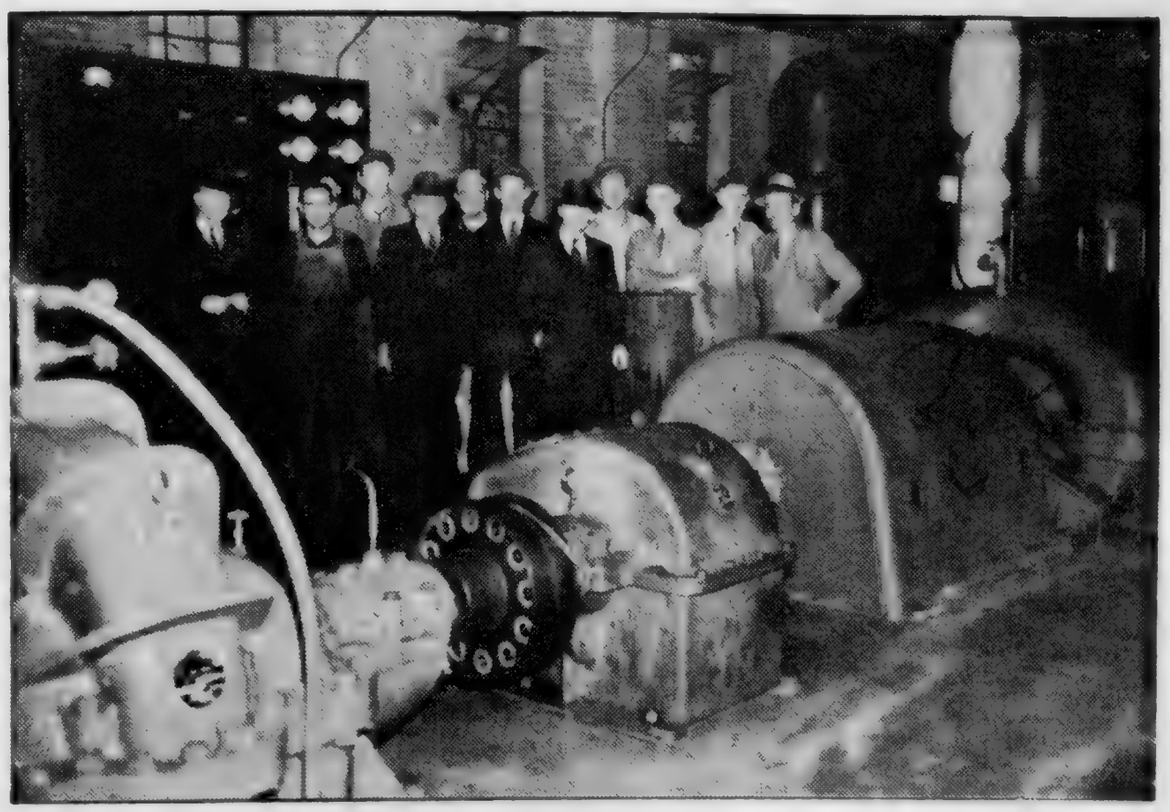
Keeping Ahead of the City



—ALL INSTALLED BY UNION LABOR

HOW CHATTANOOGA HAS GROWN

The growth of Chattanooga is very strikingly illustrated by the increase in the number of water consumers, as shown below:

January 1, 1907	8,638
January 1, 1917	15,162
January 1, 1927	22,713
January 1, 1938	28,286
January 1, 1939	28,421

During these periods of growth the city has never had its water supply restricted, and the quality has been maintained at the highest standard.

THE WATER supply of a growing city must be kept several years ahead of current needs. Following this policy, the City Water Company has just installed a new turbo-generator pumping unit which has capacity of 20,000,000 gallons a day. Units shown in the picture, left to right, are the pump, reduction gear, generator and steam turbine.

Wagner Ready to Support Changes In Labor Act Proved Needed, He Tells Senate Committee

Washington, D. C.—Defending the basic principles of the national labor relations act as "eminently fair," Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, told the senate education and labor committee he would support amendments, if the hearings developed need for them.

Wagner said he would support, "with appropriate safeguards," a change that would give employers "caught between the competition of rival groups" the right to petition for collective bargaining elections.

Wagner said he thought the NLRB could institute such a change under its rule-making power.

"But if not," he continued, "there should be legislation toward that end, unless these hearings develop compelling reasons, which I do not now see, why such a change would impair the objectives of the act."

Wagner, who sponsored the labor Act in 1935, was the first witness at hearings by the senate committee, which is considering changes in the act proposed by the American Federation of Labor and by business and industrial groups.

Summarizes Viewpoint

Wagner concluded his testimony with the following summary of his viewpoint:

"1. The labor act has been an effective instrument for economic peace and industrial justice.

"2. A powerful minority is trying to destroy rather than to perfect the act.

"3. Amendments proposed by labor groups and labor's friends deserve most careful consideration.

"4 Amendments pretending to make the act 'fair' by placing new restraints on labor would resign labor to its earlier status of economic underling.

Changes May Be Desirable

"5. Amendments proposing drastic administrative changes would weaken traditional type of informal tribunal where average man has better chance to be heard.

"6. Within a comparatively narrow field, there may be changes which these hearings will reveal to be sound in principle and practical in operation."

Wagner appealed to all believers of economic democracy to make sure that "whatever may be done to the act is done in furtherance of its noble objectives."

Objectives Not Challenged

"No one challenges its objectives," he said. "No responsible party openly advocates its repeal. Any diminution of its effectiveness would be a national evil. Its mutilationwould be a national calamity."

Wagner said supreme court decisions upholding legality of the labor act were responsible for the end of sit-down strikes, not the recent decision in the Fansteel case.

"Once workers were afforded a peaceful, valid remedy for eliminating the grievances at the root of the sit-down strike, the sit-downs virtuall appeared from the American scene," he said.

"A very small but amazingly compact and powerful minority" is attempting to "destroy" the act, Wagner told the committee.

Opposes "Reckless Tampering"

He opposed amendments that would provide drastic revision of the act's administration and place "new restraints on labor," and said "reckless tampering with the act will substitute uncertainty for certainty in the law, will start a long new train of test suits and interpretations, and will shake the stability and the surer blessings of industrial peace that thousands of employers enjoy under the present act as interpreted by the courts."

But he admitted that if the hearings developed need for changes "sound in principle and practical in operation," he would "feel it my duty to introduce or support the substance of such amendment, and to help enact them into law."

Auto Workers' Heads Accept Offer of A. F. of L. to Restore Old Union Charter

Washington, D. C.—The American Federation of Labor has offered to take back the United Automobile Workers of America, which, under the leadership of Homer Martin, left the CIO in March.

Following a conference here between officials of the A. F. of L. and representatives of the union, President William Green officially informed the automobile workers' delegation that the A. F. of L. would be glad to welcome the union back into the fold and would restore to it the same international charter under which it formerly operated under the banner of the federation. This would mean an autonomous industrial union.

Martin and his associates stated this was acceptable to them and announced that they would recommend its acceptance to the executive board of the International Union, United Automobile Workers of America and to the membership of the union for ratification in a referendum vote.

Martin, Elmer Davis and Jerry Aldred represented the auto workers. The A. F. of L. was represented by President Green, Vice-President Matthew Woll and Secretary-Treasurer Frank Morrison.

Antonomy of Union Recognized

At the conclusion of the conference, held in his office, President Green said:

"The American Federation of Labor recognizes the union headed by Mr. Martin as the International Union, United Automobile Workers of America. This organization under this name was chartered by the A. F. of L. and no other organization or group not affiliated with the A. F. of L. has the right to use this name or exercise any of its prerogatives.

"In restoring the charter to the International Union, United Automobile Workers of America, the American Federation of Labor will recognize and fully concede the full autonomous authority of this organization in the administration of its own affairs.

Return Is Welcomed

"We will welcome the return of the automobile workers to our ranks and pledge them full support in their efforts to bring the benefits of unionization to the automobile industry.

"This is the second of the international unions which originally left the A. F. of L. and formed the CIO, to take steps to return to the federation. (The first was the United Textile Workers of America.)

"As I have repeatedly stated in the last three years, the door to the American Federation of Labor stands open. We appeal to those who left us to return to the family of labor. There will be no penalties for past differences. No special conditions will be raised. Many of those who were beguiled by the false promises of dualists have become thoroughly disillusioned. To them we say: 'Come back.' We are willing to let by

GAS

The Invisible Magician

IN OVER 16,000,000 AMERICAN HOMES

COOKS • HEATS • FREEZES

IN THESE DAYS of dictators, doubtful ideologies and unrest in many parts of the world, it is well for us to revaluate our freedom of speech, action and opportunity; to rededicate ourselves to the preservation of the business and industrial system under which we have become the world's richest nation — with comforts and luxuries in our most humble homes that are not approached by any other people on earth. True, sometimes there are shortcomings in the administration of our governments, there are disputes as to what is a fair division of the profits of enterprise, but there is nothing we cannot settle among ourselves without the loss of any privileges.

Under our system the forces of labor, capital and science are constantly developing new comforts, new discoveries that make living more attractive, new avenues in which every man has a chance to attain success and wealth through energy and imagination. These agencies have given us GAS with which we can heat, cook and freeze in our homes through the medium of appliances that are priced within the means of even our poorer families. GAS and its many services to mankind is just one of the hundreds of conveniences WE HAVE that are not available in the dictator countries except to the rich or specially privileged.

DAILY MAGIC IN AMERICAN KITCHENS

OVER 100 years ago, Michael Faraday, a young scientist, discovered that a test-tube containing ammonia when heated by a gas flame would produce vapors which when condensed would become very cold. During the years that followed, his discovery was developed and the Royal Institute of Technology adapted the freezing principle to household refrigeration, USING A TINY GAS FLAME. Today in American kitchens one of the marvels of the age is daily enacted—on one side GAS making HEAT, and on the other GAS making ICE—with enormous advantages over any other system of cooking or refrigeration.

Cigar Makers' Float Wins Award

THE Cigar Makers' International Union of America received the award of merit for a float, christened "The Spirit of Cooperation," which was entered in the Gasparilla parade at the Pan-American Hernando DeSoto Exposition in Tampa, Fla.

On the throne of the unique exhibit a young lady in the center represented "Cooperation," while the ladies on either side represented "Management" and "Labor." On a turntable were girls and boys representing the six most important departments of the cigar manufacturing industry—cigar makers, strippers, banders, packers, selectors and clerks.

President R. E. Van Horn, of the Cigar Makers' International Union, was greatly pleased with the award. He said, "All large factories in Tampa, except the Hav-A-Tampa, operate under collective bargaining agreements, and more than 7,000 members are employed. While the cigars are union-made, some of them do not carry the union label, but all agree to use it when it is demanded. Purchasers of Tampa cigars should ask the dealers to request the union label and it will be used."

Mr. I. M. Ornburn, former president of the Cigar Makers' International Union and now secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades department of the A. F. of L., also urged that all cigar smokers demand the union label, in order that the wages, hours and conditions in the tobacco industry may be maintained. He added, however, that the demand for the union label on all products and union services should continually be made.

England Provides Air-Raid Shelters

Family Refuges Made of Steel Sheet Are Distributed Free to Protect People from Bombing by Dictatorial Governments.

The seriousness of the belief in Great Britain that the people are in grave danger of being bombed by air raids mechanized by the totalitarian dictatorships that menace Europe is indicated in the broad program under elaboration by the British government to provide adequate protection against these high-powered explosives shot down on helpless population from the sky.

In an article describing the program of the government to provide air-raid protection shelters free to each household whose income is around five pounds a week, the London Daily Herald says:

"Distribution of the free air-raid shelters to all householders in specially dangerous areas who cannot afford to pay for them is to begin before the end of the month.

Government Explains Plan

"A circular letter from the home office has been sent to the local authorities of the danger areas setting out how the shelters are to be distributed, and on what basis a householder is to be considered eligible for a free shelter.

"Roughly, anyone whose income does not exceed £5 a week, or who is compulsorily insured under the national health insurance act, is to have a free shelter, and the local authority is to help him put it up.

"Number of children is to be taken into account, £1 a week being added to the income limit for each child in excess of two."

After enumerating the various districts to be provided with shelters at once, the Daily Herald article continues:

"IF"

By Rudyard Kipling

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too,
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise;

If you can dream—and not make dreams your master;
If you can think—and not make thoughts your aim,
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two impostors just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and build 'em up with worn-out tools;

If you make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose, and start again at your beginnings
And never breathe a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone,
And so hold on when there is nothing in you
Except the Will which says to them: "Hold on!"

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with Kings—nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much,
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And—which is more—you'll be a Man, my son.

HOW NOT TO BE A GOOD UNIONIST

Stay away from your union's meetings. If you do attend, arrive late, leave early, and pay no attention to what goes on while present.

Never express an opinion on the floor of the union. Wait until the meeting adjourns, then orate at length and loudly.

Never accept a committee assignment. You might miss a ball game or a moving picture.

Don't listen to the advice of officers. Talk matters over with the foreman, boss or some other "disinterested" person.

Pay no heed to chapel meetings. They are never held at hours that suit you and you can get information from someone who does attend.

Never wear a union label button. Think what some of the neighbors might say!

Of course, you must pay union dues, but don't hurry; take the time limit, and don't forget to register a kick when you pay.

Turn a deaf ear to appeals to "buy union." Your money is earned in a union shop, but still it is yours.

Don't pay much attention to anything sponsored or promoted by your union. You didn't think of it first.

Don't embarras clerks by asking for the label when making purchases. But be sure of the cost price.

Don't spoil your pleasure of smoking by using union-made cigarettes. Smoke the sort that "satisfy" or are "good to your throat."

Remain indifferent to any union project that interferes with your leisure. What are union officers for?

Don't waste time reading union labor periodicals. What do those guys know that you don't?

Never let union affairs conflict with your prejudices. You're white, free and over 21.

Be militant at home, but meek elsewhere. Why get into trouble for somebody else?

Q.—What percentage of Tennessee homes are owned by occupants?

A.—The percentage of urban home ownership in Tennessee is 38.8, compared with 42.8 per cent in the United States as a whole. Of the farm group, 53.8 per cent own their homes, while the average for the U. S. is 57.9 per cent. Of the rural nonfarm group, 44.2 per cent own their homes.

cut down certain fixed expenses of the locality. Among these public expenses which may be reduced are costs of health, law enforcement, fire fighting, and so on.

It is claimed that local business is given impetus because of the many materials bought locally and that the unemployment situation of the locality is somewhat relieved by the hiring of men by the contractors.

The contracts are let to private contractors who employ workers of their own selection, and they are required to pay prevailing wages.

The federal government claims that public housing does much to stimulate, without competing with, private enterprise.

Manufacturers will be aided by the large individual purchases of standard, first grade goods. And it is believed that these orders do not displace other orders, because the low-rent program applies to those families who would be outside the market for new homes.

Contractors get direct benefit from the program because the money to be spent for construction is paid directly to them to be used for wages, materials, and so forth.

The builder of homes for sale or rent is not competed with, since the low-rent tenants could not afford to live in new, privately-built homes.

Private building is stimulated. In Great Britain the governmental rehousing program touched the match to a private building program three times as large. Property values of the adjacent land are hoisted.

MORE ABOUT GLASS BOTTLES

tained by rolling on this iron plate, the gob of glass, still stuck to the iron pipe, was inserted in the clay mould and blown and shaped by turning the pipe in the mouth and at the same time blowing the proper pressure of wind. The pipe was then broken off the bottle which had thus been blown and another pipe heated and stuck to the bottom of the bottle. The upper part of the bottle was then reheated, and with finishing tools similar to old-fashioned glass clippers, the various shapes of the neck and finish were made, the bottle being revolved or spun by the pipe stuck to the bottom and the finishing tool held to the red hot portion of the bottle.

Then came into vogue the iron mould which permitted a more perfect bottle to be blown by mouth. This iron mould was made in two sections which permitted the finished bottle to be taken out by opening the mould.

The next development was blowing of the bottle on automatic machinery by compressed air, the glass being gathered on an iron "punty" and dropped in the mould, then blown by machinery. From this was developed the method of automatic feeding of the glass from the tank to the mould. There are two methods of taking the glass from the tank to the moulds, one, the vacuum method by which the glass is sucked up by a vacuum into the mould, and the other in which the gob of glass is dropped by gravity into the mould.

As stated before, this glass is fed to the blowing machinery by an automatic feeder. The blowing machine has two turn tables with six sets of moulds on each table, six bank moulds in which the bottle is first blown to a plain shape and in which the proper distribution of glass takes place before the bottle is finally blown to final shape. This parison, or plain bottle is then automatically transferred to the blowing moulds while the glass is still molten and blown to its final shape with such lettering and figurations as is required for the particular bottle being made. This bottle is automatically removed from the blowing machine to a conveyor which carries it under a gas jet flame which glazes the top or lip of the bottle so the crown will fit smoothly.

Should a glass bottle be taken off the blowing machine red hot, set out in the air and allowed to cool, it would probably burst into a thousand pieces. This is caused by the sudden arrest of movement of the millions of molten particles in the body of the glass. This sudden chilling puts a strain on the interior of the glass surface. To overcome this the temperature of the bottle must be reduced gradually by running it through an annealing oven. The bottles enter this oven at a temperature of about 1300 degrees and are gradually cooled down to 100 degrees in the oven. This gradual cooling of the glass does away with the possibility of strain in the finished product.

As a comparison of the present method of manufacturing bottles with the old method, in the olden days three blowers and four boy assistants would blow approximately 20 gross of 14-ounce weight bottles in nine hours. With the present method of automatic machinery, one machine with one operator will blow approximately 60 gross bottles in eight hours.

The Chattanooga plant consumes approximately 1400 tons of coal tar per month, uses approximately 8,000,000 cubic feet of coke oven gas, and 125,000 K.W. hours "white coal," or electrical juice. We ship approximately 210,000 gross bottles per year.

Wildlife Should Be Regular Farm 'Crop,' Say U-T Professors

Knoxville, May 1.—The Tennessee farmer is overlooking a profitable farm "crop" in not keeping his forests and submarginal land stocked with wildlife, said E. Guy Frizzell, of the University of Tennessee, in a recent radio address observing "National Wildlife Week." He was one of several U-T men who made speeches urging conservation of wild animals in the state.

"The United States Department of Agriculture has estimated the value of wildlife to the country in the control of insect pests at 350 million dollars a year," Mr. Frizzell pointed out. "Although the figures are not available as to the saving of Tennessee farmers alone, this saving can be increased many times by a little planning and by taking advantage of the facilities already at hand."

Approximately 16 of the 25 million acres in Tennessee should be stocked with wildlife, declared Mr. Frizzell. If these forests and submarginal lands were carrying their quota of wildlife, the 10 million acres of tillable land would be paying the farmer much greater net returns, he added. "Every eroded or galled spot, odd corner, field border, terrace outlet, ditch bank, woods lot, or gullied hillside is a potential haven for wildlife. By healing the erosion scars with soil-conserving grasses, legumes and shrubs, the farmer may convert them from costly waste land into productive wildlife habitat. If he will provide some food and cover for wildlife, he will be repaid many times for the amount of time and labor expended this way."

This same point was emphasized in speeches by two other university men, Dr. G. A. Canning, associate professor of zoology, and Henry Dorr, Jr., assistant professor of forestry.

Dr. Canning pointed out that farmers have unknowingly aided in reducing wildlife by clearing their land, eliminating the natural cover of wild animals.

"Not the least factor preventing the return of game is the ruthless hunting of the last remaining wild creatures, for satisfaction gained from the sale of their pelts, or so that the hunter doesn't go home empty handed," said Dr. Canning. "The few remaining forms fall prey to the stray cat, dog, or to natural predators like the hawk. The power of these animals to destroy is increased as the natural cover is destroyed."

Referring to the importance of forests to wildlife, Professor Dorr mentioned two ways the farmer could aid the conservation of wild animals. "The first of these is to influence the kinds and density of vegetation that favor different varieties of wildlife, and the other is the planting of trees, shrubs, and vines which provide an assortment of food."

C. I. O. Office Workers Flocking To American Federation of Labor

Weikel Declares Disillusioned Groups in Many Cities Are Complaining Against Dual Organization Leadership and Arranging for Affiliation With the A. F. of L. International Council of Office Workers.

Washington, D. C.—Office workers' unions in 12 cities have made direct overtures to the American Federation of Labor and signified they have become disillusioned with the CIO and want to leave it.

This was disclosed today by Frank Weikel, president of the International Council of Office Workers (A. F. of L.). He declared:

"Every opportunity will be extended to these dissatisfied organizations to enter the American Federation of Labor. We want them back with us.

"Following the lead of the CIO local in New York City, which voted overwhelmingly last week to quit the CIO and join up with us, we have received bids from locals in a dozen other cities. These are in Buffalo, Bridgeport, New Haven, Newark, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Boston, Baltimore, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis and Los Angeles.

"CIO leaders tried to dismiss the New York union's action as mere 'ebb and flow.' It looks to us more like a tidal wave.

"The complaints against CIO leadership made by the New York local have been echoed in every part of the country. Let me quote briefly from the resolution adopted by the New York local:

" 'The present administration of Local 16, United Office and Professional Workers of America (CIO) during three years of control of this New York Office Workers' Union, has registered a sorry failure as a trade union in that it has organized practically none of the bona fide office workers in this city who are in dire need of union protection. This miserable record was written during a period that offered unparalleled opportunity for successfully appealing to underpaid, overworked and unprotected office workers. This failure was due to the fact that the union was captured by an organized machine which violated its oath to serve the membership by placing the interests of the Communist party above those of our union.'

"This grave indictment," Mr. Weikel continued, "illustrates how thoroughly disillusioned the office workers of the nation are with CIO leadership. We offer them the protection of a strong organization, completely devoted to the betterment of their working conditions and run on sound trade union principles. The office workers have learned an important lesson ... is my conviction that they are ... ready for unionization on ... tional scale under the ban... the American Federation ... bor."

MORE ABOUT AMERICAN EDUCATION

sional group, that they were not laborers. They said, "What is the advantage?"

I said, "Well, I don't know what the advantages would be to the school teachers in Charlotte, but I do know that some 150 miles from here at Newport News, Norfolk, Virginia, and Wilmington, North Carolina, there are some 40,000 longshoremen who benefited."

I explained to them that these longshoremen, being without educational opportunity, didn't have any more intelligence than to organize, and that after organizing they succeeded in establishing an eight-hour day, a wage scale of $1.05 per hour, and time and a half for overtime.

"Now, of course," I said to those teachers, "with your present state funds, with your salary schedules for the teachers of this state, the beginners at approximately $460 a year, you are getting around 22 cents per hour. Organization might not do you teachers any good, but it certainly helped those longshoremen down the coast, and it wasn't so hard."

The American Federation of Labor advocates salaries professionally fit. We mean this: We know that a teacher's salary should cover living costs so that the teacher can hold her influence in the community. A teacher should get a salary commensurate with her expenditure for her college education, commensurate with her knowledge and the service she renders to the community, and above all, commensurate with the expenses of a cultured and social life that the teacher so justly is entitled to.

We believe in tenure laws, not the kind we have in so many sections of the country where the present board or committee adopts a resolution pledging tenure laws. We insist upon the adoption by the states of statewide, absolute tenure laws which will give teachers protection on their jobs.

We advocate sick leave such as the Augusta teachers have recently been able to secure in the state of Georgia, a cumulative sick leave so that it may be accumulated year by year, and will pay the expenses of the teachers over a long illness.

We advocate sabbatical leave for travel and an opportunity to keep up and to be a constant "this year's model" school teacher, as the young man said last night.

We advocate no teacher taking more pupils than he can know well personally. We don't believe in mass production in our school system. No teacher can properly educate a child that she does not know intimately. We believe that the classrooms should be limited so that no teacher has over twenty-five pupils, and the only way we can hope to bring that about is through the establishment of federal aid to our educational system.

We believe—and advocate most strenuously — teacher participation in school management. It is a fundamental labor principle and it is for the public benefit as well as for the school children and the teachers themselves. Wherever you find the teachers' union sufficiently strong to force teacher participation in the management of the school system, you find a much more successful and beneficial school system, and I defy anybody to contradict that statement.

And last but not least, we believe that the time has arrived in our school system when the great burden of clerical work must be taken from the shoulders of the classroom teachers, and like any other sanely managed institution, the schools must have clerical workers to handle the work of that type.

Now, my friends, the question is: How are we going to put this program across? This program is identical with the program of the American Federation of Labor, and it is your program. How are we going to put it into effect?

I think the history of what progress the teachers' union has made over the years demonstrates pretty forcibly the most effective methods to bring this program into fulfillment, and that is through the co-ordinated activity of the labor movement and the teachers' organization; and through the affiliation and activity of the teachers in our central labor unions and in our state federations of labor.

I was somewhat fearful until last night that I might say something that someone might not like, but after seeing the fine hospitality of this splendid group here, in letting the school children tell you how you should run the schools, I am sure in the same spirit you will permit me to tell you how the labor movement can help accomplish your program and our program for our school system.

The teachers' unions must, by all means, be in our central labor unions and I can assure the teachers that wherever the teachers are members of the central bodies, the central labor unions, as a matter of principle, as a mater of policy, will gladly let the teachers direct or influence the actions of our central bodies in all matters pertaining to our school systems and the advancement of education in the community. The school teachers will find that our central bodies are perfectly willing for our teachers' organizations to write the program on education and they will support it.

By the same token, we expect our teachers' unions to co-operate with the other labor organizations in our city central bodies, letting them have control, or at least giving consideration to the opinions on matters concerning their organizations and all the matters pertaining to the general labor movement and the general community. The teacners should co-operate wholeheartedly with the general labor movement in each community and state; and where this is done, you will find a most militant support of our entire labor movement, whether it be central bodies or state federations of labor.

May I make one suggestion to the delegates here. When you come to your conventions (I say this in the same spirit and attitude as those charming boys and girls last night), do not insist on presenting your personal and individual ideas and views. Remember that you are representing your local union, the mass opinion of all the members of your own local and not your own ideas. And when you return to your local unions, report to them the entire activities of your national organization. Don't try to change the policy of your local union and your national convention. Represent your local union here, and when you go home, try to reflect the thought, the opinion, the wishes of those whom you represent. Then use your influence as a representative of your group in carrying out their wishes and shaping the policies and the destinies of your national organization.

I was thrilled, as was every delegate here, by the great accomplishments of the British teachers union, but I was struck with this one thought, as I was struck when I was in London a couple of months ago when I was at the British Trades Union headquarters making a study of the British trade union movement, that their growth was slow, their gains were made year by year. After a period of sixty years, look at the accomplishments of the teachers union in England. Look at the accomplishments of some of the British trade unions after a period of many, many more years.

I want to say to this organization that you have made real progress in recent years in organization. If you want to make the gains and to have the $8,000,000 in the bank as the English teachers have, you must remember that your secretary can't get it out of the air. You have to adopt a policy of meeting conditions in each area and in each community as they are, and you must be realistic in your programs in those communities. Organize the teachers in each community in accordance with whatever is necessary in that community to bring the teachers into your organization where you can educate them in the value of trade union organization. Step by step make your advancement, and I assure you that in that type of program you will have the wholehearted support of the American Federation of Labor, not only in wishing you well, but in assisting your officers in obtaining necessary organizers and carrying part of the financial burden to help build this organization, an organization of all the teachers in America, fighting against the inroads of fascism and dictatorial state control, fighting constantly as crusaders, shoulder to shoulder, the teachers and the American Federation of Labor, for democracy in education and education for democracy!

Give us your cooperation and we will cooperate. We cannot carry this battle shoulder to shoulder unless you are willing to stand shoulder to shoulder with us and fight the common enemy rather than bickering among ourselves.

When this convention adjourns, regardless of who may be in the minority and who in the majority, won't the spirit of unity and solidarity be uppermost? Won't this organization shake hands in every community with the American Federation of Labor, and let's go out and show them how to do a real job of education in America! I thank you.

How the Company Union Is Operated To Deprive Workers of Their Rights

Kansas City Firm Used Espionage on the Union Activities of Its Employes and Engaged the Services of Detective Agencies for That Purpose; Company's Officials Were Active Members of "Citizens' Protective Council" Formed by Employers to Fight Organization of Workers for Purpose of Collective Bargaining.

The national labor relations act prohibits employers from giving financial support to or otherwise promoting company unions.

Despite this mandatory provision of the act, practically every week brings to light some employers who are evidently determined to continue this unfair labor practice.

A revelation of the continuance of the company union monstrosity was recently revealed by the national labor relations board in connection with its proposed order requiring the Kansas City Power and Light company, of Kansas City, Mo., to bring to an end a union which it formed and dominated for a number of years in a concerted effort to prevent its employes from organizing in a bona fide union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

In its investigation of the complaint against the power and light company the board discovered that the company had systematically employed labor spies as regular employes. The spies joined organizations of the company's workers and made reports with regard to their union membership and activities.

As an illustration of the type of opposition which organized labor is compelled to meet in employers who oppose the reasonable provisions of the national labor relations and make use of detective agencies to hamstring bona fide labor organizations, the case of the Kansas City Power and Light company is especially instructive.

The company union was called the Association of Employes of the Kansas City Light and Power company, which the labor board found to be "under company domination," and ordered the company "to cease giving effect to a closed shop contract made between the company and the association in 1937."

Scope of Board's Order.

"The company's contract with the association was made July 3, 1937, and was to run for three years," the labor board said. "It provided for a check-off of association dues. The closed shop clause was added Nov. 1, 1937. On its finding that the contract is made with an organization created, supported and dominated by the employer, and hence invalid on its face, the board requires that the company reimburse employes for amounts deducted from their wages under the check-off.

"The company is ordered to end espionage on the union activities of its employes and to cease from engaging the services of detective agencies for that purpose.

"Of the eighteen cases of alleged discriminatory discharge considered at the Kansas City hearing, the board upheld the complaint in fourteen and dismissed as to four. The order requires reinstatement of thirteen discharged workers with back pay and the transference of one back to his former position.

"Kansas City Light and Power company is a Missouri corporation engaged in the production and distribution of electricity to consumers within an area of 2,580 square miles in Missouri and 1,225 square miles in Kansas. Its total earnings during 1936 were $14,808,614.25. It employs approximately 1,700 persons.

Established Company Union in 1933.

"The proposed findings state that the company in 1933 established among its employes a company-dominated labor organization known as Employes' Representation Plan. This plan continued until the spring of 1937. The company admitted that it had contributed financial support to it. After the supreme court upheld the act, the company claimed that it abandoned the plan and that it played no part in the formation of a very similar organization known as Association of Employes of Kansas City Power and Light Company, which appeared on the scene immediately thereafter. The proposed findings reject this contention, stating:

"The undisputed facts establish that the respondent dominated and interfered with the formation and administration of the plan and contributed financial and other support to it.

"The respondent's entire course of the conduct, after it realized in April, 1937, that it could no longer lawfully continue its participation in the plan, shows that it was the desire and intent of the respondent to maintain its domination over the organization representing its employes for the purposes of collective bargaining by continuing the plan, with certain changes, under a new name.

Enrolled Detectives as Employes.

"The acts and conduct of the organizers and leaders of the association confirm this conclusion. After the decisions of the supreme court in April, 1937, the respondent did not notify the bulk of its employes that it was abandoning the plan, but permitted them to assume that it was still continuing. In contrast to the widespread publicity which it gave the establishment of the plan among its employes, the respondent, in a most informal and almost furitive manner gave verbal notice that it was abandoning the plan to only a small number of employes who had been employe-representatives under the plan.

"These employes played leading parts in transforming the plan into the association. . . . The constitution and organizational structure of the association show that it is a continuation of the plan with slight modifications. The structure of the association and the plan are almost identical."

"The proposed findings state," the labor board continued, "that the company employes labor spies from the Ahner Detective agency and the National Detective agency. These spies were enrolled as regular employes of the company. They joined various labor organizations of the employes and made reports concerning the membership and activities of the employes.

The board finds from evidence at the hearing that in 1935 Joseph F. Porter, Sr., president of the company, was one of the six incorporators of the Kansas City Protective Council, Inc., and that two vice-presidents of the company, Chester T. Smith and Alec B. Bettis, are members of the council's executive committee. This organization, the board finds, placed full-page anti-union advertisements in Kansas City newspapers and issued bulletins to employes urging them to present a united front against the organization of their employes for the purposes of collective bargaining."

Aided "Citizens Protective Council."

The proposed findings concluded: "The purpose of the council is to discourage the self-organization of employes in Kansas City and its activities, as shown above, are directed toward that end. . . . By its connection with and assistance to the council, and by its approval of the activities of the council designed to dissuade employes in Kansas City from organizing for the purposes of collective bargaining and to persuade employers in Kansas City to prevent self-organization by their employes, the respondent has shown that its attitude toward the self-organization of employes is one of aggressive hostility."

We Sell Home Makers Year After Year » » » » and They Remain Our Friends

IT IS NATURAL to desire the most comfortable and attractive home one can afford—but the cost of furnishing a house, even in the most modest manner, runs into more money than the average family can plank down at one time. To meet this problem, the furniture industry adopted a practice under which dealers make a definite loan of credit on specific weekly or monthly payments. This is the instalment system, under which America has attained a higher standard of homes than any other country on earth.

The founders of HAVERTY'S branched off from the usual formula and established a policy of their own in the middle ground between lax credit and the prevailing cold-blooded selling and collecting system which demands the dollar on the dot when due—or else—and without consideration for circumstances which might develop through no fault of the individual.

The HAVERTY system is in sympathy with the problems of the AVERAGE home maker. Each sale is an INDIVIDUAL transaction based on understanding of the family requirements and the earnings of the customer, and not upon hard and fast rules.

When we make a sale, we make a friend. We carry out our part truly in that spirit—and our customers always meet us half way. They feel free to lay their problems before us when they fall victim to one of the many vicissitudes which may beset any family—sickness, death, loss of employment or other misfortune. It is the HAVERTY policy to allow a fair margin of safety against these contingencies and to be helpful in every way possible should they arise. We have assisted many customers through tight places without having lost either money or friendship.

On our books are thousands of customers who have bought from us year after year, with never a dispute or a bit of unpleasantness in our relations, who remain our constant friends. To these the HAVERTY slogan, "It's Easy to Pay the Haverty Way," has definite meaning.

We cater to the AVERAGE FAMILY, and you'll find better merchandise here at the lowest prices consistent with solid values, and a friendly service not to be found elsewhere. We invite YOU to become one of our customers—and one of our friends.

An account at HAVERTY'S is a pleasant association.

LABOR AGAIN 'SHOWS TEETH' TO CITY DADS

Central Body Plenty Mad About Stanton Smith.

ASK COMMISSION TO RECONSIDER

Resolution Intimates Board Members Injected Politics to 'Get' Efficient, Sincere Member of Power Body.

Resolutions adopted by Chattanooga Central Labor Union in regular session Monday night further indicated the intense feeling created among local trades unionists by action of a majority of the City Commission recently in refusing to approve reappointment of Stanton Smith as a member of the Chattanooga Electric Power Board following such recommendation by the board members.

The resolutions, read before City Commission Tuesday by Erskine Mabee, secretary of Central Body, pointed out that Mr. Smith has been a member of the board since its creation, and has rendered efficient, intelligent service to the people of Chattanooga, which service has been publicly recognized by his fellow members, as expressed in their request that he be reappointed.

Reason assigned for failure to approve Smith's reappointment originated in a statement by Mayor Bass expressing the opinion that, because the former, as president of the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Federation of Teachers, is a party to a lawsuit instituted against the city to enforce compliance with a salary scale for teachers passed by the State Legislature, he should not serve as a member of the board. Commissioners Bryan and Betterton apparently "agreed with" the mayor's position, and thus the "Three B's" were aligned in solid phalanx against the efforts of Commissioners McMillan and Cooke to secure approval of the Power Board's choice.

No protest was made by either the "Three B's" or Commissioners Cooke and McMillan on the board's recommendation of Ed Walsh, manufacturer, and Roy McKenzie, business man and civic leader.

Although the resolution was couched in temperate terms, and the Commission was respectfully petitioned to reconsider its action, injection of politics into the matter was openly charged to the "Three B's." "The only politics," as recited, "that has been injected into this issue has been by that of three members of the Commission,

Plans for Dance For Label League Move Forward

'Johnny' Mahoney to Preside at Dinner on May 20

Reservations are already coming in for the dinner and dance that the Label League is planning for Saturday night, May 20, at the Hotel Patten, according to Mrs. R. C. Reynolds and her committee in charge of the affair. The entertainment will be the fourth annual dinner given by the Label League and will be "bigger and better than ever," the committee reports.

In former years, the league has offered its members and friends an excellent meal and some good talks and that was just another birthday. This year, however, there will be a splendid floor show and a dance to round up the evening.

John Mahoney will be toastmaster and practically all local unions will send delegates to the league's fourth birthday party.

John Martin, of the Lady Garment Workers, will be the speaker of the evening, and there will be short talks by other labor officers at the dinner.

Everybody will have a good time, so get your tickets and plan to be there.

The increased racket about "radicalism" of divers sorts reminds one of what Louis Post so appropriately called "the head-hunting jamboree" that followed close on the World war.

WORKERS VOTE FOR UNION, 57-8

Labor Board Election Indicates Wishes of Employes at Local Plant.

Following failure of negotiations between management and representatives of the employes at the American Manufacturing Company, union workers walked out of the plant Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, officers of Federal Local Union No. 21983 reported to The Labor World, and the plant was closed. It was said that the disagreement began with determination of the management to cut wages of skilled and unskilled labor when a local was formed and the employes subsequently faced a lockout.

A "consent election" was finally agreed to by the management, and on last Saturday, under direction of Paul Styles, representing the National Labor Relations Board, a vote was taken which resulted in victory for the AFL union by 57-8.

Efforts of the employes, assisted by a committee from Chattanooga Central Labor union and Conciliator Howard, of the United States Department of Labor, to adjust the differences came to naught, it was said, when the company refused to sign a union-shop contract.

Committee representing the employes was composed of R. J. Williams, president of the local; Sherman Hall, Earl Smith, Alfred Vaughn and W. K. Sneed. Assisting them were A. C. Kamin, Erskine Mabee and T. R. Cuthbert, of Central

SURRETT BITTEN BY MAD DOG

A. L. Surrett, well-known member of Local 226, Painters, is allergic to house pets. Reason: Mr. Surrett was bitten one day last week by his pup, by which he and his family set great store. Examination of the pooch developed the fact that it was a victim of rabies and Mr. Surrett is undergoing a treatment of "shots" for the injury. All members of his family are also being subjected to the treatment.

The trade-unionist visited The Labor World office Wednesday and asked that a warning be given to all members of organized labor to beware of too close contact with house pets.

Workers Suggest Other Means to Raise Relief Funds.

Naming of City Tax Assessor Also Declared Possible Source of Solution for Vexatious Problem.

Proposals to create the office of city tax assessor to equalize the burden on local property owners, or to tax to the limit "pin-ball and other legalized so-called games of skill" were offered by Chattanooga Central Labor union, through Secretary Mabee, at Tuesday's meeting of city commission as most logical alternative to the levying of a flat five-dollar tax on automobiles operating in the city, which had been suggested by the commission as a means of raising necessary revenue to meet the constantly mounting costs of relief for local unemployed and helpless.

City Commission had issued a statement outlining the emergency, and had asked anyone interested to appear and offer suggestions as to whether the auto tax or some other means should be used to secure the necessary funds.

Position of Chattanooga workers, as outlined by Mr. Mabee in an oral statement and in a memorandum adopted by Central Body Monday night, is that a further tax on auto owners at present would be inequitable, and would work hardship upon many individual owners.

After making various suggestions, the statement recited that "The above are merely to open the field for further suggestions, with an urgent request that every possibility be canvassed before any definite action is taken to add new taxes to the present burden."

The statement follows:

Afte. reading the reports in the daily press in which the Mayor and the City Commissioners of the city of Chattanooga have stated the views and opinions of the citizens of this community, and after having taken the matter up and discussing it thoroughly, Chattanooga Central Labor Union wishes the following observations and recommendations made to the Mayor and Board of Commissioners:

First, the problem of relief has been one that has been uppermost in the minds and hearts of organized labor for many years, and we most heartily sanction any equitable move or effort that is being made to alleviate the deplorable condition of those unfortunates. However, we are of the opinion that taxation on the automobile owners has

Route 6.

Editor The Labor World:

Let's not mention daylight-saving time; that saves daylight like an ostrich poking his head in the sand.

Practically all the manufacturing plants in Chattanooga run a night shift, and some operate at night altogether; thus this "saved" hour is picked out of the pocket of the night worker, who is continually trying to bargain with his employer to obtain an hour or two of daylight.

People who advocate daylight-saving time should be made to get up by it. This would dim their enthusiasm no end.

My body may belong to the will of the masses, but my soul is for Central Standard time (and my heart belongs to daddy).

CITY EMPLOYES ORGANIZE

Jacksonville, Fla.—Employes of the City Commission of Jacksonville and other city departments have been joining the American Federation of Labor in scores. Labor union officials are confident that before long all of the city employes will become full-fledged union members.

This splendid result is to a very large extent due to Fred M. Valz, chairman of the City Commission, who has co-operated 100 per cent in the matter of organizing city employes.

The workers are members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

This Card is displayed only where good, competent Union Barbers are employed. Patronize no other. It is printed in black, red, blue, and gold.

H. V. Beavers, president of Local 415, Barbers, is calling attention to a neat ruse allegedly perpetrated by certain non-union shop operators to secure patronage of union labor and its friends. Mr. Beavers told The Labor World this week that the local had definite information that these non-union operators were pointing to the shop card of the employers' association, representing it to be a union shop card. The president of Local 415 pointed out that these cards are similar in appearance to the union shop card, and urged that members and friends of the various local unions use care in assuring themselves and their families that the official union card is displayed in any shop before giving such institution their patronage.

"There is no substitute for the genuine Barbers union shop card," Mr. Beavers said. "Be sure it says UNION SHOP. This card will be found in every union shop."

A facsimile of the bona fide union ship card is printed at the head of this column and the barbers will appreciate the co-operation of their friends in this matter.

STATE LABOR DEPARTMENT HEAD FIGHTS PROPOSED BUDGET CUTS

Albany, N. Y.—Frieda S. Miller, state industrial commissioner, has sent in a vigorous protest against the proposed cut in state labor department budget. Pointing out that there is a direct cut in the amount that is devoted to inspection for safety, and that some decidedly hazardous jobs of large size are on hand, she says:

"It took a Triangle fire to establish proper safety standards and inspection of factories in New York state. I trust it will not take a similar catastrophe, three decades later, to preserve these safeguards. The loss of $89,000 for inspection appropriations certainly puts them in jeopardy."

Under the state law, wage boards set minimum wage rates. Thirty different industries are asking for these boards, employers as well as workers, for every kind of chiseling is used. The cut in the appropriation will let most of the chiseling go on.

"Workmen's compensation means money to keep families together, children in school, rent paid, necessities provided while a worker, sick or injured because of conditions of his employment, is recuperating to go back to work. The sum of $179,977 out of our compensation budget means fewer hearings, delayed claims, frustration of the purpose of the law."

Machinists 56 Renew Contract With Corley Firm

Agreement Calls for Closed Shop, Increased Wage Scale

Lodge 56, Machinists, reports the renewal of the union shop agreement with the Corley Manufacturing company. The agreement provides for a 40-hour week, time and a half for overtime and a weekly wage increase. Seniority prevails, as well as other union rules and regulations.

Approximately forty workers are affected by this agreement, according to C. L. Hayes, chairman of the shop committee.

Forty-Cent Wage Urged For U.S. Soap Contracts

Washington D. C.—The Public Contracts Board of the Department of Labor recommended to Secretary of Labor Perkins that forty cents an hour be established as the prevailing minimum wage for employes in the soap manufacturing industry.

Under the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act the Secretary determines the minimum rate employers must pay in performing contracts for the Government.

In addition to the minimum wage the Act also prescribes the application of the eight-hour day and forty-hour week, and bans the employment of male persons under sixteen years of age, female persons under eighteen years of age, and convict labor.

JUDGE LUSK REDUCES FINES

Fines of nine members of the Hodcarriers' union assessed by Judge Martin Fleming in police court recently were reduced from $25 to $10 Monday by Judge Charles W. Lusk, after a hearing which lasted about ten hours.

The nine were charged with disorderly conduct growing out of trouble at the negro housing project on College Hill, when Earl Flegal, foreman for his brother, Ralph Flegal, who was a non-union contractor, was moving some houses for individual owners. Flegal said that he had five shotguns on the job for the purpose of "protecting myself," if necessary.

The differences were settled the next day after the incident, and the contractor signed a contract with the building tradesmen, according to James R. Moss, office of the Hodcarriers' local.

Sunday is MOTHER'S day.

If you are not going to be home with your Mother, don't forget to write. A word from you would be a welcome word, and how well you know it.

MOTHER LOVE

There is a warm unchanging love
Though skies be gray or blue,
A faith that overlooks all faults
No matter what I do,
My heart is grateful every day
For Mother's love is just that way.

Don't look now but I think there is an argument going full force. B. H. told us that she fully believed that Shakepeare did not say "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." She says it is fresh out of the Bible. Won't some one come to our rescue and help to settle this argument. We still insist—Shakespeare.

By the way, we had just about forgotten to tell you that the Jeff Lowe's have gone "high-hat" these days and fixed their place up until you'd never recognize it. 'Twouldn't surprise us the least most any day now to be met at the door by someone advising us to remove our shoes before entering (no, not hat this time). But no fooling, with all the nice new wall paper, painting, n'everything, the place surely looks ritzy. In spite of all these new "fixings" they still serve the same good food. Congratulations, Lowes, on your improvements, but, Jeff, lay off my hat. I still like it.

Textile Unions Send Large Delegations to National Meet

Atlanta, Ga.—Textile local unions throughout the south affiliated with the American Federation of Labor named large delegations to attend the convention of the United Textile Workers of America, which opened in Washington Monday. Headquarters are at the Hamilton hotel, and the convention is expected to last several days. Information from New England textile centers and other sections of the country indicate that large delegations came from those sections also.

The United Textile Workers' International union was one of the ten internationals which seceded from the A. F. of L. and formed the CIO, this action having been taken by officers of the international. Many local unions refused to go along with the CIO, and these were given charters by the A. F. of L. Many other locals have been organized by the A. F. of L. All of these, along with the U. T. W. locals, will meet in convention next Monday and perfect a permanent organization.

Some months ago the United Textile Workers' International applied for reinstatement in the A. F. of L. Next week's convention will witness official return of this international to the A. F. of L.. Much interest throughout the country is being manifested in the forthcoming convention. The Southern Cotton Textile Federation, organized four months ago in Atlanta, will play an important part in the permanent organization of the United Textile Workers' convention.

"Davey John," Labor's Friend, Named to Mediation Board

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt has told former Congressman David J. Lewis of Maryland that he will be named to the National Labor Relations Board in place of Dr. William M. Leiserson, who is going to the NLRB.

Lewis is one of the stanchest liberals in public life, and has been so since long before the term of New Deal came around, and a stanch supporter of labor. He was born near Osceola, Pa., son of a coal miner. They are having hard times in schools in the coal counties of that state just now, but "Davey John" learned to read in a Sunday school. But few men in Congress can match him in the detailed exactness of his learning.

After several terms in Congress, during which he was champion of the parcel post, he was put on the tariff commission by President Wilson. Lewis' term expired during the Coolidge administration. Lewis refused to sign a resignation in advance, which Coolidge required, and though given a reappointment between sessions, his name was not sent to the Senate when that body convened again. His district sent him back to the House, but the state did not send him to the Senate.

Lewis confounded many who objected to reform legislation, such as that prohibiting child labor. "My grandfather went into the coal mines of Wales at the age of 7 years," he says, "my father at 8, and I went into the coal mines of Pennsylvania at the age of 9. That's two years' gain in three generations—rather slow."

Holland's Co-operative Societies Take Leading Part in Improvement of Housing, Expert Says

Washington, D. C.—Jan Bommer, housing expert and director of the Federation of Public Housing Societies of The Netherlands, is here looking over American housing efforts, which are very young to him. Over there they started almost at the beginning of the century.

"Before the Housing Act, conditions in housing were very bad in Holland," said Mr. Bommer.

"In 1899, the staggering fact that more than 80 per cent. of the lower income groups in our country were living in dwellings with two rooms or less. The Housing Act of 1901 was born of social need."

How Plan Operates

The act is curiously framed to fix responsibility. The houses are built by societies, but—let Mr. Bommer tell it:

"When a society has initiated a building project it asks the municipality for a loan. If the municipality agrees, after examining and checking—it applies, in turn, for a loan from the government. When the government also has approved the project the loan is granted to the municipality, and by the municipality to the society. Local responsibility!

"Building loans are repayable in fifty years. The interest is now 3½ per cent., the rate corresponding to that at which the state receives its money. Besides these loans, the act empowers the government to grant yearly subsidies, half paid by the government and half by the municipality. Since 1934, yearly subsidies have been granted only in cases of slum clearance.

Workers Develop Responsibility

"Our system of co-operative housing societies has become a great success. It has proved an efficient manner of house management. Housing work is not only a matter of building houses; the management is of at least equal importance.

"Tenants have obtained a say in things and at the same time developed a sense of responsibility which they never will require in houses managed directly by municipal authorities. Workers elected to the boards have learned to organize and do business."

How well it has worked is shown by the fact that the proportion of low-income people living in one or two-room houses has dropped from more than 80 per cent. in 1901 to 25 per cent. now—and going lower.

"For the Dutch people," said Mr. Bommer at the close, "these houses signify progress in health, in morals and in progress not to be expressed in figures. It's no wonder that this work is supported by all political parties in our country."

Resolution

On April 19, Samuel Brown Baker, aged 70, and for fifty years a resident of Malvern, Ark., was claimed by death. A leading citizen of his community, he served Hot Springs County for twelve years in an official capacity. Two of his surviving sons are W. A. Baker, member of Chattanooga Typographical Union No. 89, and R. E. Baker, member of the Railway Brotherhood.

Whereas, the passing of Mr. Baker is a grave loss to his community, family and wide circle of friends; and,

Whereas, Chattanooga Typographical Union No. 89 deplores the demise of one of its loyal friends; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a copy of this, its expression of sympathy, be printed and forwarded to those who have recently been bereaved.

Federal Education Bill Would Allot State $2,250,000

Knoxville.—Passage of the proposed federal education bill this spring would give Tennessee's educational system approximately $2,250,000 during the next school year, said Dean J. A. Thackston of the University of Tennessee College of Education, urging that Tennesseans "give their heartiest support to the bill" by writing their senators and congressmen.

The bill, which is now being considered by the Senate committee on education, is designed to equalize educational opportunities in the United States by providing federal funds for elementary and high schools, librrries, teacher-training institutions and adult education programs.

"The bill would give Tennessee schools a longer term, a better enrollment of children of school age, better school buildings, a great reduction in illiteracy through the adult education program, greatly improved library facilities for rural communities, improved school plants and equipment, better teachers, and educational opportunities equal to those in other states throughout the country," declared Dean Thackston.

The $2,250,000 appropriation for 1939-40 would be but a "starter," however. The amount would increase each year for a period of six years, and by 1945 the Tennessee appropriation would be between nine and ten million dollars, added the dean.

"All of this money would be given outright to the several states," he said. "No matching of funds would be required except in the case of funds for school buildings."

Of the $2,250,000 "earmarked" for Tennessee, around two million dollars would go for elementary and high schools. This is about one-fourth the amount now given these schools by the state. By 1945, federal appropriations for these schools would increase to approximately $7,000,000, and they "would then be on par with those of other states," said Dean Thackston.

Other provisions of the bill are:

For adult education, about $250,000 in 1939-40, and about $750,000 in 1942.

For rural library services, about $100,000 in 1939-40, and about $300,000 in 1942.

For teacher training, about $100,000 in 1939-40, and about $300,000 in 1942 (as much as any three state teachers' colleges now receive altogether in Tennessee).

For school buildings, about $1,000,000 in 1939-40, providing these funds are matched.

A. F. of L. Again Urges System Of National Planning to Lift Output to Capacity Figure

Washington, D. C.—The American Federation of Labor Monthly Survey of Business, which even big business has learned to look to for information and ideas, has made its present issue a clear, strong call for a national planning board. It sets the case thus:

"Business this spring is in a stalemate. Instead of the new upsurge toward recovery which everyone expected, activity has drifted gradually downward in the first four months of 1939. . . . Business is now some 30 per cent below normal; last year in April it was 40 per cent below normal. Even this small improvement over last year, however, has made it possible for industrial firms to operate with considerably more profit.

"Our industrial paralysis is not due to such industrial ill health as present over-supplies of goods or inflated prices. Observers agree that industry today is in a healthy condition, fully ready for expansion, production increases and reemployment. Our failure to go ahead is due to uncertainty of the future, and to fear of war in Europe. And because of uncertainty, our industries are running at only 70 per cent of normal and we still have 11,200,000 unemployed (March).

Business Long Subnormal.

"Today with national income at about $65,000,000,000 per year, it is probable that about 15,000,000 families, or roughly half of all families, are now in the substandard group.

"For nearly ten years now business has been subnormal, and even when business was above normal we had millions living in poverty. With capacity production it would be entirely possible to lift every American family above the minimum health and decency standard. Yet neither business nor government has yet been able to achieve this goal."

Saying further that the power age and mass production require new methods to make them give prosperity to all, the survey makes its proposal:

"We have made progress in organization of labor, farmers, business men and consumers since the depression follow 1929; but we have not yet taken the final step to co-ordinate our national economic activities by setting up a national planning board.

General Plan Needed.

"Business men working without co-ordination cannot possibly lift production to its highest levels for no firm can cope single-handed with the nationwide factors which influence the sale of its products. Nor can a business man ever know what the demand for his product will be a month from now or a year from now. A national planning board could at least develop a plan for general production increases which would give business firms more certainty of the future than they have at present; and it could, after study and research, suggest measures to eliminate some of the obstacles to progress."

A.F.L. Membership Totals 3,776,218

Washington.—Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, announced that the paid-up membership of the federation on May 2, 1939, was 3,776,218.

"This is an increase of 1,336,163 over the membership we had on Aug. 21, 1936," he said, adding:

"National and international unions and local trade and federal labor unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor are required to pay per capita tax upon their full paid-up membership. Therefore the membership figures I have given do not include members of the affiliated unions who were unemployed."

The membership figures for Aug. 31, 1936, included the unions which established the CIO under the leadership of John L. Lewis, and were suspended from the American Federation of Labor in September, 1936, for refusing to withdraw from the Lewis group, which the A. F. of L. Executive Council held was a dual organization.

Retail Clerks

by JACK RAY

The Retail Clerks will have two local unions in Chattanooga. One local is to be made up of the grocery clerks and the shop clerks will remain in their separate local unit.

The shop clerks have had their local for more than a year, but the grocery division has been organized within the last few months and both unions are making great progress.

The managers of the A. & P. stores in Chattanooga, having seen the advantages of being union men, are organizing, too. This unit will include all managers who work on a percentage basis.

Joe Payne was elected delegate to the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention, which will be held in Nashville on June 5, 6 and 7. Brother Payne will represent the grocery clerks.

Bill Gilstrap has issued an invitation to all the clerks to come out for a chicken dinner—at least, he said he was raising a lot of fryers, and we can take a hint.

Erskine Mabee will represent the Chattanooga clerks at the International Retail Clerks' convention to be held in Cleveland, O., beginning July 18.

The clerks are beginning an educational campaign among their own membership about union-made merchandise . . . it is a splendid move for these new union men to be making. We want to help all labor groups.

Telephone your news to The Labor World. Let's put our union "on the map."

TEACHER TALK

The board of directors Wednesday endorsed the action of the county school board and Supt. Clark in raising the salaries of county teachers that were below $100 to that figure.

Stanton Smith will be honored at a banquet sponsored by the board of directors and which all the Federation is urged to attend, on Saturday evening, May 27. President of the local organization for eight years, Stanton began his work for and with us in its founding, and since that time he has worked tirelessly for our good. Under his leadership the tenure law was passed by the legislature; the first step of the county salary scale put into effect, and the Federation saw to the retention of the non-resident teachers who were dismissed in the regime of former Commissioner Wilkerson. In season and out, he has advocated and fought for better salaries and working conditions for teachers.

Arrangements are in charge of Miss Archie Ruth Brown, and fuller plans will be announced very soon in a bulletin. Plan to attend.

'Tainted' Foods Not Revealed by Smell or Taste

The five senses are useless detectors of contaminated food, though most persons rely on their taste and smell to protect them from "ptomaine poisoning," said Dr. R. M. Powell, University of Tennessee physician, speaking on one of the U-T broadcasts over station WSM.

"Food that is infected with these poisonous organisms is not altered one iota in appearance, taste or odor," warned Dr. Powell. "There is no way to detect the infection by our ordinary senses."

Speaking on "Diseases of Summer," Dr. Powell pointed out that food poisoning, meat poisoning, and the so-called ptomaine poisoning are more prevalent in the warm - weather months because high temperatures are more favorable to growth of bacteria which cause the infection.

"The more a food is handled and the longer it is left lying around at room temperature, the more likely it is to be responsible for an attack of food infection. It is well known that picnic lunches are frequent offenders. Also salads that are made of chopped up foods and left-overs are especially dangerous," he said.

Other common summer diseases which Dr. Powell discussed are typhoid fever, cholera, dysentery and malaria. Proper community sanitation eliminates the first three diseases, and such precautions as screens and destroying mosquito breeding places eliminates the fourth, he said.

"Much has been done to control these dreaded diseases in the past few years. For instance, in 1900 typhoid was fourth on the list of deahs due to a communicable disease, and now it is below twelfth place," commented Dr. Powell. "In fact, much of our typhoid can now truthfully be called 'vacation typhoid,' coming from so-called health and vacation resorts."

A. F. of L. Opposes Cut in Payroll Tax for Unemployment Compens

Green Tells Ways and Means Committee That the Present Inadequate Benefits Paid to Workers Would Be Jeopardized by Reduc Levy Below Three Per Cent.

Washington, D.C.—A strong protest against the proposal to reduce the three per cent Federal tax on payrolls to provide an adequate unemployment compensation fund for the benefit of millions of jobless in the United States was contained in a letter sent by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor to Chairman Robert L. Doughton and the other twenty-four members of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Emphasizing the admitted fact that benefits now paid to the unemployed are far below the amount necessary to maintain decent living standards, Mr. Gree presented unanswerable arguments in favor of maintaining the present tax rate and providing more adequate compensation for the millions of working men and women who are thrown into the unemployed army through no fault of their own.

The text of Mr. Green's letter follows:

"The American Federation of Labor is concerned about the proposal that the Federal tax of 3 per cent on payrolls under Title IX of the Social Security Act should be reduced.

"It is only the uniformity of the Federal tax which has encouraged States to enact unemployment compensation laws and to build up funds from which benefits could be paid.

"If the Federal tax is reduced, few States would be able to resist the pressure from employers to equalize interstate competitive conditions by reducing their taxes to the level of the lowest tSate, or to the new low level established by the Federal law.

"The effect on the funds and benefit systems would be disastrous.

"In many states any material reduction in the tax rates now would make it impossible to pay even the existing scale of benefits. No state is paying benefits which by any reasonable standards can be considered satisfactory.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources
CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

The Rockefeller Foundation in annual review tells of the invasion of the western continent by an African mosquito Anopheles gambiae, which deserves the title of one of the most dangerous enemies of man. At home, in Africa, this insect carries a particularly virulent form of malaria often called "blackwater fever." In Brazil it carries the junglier type of yellow fever.

Yellow fever is a virus disease. The poison which causes it cannot be seen through the microscope and goes without losing its virulence through the finest filter—just as does the poison which causes infantile paralysis. We have stamped the ordinary form of yellow fever from the West Indies and Central America, from which it frequetly jumped to our own land, by killing off the mosquitoes that carried it.

That was one of the finest health victories ever gained, and the credit of it goes to the American Army medical service, and to the American soldiers who volunteered to be bitten by infected mosquitoes.

But a jungle variety has been found in the tropics of Brazil, and this African mosquito is a busy carrier of it. The Rockefeller Foundation and the Brazilian government are co-operating in fighting it. It can be prevented by vaccine, and more than a million people of the danger regions have been vaccinated. The campaign will be intensified this year.

A totalitarian government, holding all political, industrial, financial and social life of the country in its hands, and abolishing even the courts, has been proclaimed in Bolivia by the president, Lieut.-Col. German Busch. He is reported to be in constant consultation with Dionisio Foianini, hitherto minister of mines and petroleum. The army is said to have accepted the new government.

Obviously this is meant to be modeled on Nazi or Fascist lines, which is quite different from the ordinary Spanish-American dictatorship, though not much more cold-blooded in dealing with labor or the common people generally. But only one thing gives it any particular importance to us. Bolivia is the second biggest source of our tin, the East Indian islands and Malay Peninsula being by odds the first. If our supply from the Orient is cut off by a war, it would be embarrassing to have the Bolivian government shut down on that export.

Only a few papers are printing it at all and these put it well back from the front, but there is a deal of sharp fighting in China. For several weeks most of that has gone China's way. The Chinese have chased the Japanese out of several minor cities, mostly in the south. No very large numbers have been involved in any one place. It seems a sort of glorified guerrilla war, and the ordinary guerrilla war meantime goes on unchecked.

Jean Paul Jones Special Guest of Typo Auxiliary

Printers' Ladies Hear Very Interesting Talk by Radio Worker.

Jean Paul Jones, president of Radio Workers, Local 662, made an interesting talk to the ladies of the Typographical Auxiliary at their meeting Tuesday night.

Mr. Jones told the group something of the history of his union, the struggles the organization had encountered and the progress they have made.

"We are grateful to organized labor for the loyal support it has given us," he said. "Our union has always tried to conduct its affairs in such a way that it will reflect credit on the labor movement. We have fought for our ideals in a clean and honorable way and it is our aim to improve the standards in the radio industry.

"It is hardly necessary," he continued, "for me to ask the understanding and support of you ladies. You represent the families of men who have carried union cards in their pockets for many years and who realize the many advantages of being members of organized labor."

After Mr. Jones' talk, the Auxiliary completed a brief business session and enjoyed a contest which was planned by Mrs. Wade Smith. Mrs. Arch Underwood won the prize for recognizing most of the baby pictures.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mesdames Cleveland, Cuthbert and Echols.

Minimum Pay Rates for Women Set In Illinois Candy Industry

CHICAGO.—Martin P. Durkin, director of the Department of Labor of Illinois, has issued a directory order, effective June 1, 1939, establishing minimum wage rates for women and minors employed in the confectionery industry. Wages paid to confectionery workers in this area are about the lowest in the United States; and the order is expected to raise the pay of those affected considerably.

Basic hourly rates for a 44-hour week are to be 35 cents for the Chicago area and 31½ cents for the downstate area. Time and one-half is to be paid for all overtime, except during a peak business period of not more than 14 weeks a year, when the minimum hourly rate for work in excess of the 44 hours, but not more than 48 hours a week, is to be 10 per cent more than the regular rate.

Durkin's order followed his approval of report of a confectionery wage board, made after hearings at which members of the industry and the employers discussed the rate of pay.

$100,000 More Asked for Senate Civil Liberties Committee Inquiry

Washington. — Senator Schwellenbach, of Washington, and Senator Downey, of California, introduced a resolution in the senate providing a fund of $100,000 to enable the senate civil liberties committee to investigate the alleged illegal activities of organized employers and detective agencies in the states of Washington, Oregon and California designed to cripple and destroy labor organizations and abolish the civil rights of citizens. The committee consists of Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, chairman, and Senator Thomas, of Utah.

The resolution was referred to the committee to audit and control the contingent expenses of the senate, from which a favorable report is expected.

The action for the appropriation of additional funds for the senate civil liberties committee was initiated recently by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in the following resolution which the council unanimously adopted:

"Because of the unjust and unlawful persecution of officials of legitimate labor unions in the states of California, Oregon and Washington, where the enemies of labor are wilfully and deliberately plotting to destroy labor organizations, and because we believe that the civil rights of citizens of the United States have been trampled upon and ignored, and that labor officials have been persecuted and their liberties as American citizens destroyed, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor does hereby resolve that the executive officers of the American Federation of Labor request the senate of the United States to appropriate sufficient money to the sub-committee of the committee on education and labor, otherwise known as the senate civil liberties committee, for the purpose of continuing their investigation in the above-mentioned states to the end that the rights of workers and citizens of those states be protected against the unlawful acts of combinations of employers, detective agincies and other enemies of the workers."

The request of the A. F. of L. for additional funds for the civil liberties committee was also approved by a number of other organizations.

and not from labor's representative."

No indication of action on the appeal was given Tuesday. Mayor Bass was out of the city.

The resolution follows:

Whereas, since its inception the Chattanooga Electric Power Board has had a representative from organized labor who has efficiently and capably represented the workers of this county, and who was the choice of organized labor in the beginning; and,

Whereas, the only politics that has been injected into this issue has come from three members of the city commission and not from labor's representative; and,

Whereas, organized labor of Chattanooga has unanimously reaffirmed its indorsement of Stanton E. Smith for reappointment to the Electric Power Board; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we respectfully petition the city commission to reconsider its action and confirm the nomination of Stanton E. Smith as a member of the Chattanooga Electric Power Board for another term.

Striking Tobacco Workers Win Pay Hike in Two Liggett & Myers Plants

Richmond, Va.—A contract granting wage increases and putting the company on record as desiring that its nonunion employes join the union ended a week-old strike of 2,000 workers at Liggett & Myers tobacco manufacturing plants here and in Durham, N. C.

The union had asked a flat 5 per cent wage increase, seniority preference for union members, and the company's promise that it would not "discriminate for or against a union or nonunion employe."

The contract, which expires March 15, 1940, was aproved by representatives of the company and of the International Tobacco Workers' Union in a conference at which J. A. Offett of the United States Department of Labor acted as conciliator.

Wage provisions of the new contract included: Scaling machine operators up to 75 cents an hour after two years' experience; increasing hopper-fillers and catchers 3 cents an hour, to 60 cents; giving machine adpusters a flat $1 an hour; raising inspectors and relief girls 2 cents an hour in the making and packing divisions; 4 cents an hour raise for paper carton machine operators; 2 cents raise for packing machine operators, and piece rates for wrapping.

Discrimination

An old Irishwoman wanted to cross the road at Hyde Park corner in London, but was scared of the traffic.

A policeman came to the rescue. "It's all right," he assured her. "When you see the red light, that's red for England, so don't go. But when you see it's green, that's for Ireland. You can cross then, and not a thing will touch you."

She crossed on the green light, then waited till it was green again and came back to thank the officer.

"It was very kind of you to explain it so nicely," she said, "and, glory be, you don't give much time for the Orangemen to get across!"

There were 49 personal incomes of $1,000,000 or more registered in this country in 1937. It would be interesting to know how many persons with such incomes are among those guaranteeing to pay the expenses of 20,000 child refugees.

Dairy Workers Get Nice Pay Increase In New Wage Pact

Four Dairies Sign, With Two More Expected This Week; Delegates Elected

Local 428, Dairy Workers, feel proud this week because of the signing of new agreements with four of the larger dairies in Chattanooga. The new contracts give the inside men nice increases in pay, and, of course, the closed shop and other union conditions were renewed.

Those dairies signing so far are: Grant-Patten, Associated Dairies, Morning Star and Cream Top.

It is believed that during the week signatures will be secured from Sterchi Bros. and United.

Robert Tipton was elected to represent the local union in Nashville at the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention, which will be opened June 5.

Officials of the Dairy Workers this week renewed their plea to members of organized labor to remember that union dairy employers are entitled to all the business of union families. Especially is it recalled that the Happy Valley dairy is non-union.

The union does not have a single member in the Southern Dairies ice cream plant.

American Mfg. Co. Willing for Employes To Return at Company's Own Terms

Strike in Second Week With Only Two "Scabbing" in Plant --- Boss Trying to Lure Strikebreakers

The strike of A. F. of L. employes at the American Manufacturing company finished its first week Tuesday, with the plant closed down tight with exception of two non-members who are scabbing inside the plant.

Two weeks ago, complying with the request of the management, a consent election was held to determine the bargaining agency, and the union won by a vote of 57 to 8.

After some hesitation the management agreed to meet with the union, which presented a proposed agreement calling for five cents per hour increase in pay, a closed shop and seniority. Management has agreed to the seniority and a 2½ cents increase, but so far it wants to retain the open shop and the right to reduce wages on thirty days' notice.

Last Sunday an advertisement appeared in the classified columns of the daily papers for new employes, but so far no one has attempted to fill the strikers' jobs.

Strikebreakers?

Early Thursday morning the strikers met at the Labor Hall and flatly rejected the American Manufacturing Company's proposal, stating that it was ridiculous, and that they had just as well starve outside the plant as to starve inside.

Management's threat to bring into use a crew of new employes as strikebreakers was received with cold and steely silence.

One of the amusing incidents of the strike has been the frequent and frantic calls from the company to the police to stop the strikers from "blocking" trucks which come to the plant to take away products. The way the truck have been "blocked" has been by the strikers, in a friendly way, asking the drivers not to haul material. In every instance the drivers have refused to haul, and have driven off with their trucks with a cheery farewell and best wishes for the strikers. After observing this procedure, the police have rightfully informed the management that there has been no disorder.

It is believed that the management intends to attempt to starve the strikers for several weeks, and then appeal to dire necessity to accept the terms handed down by the company.

However, from indications of the morale of the strikers, the cold-blooded and impassive attitude of the company will only stiffen the determination of the unionists to fight on for their right to organize and remain organized.

And, of yes—Mr. Jac Chambliss, former daddy of the League of Democratic Unions, denounced by the United States government, is the lawyer for the company.

Label League Dance This Saturday Will Be Well Attended

Birthday Party for League Will Have Banquet, Show and Dancing

The Label League will celebrate its fourth birthday next Saturday, May 20, at the Patten hotel.

Johnny Mahoney will be toastmaster at the banquet at 6:30, followed by a floor show, and then—

Well, the floor will be cleared, a swell union orchestra will limber up, and dancing will be enjoyed until time to go home.

Dozens of local unions are sending some of their officers to officially represent them, while tickers can be secured by others for the small price of one dollar per person.

Prospects Indicate Splendid Tenn. Fed. Convention In Nashville in June

The Nashville labor movement is going ahead with plans to receive the delegates to the 42nd annual convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor on June 5, 6 and 7, according to Stanley O'Connor, chairman of the committee.

Headquarters for the convention will be the Noel hotel and delegates are asked to make their reservations early. All convention meetings will be held at the hotel and the convention halls are provided with loud speaker systems. The hall is also air-conditioned, so that delegates will be comfortable in the hottest weather.

George L. Googe, who has charge of the southern office of the American Federation of Labor, will represent the A. F. of L. at the convention. Commissioner of Labor Sidney Bryant is expected to address the convention and many international unions will have representatives at the meeting.

The assembled delegates will have many interesting matters to consider during the three-day session, with labor legislation discussions leading the field.

The local unions throughout the state are electing delegates to represent them at the meeting and many locals will be represented for the first time. Since Nashville is centrally located, all localities will probably send larger delegations than ever before. Jackson is making a strong effort to have its labor movement well represented at this meeting, according to H. N. Estes, who is devoting much time to rousing interest in Jackson labor circles.

President Foley and Secretary Cuthbert are asking that elected delegates forward their duplicate credentials immediately to Secretary Cuthbert, 310 West Eighth street, Chattanooga, Tenn., in order that the president may have the names of the delegates from which to choose committees. These committees must be all ready to function when the convention opens.

Stanton Smith Slap Is Resented by Cement Workers

Also Protest Auto Tax Levy; Elect Glenn Parson as Delegate

Local 18269, Cement Workers, at its last meeting, sent two protests to the city dads. The first was to express their displeasure in the recent action which the three bees took to seek revenge, wherein they turned down Stanton Smith for the Electric Power Board.

The resolution said:

Whereas, Stanton E. Smith, has most capably represented organized labor on the Chattanooga Electric Power Board since its inception, and was chosen for a second term by a unanimous vote of the Electric Power Board; and

Whereas, The only politics that has been injected into this issue has come from "three" members of the City Commission and not from organized labor's representative; and

Whereas, Organized labor of Chattanooga has unanimously reaffirmed its indorsement of Stanton Smith for reappointment to the Electric Power Board, and the Central Labor Union and various other labor

YOUNG MEN OFFERED FREE SUMMER COURSE ON TRAINING SHIP

The American Nautical Academy, National Training School for Merchant Marine Officers, Washington, D. C., announced today that boys and young men between the ages of 11 and 21 years will be allowed to secure practical ship experience on board a training ship of the Academy within the period from June 1 to October 1, 1939.

The young men may remain on board ship for the entire period, or for any shorter time they may wish, but not less than a month. Students who enter for any period less than the full course will receive instruction only in those subjects being taught while the student is on board ship.

The purpose of the course is: First, as a foundation for those who wish to become officers in the Merchant Marine, and devote their lives to a career in the service; secondly, for those boys and young men who, though not desirous of following the sea, still wish to obtain a general knowledge of ships, and the life afloat.

There is no charge for instruction nor for living quarters on board ship. The only required expense is for meals, which are 49 cents. Three meals are served daily.

There is no tuition charge for any of the courses offered by the Academy, and no obligation for future merchant marine, military or naval service of any kind is incurred by the young men.

The schoolship to which the young men will be assigned is the Training Ship "Marsala," a vessel of 2,422 tons, 284 feet long, 45 feet breadth, and built in 1919-20.

On Sundays the cadets will be allowed to attend divine services at the churches of their respective denominations on shore. While on board ship cadets will receive free minor first aid treatment when necessary.

This is the tenth annual summer course offered by the Academy, and will be under the personal supervision of the Captain Commandant of the Academy, who will be in command of the vessel.

While on board ship the students will follow the regular daily ship routine, and will be given practical instruction in nautical subjects, including seamanship (ship's work), signaling, rowing, handling and the use of motor ships, pulling boats, life-saving and naval drills. Many of the duties on board ship are performed by the cadets as part of their training. They will also receive instruction in the use of life buoys, first aid, the compass, log, lead, ground tackle, and the duties of lookouts, as well as the duties of the watch on deck.

Students will join the training ship at Virginia, where the vessel will be based at Hampton Roads for the summer training period.

Those completing the summer course with a passing grade will be eligible to apply for a scholarship in the Navigation Course.

Due to the fact that the number of accommodations available is limited, those wishing to take advantage of this opportunity should write at once to the American Nautical Academy, National Training School for Merchant Marine Officers, Washington, D. C.

Tops in Vacations

(From the Union Leader, Chicago)

Efforts of the local divisions of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes to secure paid vacations for their members were crowned with further success in 1938, when thirty-five more local divisions obtained for 8,413 members contractual agreements providing annual holidays with pay.

For the last few years the Amalgamated Association has led all labor organizations in the number of its members who have been successful in obtaining vacation concessions from employers and it is likely that again the association will head the list for 1939. According to practically complete figures for last year, 155 local divisions containing a total of 68,-217 members enjoy contract provisions for vacations of from one to three weeks annually. In 1937 the total was 120 divisions, containing 59,804 members.

In 1938 thirteen local divisions were successful in having their vacation periods increased from one week to two weeks with pay; four obtained an addition of three days, bringing the vacation periods to ten days. One division secured an increase to twelve days vacation and twelve days sick leave, where previously the members had obtained only one week, and one local division increased the vacation period from twelve days to three weeks.

Any one of us can be wrong, but gee, some of us do hate to have to admit it. Especially is this true when you have to put up one more big argument. Mrs. Hobart Beale, whose husband operates a union sign shop on Carter street, calls us and the conversation is as follows, "I'm awfully sorry, but your quotation from Shakespeare was wrong in that it was taken from the first verse of the 22nd Proverb. Now in Othello (Shakespeare) Iagio did make a statement that corresponded with that quotation, but, my dear, those words were Solomon's very own." All right, we won't contradict Mrs. Beale because she has made a special study of Shakespeare. We don't know much about the words of Shakespeare, but had they been those of Edgar Allen Poe we would offer an argument.

New York World's Fair Concessions Sign Master Union Contract With Culinary Workers Organizations

New York City.—A master union contract to cover culinary workers employed in concessions at the World's Fair has been approved by Grover Whalen, president of the New York World's Fair 1939, Inc., and has already been signed by a number of large concessionaires—who will employ approximately 4,000 catering industry workers—with the World's Fair Joint Board Culinary Committee of Greater New York, an A. F. of L. affiliate, the committee announces.

A spokesman for the joint board culinary committee said that it expected to place a total of 15,000 men and women in steady and extra jobs on the fair grounds.

Virtually all of the fair's foreign concessionaires are expected by the culinary committee shortly to follow the example set by representatives of the Soviet Union of Poland who have signed the contract.

The culinary committee was established jointly by the New York and Brooklyn local joint executive boards of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and Bartenders International League of America.

All Food Workers Covered.

The New York joint board comprises thirteen local unions in the hotel, restaurant and cafeteria industry, and the Brooklyn board three local unions in the same field. The combined membership of the locals is more than 50,000 workers.

The contract with the culinary concessions of the World's Fair covers chefs, cooks and other kitchen workers, waiters and waitresses, extra waiters, bartenders, soda dispensers and other employes engaged in preparing or serving food or beverages.

Under the terms of the contract the union is recognized as the sole collective bargaining agent of the workers and the union shop is established. The employer agrees to engage at least 33 1-3 per cent of his permanent employes through the union.

Wages Top City Rates.

Wages under the contract are approximately 10 per cent higher than those prevailing for similar work in the city. Minimums include $12 and $13 a week plus two meals a day for waiters and busboys, $10 to $11 a week plus two meals a day for waitresses, $35 a week for bartenders and $17 to $18 a week for dishwashers and a number of employes classified as miscellaneous workers.

In general the contract establishes an eight-hour working day.

The contract names Edward P. Mulrooney as impartial arbitrator in cases of disputes between the parties signatory to the agreement. Mulrooney at present occupies a similar position in the hotel industry in New York City.

Labor Asks Congress to Retain Present Neutrality Act, Held Serving Cause of Peace

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Asking retention of the present neutrality law, the American Federation of Labor told the Senate foreign relations committee that American labor believes the law has served the interests of peace.

A change in the neutrality law might be interpreted as abandonment of the people's stand against involvement in foreign quarrels, Paul Scharrenberg, legislative representative of the A. F. of L., said in a statement which he read to the comimttee. The statement was by President William Green of the federation.

Workers, remembering the experience of the last war, are firm in their determination to preserve peace for the United States, Scharrenberg said. The statement follows:

"The American Federation of Labor has endorsed the principles upon which the neutrality act was based; That a neutral nation has obligations as well as rights and that the munitions industry is a matter of public concern. We do not believe this is the time to make changes in this law, for any change in this legislation might be interpreted as a change in our foreign policy.

"So essential is it for our country to do its part in maintaining peace between nations that in my opinion we should do everything possible to avoid raising any doubt as to our wish to remain aloof from the controversies of other countries.

"Workers Want Peace"

"The workers of the United Sates want peace. We went through the World War, doing our full part. The lessons of that experience have convinced us that world problems can be solved only under conditions of peace and through the instrumentalities of peace. The working people of this country are firm in their desire to avoid entanglement in the intrigues of nations seeking aggrandizement of territories or protection of the gains of former aggression.

"We believe that the present neutrality law has served the interests of peace between nations and that it should be continued as it was enacted in 1937.

"American labor is disturbed by obvious efforts to promote war hysteria. We cannot forget the loss of life and manhood when a generation of young manhood was conscripted for the World war.

"Labor throughout the length and breadth of the United States is opposed to sending another generation into the trenches of war and we urge that every possible safeguard be taken to avoid anything that would needlessly contribute to a war development.

"This is no time for experimentation. Labor therefore urges continuance of a measure that has been helpful in the hope that peace may be served."

Capital Highlights

BY GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington, D. C.—Washington is being invited to take a frank look at itself, as Eugene Pharo puts it in the Washington Post. The Department of Research of the Council of Social Agencies here has drawn up a series of maps and figures which tell the truth about the national capital; and the truth, and the whole truth, about any American large city—and an appalling proportion of small cities and villages—is calculated to make its patriotic citizens squirm.

Slums anywhere are a social crime; but slums in Washington are utterly inexcusable. There is money and power here to wipe out such things. Yet it was left for the first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson to lead a fight against alley dwellings; and I doubt if all of them are gone yet. There are plenty of other slums in the capital, and not all of them are shown on the "rent map" which is the first to be published. That emphasizes the southwest, southeast and northeast sections. Take a walk up New Jersey avenue, with excursions here and there to the left, then walk a mile west on T street, keeping your eyes open as you go; and you will come back knowing that there are slums in the high-toned northwest section, too.

It is devoutly to be hoped that the council's revelations will be spread to the farthest corners of the country; for many reasons. To name two, Washington belongs to the whole country, and the whole country is interested as never before in the things that the council has been probing. And, as in practically every social investigation of the last three years, WPA had a large hand in the work.

The high cancer death rate of Washington can be explained, not excused, in part by the fact that a larger proportion of people have reached the cancer age in the capital than in most other cities. The writer remembers well writing back home from his first visit to this city: "Washington is a city of old men; you see at least twice as many of them, in proportion, on Capitol Hill as in the Loop of Chicago." But to live to the age where cancer is most prevalent is just the same economic problem in Washington that it is everywhere else.

A survey of the Works Progress Administration shows that the average age of workers is just under 40 years, and that the average term of employment is a little over a year. One out of six—16.7 per cent—has been employed by WPA for three years or more; and a heavy preponderance of long term workers are above 45 years of age. Administrator Harrington sums up thus:

"Workers have been on the WPA program for an average continuous period of barely over a year, and 70 per cent of the workers were assigned after the depression period beginning in the fall of 1937. . . . In the main, the WPA is providing temporary work and income for unemployed workers during periods of their individual emergencies between regular jobs."

Some day, perhaps, this nation will get up to the standard set by Col. Harrington when he took his present position as head of WPA, that public work will be provided for workers when private "enterprise" fails to do it.

The unopened Czecho-Slovak pavillion at the New York World's fair is attracting more attention than many open ones. Small comfort to the people of the murdered republic.

MORE ABOUT STANTON SMITH

nions have petitioned the City Commission to reconsider its action and confirm his appointment; therefore, be it

Resolved, By Cement Workers Local Union No. 18269, in regular session assembled, That we concur in the action of organized labor, and respectfully petition the City Commission to reconsider its action and confirm the nomination of Stanton Smith as a member of the Chattanooga Electric Power Board for another term.

The other protest was against the Mayor's "feeler" for a five-dollar tax on automobiles for "relief purposes." It follows:

Whereas, the Mayor and the City Commissioners of the City of Chattanooga, have invited the views and opinions of the citizens of this community regarding the levying by the City Commission of an emergency tax of $5.00, on all automobiles to meet the mounting cost of relief work; and

Whereas, the problem of relief is one to command the attention of every citizen, and organized labor will heartily sanction any equitable move to alleviate the deplorable condition of those unfortunates; and

Whereas, it is our opinion that some other way should be found to raise this money rather than further tax on the automobile owners, as in our opinion the taxes on the automobile owners has about reached the breaking point and we see no logical reason why they should be discriminated against; therefore be it

Resolved, By Cement Workers' Local Union No. 18269, in regular session assembled, That we respectfully protest the levying of any further taxes against the automobile owners of this City, and ask that some other method be used to raise the necessary funds to finance the City's relief costs, and we believe the suggestion of the Central Labor Union, that a Tax Assessor's office be established is a very good suggestion.

Frank Walsh Dead

New York City (ILNS).—Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the New York State Power Authority and for many years one of the country's most famous labor attorneys, died on the street in front of the State Supreme Court building. He was 74 years old.

Walsh was born July 20, 1864, at St. Louis, and was admitted to the Missouri bar at 25. He very soon took part in public affairs, always from the labor side. Almost his first venture in this line was as a member of the tenement commission. He was chairman of the federal commission on industrial relations, appointed by President Wilson, from 1915 till he quit to become editor and publisher of the Kansas City Post.

He was joint chairman with former President Taft during most of the war of the national war labor board. He was in charge of the employes in the Chicago stockyards arbitration in 1918. He was chief attorney for Thomas J. Mooney twelve years, and, with others, tried to release Mooney on a writ as late as 1933. He served under appointment on a committee in revising the state laws on public utilities, and became chairman of the power commission in 1929.

He was married and the father of seven children.

Morning After

A woman had no patience with a man in the morning when he is suffering from the effects of intemperance the night before," says a writer.

No spectacle is more poignant than that of a husband hanging about in the kitchen, waiting for an opportunity to put his head in the refrigerator.

Help Canners, Buy Canned Peaches

San Francisco.—A nation-wide appeal to members of organized labor to buy more canned peaches to protect hard won conditions for union cannery workers and assist California's great agricultural industry which buys heavily from other industries throughout the nation, thus affecting workers in many lines, was issued today by the California State Federation of Labor.

"The situation is that we have a surplus pack of more than 6,000,000 cases of canned peaches from last year," said Edward D. Vandeleur, secretary of the California Federation.

"The canning peach season is almost here. If the surplus pack cannot be moved, canning operations will be cut and thousands of cannery and other workers will lose employment.

"If the pack is cut the growers must take heavy losses on their crops. Packers say that unless the surplus is moved at once only about one-half of this year's peach chop will be canned. The average yearly return to California peach growers is estimated at $10,000,000. A one-half crop canned means a $5,000,000 cut to the growers alone, to say nothing of what union labor will lose, and the general effect on business.

"We are therefore appealing to all members of organized labor to buy two cans of peaches a week to help dispose of the surplus, or ask for peach pie or preserves in their eating places.

"Remember, we have only organized the workers in the canning industry in the past two years, and after a hard fight succeeded in winning improved conditions and higher wages for them. If heavy unemployment occurs this year it will weaken the structure we have built at a heavy cost.

"Without going into statistics, it is a matter of record that the growers in our agricultural industry buy millions of dollars worth annually of everything from tobacco and the luxuries, to flour and grain, cereal, sugar, rubber, glass, electrical and chemical products, to tin, iron and steel, machinery, automobiles and an endless list of manufactured products.

"The great buying power of the agricultural industry, as well as workers in all lines dependent upon it throughout the nation will be impaired if the surplus peach pack is not sold.

"California canned peaches are cheaper this year than ever before. Research by governmental agencies show they are high in important vitamins. They are usable in a variety of ways, and make particularly delicious pie and other bakery products.

"We, therefore, earnestly appeal to all members of the labor movement to give us their help in this situation in the interest of all workers who might be affected by failure of this year's peach canning crop."

Cause for Alarm

"Well," said the boss, "a little cross that morning to notice that you are punctually now."

"Yes, sir. I've bought—"

"A parrot? What—I told you to get an alarm—"

"Yes; I did. But after or two I got used to it didn't wake me. So I parrot. And now when I fix the alarm clock parrot cage on top of that bird says when the off would wake up King self!"

A MESSAGE TO ORGANIZED LABOR

What YOU BUY and WHERE You Buy

MAKES . . .

The LABOR WORLD

. . . GREAT

BUSINESS MEN who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD are responsible for the recent enlargement of the paper. A larger paper gives new strength and prestige to the labor movement in Chattanooga.

BEING BUSINESS MEN, if their advertising does not bring results which they can trace to THE LABOR WORLD, these advertisers will not continue to use the paper.

THE LABOR WORLD is the only voice of organized labor in Chattanooga. It is YOUR voice—you who read the paper. In helping THE LABOR WORLD to grow YOU are creating an agency of great value to YOU—personally.

PERSONAL PRIDE, personal interest and organization expediency demand that union people buy from business men who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD.

WHEN YOU NEED SOMETHING, first try to buy it from some of the regular advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD. If each of our readers will adopt this policy, and stick to it, we will build one of the nation's greatest labor organs here in Chattanooga—and very quickly . . . and it will help the unions of Chattanooga to secure improvement in conditions affecting our working people.

THE LABOR WORLD is already something to be very proud of, and if readers stick to the cause it will surprise all of you.

LET'S GO! Buy from advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD—and tell them WHY you are buying from them. Tell business men who are not advertising that they must get in THE LABOR WORLD if they want a share of Chattanooga's great union trade.

AND FINALLY, if you hear any news about any of our people, yourself included, call us up and tell us about it. Call us when you have talked to some advertiser, and think we can get him to advertise in THE LABOR WORLD.

BIG ADVANCE IN HEALTH WORK---

WPA Fine Record of Achievement In Aiding Ill Known to Only Few

Washington, D. C.—One of the most valuable works of the works progress administration is scarcely known. At least, it is not known to a considerable number of members of both houses in congress, or to large numbers of editorial writers on conservative daily papers. That is its work for health, particularly child health. Administrator Harrington recently set aside one week in which all engaged in health work in the WPA should report what they had done, and the report of that week is startling.

Twenty-five thousand home visits were made by WPA doctors and nurses, treating more than 25,000, a majority of whom were children. But 2,000 visits were made to needy women requiring maternity care.

More than 6,000 medical and dental clinics were conducted during that week, and treatment and examination given to 145,000. Not quite half of these were children, but 2,000 children and 36,000 adults were treated for venereal diseases. Tests for communicable diseases, such as tuberculosis and syphilis, were made on nearly 70,000 persons, of whom more than 20,000 received immunizing treatments. During the same week, 75,000 school children were given medical and dental examinations by WPA doctors, dentists and nurses.

Fifty thousand needy families in all parts of the country were attended during that week by WPA housekeeping aides. In 10,000 of these cases the helpers were sent to give service in maternity cases, and in 30,000 cases the mothers were sick. There were 90,000 children, and in nearly all cases these would have had no care without this help.

School Children Fed

In more than 7,000 schools throughout the country, WPA women workers that week prepared hot lunches for about 625,000 children. The kids vote by heavy majorities that these are the most satisfactory meals they get. Forty-five thousand pre-school children enrolled in WPA nursery schools got their milk, fruit juice and cod liver oil that week, same as others.

And, dropping the weekly survey, WPA in the three years ending last June built 101 new public hospitals and made extensive repairs and additions to more than 1,400 others. WPA workers, in those same years, built 315 new sewage treatment plants and nearly 10,000 miles of sewers. They drained, ditched and sprayed about 2,000,000 acres of swamps.

Mr. Advertiser

Being not unlike several million other Americans you probably have a hobby.

If you have, you know how interested you always are in anything pertaining to that hobby.

There are approximately twenty thousand men and women in your trade territory whose hobby happens to be organized labor.

It is even more than their hobby . . . it is their very life.

These members of organized labor will be interested in your advertisement if it is presented to them through a medium dealing exclusively with that above mentioned hobby of theirs.

Or . . . putting it in another way . . . why not tell them your story when they're in a very receptive mood.

Mobilization of Unions to Secure Shorter Hours Urged by A. F. of L.

Thirty-Hour Week and Five-Hour Day Emphasized as Necessary to Provide Jobs for Millions for Unemployed

Washington, D. C.—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, in a communication sent to the presidents of the A. F. of L. National and International Unions, stressed the importance of the resolution adopted by the 1938 convention of the American Federation of Labor calling "upon all National and International Unions to exercise every effort possible to bring about a reduction in the number of hours and days worked per week."

"This action of the convention," he said, "was based upon the urgent need of finding and employing a remedy for unemployment."

In urging the practicability of the shorter work week, the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. in its report to the convention revealed that the U. S. Department of Labor reports showed that during 1937 "30 per cent of the membership in printing trades and 15 per cent in building trades were working less than a 40-hour week and 8 per cent of union bakers."

"The 1937 records show striking gains since pre-depression years," the council continued. "Average hours of union building trades were shortened from 43 per week in 1929 to 39 in 1937, and in printing in the same period average union hours were reduced from 44.3 to 39.5. This means an average gain in leisure of four hours for building tradesmen and nearly five hours for printers. Union bakers also reduced their hours by nearly five per week in these eight years.

"The work week of 40 hours or less is so prevalent in building and printing today that less than 4 per cent of union building tradesmen and less than 9 per cent of union printing tradesmen work over 40 hours per week. In 1929, 75 per cent in building and almost 100 per cent in printing worked more than 40 hours.

"Although Labor Department information is lacking to show work hours in other industries, the advances in these trades in the last eight years show what can be accomplished when effort is concentrated on achieving this necessary adjustment."

MEMBERS OF A. F. OF L. TEXTILE UNION IN McCOMB GET $3,922 LOCK-OUT BENEFITS

Atlanta, Ga.—During the first week in March members of Local Textile Union No. 20675, McComb, Miss., were locked out.

This is a local union of the Southern Cotton Textile Federation, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Elmer Estes, secretary-treasurer of the Southern Cotton Textile Federation, came to Atlanta for a conference with George L. Googe, southern representative of the A. F. of L., and laid the case before him.

The McComb textile workers were locked out because they would not accept a wage reduction. The A. F. of L. unions have consistently resisted wage reductions, and the American Federation of Labor has supported its affiliated local unions in resisting wage cuts.

Mr. Googe approved payment of the regular weekly benefits of $7 to each member of the McComb local who is locked out, and upon his recommendation the payments have been made as evidenced by the following telegram from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor:

"George L. Googe, 358 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.

"Check for $3,822.00, six weeks' lockout benefits for members of Local Union No. 20675, McComb, Miss., being forwarded to Ray Pine, financial secretary and bonded officer, today."

Each member of the local union locked out by the employer will receive $42, which is the regular $7 weekly benefits, for the period of six weeks.

Not Ripe

"These eggs are very small," complained the young housewife to her grocer.

"Straight from the farm this morning, Madam," declared the grocer.

"That's the trouble with these farmers," she persisted. "They're so anxious to get their eggs sold they take them off the nest too soon."

ON THE PICKET LINE

Witn American Mfg. Company Strikers 2nd Week!

Whenever a union is forced to strike, the members of that union have to be able to "stand the gaff." There are always people who make life hard for them.

But there are other people, too, who make the going a little bit easier. For instance:

Truck Drivers, who were called in by the company to take out articles, refused to go by the picket lines. When the boys explained to them that they were trying to improve their conditions, the drivers said they just could not let the strikers down. . . .

Break and cakes have been donated to the strikers by the Grocers' Baking company and Erskine Baking company.

When the American Manufacturing company put a classified ad in the papers for "new" employes, many people came down to apply, but when they found out the facts of the case, they didn't want to take some other man's job.

One of the hardest tasks the men have had was to try to explain their cause to a man who came to apply for a job—he was deaf and dumb. The boys say they finally wrote him a note.

Policemen called by the company have remained strictly neutral, and have gained the respect of the boys by a fair attitude.

Colored members of the union have been most loyal . . . wherever there is sickness in a family, they have gone into the home and helped with the work, washing dishes, cleaning and doing everything they can do to aid the cause.

And so it goes—little words of encouragement mean a lot to the boys on the picket line.

A. F. L. Executive Council Authorizes Peace Committee to Continue Negotiations With CIO

Washington.—At its regular spring meeting here the American Federation of Labor Executive Council yesterday authorized its peace committee to continue negotiations with the CIO. In announcing the council's action, President William Green reiterated his plea that the CIO unions "return to the fold."

He said that all of the original CIO unions would be welcomed if "they come back just as they left," but that those operating in fields given to new A. F. of L. unions would have to reach an agreement with their rivals. This applied, he added, to the United Mine Workers of America.

Green said that he did not know when the peace negotiations, inspired by President Roosevelt, would be resumed.

They have been in recess since April 4 because President John L. Lewis, of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, was tied up with bituminous contract negotiations.

The council heard several jurisdictional disputes, including the request of the International Ladies' Handbag, Pocketbook and Novelty Workers' union, with 10,000 members, for jurisdiction over leather and tannery workers now covered by the United States Leather Workers' International union, which has 2,500 members. Further conferences between the groups were ordered.

Green recommended that the International Molders' Union of North America, which has 100,000 members, and the International Brotherhood of Foundry Employes, which has 3,500 members, be merged to avoid jurisdictional disputes. The council ordered further conferences and said that if the matter is not settled by the fall meeting, at Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 7, that it will recommend such action to the A. F. of L. convention next October.

Pittsburgh Loses Low Rent Housing Project

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The greed of contractors for high profits has deprived Pittsburgh, at least temporarily, of the development of the "Bedford Dwelling" slum clearance and low-rent housing project.

The federal law authorizing slum clearance and the construction of low-cost housing for wage-earners compelled to work for small wages imposes upon the United States Housing Authority the necessity of keeping construction costs of public housing projects at the lowest possible level consistent with sound construction.

This level the USHA has ruled was not maintained in the bids submitted to the Housing Authority of the City of Pittsburgh for the construction of the "Bedford Dwellings" project, the lowest bids ranging from approximately 15 per cent to 40 per cent higher than the approved estimates for the job. USHA officials expressed the belief that the Pittsburgh Housing Authority should revise plans and specifications and readvertise for bids.

Strike Ended Saturday As American Mfg. Co. Signs Contract With Union

Preferential Closed Shop, Seniority Rights, Overtime Pay, With an Increase, Is Secured

The strike of Federal Labor Union 21983 ended last Saturday afternoon when the members voted to accept an agreement worked out over many days of negotiation between the company, United States Conciliator Howard, representatives of the Central Labor Union and the Tennessee Federation of Labor. The strike affected 65 employes.

The strike was called on May 10 after failure to come to terms with the company. Before the strike vote was taken an election had been held which gave to the A. F. of L. union the sole collective bargaining agency.

Terms of the contract provide a "preferential" closed shop, seniority rights, and price and one-half for all overtime after 48 hours per week. An increase of 2½ per hour was also secured, with further provision that revision in piece scales must have thirty days negotiation.

In the future, any failure to agree on wages or terms of the contract will be solved by an arbitration clause.

Miller Bros. Department Store Gives Unionists Nice Surprise

Receives Special Stock of New Electric Refrigerators With the IBEW Union Label

Truly, the labor movement is amounting to something when even ice boxes bear the union label, and Miller Bros. should receive a big hand from union patrons of their store.

Grocery Clerks Ask Cooperation for A & P Stores

Also Remind Trade-Unions That Hill Store Nonunion

Stressing the fact that the grocery clerks in the A. & P. stores in Chattanooga carry union cards, members of the Retail Grocery Clerks' union Monday night in Central Body asked that the labor movement buy food supplies from the A. & P. stores, the only places in town where clerks have cards in their pockets.

"We expect soon to have signed agreements with our management," the delegate said. "However, we have already secured benefits from our organizing activity in the A. & P., and it is up to us to show the A. & P. that union people want union grocery clerks to wait on them.

"Some good union people are unthoughtedly patronizing the Hill stores, which has a long record of nonunion policies. In addition to the A. & P. clerks, every meat market in A. & P. stores have the union shop card. Let's tell the Hill company in an effective way that we want union service. Let's also tell A. & P. that we appreciate union service."

Guild Strikes and Pickets News As Charges Are Hurled Fast, Furious

Printers, Pressmen, Mailers, Stereotypers Go to Work to Fulfill Their Own Contracts

An estimated thirty-five members of the Chattanooga Newspaper Guild picketed the Chattanooga News at 6:30 Tuesday morning when a strike declared by the News Guild took effect.

The guild, affiliated with the CIO, has already filed charges with the labor relations board against the News for alleged terroristic policies directed for the purpose of destroying that organization, according to Travis Hedrick, president of the guild.

Members of the Typographical union were faced with a grave problem as they reported to work as usual. The Typos have a contract with the Chattanooga News which does not allow them to come out in sympathetic strikes. Although the printers viewed with disfavor the idea of going across the picket line, their contract is such that had they refused to go to work their contract would have been violated, and the International Typographical union would not have been able to protect them in case of discharge.

After several conferences with the strike committee, the pickets moved from the entrance and the printers walked in.

Several conferences have been held between the News and the guild each day but no settlement has been made yet.

Nonunion Breads and Cakes Trying to "Edge in" on Chattanooga's Territory

Products Being Shipped in From Memphis, Nashville, Birmingham and Cleveland, Tenn.

Bakers' Local 25 is calling attention to trades unionists that at present there is an attempt being made to re-establish nonunion bakery products in Chattanooga. Some stores have put in stock a nonunion bread called "Perfection," made in Nashville, while there is a nonunion "Cream Crust" coming in from Cleveland, Tenn.

Here are the following nonunion pies and cakes that are slipping in: Dorst (Atlanta), Holsum (Nashville), Grennens (Memphis), Hostess (Memphis), Wards (Birmingham CIO), Ambrosa (Birmingham). Travis pies are nonunion made in Chattanooga.

There are several good brands of pies and cakes made in Chattanooga that bear the union label. Unionists are asked not to buy any bakery products not bearing the label.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL CHATTANOOGA

FRIDAY, MAY 26, 1939

Heroes of Industry

At its just held annual meeting, the Joseph A. Holmes Safety Association, named for the first Director of the United States Bureau of Mines, gave 11 medals and many certificates of honor to persons whom it justly calls heroes of industry. For example:

One medal went to Oliver Busby of Wylam, Ala., for saving the life of Coleman Burrell. Burrell was smashed up by some runaway cars in a coal mine of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co., and was pinned under the cars and bleeding to death. Busby crawled under the car, stopped the bleeding, and lay there directing the resetting of mine timbers knocked out in the crash. Not until they were in place would he let his fellow workers come to him.

This is one of eight. "Heroes of industry" are not scarce.

A Civil Service Congress

Congressman Robert Ramspeck of Georgia is going to try to put Congress under the civil service act. Tables are being compiled now showing how much, if the regular civil service retirement rates were applied, a Congressman would be eligible to draw at the end of one or more terms.

It probably won't pass this session; but sooner or later, it may. This country was shrewd enough to start paying salaries to its congressmen, small salaries. England at that time did not pay her members of Parliament—that is, not directly. Not long before our Revolution, a British minister complained that he was not kept advised as to what members were ':gratified," and that there was much resentment at the favoritism.

Ramspeck's bill is not a freak. Some day, we probably will have it.

Co-operative Medical Treatment

The Associated Hospital Service of Philadelphia has ended its first six months of life with 112,530 members. Known as the "3 cents a day" plan, it guarantees its members hospital treatment; and though the news item did not give details, 3 cents a day suggests $1 a month as the fee.

In six months the society has sent 2,405 persons to hospital. It circularized 1,000 of them as to their experience, and 80 per cent of those who replied said that they saved money. Since 92 per cent of the members are industrial workers and 6 per cent among public employes, the saving was appreciated.

While the account leaves out many details one would like, the mere number of members secured in so short a time proves one thing. The American people have come to be deeply interested in proper medical treatment at rasonable cost. The American Medical Association may yell all it wishes, but co-operative medical treatment is coming.

Word for a Good Minimum Wage

Mr. Fishel, counsel for the National Work Shirt Manufacturers' Association, in arguing on the proper wage to fix for shirtmakers, used the word "oligopoly." He said it was neither monopoly nor cut-throat competition. A minimum wage in shirtmaking, he said, would put some shirtmakers out of business—and ought to—in which a number of other industries would agree. He said:

"The difference between 'monopoly' and 'oligopoly' is apparent in the terms themselves. While monopoly under the present state of the law is of course illegal, as well as undesirable, oligopoly is certainly cut-throat competition due to the fact that many concerns in these particular industries who are close to bankruptcy, pour their production into the market at any prices regardless of cost."

The difference between "oligopoly," as Fishel defined it, and an industrial oligarchy which treats its workers passably well without the influence of unions, is not easy to see. But it is something to have a business association representative admit that a rise in minimium wages would help much to drive chiselers out of business.

Traffic Deaths Drop

Chicago.—March showed a 12 per cent. reduction in traffic fatalities from the same month last year, the National Safety council reports.

March thus became the seventeenth straight month to show fewer traffic deaths than the same month of the year before.

The cumulative saving in lives in these seventeen months was 9,280, the council's figures show. The period of unbroken improvement—longest in the country's history—began in November, 1937.

In the first quarter of 1939 a 12 per cent. drop in traffic fatalities brought a saving of 830 lives. Should the same percentage decrease prevail throughout the year, the 1939 fatality toll would be 2,800 below last year.

Wyoming led the states with a 55 per cent. cut in traffic deaths from last year. North Dakota and Nevada had only half as many deaths in the first quarter of 1939 as in the same period of 1938.

Pennsylvania saved the most lives in the three months—155. Texas and New York were second with ninety-two lives saved in each state.

Commercial Telegraphers Union Wins More Pay, Shorter Hours in Pacts With Two Big News Services

New York City.—Agreements with the Associated Press and the United Press were reached by the Commercial Telegraphers' union which will add approximately $125,000 annually to the costs of telegraph employment, Frank B. Powers, international president of the CTU, announced here.

The Associated Press agreed to a job security clause which guarantees employment for 5 per cent of the employes during the first year of a two-year agreement. A 40-hour, five-day week is provided for, with a union shop covering about 90 per cent of employes immediately and 100 per cent at the end of the second year. Wage increases of $1,000 a week were given to lower paid employes.

Hours in the United Press will be 37½ during a five-day week at the end of six months. Larger bureaus will be 38¾ hours in five days for the first six months.

Strike Was Threatened.

An arbitration award handed down by David A. Morse, former attorney for the New York regional office of the national labor relations board, for a 40-hour week was rejected by a vote of 128 to 11. Subsequent negotiations participated in by Commissioner Aaron Horvitz, of the department of labor, failed to adjust matters. A strike vote was taken and from May 1 until the agreement was reached, the United Press was threatened with the first strike in 35 years of continuous relationship with the CTU.

U. P. Hours Down, Wages Up.

During the last two years, hours have been reduced from 45 to 37½ in the United Press, and wages have been increased an average of $7.50 per week.

The Associated Press agreement was first entered into on Jan. 10, 1937, after many years of anti-union policy.

Among the many evidences of the world's so-called peace is President Roosevelt's request to congress to make immediately available $185,440,000 for the new army air corps expansion program.

N. Y. HOTEL EMPLOYES FAVOR A. F. L. UNIONS

Workers Employed by Fashionable 40-Story Essex House Ballot Almost Unanimously for New York Hotel Trades Council as Sole Collective Bargaining Agent.

New York, N. Y.—Employes of the 1,134-room 40-story Essex House, 160 Central Park South, one of the city's most fashionable hotels, voted to designate the New York Hotel Trades council, composed of five A. F. of L. local unions, as their sole collective bargaining agent. The vote was 268 to 17. In all 301 workers voted of whom four were challenged by the management. Eleven ballots were voided because incorrectly marked and one was blank.

The election was held under the supervision of the New York State Labor Relations Board at their offices at 250 West 57th street.

Of the approximately 500 workers employed at the Essex House, 381 were eligible to vote in the elections. These included waiters, waitresses, cooks, chambermaids, bellboys, elevator operators, kitchen workers and housemen. Excluded from the voting were executives and clearical employes.

Wages Increased.

Jay Rubin, president of the New York Hotel Trades council, announced that the management of the Essex House would be asked immediately to sign the union contract reached by the Hotel Association of New York City and the council last January and to which several dozen hotels in the past few weeks have become signatories.

This contract provides, among other things, for a $1 a week increase for the workers immediately, another $1 a week beginning July 15 next, union recognition, minimum wage scales, the union shop, time and a half for overtime and free special uniforms.

Among the hotels that have signed the agreement are the St. Regis, the Commodore, the Roosevelt, the Biltmore, the New Yorker, the Pennsylvania and the McAlpin.

According to the union present pay levels of the Essex House are lower than even prevailing wages for similar establishments. In support of this A. Lopez, organizer for the council, declared that in some cases waiters received as low as $7.50 a week, chambermaids $11.88, waitresses $5.91 and elevator operators $14.40. He explained that raising the wages of some of the lowest paid employes up to the minimum in many cases meant that they would receive much more than the $2 a week general increase.

Resolution

Whereas, the Honorable Mayor Bass has asked the people of this City their views on an Automobile City Tax, and

Whereas, the automobile has been taxed to the point that Tennessee has the highest Gas Tax in the Nation, and statistics show that an automobile owner pays an average of $120.00 per year for the privilege of owning a car and driving it, and

Whereas, we believe a more equitable form of taxation can be found than the one suggested by the Mayor, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Chattanooga Building and Construction Trades' Department, in regular session May 10, 1939, go on record as condemning the proposed plan and urge a City Tax Assessor to look after the City's interest, be employed and instructed to look into those things on which the City is losing many Thousands of Dollars; be it further

Resolved, That we favor the alleviation of the deplorable conditions which exist and cause the Relief Problem now existing in the City, and that copies of this Resolution be sent to the Mayor and Commissioners, the Labor World and the Press.

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT ON TRAIL OF ALLEGED GASOLINE MONOPOLY

Washington, D. C.—The Department of Justice is about to bring before a federal grand jury on the Pacific coast facts which seem to show a strong and grasping monopoly in the marketing of petroleum products in those states.

In April, 1936, retail prices of gasoline rose from 4 to 4½ cents a gallon. They have been raised, not lowered, since. A few companies produce 84 per cent and distribute 85 per cent of the gasoline of the Pacific states. The Department of Justice is looking toward a prosecution for violation of the anti-trust laws.

Criticism.

It is easy enough to pick out flaws,
In the work that others have done;
To point out errors that others have made
When your own task you haven't begun.

It's easy enough to fuss and find fault
When others are doing their best;
To sneer at the little they have achieved
When you have done nothing but rest.

It's easy enough to cavil and carp,
To criticize, scoff and deride;
For few of us have done perfect work,
No matter how hard we have tried.

It is easy enough not to speak of the best,
And to dwell all the time on the worst;
And perhaps it is proper sometimes to find fault,
But be sure that you've done something first.

Should have been with us on our trip to North Carolina over the week-end—had a lovely time, if you'd care to believe a liar. Those mountains don't have any more fascination for us than does our own mass of rocks. 'Tis true that we had much rather wake in the a.m. and look up at our own Lookout than to see those hills staring us in the face. Too, they have no traffic regulations there — every one goes just like they have just met a bear, or that the whole town is afire. They never heed stop streets for they have none. If you are hit at a cross street intersection then you are just hit. The food is terrible. We ordered creamed potatoes twice and both times we were very nicely served with green beans (that's one vegetable we just can't eat). This all happened at one meal. The only thing we enjoyed about our trip were the papooses swinging to their mothers' backs as we came through the Indian reservation coming home. Gimme our own Tennessee—Chattanooga — and we will stay home.

To be a member of organized labor is in itself something to be proud of and being a union man or woman is not only a privilege, but a duty and honor. Simply belonging to a local doesn't signify you are a unionist, it takes a lot of real thinking, a lot of study and above all a lot of doing. If all the members of organized labor were real honest union men and women then the fight for decent wages, shorter hours and conditions would be over. Far too many of our members believe that all they need to do is pay their dues, wear a button and carry a card.

$13, 7-Hour Day Asked By D. of C. Carpenters

Threatened Strike Would Affect Two Thousand Union Members. Old Contract Expired May 1.

Washington, D. C.—William J. Kelley of Indianapolis, international officer of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, arrived here to intervene in the threatened strike of 2,000 union carpenters as a persuasive measure to induce the members of the Master Builders' Association to grant the union's demand for a $13 daily wage and a seven-hour day. The carpenters now get $12 a day and work eight hours.

The strike vote climaxed negotiations extending over three months for a contract replacing the one which expired May 1. The vote in the Carpenters' District Council was practically unanimous for the suspension of work.

Frank J. Sheehan, secretary of the Master Builders' Association, said his group "stood pat" in refusing to accede to the union's demand.

60,000 MORE AIRCRAFT WORKERS TO BE NEEDED

Washington, D. C.—Sixty thousand skilled workers in the aircraft industry in adidtion to the 40,000 already employed will be required to meet the expanded military and naval program of the Government, according to the report of President Roosevelt's interdepartmental committee on mechanics' training for that industrial group.

WISDOM

I may err in my measures, but never shall deflect from the intention to fortify the public liberty by every possible means, and to put it out of the power of the few to riot on the labor of many. —Thomas Jefferson.

Federal Court Upholds NLRB Right To Invalidate Contracts Between Employer and Company Union

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Federal Circuit Court of the Third District has upheld, by a unanimous decision the right of the National Labor Relations Board to invalidate a labor contract between the employer and a company-dominated union.

The Stackpole Carbon Company, making carbon products and radio parts, had a contract with a "Stackpole Employes' Association" which provided, among other things, for the "open shop." This was used to block the organization of the plant by the United Electrical and Radio Workers, a C. I. O. organization. When the resulting strike came in March, 1937, the company fired and blacklisted 131 union men, it is charged.

Contract Held Tricky.

The N. L. R. B., after hearings, declared that the company was engaging in unfair labor practices, and ordered it to reinstate with full seniority rights and compensation for loss of pay the men discharged. The company took the case to the Circuit Court. Judge John Biggs, Jr., who wrote the decision of the court, declared that the contract was an unfair labor practice and also a tricky one.

"We state in this connection," said Judge Biggs, "that in our opinion the respondent (the company) rushed to the contract with the association to the end that it might avoid the necessity of negotiations with its employes except through a union which it dominated."

No Evidence of Violence.

The court also dismissed the arguments of the company that the strikers had forfeited their rights by violence. Judge Biggs said, in substance, that the only "violence" of which any evidence was offered was a few fist fights.

The company relied heavily on the Consolidated Edison case. The circuit court held that this did not apply. In the Edison case the contract which the N. L. R. B. invalidated was with an A. F. of L. union, and proof was lacking that this union was dominated by the company. The Stackpole company paid the expenses of its union.

Greenn Asks Palestine "Open Door" Maintained

Washington, D. C.—In an appeal to Great Britain to maintain the open door for Jewish immigration into Palestine, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, said that Palestine is the "one place yet remaining where Jewish people can live their normal lives free from racial hate and persecution." Speaking in behalf of the A. F. of L. Executive Council, he asked the British government to reaffirm the Balfour Declaration for Palestine.

Wagner Defends Labor Act, But Approves One Change Proposed by A. F. of L.

Washington, D. C. — Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, author of the National Labor Relations Act, defended the act before the House labor committee, and declared that "to dull this instrument would be an act of unreason, to discard it would be an act of folly."

He attacked bills proposed by Reps. Clare Hoffman and C. Arthur Anderson which would radically change the act to separate the administrative and quasi-judicial functions of the National Labor Relations Board.

Under the two House proposals, Wagner asserted, "The employer would be entirely free to meet or talk to the strikers' representatives, and to destroy their organization by methods of coercion and intimidation."

Asks Close Study of Proposals

He said that he believed employers "certainly should have the right to petition an election," and that nothing in the current law denied this privilege. This, he said, arose from a ruling of the labor board.

The senator said the amendments proposed "by labor groups and by labor's friends deserve the most careful consideration," but warned that while some compliants against the law were valid, "many of those who are indicting the labor act can lay no claims to having been the friends of labor." He asked that "every worker who wants to remain free . . . look long and searchingly at each proposal."

He asked "every employer who wants to remain at peace" to do the same.

For One A. F. of L. Amendment

Wagner said he was prepared to endorse only one of the A. F. of L. amendments—to give employers the right to petition an election.

He made the statement in answer to questions by Rep. Bruce Barton. Wagner said it "may be possible to clear up the unit rule better than it is now," regarding the size of bargaining units, but said that to restrict the labor board to prescribing the unit of collective bargaining to a restricted area might require a multiplicity of contracts "where a union makes a contract with a group of employers."

Ludlow Urges War Vote As Move to Broaden Democratic Processes

Washington, D. C.—Denouncing the present war-declaring mechanism as "autocratic," Rep. Louis Ludlow of Indiana appealed for approval of a constitutional amendment requiring a national referendum on participation in a foreign war.

Ludlow, testifying before a Senate judiciary subcommittee, asserted that "the existing war-making mechanism is grossly defective in that it centralizes too much power in Congress and the White House.

"The war referendum amendment would broaden the democratic processes so that the American citizen would have the right to vote not only on domestic matters, but on the international questions of war or peace, which affects him more vitally and closely than any domestic question that could possibly be imagined," the author of the war referendum plan asserted.

ILLINOIS LABOR WINS FIGHT AGAINST MANAGER FORM OF MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT

Chicago.—Labor in Illinois was again triumphant in the State Legislature when the enacting clause in the bill providing for a referendum on the city manager form of government in cities with a population of over 10,000, Chicago excepted, was voted out by the House of Representatives.

The amendment to strike the enacting clause from the bill was adopted by a vote of 69 to 60 immediately after a proposal to table it lost by several votes. Chicago was excepted from the provisions of the bill before the vote was taken. By moving for a reconsideration of the bill, then moving that such reconsideration be tabled, opponents of the bill made sure it was dead for this session, as House rules permit only one reconsideration of a vote.

Enactment of the bill was opposed by spokesmen of organized labor at hearings before the municipalities committee of the House. The city manager form of government was branded as "undemocratic and un-American," as it would take the right to vote on the chief executive of a city from the people and vest a council of nine, elected at large, with the power of selection. Heading the opposition spokesmen at the hearings were Charles F. Wills, chairman of the committee for democratic city government, established by the Chicago Federation of Labor; Joseph D. Keenan, secretary of the Chicago federation; Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer, and Reuben G. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor.

Auto Workers Are Voting On A. F. of L. Affiliation

Washington, D. C.—Homer Martin, head of the United Automobile Workers of America, announced here that the members of his organization were voting in a referendum on the question of re-affiliating with the American Federation of Labor. The Martin group recently withdrew from the C. I. O.

STEEL GOES ABROAD

Washington.—Less than 5 per cent of the manganese consumed by American steel mills in making high grade steel is mined in the United States, although bureau of mines' survey show that large deposits exist in at least twenty states. Manganese imports last year totaled 911,922 tons, of which 122,937 tons were from the only nearby source, Cuba.

DRIVE TO STOP USE OF DONNELLEY PRODUCT IN PUBLIC SCHOOL CLASSES

The organization committee of the Chicago Trades Unions, in charge of the nation-wide campaign against the printing products of the anti-union Donnelley enterprises announces that many high schools and other institutions of learning are using the Donnelley periodical Time in conjunction with studies in current history. In all such cases the committee urges organized labor to interview the school authorities and try to induce them to stop the use of that periodical until such time as it is produced under union conditions.

In a number of places the unions have succeeded in inducing the schools to discontinue the use of Time. A particularly good job wos done in Hudson, N. Y., where, after some agitation against the magazine, it was discontinued as an adjunct to the material used in classes.

Many trade union leaders, interested in education work, have pointed out that the material printed in Time is unsatisfactory because misleading. A prominent San Francisco labor official observed in a letter to the Chicago committee that "some instructors are too mentally lazy to attempt to analyzie current news and relate it to history in the making, so they resort to the 'canned wisdom' that fills the pages of the anti-union periodicals that roll off the Donnelley presses. Furthermore, the news is interpreted in such a cynical and flippant way that students are bound to become sceptical of democratic institutions and look with favor upon Fascist or other totalitarian forms of government."

No responsible school board would dare indorse such a publication for use in public schools, but certain principles and heads of departments in schools have been induced to use that undesirable publication. The organization committee of the Chicago Printing Trades Unions has issued a special appeal to all labor to combat the use of that publication in all schools and suggests that parents urge their children to refuse to participate in classes that use Time as a text. In case some schools refuse to discontinue the use of Time it is necessary to launch a campaign to remove department heads responsible for the continued use of that periodical. Textbooks and other material used in connection with classes should be of unquestioned educational value and not propaganda organs for big business.

The Chicago committee also states that Mr. N. L. Wallace, production manager for Time, Inc., is sending circular letters containing slanders against the printing trades unions to people who have refused to renew their subscriptions to Time or Life.

Mr. Wallace tries to create the impression that the campaign against the Donnelley enterprises has resolved itself into a campaign merely against Time, Inc. Anyone who has participated in the anti-Donnelley campaign knows that the greatest stress is laid upon that part of the drive that has to do with diverting telephone directories from the Donnelley concern to union printing offices. They know furthermore that equally as much emphasis is placed upon the Sears & Roebuck catalogue and Encyclopedia Britannica, which has been owned outright by Sears since 1927.

With an air of innocence Mr. Wallace tries to mislead his former subscribers by telling them that: "Time, Inc., is being accused of anti-labor activities, even though Time, Inc., employs none of the typographers, pressmen or affiliated crafts." The fact is that Time, Inc., pays millions of dollars yearly to the anti-union Donnelley concern for the printing of Time and Life when there are scores of union printing offices operating under American conditions that can do the jobs better and at no greater cost.

Time, Inc., is very careful not to reveal the further fact that Mr. Wallace's office as well as all Chicago offices of Time, Inc., are in the Donnelley building—and it is not an office building, either, but special arrangements are made for the convenience of Time and Life. That fact alone proves that the connection between Time, Inc., and the Donnelley outfit is much more than a mere arrangement between publisher and printer. Behind the attacks made against the unions by Time, Inc., is the sinister Donnelley management carrying out, as usual, its traditional policy of enmity toward all labor. Hence it is not difficult for every union man and woman and every friend of labor and defender of American standards of life and work to understand that the campaign against Time and Life is an integral part of the drive against Donnelley and the whole open shop crew of the Middle West.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

House committee investigating tion has been hearing charges of the Works Progress Administra- Communist influence in the WPA writers' projects, particularly in New York City.

The charges may not all be well founded. Some quite likely are exaggerated.

Allegations of Communist hell-raising in the writers' projects are not new. They have been heard for years.

Eugene Lyons, who knows his Communists, on their native Russian heath as well as in this country, described their activities last year in the New Leader of New York.

He reported that hell-raising was one of the chief interests of WPA Communist "writers."

Testimony before the House investigators tends to support Lyons' charges.

The Reds' tactics kept the writers' projects and some other WPA projects in an uproar.

Some branches have actually been under Communist domination, enforced by everything from persuasion to brutal physical violence.

Men and women on the WPA rolls desirous of doing their work in an efficient manner were disgusted. They could do little against the gangster-like tactics of the Reds, however.

Constant turmoil, whenever it suited the Reds' purpose, was their policy. Their aim was promotion of the particular brand of Communism espoused by Joe Stalin and his Moscow pals.

Communism and its twin, Nazism, are in for some jolts in Mexico, Central and South America.

The jolts will be administered by the Pan-American Federation of Labor, plans for whose reorganization have just been made at meetings in Washington.

The Federation has been inactive for some years. The times now call for its revival and it has risen to the occasion.

Big danger spot for democratic procedure, to which the federation is committeed, is Mexico. Nazi propaganda chiefs are pushing their gospel there and hope for great things from their drive.

Pan-American Federation of Labor will help aggressively in the fight of Mexican democratic elements to expose and stop the Nazis.

Edward F. McGrady has seen a lot of industrial America.

When he says no task before the nation is more important than establishing peace, fair dealing and order in industry, he is talking about a subject on which he is authority.

McGrady asked the U. S. Conference of Mayors to create machinery to prevent strikes and curtail the duration of stoppages of work.

To make this machinery effective, strong organization of labor is necessary, a fact which is nowadays recognized by most city executives.

Industrial peace is promoted by well disciplined, well led labor unions.

Then labor is in the best position to present and win its case without any stoppages of work, the disadvantages of which labor is perfectly well aware.

Cleveland Labor Rallies To Drug Store Strikers

Cleveland.—The Cleveland Federation of Labor has taken complete control of the seven-weeks-old strike in chain drug stores. Strike headquarters have been moved to federation headquarters. The 190 affiliated unions have been called on for pickets to make a twenty-four-hour-a-day picket of the three big chains, Weinberger, Marshall and Standard, which have no less than 119 stores in this community.

Thomas A. Lenehan, speaking for the federation, said:

"We're taking this action because we're going to win this strike. Ordinarily, the Pharmacists' union, Local No. 1042, would be in charge. However, this union is young, and the strike is too important to be lost. The Cleveland Federation of Labor intends to see that it is not lost."

Stores Use Labor Spies

The strike was called because the chain stores refused to renew two successive one-year contracts with the Pharmacists' union recognizing that union as bargaining agent and pledging the union shop. They claim that the pharmacists are mostly managers and assistant managers, and, therefore, that they cannot come under collective bargaining.

A perfectly clear scheme to prepare for the whittling of wages.

All the stores of the three drug store chains have been using labor spies. Part of these have been drawn from the nationally notorious Pinkerton agency, and part from a more local but equally anti-union firm known as Willmark. These spies go after certain clerks, trying to "get something" that will justify or at least excuse discharge.

Hours Cut, Pay Raised

In the brief season of unionism, hours have been cut from sixty-five and seventy-five per week to a top of fifty-eight. Wages have been raised, not nearly as much as they should be. The whole federation is determined that these gains shall not be lost.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

The fourth birthday celebration of the Label League was a grand success. There was a big crowd—one union man said he saw people there he hadn't seen in eighteen years.

The dinner was excellent—broiled steaks, yum, yum!

The floor show and skits were enjoyed by all the guests. Roy Reynolds announced the numbers and did beautifully until right at the last when he said: "The dancing will begin as soon as the terbles are clanned away." We think Roy must have meant "tables cleared."

Vic and Paula Hallmark brought their oldest daughter with them. Anita finishes the ninth grade this year and, in addition to being the president of her class, was chosen for "Mis North Chattanooga," the "prettiest girl" and the "most modest" . . . and she deserves every one of them. Vic says that she is like her daddy, but she looks like Paula to me.

Mrs. White Abel and Guy Aycock won the prize for the best dancing . . . it was a waltz. Runners-up were Nancy and Stanton Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Freeman.

Highlight of the evening . . . when the speaker paid tribute to Elmer "Bing" Crosby as a loyal union man and an active booster of union-labeled merchandise. Nobody deserves more honorable mention than does Mr. Crosby.

Commissioners Bob Cooke and T. H. McMillan were among the city officials present at the banquet.

Clifford Odets, who has written several successful plays, arrived in town and came down to dance awhile. He is a lifetime member of the American Federation of Actors.

Mr. and Mrs. Powers, of Florence, Ala., were visiting the Freemans and took time off to come to the dance. Mr. Powers is a member of the Electrical Workers in Florence and Mrs. Powers is active in the Label League of the tri-cities.

Met a lot of the Chattanooga union people that I hadn't known before. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Nichols (Machinists union) and Mr. and Mrs. Reich, of the Brewery Workers.

Yessir, it was a good party and Mrs. R. C. Reynolds and her committee deserve a lot of praise. Can't the Label League have two birthdays every year?

No Strikebreaking for Conscripts

London.—War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha removed one of the Labor party's big objections to the British conscription bill when he announced in the House of Commons that there is no possibility of conscripts being used as strikebreakers.

He said the government would give each conscript a written statement he would not be obliged to come to the aid of civil authorities during his service.

The Commons by a vote of 218 to 110 approved a vital clause in the bill empowering the government to call up the conscripts. It also agreed to give them 14 instead of 10 days' notice before reporting for service.

The WPA, dealing with millions of distressed people under anything but ideal conditions, gets a clean bill of health from practically all the mayors in the United States, and all the societies which come in close contact with WPA work.

Labor Turns Tables on Boss . . .

Retail Clerks, Enjoined, In Turn Enjoin Employer

Chicago.—The court injunction is an old weapon, used frequently by anti-union employes. The management of Blue Star Auto Stores, Inc., auto parts dealers, was under the impression that it could be used to its advantage when it applied for an injunction to prevent Appliance and Furniture Salesmen's union, Local No. 164, Retail Clerks' International Protective association, from organizing clerks employed in its 20 stores in Chicago and vicinity; but it was much surprised when labor turned the tables and used the injunction weapon against the firm.

The company contended, before Judge Donald S. McKinlay, of the superior court, that union officials were coercing its clerks into joining the union.

Armed with an affidavit from 34 clerks charging that the company had compelled them to sign a resolution not to join the union, Daniel D. Carmell, the union's attorney, countered with an application for an injunction against the firm.

Both injunctions were granted.

M. F. Darling, head of the local union, asserted that the injunction was not justified because the company's charges were untrue. He pointed out that the court's decision will not affect the union as it does not need to coerce clerks into joining. A good portion of the clerks are already union members; and there is no reason for it as they receive only $18 for 7[illegible] hours of work per week and the union's scale is $25 for a 48-hour week.

Following issuance of the injunction against the Blue Star Stores, the union pushed plans to organize the clerks 100 per cent.

FLINT GLASS WORKERS DESIGN NEW BADGE

Washington, D. C.—President M. J. Gillooly of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union of North America, an affiliate of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, has designed a unique badge for the coming convention of his international union. On the bar of the badge are the words Cincinnati, Ohio, 1939. A red, white and blue ribbon carries the initials of the A. F. G. W. U. N. A. and through the ribbon is fastened the union label of the Flint Glass Workers' Union in the form of a lapel button, which may be worn after the convention. Over their emblem, on the button, are the words, "Buy American." It goes without saying that the badge bears the union label.

YOUR DOLLAR

YOUR DOLLAR will be a regular monthly feature. The facts and opinions given are beased on the monthly reports of Consumers' Union, 55 Vandam Street, New York City, a nonprofit membership organization whose object is to safeguard buyers by testing and reporting on consumer goods. Note especially the information on labor conditions under which products are manufactured.

Candy Bars

Candy is all right in its place, but it is far from being the desirable food manufacturers claim. It's likely to be fattening (a 5c Oh Henry! bar contains as many calories as a pound of potatoes), it kills the appetite for other foods, it is sometimes contaminated, and it contains no food elements which are not already part of a normal diet.

In its May issue, Consumers Union rates 26 brands of milk chocolate, sweet chocolate, chocolate-nut and miscellaneous candy bars as to contents, quality and number of calories in each bar. All brands tested except two were acceptable.

Union-Made Candy Is the Safest

The Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Union, with a membership of about one-quarter of the 50,000 workers in the candy industry, protects its own members and the public by: (1) insisting that union bakery and confectionery establishments comply with the state and city sanitary codes; (2) making a satisfactory health examination a prerequisite for membership; and (3) providing sick benefits and medical care so that no union member needs to work when he is ill.

The following brands tested by Consumers Union are union-made: Baker's Milk Chocolate, Baffle Bar, Coxon Brazil Nut, Euclid's Peanut Cluster, Love Nest, Rough Top, Matzger's Chocolate Double-Mints, Rockwood's Sweet Vanilla Chocolate and Rockwood's Vanilla Chocolate with Fruit and Nuts. The union is now negotiating a closed shop with the Hershey Chocolate Corporation.

Electric Irons

Forty-five fires a day, it has been estimated, start because housewives forget to disconnect electric irons. And most of the danger comes from irons of the old, non-automatic type, which get hot enough to burn through the protective pad or stand and set the ironing board on fire. Since it is possible to avoid the risk and obtain a more convenient iron, with a thermostat, for as low a price as $3.45, Consumers Union recommends only the automatic type.

Eighteen brands were tested for construction, insulation, efficiency and performance at varying ironing speeds. Only irons taking 1,000 watts were able to maintain their temperatures while doing heavy ironing, but 700 watt irons were satisfactory for light work.

The following brands were best buys: Sears' Heatmaster, Cat. No. 756, 700 watts, $3.45; "Co-Op" De-Luxe Automatic No. 424, 1,000 watts, $6.25; Sunbeam Ironmaster, Cat. No. A-4, 1,000 watts, $8.95; Ward's Supreme Quality, Cat. No. 4980, 1,000 watts, $6.45.

Consumers' Union at New York World's Fair

In an endeavor to reach millions of consumers with its vital information on consumer goods and services, Consumers' Union has set up a provocative and exciting exhibit at the New York World's Fair.

Located in the Consumer Interests Building adjoining the Theme Center of the fair, Consumers' Union's exhibit drives home the need for education against dangerous foods, drugs and cosmetics and for quality comparisons of competing brands of goods.

Five important subjects dominate the CU exhibit. These are: Tires, cosmetics, household appliances, trichinosis and nosedrops. Readers of Your Dollar have seen something of CU's comparisons of competing brands of the first three items, but few know about CU's expose of the dangers of mineral oil nosedrops, which can cause pneumonia in children, and the forthcoming articles on trichinosis in pork—a serious public health hazard. To the readers of Your Dollar CU extends a hearty invitation to visit CU's exhibit at the New York World's Fair.

Philadelphia Bakers Win Unique Agreement

Contract Negotiated by A. F. of L. Affiliate Provides for Half Pay Until New Plant Opens.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A unique contract was finalized here ending the strike of Cookie, Cracker and Biscuit Workers' Union, No. 18860, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, against J. S. Ivins Sons, Inc., bakers.

Under terms of the contract, the company will pay unemployed members of the union a total of $1,100 weekly—equivalent to half their wages when employed—from September 2 until October 21, when the company expects to open its new plant, now under construction.

The company will, in the meantime, reopen its old plant, employing some union members immediately. Those not employed will draw unemployment compensation until September 2, when company payments to the union will begin.

The contract calls for eventual re-employment of all the 156 who have been on strike since April 17, at the wage scale provided for in the old contract.

The agreement was signed by Hugh Gilhaus, president of the company, and James J. Knoud, A. F. of L. representative.

The strike started when the company refused to grant higher wages, on the old contract's expiration in April.

Florida Unions to Continue Fight For State Department of Labor, Blocked by Governor's Veto

Tallahassee, Fla.—Florida will probably have to wait two more years for a much needed reform, that of establishment of a department of labor. After a bill, sponsored by the Federation of Labor had passed the Senate by unanimous vote and the House by the almost equally impressive support of 66 to 11, Governor Cone registered a veto upon the rather remarkable grounds that the state did not need such an institution inasmuch as it is still distinctly agricultural rather than industrial and that such a specialized department was out of tune with modern governmental trends.

These views were expressed by Governor Cone in interviews with President Charles E. Silva of the State Federation, representatives of the Transportation Brotherhoods, members of the Senate and House, in the interval between the passage of the bill and the veto.

In view of the fact that the position taken by the governor would appear to be that of opposition to any department of labor, hopes appear slim of formulating any measure which would not also be met with a veto. However, President Silva is consulting with sympathetic members of the Legislature with the hope of having another bill introduced.

In the meantime the widespread expressions of gratification which poured into Tallahassee following the action of the Legislature have been replaced with equally emphatic expressions of disapproval and regret.

It is felt that, whatever may be the fate of a department of labor bill under this administration, the smashing support given by both houses is assurance of success in the next Legislature.

In the meantime President Silva and his assistants, heartened by this evidence of labor's legislative strength and the sympathetic attitude of the present Legislature, are proceeding vigorously with the remainder of the legislative program of the State Federation, in which is included a labor relations act, an anti-injunction law and the establishment of various industrial codes.

God said, "Let us make man in our image." Man said, "Let us make God in our image."—Douglas Jerrold.

Mr. Toastmaster, friends, and nton Smith:

Tonight, I wish that I might an orator endowed with a vo- ulary appropriate to convey to the strength of a mighty cur- t, the gorgeous coloring of a set over Lookout mountain and enchanting aroma of the lovely eysuckle.

This background would, indeed, a fitting setting for the ous task that is my privilege perform.

Just as the elements of nature potential powers in life, in manner a name can convey same vital power. Take, for ance, the common name TH. Alone, it has little sig- ance, but add to it STANTON hen you have added color and tance and worth. Immediately name represents a strong per- lity and slips away from the and file of a catalogue of hs to take its legitimate place g leaders of men.

This particular Stanton E. h is a leader. His magnetic onality first displayed itself rawing together the teachers Hamilton county and Chatta- a in a concerted effort to raise educational standards of this . In winning the confidence his fellow-workers, he suc- ed in winning the respect and iration of the progressive civic ers of this area.

s a teacher, Stanton E. Smith surpassed in his ability to de- democratic ideals. His teach- has not been confined to the l room alone, but in every ering of tradesmen he has a wise dispenser of knowl- and truth.

The forceful and admirable ities of leadership that Stanton E. Smith possesses could alone put him above the rank and file of the average man, but it is his genuine friendliness and sympathetic interest in every man that makes him a man admired among men.

"And so, tonight, Stanton, your friends, valuing your untiring efforts, your dauntless courage, your faithfulness, your tactful guidance and your sincere friendship, wish you to accept this small token of our appreciation for you."

BARBECUE PLANS FOR CONVENTION MONDAY, JUNE 5

The Labor World is informed by Mr. William J. Gerst, of the Nashville Gerst Brewing company, that on Monday, June 5, his company will entertain the delegates and visitors of the convention. His entertainment will be in the form of a real southern barbecue.

And if the barbecue is as good as that 100 per cent union-made Gerst beer, everybody will have a swell time. Don Boddy distributes Gerst beer in Chattanooga. Don used to be a delegate to Central Body from the Brewery Workers for many years.

The supreme court of the United States is asked to decide "what is Scotch whisky"? Are they expected to rely on law or experience?

DOUGHBOY

Bakery and Confectionery Workers Local Union No. 25.

C. B. Norwood, Correspondent.

There was a very good attendance at our meeting this past Saturday. Brother Curtis R. Sims, our erstwhile business agent, was in town for this meeting. Curtis, as you know, is organizing for our own international union and from all reports he is doing a darn good job of it. We are fortunate in having Brother Sims in town to help us with the negotiations of our contracts with the local bakeries.

Several of the bakers are patronizing some of the restaurants that are on the unfair list of the Culinary Workers' local union. We ask that these bakers do not patronize any restaurant that does not carry the shop card of the Culinary Workers' International union. Help your fellow-union man instead of kicking him down. Help others and in turn it will help you.

We are happy to announce that the Bagentoss Bakery at Tracy City, Tenn., has renewed their contract for another year with Local 25.

Brother T. O. Pack has a new boy at his house. The new arrival made his appearance May 21, at the Park View hotel. The new boy weighs 7 pounds and 12 ounces, and his name is Tommie, Junior. Both mother and son are doing fine.

Brother Jack Peck is going on his vacation in a few days. Jack is going to Savannah, Ga., to do some fishing. Sure wish I could make this trip with Brother Peck.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hickman have been visiting in Cincinnati and Rising Fawn, Ga.

Brother Thomas Lovell is leaving for his vacation within a few days and it is my understanding that he will spend most of it in Georgetown, Tenn.

All candy made in Chicago is nonunion. Buy Benn-Hubb and Carter's, which are both 100 per cent union made. Continue demanding the union label on all candies.

Dorst, Holsum, Grennan's, Hostess, Ambrosia cakes are nonunion and made out of the city. Also Travis pies. Remember this when buying cakes and pies. Erskine's and Mercer pies and cakes are 100 per cent union made. Hooper's pies are 100 per cent union made.

There are two nonunion breads being sent into Chattanooga—Cream Crust from Cleveland, Tenn., and Perfection from Nashville, Tenn. Demand the bakers' union label on all bread that you buy. Ask your grocer to discontinue handling this out-of-town nonunion bread.

Remember when buying peanut butter don't forget to purchase Benn-Hubb, which carries the union label and is the best peanut butter in town.

The Tennessee Federation of Labor convention starts Monday, June 5, in Nashville. Brother Charles Mabee will represent our local union at this convention.

Several of the bakers attended the Label League dance the other week and all were telling at the meeting what a swell time they had.

42nd Convention Opens Monday In Nashville

TFL Sessions Will Probably Be Best Attended In History of Tennessee Labor

Everything is all set in Nashville for the forty-second convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor to convene next Monday morning at 9 o'clock in the Noel hotel. President Gerald Foley, of Nashville, finishing his second term, is completing his list of committees, which is usually announced as one of the first orders of business.

Interest seems to be running high. Memphis is rumored to be prepared to bring to Nashville as high as seventy delegates, while Chattanooga will certainly run them a close race as to numbers. Knoxville and Nashville are both looking wise but saying nothing. It will be a packed room when all the smoke of credentials clears away.

And many Chattanooga delegates will have the wives with them. For years Chattanooga has made a habit of encouraging the ladies to come along, a helpful asset to the labor movement. When you get the women folk at home interested in organization, things begin to perk up.

It is expected that both Cuthbert and Foley will be candidates to succeed themselves as secretary and presedent, respectively. On the other hand, at least two other names have been breezed about for the presidency, and two names for the secretary post. Almost anything can happen at this convention, forecasters say, and in any event it will be one worth attending.

Notes From Woodworkers' Local 1592

We are sorry to report that L. J. Duffy, one of our members who works at the Chattanooga Sash and Millwork company, was in a serious accident at the plant last week. It was necessary to amputate one of his fingers.

The local is negotiating three new contracts, and is continuing to go right ahead.

Work is picking up at all the plants.

Va. Labor Federation Urges State Wage Law

State Labor Relations Act and Anti-Injunction Law Also Included in Demands of Annual Convention.

Newport News, Va.—The annual convention of the Virginia State Federation of Labor, in session here, called for the enactment of State laws paralleling the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and the National Labor Relations Act, recommended the enactment of a State anti-injunction law because of the frequent use of the injunction process in labor disputes, and urged the establishment of a steam boiler inspection system under the direction of a State boiler inspector.

The re-elected officials include O. Moore, Norfolk, president; John Titmus, Petersburg, vice president; E. J. Shave, Hampton, secretary-treasurer, and the following executive board members: Vernon Marsh, Alexandria; J. D. Rapp, Clifton Forge; Lew Rogers, Danville; Mrs. S. D. Clinebell, Lynchburg; Joseph Rossano, Portsmouth; E. Woody, Richmond, and E. B. Brown, Roanoke.

Rail Court Bill Passes Senate

Washington, D. C.—The senate has passed the bill creating a special five-court federal court to speed up railroad bankruptcy and receivership cases.

No record vote was taken, which shows that the favorable vote was certainly in a heavy majority; but several of the opponents struggled against the measure to the end.

The railroad unions are for the bill, not as a counsel of perfection, but as a help. The Committee of Six appointed by President Roosevelt — three labor; Harrison, Jewell and Robertson; and three speaking for management, Gray, Clement and Norris, approved a plan much like the one of the bill.

UNIONS BOOST BUILDING WEEK—

Chicago Labor Backs Co-operative Campaign of All Building Industry

Chicago.—"Buy, build or modernize now!"

This was the theme of a "building industry week" sponsored by the recently organized Chicago Building Congress and endorsed by every forward looking group within the reach of Chicago's influence, including, of course, organized labor.

The Building Congress was established to correlate and unite into an effective organization individuals, firms, corporations and labor unions directly or indirectly engaged in or related to the building industry in its widest scope, so as to cultivate a spirit of good will within the industry and promote the general welfare of the community.

Mayor Urges Confidence

Building Industry Week formed a part of a coordinated drive to stimulate building activity, to "break the jam and blast a pent-up demand for $1,000,000,000 new construction" in Chicago and vicinity.

The first thing to build is confidence," Mayor Edward J. Kelly told 300 trade unionists at a luncheon meeting sponsored by the labor division of the Building Congress, the Chicago Building and Construction Trades Council. "I have said on many occasions that 50 per cent of any depression is in the people's mental attitude."

The mayor asserted that "every possible pump of energy" must be primed "to develop those work and wage programs that add homes, expand industries and safeguard the morale of our people." He urged union members to sell the public on low costs and high values now obtainable in Chicago.

Labor Vitally Concerned

"I presume there is no other group in the building industry more interested in making Building Industry Week a big success than the Building Trades Council," said Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the council and a member of the board of directors of the building congress, at the same meeting. "Only 25 per cent of our membership is gainfully employed."

Representatives of labor, industry and the community were seated at the speakers' table.

President's Speech Serves Notice Drive for Social and Economic Reform Will Continue—Big News Events Have Roots in Washington—Owen D. Young Approves 1893 Panic "Purge."

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt's speech to the retail merchants has served notice on the reactionary crusade now in progress that the President is not going to back down on work relief, on taxes, or on spending, and that he means to help small business in every way that he can. It clears the political air as nothing else could do.

The campaign for social and economic reform is going on. The campaign to give small business a chance to grow, best expressed so far in the bill introduced by Senator Mead of New York, is going on. The efforts to end the regime in which, in a country of boundless natural resources and high-working capacity, one-third of the population remains ill-fed, ill-clad, ill-housed, will continue.

A number of dramatic events showing up in several different parts of the country have their roots right here in Washington.

In New York, Martin T. Manton, formerly judge of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals of that circuit, resigned his office on the direct demand of Frank Murphy, Attorney General of the United States. Manton is now on trial for being a "merchant of justice," for soliciting and collecting bribes—and three of his co-defendants have pleaded guilty.

In Kansas City, Thomas J. Pendergast, boss of the city for 28 years, was scoffing at being prosecuted until Frank Murphy came to Washington. He has pleaded guilty to a charge of cheating on income taxes, drawn a sentence of 15 months in prison, and other indictments are against him. And these are just two of several instances.

Murphy was denounced as being "too friendly to labor" when nominated. But the Department of Justice has taken on new vitality since he came.

Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Company, plainly shocked the monopoly committee by some of his recent testimony before it, and quite as plainly, made no friends for himself or his doctrines in the ranks of labor. Here is one paragraph that must be quoted:

"One cannot look at the history of the General Electric Company and of the electric industry in general without realizing the tremendous benefit which came from the terrific and painful purge of the panic of 1893. THERE WAS NO ARTIFICIAL EFFORT THEN TO ALLEVIATE THE IMPACT OF THE ECONOMIC DEPRESSION. The result was that both the utilities and the manufacturing industries came out with a sounder capital structure and with more competent and aggressive leadership than could possibly have existed under the old regime."

The only possible meaning of the capitalized sentence is that the crash of 1929 should have been allowed to run its course, like that of 1893. No "artificial effort" should have been made to check bankruptcy or "alleviate" starvation. Hoover's RFC was wrong; Roosevelt's WPA to help the hungry earn a meal is madness.

That is what that sentence means if it means anything. There are plenty of other sentences in the same testimony that mean the same thing, in longer words. With millions of workers still unemployed, what is labor's opinion of Mr. Young's calm claim to be a guide to the United States government?

A. F. of L. Demands Congress Take Quick Action on Proposed Changes In National Labor Relations Act

Washington, D. C.—Immediate adoption by Congress of amendments to the National Labor Relations Act proposed by the American Federation of Labor was demanded by the federation's executive council, in closing sessions of its spring meeting here.

The council warned that failure to meet the "imperative need" for the proposed reforms will lead to "probable obliteration" of the act in 1940.

The council also went on record as being unanimously opposed to a proposed amendment in the Social Security Act which would allow states to reduce the current 3 per cent tax paid by employers to pay unemployment compensation benefits.

Adequate Benefits Urged

It took the position that instead of reducing the levy, larger reserves should be built up to permit earlier and longer payments of benefits to the unemployed.

"The 3 per cent tax rate," the council said, "should not be lowered until unemployment compensation adequately provides for workers who have lost their jobs and pays adequate benefits for an adequate period of time. Congress must adopt adequate standards upon which credits may be allowed."

The council adjourned to meet again in Atlantic City April 3 when it will prepare its report for submission to the annual A. F. of L. convention to be held in Cincinnati in October.

A resolution adopted in the closing session condemned the National Labor Relations Board as an "agency of the CIO" and as being "detrimental to the A. F. of L. and the public." It held the act to be sound, but criticized the administration of it as "improper and unjust."

Changes Held Necessary

Amendments to the act are necessary, the resolution said, to end "unrestrained, biased discretion by the board. It charged that beneficiaries of the board's "biased rulings are seeking to befog the issue before Congress by "name-calling" and other means.

"This issue must be settled by this Congress to meet imperative and immediate needs for relief proposed by A. F. of L. amendments and to prevent probable obliteration of the act in 1940," the council declared.

Wage-Hour Act Repeats Experience Other Labor Laws, Andrews Says

NEW YORK.—Speaking before the convention of the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' union, Elmer F. Andrews, administrator of the wage-hour law, told his audience that this law is just repeating the experience of other labor reforms.

"The history of labor legislation repeats over and over again a very familiar pattern," Andrews said. "First, the most timid portion of the business community mobilizes to resist change. Lobbyists are rushed to the scene of action. The proposal is denounced and we are assured that grass will be growing in the streets if any change is brought about in the status quo.

"Eventually, the law is written on the statute books. And then the lobbyists swarm again to get the law repealed or amended out of existence. But the law stays on the books and is upheld by the courts and the excitement dies down and business begins to adjust itself to the new circumstances.

"Finally, the new order of things is accepted and becomes a part of our industrial folkways and at last the very interests that resisted most bitterly become not only reconciled but co-operative. And we emerge another step out of the jungle and in the end everybody is glad of it."

$45,000,000 Fund for Low-Rent Housing Approved by Senate Unit

Senator Ellender Says Measure Will Not Add to Public Debt; Chairman Bates of A. F. of L. Housing Committee Visions Employment for Hundreds of Thousands of Jobless When Bill Is Enacted by Congress.

Washington, D. C.—The Senate Committee on Education and Labor approved the bill introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York increasing by $800,000,000 the fund for loans to local housing authorities for the construction of low-rent housing and the promotion of slum clearance.

The bill also authorizes the expenditure of $45,000,000 to subsidize rentals in housing promoted by the bill in cases where the subsidy is necessary to bring rents down to the paying capacity of the small-income groups which the housing is designed to benefit.

Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, chairman of the subcommittee which handled the bill, said it completely gives the United States Housing Authority permission to borrow the money for loans, which would be repayable to the Housing Authority and will not be included in the public debt.

"The authorization is only a beginning in the solution of the problems of the slums and the ill-housed," he declared. "Unless additional funds are made available for new projects, a substantial interruption in employment and construction is inevitable.

Supported by A.F. of L.

The Wagner bill carries the unanimous support of the American Federation of Labor. In a statement before the Ellender subcommittee during the hearings on the measure, Harry C. Bates, chairman of the Housing Committee of the American Federation of Labor, said:

"Today there are more than 1,000,000 building and construction mechanics totally unemployed and dependent on work relief for their livelihood."

Pointing out that the $800,000,000 loans for slum clearance and low-rent housing authorized by Congress in 1937 and 1938 "will provide a total of 270,000,000 man-hours of work at the site and $257,000,000 which will be paid in wages to laborers employed at the site of construction," Mr. Bates continued:

"In addition, the present program will result in an even larger indirect employment in the production of building materials and will yield an even larger payroll to the workers in industries serving this new construction.

Work for 350,000 Visioned

"The proposed amendments will double these benefits to the building workers by providing 540,000,000 man-hours of employment at the site or two full year's work to 330,000 building mechanics and laborers. It will proportionately increase the employment, the purchasing power and the business activity in the industries which must service this construction with materials and equipment."

MINIMUM WAGE HEARING FOR HOSIERY INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C.—Wage-Hour Administrator Andrews has ordered a public hearing June 12 on the unanimous recommendation of a hosiery industry committee that he fix a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour for full fashioned hosiery workers, and 32½ cents an hour for employes in the seamless hosiery branch.

The administration made public a report prepared by committee chairman, George W. Taylor, Philadelphia, Wharton school of finance and commerce professor, who said his group believed that its unanimity "constitutes strong evidence of the soundness of its conclusions." The committee consisted of five representatives each for the public, employers, andn labor.

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly.

Exposure of citizens' private financial affairs without the chance to resist in the courts is the basis of a protest to President Roosevelt against an executive order making income tax returns available to the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

In a letter to the president, the American Civil Libertiies Union says that the proper method for a congressional committee to get information is by the issuance of subpoenas.

"The courts would then determine, in case of a contest, whether or not the submission of income tax returns in particular cases is proper," the letter said.

Exception is also taken to the executive order on the ground that the Dies investigation has been prejudiced and lacking in judicial character.

The protest seems well taken. Exposing a citizen's private affairs without giving him a chance to have a court review of the need of such exposure, smacks too much of the kind of thing that goes on under dictatorial government in Europe. It is akin to bureaucratic practices, of which have experienced much in recent years.

The struggle for power takes varying forms and always goes on.

Democracy came to people who had the power and the nerve to take it from autocrats.

Autocrats haven't finished fighting for power, nor are they today without a good deal of it.

Moral sense has something to do with how much power some kinds of people will take, even if they have the power, but mostly those who have power use it to keep what they have and to get more.

Bureaucracy is a modified form of autocracy. Of bureaucracy we have much and the cry is always for more.

Boards and commissioners are getting more power and are multiplying in number.

Delegated power at the outset usually has a string tied to it, so that those who use the power may be checked up and called to accounting—even fired or reversed.

But little by little, the string gets worn and after a time it tends to disappear.

In every federal and state board and commission there are either bureaus or subordinates who make great numbers of rules, orders and regulations.

Mostly the affected individual citizen has a remedy in court, if he can get to court, which involves money as the first consideration.

But cases develop where the affected citizen has no recourse to court, as in executive orders giving the Dies committee a look at citizens' income tax return. That is dangerous.

Not only that, but in the whole field of bureaucratic power we approach the thin edge where popular control over the acts of officials fades out of the picture through lack of use and the petty bureau official is left in seemingly untouchable grandeur upon his pedestal. He may mean well and he may even do well, which is not the point. He does what he wants to do—and that is the point.

If the American people want bureaucracy and decide, after careful consideration, that it's the thing for them, then they are entitled to it.

But if they do not want bureaucracy, then they will do well to study the trend, keep a careful watch over it and know exactly what is going on. Such things can come against the wishes of the people, after which it takes a mighty effort to dislodge the incubus.

WELL, another month has passed, and I believe business generally has been better. I know it has with us. We sold MORE NEW AND USED CARS in May than we have sold in any one month in nearly two years. There are two good reasons for that: First, business generally is better; second, we simply have the products that will satisfy, in both new and used cars. A Rather Serious Choice

A report was turned in at the meeting of the American Medical Association in St. Louis bitterly denouncing other reports of the need of better medical service, and that there are not in the entire United States more than 40,000 persons who do not get any medical service they need.

Perhaps the easiest way to blow up this ridiculous claim is to refer to Jessamine Whitney's study of the 1930 census reports in ten states. This study showed, and no one has denied, that infant death rates go up as the father's income does down; that seven of the ten chief diseases on the medical calendar take a larger toll from the poor than from the well-to-do or the rich; that the death rate among day laborers is seven times as high as among professional men.

Either an enormous number of our poorer people do not get proper medical attention, or medical attention is well nigh worthless. Which horn of this dilemma does the A. M. A. choose?

Extension of Social Security Benefits

The liberalization of the provisions of the Social Security Act already agreed to by the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives will, when adopted by Congress, bring deserved benefits to an increased number of working men and women and their dependents.

To remedy injustices in coverage the committee included approximately 200,000 employes in national banks, state bank members of the Federal Reserve System, and certain building and loan associations in the unemployment compensation provisions and extended the old age pension provisions to between 150,000 and 165,000 maritime workers, now exempt.

Other proposals approved by the committee would increase old age pensions in the early years of the social security plan, with added benefits for widows, orphans and dependent parents.

In addition, benefit payments would start next January 1 instead of January 1, 1942.

Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee estimated that these changes would add about $1,200,000,000 to benefits during the next five years, while the amendments holding the payroll taxes at the present rate would decrease the tax cost which would be caused by the increasing rates contained in the present Act.

Under the new plan proposed by the committee a worker who reaches the age of 65 on January 1, 1940, and who has been paid an average of $100 a month since the old age insurange program became effective on January 1, 1937, would be able to retire on his birthday in 1940 and receive a pension of $25.75 a month during the rest of his life. Under the present provisions of the Social Security Act, he would be entitled only to one lump sum payment of $126.

In case his wife also were 65 years old, he would receive 50 per cent more, or a total of $38.63 a month. On his death, his widow would be paid three-fourths of the amount of her husband's monthly benefit, $19.31, while she lived.

In addition, the amendments approved by the committee provide benefits for younger widows and minor children. In the case of a man who had earned an average of $100 a month for three months and who died on Jan. 1, 1940, his widow would receive $19.31 a month. If she had two minor children she would be paid $47.07 a month until the children were 16 or until they were 18 if they remained in school.

Such a widow, with or without children, would be entitled to an additional benefit at 65 years of $19.31 monthly during her lifetime. If the worker who became 65 years of age on Jan. 1, 1940, died and left no widow or children, but was survived by a dependent parent, the parent would receive $12.88 a month.

Single men under the committee's amendment are not treated so generously. A single man with 40 years coverage and an average monthly wage of $100 during that period would be entitled to only $35 a month under the new plan, compared with $51.25 under the present law.

Buy California Canned Peaches

A large number of working men and women who are members of the American Federation of Labor cannery and allied unions in California are threatened with serious unemployment and its contingent loss of wages through no fault of their own.

The unusually large crop of California peaches last year resulted in a surplus pack of more than 6,000,000 cases of canned peaches. Packers declare that unless this surplus stock is sold immediately it will be necessary for them to reduce at least one-half the canning operations of this year's peach crop. Such a reduction would not only be disastrous to the cannery workers, but would seriously affect the growers, whose purchasing power would be cut at least $5,000,000.

To help this unfortunate situation, the California State Federation of Labor urges union members throughout the United States to purchase at least two cans of California peaches weekly, thus liquidating the big 1938 surplus and make way for the 1939 crop.

The dues-paying membership of the American Federation of Labor is now approaching the four-million mark. The mobilization of this large number of union workers for only two weeks in the campaign to buy California canned peaches would remove nearly 16,000,000 cans from retail retail stores and go a long distance toward saving the day for a large number of A. F. of L. union members in California.

At least two cans of these peaches a week should be the slogan of every A. F. of L. member until the surplus 1938 pack is wiped out. All aboard!

Menace of Unemployed Army

The social menace of a permanent unemployed army was presented in trenchant terms in an address by William Allen White, editor of the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette, before the convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors at Washington, D. C. Mr. White, who was the retiring president of the society, deplored the fact that newspaper editors and owners because of their "large property investment, have taken the side of property unconsciously in many cases," with the result that the newspaper people "seem to be unfair" to those who are seeking "new reforms in property rights."

Turning to the recognized menace of millions of unemployed workers to American institutions, Mr. White said:

"We are treading on dangerous ground. A threat to democracy is abroad in the world. The unemployment problem in this nation remains unsolved and every day it is unsolved it is a menace to the stability of our institutions.

"We are developing a class-conscious proletariat which is dangerous.

"It was bad enough in the days of the big bull market of the twenties to maintain the idle rich, but if in addition we of the middle class now have to maintain the idle poor and then the idle rich, sooner or later our resources will be gone."

WPA Baby Health Stations

The wide ramification of Works Progress Administration projects in fields designed to minimize illness in the lower income groups of wage earners is illustrated by the report of the activities of the WPA Baby Health Service for Greater New York.

Confronted with the traditional disinclination of mothers of families among the underprivileged to allow physicians and health attendants to touch their children in the interest of health measures, the WPA division of professional and service projects in the nation's metropolis were fearful that the plan to inoculate or vaccinate children in this area would meet with stubborn opposition. But to the surprise of WPA health leaders the opposition to inoculation against diphtheria or vaccination against other contagious diseases prescribed by the WPA Baby Health Service at its five baby health stations in Manhattan was reduced to zero.

During the month of March 525 babies and children up to the age of nine were registered for the health services offered. For the month there were 248 diphtheria inocculations, 474 vaccinations and 160 Schick tests. Miss Mary C. Tinney, director of the division of professional and service projects, reports that "the attendance of mothers at conferences on diet and care of the baby, conducted by experts, was 3,603 and there were 1,822 visits by nurses of the project to homes of persons on their home relief rolls in need of personal instruction or care."

The WPA baby health stations do not conflict with the work of a similar nature carried on by the board of health of Greater New York.

It's convention time again . . . nnd we expect to have a lot of ladies from Chattanooga, as usual.

Not many ladies will be delegates . . . so far, the only Chattanooga lady-delegates I know of will be Margaret Mabee and Louise Petty. The rest of us just go along because we like conventions.

There'll be several new people this year. Mrs. Bob Reich is going along with her husband, and Mrs. Ruby Williams will go along with Ruby. The four of them will drive over on Sunday.

Mrs. Wallace Cry will be there for the first time, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Jean Paul Jones will drive over on Sunday, too. This is a "first" Tennessee Federation of Labor convention for both of them . . . Jean Paul will represent the Radio Workers.. Mrs. Jones won't be a delegate, but she is an active member of the teachers' federation.

Paula Hallmark and Nancy Smith will be there—they have been before and are confirmed "conventionites."

Clara Kamin says she is going to be so busy taking care of the Warner park swimming pool that she doesn't think she can go this year . . . that is bad, because it won't seem like a convention without her. Maybe she will change her mind!

Don't know what all the plans are for the delegates and visitors to Nashville, but one thing I've found out is that the Gerst company is entertaining the federation folk with a barbecue on Monday afternoon at the Gerst camp, just out of Nashville.

Be seein' you in Nashville this week-end!

More Contracts Signed For Housing Projects

Washington, D. C.—Virginia and Connecticut came into the federal housing loans program for the first time in the last group of contracts approved. These contracts brought the loan contract total to $434,653,000; and will provide 7,196 family dwelling units for approximately 28,000 slum dwellers.

So far, the United States Housing Authority has signed loan contracts with 120 communities, for 92,072 family dwellings, which will house about 368,000 present dwellers in the slums. These contracts all provide that prevailing wages shall be paid to all workers, and that the new dwellings are to be so constructed as to last in good order for sixty years.

Connecticut's projects are in Bridgeport and Norwalk, and Virginia's in Bristol.

Awards Announced For Best Publicity In Paralysis Drive

Washington, D. C.—The award of $25.00 offered by Chester M. Wright to the labor paper giving the best treatment to the publicity of the recent campaign of the labor division of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday, went to the Flint Weekly Review, Flint, Mich.

The judgment of the award was based on the most generous preentation and best handling of the labor division during the campaign.

In a letter to James Schiavone, editor of the Flint Weekly Review, announcing the award, Chester M. Wright, director of organization of the labor division, took occasion to praise the entire labor press and express the gratitude of the labor division for its generous service and complete cooperation in the campaign against infantile paralysis.

Honorable mention for the award goes to the Federation News, of Chicago, Ill.; the Labor World, of Duluth, Minn., and the Lansing Industrial News, of Lansing, Mich.

TRUCKERS ASK EXEMPTION FROM WAGE-HOUR ACT

Washington, D. C.—The American Trucking Association, Inc., has filed suit in District of Columbia federal court seeking exemption of 500,000 non-driver employes of the trucking industry from provisions of the wage-hour act.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has supervision of working hours of truck drivers but last May 19 it refused jurisdiction over the other employes of the trucking concerns.

Those of that same luncheon have urged the Supreme Court, which in our government [illegible].

"In other words," he said, "if Adolf Hitler were to issue a New Year's [illegible] and the world disarmament [illegible] would speedily [illegible] to build more hospitals and homes [illegible] school buildings."

We [illegible] now running 1500 [illegible] a [illegible] to [illegible] period passed, the bill would dwindle; and in this country, at least, the disease would vanish in much less than 32 years.

[illegible] things have combined to [illegible] the expected war [illegible] in [illegible].

First, France's [illegible] refusal to make territorial concessions to Mussolini and Poland's yet blunter and more important refusal to give Hitler [illegible] and in Danzig have given a jolt to the war-makers of the [illegible] dictatorships. They have [illegible] the strong relief growing for more than a year that Hitler, at least, is a coward.

Second, the (more-or-less) democratic powers of Europe have been encouraged by this evidence of Nazi weakness. Third, the anti-Chamberlain sentiment in England is growing strong — though still much divided—that Chamberlain is now willing to talk terms of an alliance with Russia.

The Wall Street Journal sees another deterrent in fact that Nazi leaders have "so feathered their nests by acquiring vast properties" that they will hesitate about risking them in a war. Goebbels, Goering and others have been reported as seizing vast estates in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia. This might work both ways, for reasons too long to state; but is well worth noting.

BY GEORGE L. KNAPP

The American Medical association is bringing what it thinks are its big guns into the fight against the Wagner health bill. Dr. Ha[illegible], member of the board of [illegible] of New York city, appeared at the first hearing by a committee of the senate considering the measure, not as a witness, for he gave no testimony on anything, not to [illegible] the senators [illegible] "and he."

"No emergency of sickness [illegible]," he said. "Estimates of neglected sickness [illegible] are exaggerated. . . . The most [illegible] action that could be made by the federal government in general health would be by encouragement of confidence in self-support."

Dr. Emerson has put the AMA in the same position of blind resistance that privilege has always offered to all reforms. It is the same sort of carping opposition that was brought against taxing to extinction the use of poinonous phosphorous in matches, which ate away the bones of the lower jaw of those who worked in it long. It is the same stupidity that fought against workmen's compensation, against safety appliances on railroads and in mines; and it will be just as ineffective as those bungs.

The American people know that poverty is one of the deadliest of diseases; and they demand that something be done about it.

Observers in Washington are agreed by a big majority that the New Deal has gained much in strength in the last few weeks. Most of them cite two proofs of this: the popularity of President Roosevelt's hard-hitting speech to the retail merchants' gathering; and the almost total indifference with which the country has received the reactionary efforts to create public terror by shrieking over "government spending," and the awful size of the national debt.

The "National Debt Week" oratory roused neither terror nor enthusiasm. The studied outcry against relief, government spending and taxes—which in substance boils down to a demand to untax the rich and let the unemployed go hungry — got more yawns than cheers. The whole performance reminds me of a song of horrors which the seniors of medical schools sometimes sing to make the freshmen shiver. The chorus runs:

"O, this is a most hor-r-rible tale!
It will make your faces turn pale,
Your eyes with tears will be overcome—
Tweedle, twaddle; tweedle twaddle twum."

The last line pretty well expresses public feeling on the financial sighs and groans we have been hearing so much.

The federal power commission has printed a report which at least ought to end the hackneyed excuse that privately owned utilities pay taxes and publicly owned utilities do not.

The survey covered 691 privately owned and 537 publicly owned utilities, and took the fiscal years of 1936 and 1937. Basic revenues were computed in the same way. The FPC found:

That privately owned utilities paid 14.4 per cent. of these revenues in taxes and net cash contributions.

That public owned utilities paid 18 per cent. of their revenues in taxes or net cash contributions. Also, they furnished free services to schools, hospitals, public buildings, etc., equal to 8.8 per cent. of their basic revenues.

In other words, publicly owned utilities spent twice as much on public benefits as privately owned ones. That is not the only question at issue; but at least, with the FPC work before us, we should be rid of the private magnate's stock excuse.

WHAT NEXT?

The Western Union Telegraph Company has inaugurated the regular transmission of photographs between London and New York over its cable system. The service employs new methods of transmission. A picture 6x7 inches may be transmitted in 20 minutes or less, regardless of weather conditions, the company says.

Headache, Bad Breath Tell of More to Come

Just as Paul Revere's famous ride warned of the Redcoats' coming, so Nature's messengers — headaches, biliousness, bad breath—often warn of faulty elimination.

Neglecting these signs may cause a host of constipation's discomforts: sour stomach, belching; no appetite or energy; mental dullness.

It's so easy to wake up your lazy insides. Just take spicy, all vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT. Its unusual help comes from its principal ingredient—an intestinal tonic-laxative which imparts tone to lazy bowel muscles.

Millions of packages used testify to BLACK-DRAUGHT'S merit. Try it.

Tuesday night is our regular meeting night. You are requested and expected to be present.

An article "In Whose Pocket" has interested us very much—so much so that we are passing it on to you:

Is it any wonder the boss doesn't want a union shop?

He would rather have the dollar in his own pocket.

Are you doing your part in putting the extra dollars in your own pocket?

Belonging to the union means that you unite with your fellow-worker to obtain an increasingly larger share of the profits in your particular industry.

Now as to dues? How much of your increase in pay each week does it cost to keep the union machinery working to increase your income?

The answer: Less than 10 per cent of the difference between union and nonunion wages.

That's a return of ten times what it costs you for union dues. What an investment.

It is a simple matter of arithmetic.

And Uncle Sam has done the figuring for you.

So you don't need to guess.
Not "Pennies from Heaven"—
But DOLLARS in YOUR pocket.

Union Shop Contract Won

Tacoma, Wash. — The Lumber and Sawmill Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, gained another union shop contract in Tacoma when the employes of Sizer and Company signed an agreeemnt with the management. Not only does the new agreement contain a union shop clause, but it also provides for a union hiring hall. Provision is made in the contract for a general wage increase as soon as conditions warrant.

To Query Women All Over South

Touring Reporters have now asked over 1,200 women and girls of leading Southern Cities the now famous question: "Were you helped by CARDUI?"
Averaging all replies so far shows that 93 out of every 100 users questioned declared CARDUI benefitted them!
Users by thousands are eager to tell how CARDUI has given them appetite; helped them gain strength; has thus relieved them of the symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition. Many also say that, when symptoms indicate the need, CARDUI in larger doses helps "at the time" to soothe pain.

NEW HOUSING ACT FOR NEW YORK

Albany, N. Y.—Just before adjourning, the legislature adopted a housing act, which lends the credit of the state to local communities for low-cost housing. Fifty million dollars may be loaned in the next fiscal year, and $100,000,000 thereafter. The subsidy given by the bill starts at $250,000 a year, and may not go above $1,000,000.

Not more than two-thirds of either credit or subsidy can go to New York City. In the next two years, therefore, the city may reasonably count on $100,000,000 from the state for construction — two-thirds of $50,000,000 the first year and twice that sum the next—and $1,000,000 as a subsidy.

I. J. Gardner Honored By Chattanooga Times

Typographical Member Will Complete 50 Years' Service This Fall---Will Retire

I. J. Gardner, production manager of the Chattanooga Times, was honored by the Times on his seventy-fifth birthday Monday with a luncheon at the Hotel Patten for approximately 100 guests. Mr. Gardner announced at the luncheon that he will retire in September, completing a record of fifty-two years' service with the Times.

Adolph Shelby Ochs, general manager of the Times, presided at the luncheon. Guests included Mrs. Gardner and members of the Gardner family, of whom three sons and three grandsons are all connected with the Times; employes of the Times who have been with the paper ten years or longer, and other friends of the honoree and the host.

Mr. Ochs praised Mr. Gardner as representing "a fine example of the proper relationship between employer and employe." He traced Mr. Gardner's rise from printer to foreman of the composing room and then to production manager.

Finney Carter, secretary of the typographical union, described Mr. Gardner as an ideal executive. Other praises came from H. C. Adler, chairman of the board of the Times; Mayor Bass, Julian LaRose Harris, executive editor of the Times, and Commissioners Robert M. Cooke, among others.

Mr. Gardner said "whatever I have accomplished" was due to the influence of the late Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the Chattanooga Times and the New York Times, who "made me foreman of the composing room when I was a young man. His kindness and patience with me in those days have been a source of inspiration always."

Gerst Brewery Does Splendid Job as a Most Gracious Host

Barbecue, Beer, Dancing, Put Delegates in Happy Humor at Gerst Camp

"Bill and August Gerst certainly know how to welcome and entertain organized labor!" This remark was heard frequently last Monday night after delegates and visitors to the TFL returned from the Gerst camp a short distance out of Nashville. Approximately 200 delegates and visitors accepted the Gerst Brewing company invitation to come to their completely modern and well equipped camp. When they arrived more than a dozen beef, lamb and pork barbecued to a queen's taste was ready to serve. Cold, sparkling Gerst beer took a lot of punishment before, during and after the meal. In addition to the barbecue there was potato salad and all the "fixings."

After everyone had consumed the last bite he could hold, the tables were cleared away for an orchestra which played sweet, hot and fast.

The Gerst company has been operating in Nashville for many, many years, and all during that time it has dealt with organized labor. The company not only has agreements with the brewery unions, but it also extends its unionism and fair dealing to its employes on the trucks, its laborers, its printing—in fact, it is a real union outfit.

Hats off to Gerst! Wish there could be more like them.

TFL Sets Up Own Political Action

Executive Board Instructed to Act on TFL Political Action in Future

The Tennessee Federation of Labor this week abandoned its former method of political indorsements when it instructed its executive board to act on future political activity. In the past the president, secretary and legislative representative met with the railroad brotherhoods to form what was known as the Tennessee Nonpartisan Committee. It was decided that such a setup had proved unsatisfactory.

In the future the vice-presidents from each of the cities will map out a course of action, and if deemed desirable it will cooperate with the brotherhoods.

WPA Local 1313 Has First Birthday

Hodcarriers' Local 1313 is celebrating its first birthday and feels that much progress has been made during this first year.

Meeting in regular session on Tuesday, May 23, the local went into the business of electing officers. All officers were re-elected by acclamation to "carry on" for another year. The officers are:

Joe Kelly, president; John Hogue, vice-president; Harold Phillips, secretary-treasurer; Harvey Casper, recording secretary; Geo. McGee, sergeant-at-arms; William Hughes, guard. Trustees are Addison Vawter and Paul Perry. Addison, Vawter and William Hughes are delegates to the executive board, with James Harris and Brother Vawter representing the local in the Building Trades council. George McGee and William J. Hughes will serve as delegates to the Central Body.

The local has gone on record to buy only union label merchandise in co-operation with the Label League.

"We appreciate the kind consideration and cooperation of Central Body, Building Trades council and all unionists during the past year," said H. L. Phillips, secretary. "We wish to state here that our arbitration board has met with many favorable agreements with the WPA, and that our situation is such as few of you locals can realize, therefore cannot understand the working thereof—but, with true spirit of unionism, Local 1313 has come through its first and toughest year with a good measure of victory.

"May we have the support of all unionists, that conditions may be further improved through organized labor on WPA."

VIC HALLMARK SINGS; ELECTED NEXT DAY

Vic Hallmark took the guests of the banquet Tuesday night at Nashville by storm. After the dessert had been cleared away, Pilot Jack Byrne called on Vic to sing "It's a Sin to Tell a Lie," and boy, oh boy, Vic held up Chattanooga's reputation of being first in everything.

It might not mean anything, but it is a fact that the next day Vic was elected a vice-president of the federation.

Legislators' Record Scored at Labor Meet

Represent 'Interests,' State Federation's Delegates Are Told

The forty-second convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor closed Wednesday in Nashville, after three days of intense work and play. To indicate the amount of work done, this year there were approximately 35 resolutions considered and acted upon, while last year only nineteen were presented.

Chattanooga showed up with a delegation 49 strong. The next largest was from Memphis with 32 and Nashville with 32. Knoxville had 13, Jackson 6 and Johnson City 5. Lenoir City, Monteagle and Clarksville had one each.

Among the resolutions presented was one calling on President Roosevelt to run for a third term. This resolution was turned over to the federation's nonpartisan committee. The committee met immediately after the convention adjourned and instructed the secretary to write to President Roosevelt and ask him to come out for a third term.

The election of officers took place Wednesday afternoon with Foley and Cuthbert unopposed for president and secretary-treasurer, respectively.

V. W. Hallmark, of the Chattanooga Elevator Constructors, was named as Chattanooga's member of the executive board.

Memphis was chosen for the next convention city. The 1940 sessions will be held the first Monday in June.

Charges that "too many" legislators are being paid to represent "interests" and attacks on the poor labor record of the recent general assembly provided the highlights of Monday's session of the Tennessee Federation of Labor.

State Labor Commissioner S. E. Bryant stirred the convention Monday morning with his charge that "too many representatives and senators were favorable to interests they represented and were paid to represent."

Commissioner Bryant's charge was made as an explanation of the failure of the recent state legislature to pass more labor-sponsored legislation. He urged the delegates to place greater emphasis on the election of legislators friendly to labor if "more progressive laws" are to be written into the statute books.

Bryant advocated the election of farmers, labor men and "liberally-minded" business men "instead of so many lawyers" in his address.

George Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, warned the federation of "sabotage by C. I. O. unions" in an address Monday morning. He charged that the C. I. O. is seeking to set up rival building trades organizations in Birmingham and other southern cities.

He urged united support of a minimum wage for the south exactly equal to that to be set by the wage and hour administration for the northern states.

Mayor Thomas L. Cummings welcomed the federation to Nashville Monday morning, and praised the A. F. of L. as a bulwark between labor and radicalism to the great good of the country.

E. H. Weyler, secretary of the Kentucky Federation of Labor, urged the state federation to pass a resolution urging congress to prohibit the use of the National Guard in labor disputes without the specific instructions of the U. S. secretary of war. This was done at the Wednesday session.

Committees appointed Monday morning by President Foley were:

Credentials: John Conroy, of Nashville, chairman; Erskine Mabee, of Chattanooga; D. A. Pitts, of Memphis; H. N. Estes, of Jackson; Clarence Smith, of Knoxville; D. C. Long, of Johnson City, and G. M. McNamara, of Memphis.

Green Urges Labor to Unify Ranks; Says Federation Door Is Open to Garment Workers and Others

New York City.—In a vigorous appeal for labor unity, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, urged here that unions which have left the Federation return and help in the work of creating a strong unified movement, which he said was vital to the preservation of democracy.

He directed his appeal for labor unity especially to the powerful International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, which left the CIO last November and is now an independent union.

President Green described the federation as the "guardian" of the national labor relations act and advocated vigorous boycotting of German goods so that the "Dictator Hitler will be brought to his knees."

No Penalties, He Promises.

In an address before 1,500 members of the United Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union at the organization's third biennial convention, Green urged the unions still in the CIO to "come back home and create a solid movement under the banner of the American Federation of Labor." He declared the door to peace was open and that no penalties would be imposed on the returning unions.

President Max Zaritzky, of the Hatters, called for resumption of peace negotiations between the federation and the CIO so that labor might present an unbroken front in support of the new deal in the 1940 elections.

For Roosevelt Third Term.

He told the convention that "economic bourbons, industrial tories and financial royalists" were plotting the destruction of the new deal and he urged that President Roosevelt be elected for a third term if no other way was found to insure continuation of new deal legislation.

Green, reviewing the circumstances that led to the formation of the CIO in 1935, said the A. F. of L. had "patiently fought for the preservation of the principle of majority rule and democracy in action."

"I am happy beyond measure," Green told the members of the hatters' union, "that your splendid organization stayed loyal to the American Federation of Labor through it all. I know the pressure that was brought to bear, the sinister influences that were at work to induce you to leave our movement."

Congress Is Judge of Laws' Wisdom, Not Courts, Supreme Court Says

Washington.—The supreme court, in a series of decisions otherwise of no great interest to labor, ruled out the whole federal judiciary as a privileged class, held an Oklahoma law invalid because it discriminated against negro voters, and declared that the wisdom of a law was something for congress to decide, not the courts.

By a 7 to 1 vote, the court ruled that federal judges have no right to immunity from income taxes. Justice Frankfurter wrote the decision, Justice Butler dissented, Justice McWhorter did not vote.

I. W. Lane, a negro, sued the officials of his county in Oklahoma for refusing to let him register and vote. The district and circuit courts held against him, the supreme court reversed this ruling, on the ground that the Oklahoma law discriminated against negroes and violated the 15th amendment. Justice Frankfurte spoke for the court, Justices Butler and McReynolds dissented, Justice Douglas did not hear the case.

In the third case, in which litigants demanded that their bond be paid in gold, Justice Black said for five members of the court that the wisdom of the resolution passed by congress was a matter for congress to decide, not for the courts. Justices Stone, Butler, McReynolds and Chief Justice Hughes dissented, Stone writing the dissent.

Workers for Labor Peace, Miss Perkins Finds

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Secretary of Labor Perkins expressed confidence here that the A.F.L. and the CIO can adjust their differences "by exercising patience in a spirit of give and take."

Speaking at the 50th anniversary banquet of the Central Labor Council of New Haven, Miss Perkins said that she has received evidence of the "overwhelming desire" of rank and file workers for a settlement of labor's difficulties and of their hope for "early resumption" of negotiations.

Longshoremen Told To Load Freighter

PORTLAND, Ore.—CIO longshoremen of Portland were held in violation of contract and ordered to load the freighter William Luckenbach in a decision handed down by Dean Wayne L. Morse, of the University of Oregon, coastwise waterfront arbiter.

Morse's edict came less than 24 hours after he had told the Waterfront Employers' Association of Portland that it also had violated the 1938 agreement by closing the port when longshoremen refused to work the Luckenbach. The port was closed five days, during which time ships could neither load nor unload. Longshoremen declined to have anything to do with the Luckenbach, because of an imaginary picket line established by the CIO Maritime Officer Workers' union, who contended the Luckenbach company had failed to comply with an order of the National Relations Board instructing it to rehire three discharged employes.

Morse said in his opinion the case could have been arbitrated easily if a request for arbitration had been made before the longshoremen took their action, and before the employers ordered the port closed.

John B. Haggerty Warmly Praised For Success in Promoting Use Of Printers' Union Label

Washington.—Tribute to John B. Haggerty for his successful work in obtaining agreement by the A. & P. stores and other big concerns to have their printing done in union shops was paid by George L. Berry at the last meeting of the board of governors of the International Allied Printing Trades association.

Berry, a member of the association's board of governors and president of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America, told the board:

"No one who has had the opportunity of reading the correspondence and who has heard the reports made by President John B. Haggerty of this association on the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, the William Wrigley, Jr., Chewing Gum company, Safeway Stores, and other equally important matters can hesitate in offering whole-hearted commendations and congratulations to President Haggerty.

"The buyers of printing in the United States and, for that matter, the great majority of our population have become label-minded. The tremendous growth of interest and support in the union label has been amazing. This interest and support will increase.

"It is my frank judgment that we should at some time in the very near future reconsider the proposition of financing a campaign for the promotion of the use of the label upon printed matter, and that we should jointly make our contributions in directing printing into union houses. This can be done. It has been done and the magnificent example of President Haggerty ought to give us encouragement to do this obviously correct, practical and tremendously important thing."

Mr. Haggerty was re-elected chairman of the board of governors. Just previous to the meeting, he was re-elected president of the International Brotherhoods of Bookbinders.

Negligible Loss In PWA Loans, Ickes Reports

Washington, D. C.—Only four-fifths of one per cent. of all public works administration loans have resulted in loss, Secretary of the Interior Ickes told a house appropriations subcommittee.

"That's a marvelous record," commented Chairman Edward T. Taylor who told about the testimony after the hearing. Taylor added that the amount totaled about $5,000,000, but that the PWA meanwhile had made $12,000,000 clear.

Ickes was questioned about a bill by Representative Joe Starnes to appropriate $500,000,000 for the PWA and make it a permanent agency.

REA COMES TO RESCUE OF TOWN WITHOUT ELECTRICITY

Washington, D. C.—Here is a piece of news from the rural electrification administration:

The locally owned electric plant of Wayne City, Ill., 500 people, rboke down. The Wayne-White Counties Co-operative was ready to connect the town with the co-operative lines. But the co-operative itself bought current from the Central Illinois Public Service company, and the CIPS had slipped into the contract a provision that the coop. could not sell at wholesale.

Four days the little went without light in homes, store or church. Then it got to the REA, REA got to the Central Illinois Public Service company, and in less than half an hour, the company agreed to let the co-operative sell current at wholesale rates to Wayne City for sixty days.

Two Supreme Court Wills

There have been two rather remarkable supreme court wills in Washington: those of Oliver Wendell Holmes and Benjamin F. Cardozo. Both left fortunes large enough to show that they were perfectly competent to manage their own financial affairs. Both were staunch liberals; both supported laws giving better chances to labor; neither had children.

Justice Holmes left about $500,000. He provided for his nephew, for some friends and associations: and left a full half of the total to Uncle Sam, with no restrictions

Justice Cardozo left about $328,000. He left $75,000 to the faithful housekeeper who took care of his sisters and himself, $25,000 to the federation for the support of Jewish philanthropies, $7,000 to a hospital, and $188,822—more than half the total—to Columbia university.

Somehow, those wills seem appropriate to the men and their careers.

Hats Off to Steelman

John R. Steelman, chief of the conciliation service of the department of labor, deserves the thanks of the American public and especially of American labor for his handling of the coal strike. He was up against one of the toughest propositions that a man could meet. He had no official authority to prescribe terms of settlement. He had against him in the group of employers a strong faction whose motto is the "shoot to kill" order given in Harlan county, Kentucky.

It was a case where character and brains, especially when coupled with wide experience, counted for more than anything but a good cause. Three labor cheers for Steelman.

The Crime of Striking

The suit by Republic Steel against the CIO for $7,500,000 "damages" is in one sense a follow up of the Apex case; but with sharp differences.

In the Apex case, the strikers admittedly destroyed some machinery. Nothing of the sort happened in the Republic matter. In the hosiery workers' strike, the company did not turn loose a force of armed thugs to club and shoot. In the steel strike, Republic Steel laid in munitions, including pistols, gas guns and clubs, and company guards clubbed, shot and gassed numbers of strikers—in addition to which the South Chicago police killed ten persons and wounded and beat up many more for the crime of being on public property in the neighborhood of a Republic mill.

But these differences are not the main issue. Both Republic and Apex suits are efforts to pervert the Sherman anti-trust law to the destruction of labor unions. Both stem from the Danbury Hatters case, lasting from 1903 to 1915.

The reactionary Supreme Court of that day permitted this perversion. It is to be hoped that the present court will do what it has done in the last two years with several similar laws and suits, consign them to the ashcan.

Water and Air

Man has been far more successful in rivalling the birds than in trying to rival fishes and sea mammals. The airplane has passed any speed reached by feathered flyers, and the insect speed of 600 miles per hour has been reported by only one observer, and strenuously denied by others. And the plane, too, is rendering valuable peace time services.

The submarine, on the other, is useless except in war; and far from safe beneath the water in time of peace. Probably more people in proportion to numbers and frequency of trips, have been killed by going under the water than by going up in the air. Man's courage dares all things.

The Youthful Auto

The Hudson Motor Company is celebrating its thirtieth birthday. This fact marks the astounding newness of something that has changed American life and outlook more than anything else, except probably electric communication. The telegraph, telephone and radio—three stout sons of one family, though the last was born of a second marriage and the mother has had most to say about the offspring together stand at the head of revolutionary developments, but the auto certainly comes next.

Ford dates from 1903. The cash investment was $28,000; that of the Hudson was (perhaps) $106,000. A young investor in the Ford enterprise wrote to his dad how the parts were shipped in—on time—and the workmen, "ten or a dozen boys at $1.50 each," put those parts together.

A Consistent Reformer

Manuel Quezon has put in effect on his own 490-acre estate the social reforms which he has tried to get adopted as President of the Philippines.

He has told his tenants that they have absolute freedom of politics, religion and speech. Each tenant will have a half-hectare—about 1¼ acres—for a garden, pigs or chickens. Advances to the tenants for food, clothing and medicine will bear no interest; borrowed rice may be repaid in kind at harvest: and all debts owed by the tenants to the former owner of the farm, which formed a part of the price paid for it by Quezon, are cancelled.

It shows some rather primitive ways of living—but also shows that the president of the Philippines means what he says when he calls for reforms, and that he has some very practical social ideas. It would not be hard to find quite a number of high-toned gentlemen in this country who in these matters are about seven miles behind President Quezon.

public address system in the con- tion hall was handled by a man over in Nashville. Jean Jones, Chattanooga's own de- te from Radio Workers' Lo- cal 2, was given the special task of seeing that the equipment was in perfect order, so that the dele- gates would not miss anything that was being said.

Delegates from Chattanooga in- cluded a couple of newly weds. Ed Bor Jr., was the delegate from Loc 43, and he brought his bride of last week along with him. Con- gratulations to the young couple!

Charlie Curle has gone high hat and is scarcely speaking to just ordinary delegates. He got a late start to the convention and came over by plane. He seemed to be very nonchalant about the trip—says he rides airplanes every day or so.

Glenn Gamble and his car full of delegates were late getting home . . . the car broke down at Man- chester. That is what they said, but when we saw them they were eating a lot of country ham—mighty convenient place to have a break-down.

If John Mahoney seemed to be singing louder than anybody else at the banquet, it was because his boss was leading the singing and announced that anybody who was working for him had better sing or he would be fired the next day. So Johnny sang out in clear, loud tones.

Jack Byrnes, president of the Nashville Trades and Labor Coun- cil, was awarded the title of "Pilot" by "Uncle Jim" Barrett . . . the delegates will remember the story.

Incidentally, one of the delegates at the banquet brought out the fact that there are six Central Bodies in Tennessee and that the presidents of three of them are members of the Movie Operators' Union. That would be just about a 50 per cent representation. The presiding of- ficers of the remaining three City Central Bodies are members of the Plumbers, Barbers and Bakery Workers.

At least one Chattanooga local is going to have a complete report of the convention from its delegate. We saw Robert Tipton, of the Dairy Workers, taking a lot of notes during the entire three-day sessions.

Mrs. Spriggs, wife of the Line- men's delegate, is very interested in label work and is coming to the next meeting of the Label League.

Miss Edith Bradbury was right on hand to report the convention. She has been covering the meetings for more than 35 years and is the only person who has ever done so. She told us that when the State Federation was formed, the first several meetings were not reported and there were no records except those made by the officers during the time.

Then the convention came to Knoxville and the officials decided to have permanent records made. She covered that meeting and has not missed any since.

SOUTHERN GRANITE CENTER 100 PER CENT UNION

Elberton, Ga.—This granite cen- ter of the South is 100 per cent union now, this condition being realized when agreements were signed between the Elberton Branch of the Granite Cutters In- ternational Association and the Comolli Granite Corporation and the City Quarries Corporation. Agreements were signed last year for two years by all other granite concerns in Elberton. The two companies above named have been organized and started operations since that time, and their addition to those already under agreement make this city and center one hun- dred per cent union.

This brings to thirty the number of monumental granite corpora- tions in Georgia working under agreements with the Granite Cut- ters Union, with union shop condi- tions and a dollar an hour mini- mum pay, with a 40-hour week.

Labor Attorneys End Oral Arguments Against Oregon Anti-Picketing Act

Portland, Ore.—Oral arguments averring unconstitutionality of Oregon's labor disputes acts have been completed by attorneys rep- resenting the American Federation of Labor, the CIO and the Rail- road Brotherhoods. Briefs will be filed later.

Attorneys declared the Oregon labor act and similar laws enacted by a number of cities resulted from activity of non-unionists who had been defeated when the Wag- ner labor relations act was held constitutional.

Constitution Held Violated.

Interests which seek to defeat the recent conception of civil rights and liberties for individual workmen have gone into the states in an attempt to "emasculate la- bor unions," it was asserted.

Chris Boesen, attorney for the A. F. of L. and four railroad labor unions, declared the so-called anti- picketing law, adopted last Novem- ber, not only threatiens to destroy unions by removing the right of workers to bargain collectively, but violates the constitutional guarantees of free speech and a free press.

Boesen cited the 14th amend- ment to the United States consti- tution, which guarantees the lib- erties of speech and press, con- tained in the first amendment, against infringement by legislation of the states.

Picketing Right Menaced.

"Our position is that, under the 14th amendment, working people as well as any other persons, have the right to disseminate informa- tion by placards carried on the body as well as by newspapers, radio or any other method," he as- serted.

"Our contention is that this leg- islation is not directed against pos- sible abuse, but against the right to picket itself."

Boesen declared that court deci- sions in the early years of the la- bor movement were colored by the false conception that pickets served the principal purpose of "scaring away" other workmen or custom- ers of a firm.

No Threat of Violence.

"No one, any more, can take the view that pickets walking be- fore a business house constitute a threat of violence," he asserted.

He contended, also, that the Ore- gon law's limitation on financial activities of unions is "utterly im- possible of application."

The case is being heard by three Oregon circuit judges. It is being watched with deep interest by labor all over the United States.

NEW COAL AGREEMENT PROVIDES FOR UNION SHOP

New Yoork.—A two-year agree- ment on anthracite coal mining has been reached, providing for the "union shop." It covers about 100,- 000 hard coal miners. The basic scale of wages remains unchanged. Formal signing must be deferred until the hard coal miners take a referendum vote on it.

Meantime, the contract has been initialled by John L. Lewis for the UMW, and Maj. W. W. Inglis, spokesman for the operators. Both hailed the agreeemnt as making for peace and stability in the in- dustry.

Grant of $161,350 Made to Establish Southern Center to Care for Negro Victims of Infantile Paralysis

New York City.—Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, has announced a grant of $161,350 for an infantile paralysis center for Negroes at Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama.

The money will be used to build, equip and maintain for a year a center of 16 beds. Construction will start without delay. Dr. John W. Chenault, director of orthopedic surgery, who is one of the two Negro orthopedists in the country, will be in charge. At present, the crippled children's division of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor reports that there are only 30 beds in the entire south for the care of crippled Negro children.

Of the money named, $81,400 goes for construction, $39,950 for equipment, and $40,000 for a year's maintenance.

To Train Experts

"The Tuskegee Polio Center," said Mr. O'Connor in making the announcement, "will do much more than provide modern treatment for Negro infantile paralysis victims. It will train Negro doctors and surgeons for orthopedic work, other Negroes for nurses and physiotherapists."

Tuskegee will constitute an important sector in the Foundaants'onipportt portant sector in the Foundation's fighting front in combatting the terrible crippling effects of infantile paralysis.

Hospital to Aid Center

"The John A. Anderson Hospital, which is a part of Tuskegee, is a 15-bed hospital, with laboratory, x-ray and operating rooms which will be available for use by the Tuskegee Orthopedic Center. In the matter of mechanical supplies, such as splints, shoes and corsets, much should be saved because of the facilities for this work already in the trade schools on the campus.

"Negroes represent about 10 per cent of the population of the United States. . . . Negro doctors are excluded from places where Negroes receive medical care in the south, although colored nurses are used."

Inadequate Relief in Many Places Brings Shocking Human Misery, Social Workers Survey Finds

New York City.—Serious evils in the administration of public welfare are charged by the American Association of Social Workers in a report released here.

The report pictures widespread confusion in the public relief programs of states and localities and an almost incredible inadequacy of relief. The result of the failure of many local governments to meet the problems of relief and unemployment is reflected in shocking human misery, the survey says.

The extent of this misery, the report points out, is indicated by the fact that in January, 1939, there were still nearly 7,000,000 families dependent on relief—more than 23,000,000 people. The need for general relief was greater in January and February, 1939, than in the corresponding periods last year.

In wide areas, says the report, the only aid available to needy relief families is "pauper" relief administered by "poor law" officials and financed from local funds. Other sections, mainly in the south and southwest, provide "no general relief" for employable persons regardless of the degree of need. In these areas federal surplus commodities are the only aid available to thousands of needy families.

Data From 35 States

The survey is based on data secured from reports of representatives in thirty-five states and in the territories of Puerto Rico and Hawaii.

Describing persons dependent on "uncertain and ofttimes non-existent general relief provisions" in many states as "American refugees with no place to go," Walter West, secretary of the social workers' association, declared that no uniform and adequate system of general relief can exist unless it is established by the federal government through federal grants-in-aid to states.

"New Approach" Needed

In releasing the report for publication, West said: "The facts revealed in this survey emphasize the need for a new approach to the problem of providing basic public assistance. . . . It is quite true that in several states, including New York, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, current provision for general relief is fairly adequate. However, this survey shows an uneven system throughout the country which relegates the unfortunate residents of certain states to a level of existence far below that necessary to decent health standards.

"It indicates very clearly that just as no uniform pattern of assistance for the aged, for dependent children, the blind and other specialized sorts of destitution existed before the entrance of the federal government through the Social Security act, so can there be no uniform pattern of general assistance until the federal government recognizes its responsibility for general assistance.

Relief Only Stop-gap

"State and local governments, struggling under increased demands and increased taxes, are for the most part unable or unwilling to recognize the necessity for a permanent program of general aid."

"The American Association of Social Workers is well aware that relief is no solution to the problem of unemployment," he added. "At best, it is only a stop-gap to halt starvation. Until such time as a realistic program of public works plus an increase in normal employment, can absorb large numbers of family heads now unemployed, general relief however, will be necessary."

Pennsylvania Coal Control Measure Defeated Following Great Miners' Demonstration at State Capitol

Harrisburg, Pa.—Labor beat the Kane anthracite bill in the expiring legislature; but failed to block the emasculation of the state board relations act.

The gist of the changes in the labor act is simple. It makes all rules and regulations of the State Labor boaord subject to the approval of the state secretary of labor and industry. In other words, it is no longer an independent board or commission. The secretary of labor and industry has a veto power which makes the board helpless.

The bill also declares an employe guilty of an "unfair labor practice" if he "intimidates or coerces" any other employe, forfeits his right to reinstatement or back pay, outlaws the sit-down strike, and—what labor likes least except the hamstringing of the labor board—abolishes the check off of union dues without a secret majority vote of employes and written permission of every employe affected.

The Kane anthracite bill brought 10,000 anthracite miners into Harrisburg, denouncing Gov. James who favored the bill as a "Judas," swarming through the state capitol, and vowing that they would stay there till they knew how each senator voted, and filed the vote for the next election.

Briefly, the Kane bill set up a commission of three appointed by the governor to take absolute control of the industry, fix weekly quotas, license mines and breakers, and generally run the show. It was bitterly opposed by the miners, hardly less bitterly by a large share of operators, and supported only by the interests centering in New York.

JAMES J. LANDIS TO HEAR CASE AGAINST BRIDGES

Washington, D. C.—Secretary of Labor Perkins has chosen James M. Landis as trial examiner to hear deportation charges against Harry Bridges, CIO maritime leader on the Pacific coast and an Australian by birth. The hearing was set for June 6, at San Francisco.

Landis was born in Tokio, Japan, the son of missionary parents. He graduated at the top of the Harvard Law School in 1925, and was rewarded by being clerk to Justice Brandeis for a year. He was one of the "brain trusters"; served on the Federal Trade Commission, was chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and quit Washington to become dean of the Harvard Law School, where he is now.

One-Third of Harlan Signs With Union

HARLAN, Ky.—Progress in the recognition of labor unions in Harlan County is going on irregularly but pretty steadily. More than one-third of the miners of the county are working at the present writing in the mines of companies which have signed union contracts. The mines in which County Judge J. E. Ball holds stock, and who personally asked for the militia, still held out.

Judge Ball set the bail of 46 miners arrested by the National Guard at $500 apiece. Each one of the 46 men was required to rise and swear: "I am indebted to the state of Kentucky in the sum of $500." Judge Ball was told in open court that the union is considering very seriously asking indictments of the militia for arresting the union miners, who had committed no crime. He leaned forward on the bench and asked: "Do you want warrants for these men?" as if he could not believe his ears; and was told that was precisely what they wanted.

Wool Labeling Bill Badly Needed To Guide Intelligent Buying, Witnesses Tell Senators

Washintgon, D. C.—The "Truth in Fabrics" bill, strongly supported by Wyoming wool growers, is expected to come up for a vote in the senate in June following a favorable report from the senate interstate commerce committee recently. Prospects for favorable action on the measure are considerably brighter as a result of a discussion brought forth at the temporary national economic committee's consumer hearings.

Representatives of various consumer groups appeared before the committee to relate some of the troubles encountered by the average consumer in attempting intelligent buying. Commenting on the testimony of one witness as to the difficulty encountered by the consumer in determining the quality of various goods on the market, Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, chairman of the committee, pointed to the wool industry as an excellent example.

Legislation Held Needed

Said the senator, "It is quite obvious . . . that the wool manufacturers could not be compelled to label their goods except by law. Without this law the consumer would have no possibility of knowing whether a particular garment was made of virgin wool or reworked (shoddy) wool."

The witness, Mrs. Alice Belester, Chicago housewife and chairman of the United Conference Against the High Cost of Living, had just previously stated that she felt standards of quality for goods on the market could be defined successfully only by law since any standards set up by the manufacturers themselves could not properly be enforced.

Labor Groups Back Bill

The "Truth in Fabrics" bill, introduced in the senate by Senator H. H. Schwartz, of Wyoming, is favored by wool growers and wool manufacturers, many consumers' groups, and labor groups, including the United Textile Workers (A. F. of L.) and the union Label Trades Department of the A. F. of L. The measure would require manufacturers of wool products to distinguish by label the difference between virgin wool and shoddy or reworked wool goods.

As a hint of the pending minority fight against the bill Senator Austin, Republican, of Vermont, charged the bill is designed for the benefit of a small class of persons without any benefit accruing to the consumers.

Supporters of the measure believe that its passage would result in an increased demand for virgin wool to the benefit of wool growers, as well as a great increase in the quality of woolen goods placed on the market—a benefit to the consumer which would much more than offset any slight rise in prices which might result.

Difference in Cost Small

J. Byron Kilson, secretary of the Wyoming Wool Growers' Association, reports that the difference in the cost of manufacture of a suit of virgin wool and one of reclaimed wool is only $2.26.

Tests which have been conducted for the association," said Wilson, "show that the virgin wool suit has more than five times the wearing qualities of the reworked wool product. Under an abrasion test a sample of virgin wool cloth withstood 26,000 rubs and was still in fair condition, although worn thin. A piece of reworked wool cloth of the same weight and appearance was worn through after only 5,000 rubs."

A. F. of L. Lumber Workers' Council In Fast Growth

Portland, Ore.—In less than two years, the Oregon-Washington Council of Lumber and Sawmill Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, has grown from a dream in the minds of a few union men to the mightiest organization the lumber industry has ever known.

So declares officers of the council, which at present is continuing a vigorous program to add local after local until the woods and sawmills are completely organized. President Homer Haney of Tacoma reports almost 150 locals throughout five western states with a membership of 60,000 workers.

Jurisdiction of the council extends from the Canadian border on the north to Mexico on the south. It is affiliated with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, but it maintains a completely autonomous status. Autonomy is guaranteed in its constitution, and industrialism is guaranteed by the scope of the council and the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. From the man who chops down the tree to the man who nails the booard, every worker who handles a piece of wood in his daily toil is eligible for membership in the same union.

The only solid foundation of public liberty is to be found in the full supply of the wants, in the virtuous habits, in the intelligence and consequent happiness of the whole population.—Robert Owen.

Foley announced on behalf of the Nashville Building Trades council that the group will ask the public works administration at Washington to let the prevailing rules of each union govern the working of apprentices on Nashville PWA projects.

PWA engineers last week announced a ruling that only one apprentice worker be used on a job for every four skilled workers. Foley said that he was hopeful of approval of the exemption which would permit the unions to decide how many apprentices are used.

The state association of ers' unions Monday elected Clark, Nashville, president Miller, Memphis, vice-pr H. N. Estes, Jackson, treasurer. The association pleted plans for closer co between painters' organiza all the cities.

Bakers Renew Pact For Three Years With Pay Boost

Hours Reduced, Closed Shop and Check-Off---Union Jelly Will Be Made Here Shortly

Local 25, Bakery and Confectionery Workers, have been doing big business here the last few weeks. Today Business Agent Norwood announced that a new contract has been signed with Colonial and the Cameron & Barr bakeries. The renewal is for three years.

And get this—the contract calls for a 5 per cent wage increase. This October the hours will be cut two hours, and the following October another two hours, with the same pay.

Closed shop and check-off is also part of the agreement.

Norwood also announced that the Lookout Preserve and Jelly company has signed an agreement which will give Chattanooga some fine jellies and preserves with the union label.

Typo Auxiliary Meets

Typographical Auxiliary 219 met Tuesday night, June 14, at the Country Woman's club, with Mrs. L. M. Worthington, president, presiding.

The ladies heard the reports of the various committees. Mrs. M. M. Morris, who has been sick for more than a month, is slowly improving. The members miss her from the meetings.

The auxiliary voted on officers for the coming year for the Women's International Auxiliary to the Typographical union, and the ballots were mailed in to the W. I. A. by the secretary.

Mrs. Jean Pease will serve as delegate to the annual convention of the W. I. A. which will meet in Fort Worth, Tex., on the first Monday in August. This meeting is always held at the same time and place as the International Typographical union convention.

Valentine Reich, father of Robert Reich, died Saturday morning, June 10. Mr. Valentine Reich was general superintendent of Chattanooga Boiler and Tank company for 33 years. He was a member of the Third Presbyterian church and the Masonic Mountain City lodge.

Bob Reich is a member of the Brewery Workers, and had just returned from Nashville, where he represented his local in the Tennessee Federation of Labor.

Masterpiece of Union Bakers' Art to White House As Labor's Token of Good Will to King and Queen

Washington. — Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins on June 7 presented to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, on behalf of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America, a masterpiece of the confectioner's art as a token of good will from the workers of the United States toward the king and queen of England.

The relationship of the bakers of the United States to the British crown goes back to 1590, when the Company of White Bread Bakers of London were given letters patent entitling them to a coat of arms. The coat of arms in the union label of the Bakery Workers of America is based partly upon this precedent. However, it is more democratic in design because the place of honor is given to the tools of the bakers' trade instead of to the trappings of knighthood.

A. A. Myrup, secretary-treasurer of the Bakery Workers, praised the work of Clement, of Washington, who carried out the design, as one of the finest examples of the confectioners' art in the history of baking.

The cake stands over four feet high and is surmounded by a replica of the British crown, complete with candied jewels, resting on a red candy pillow. The cake is flanked on either side by panels on which Clement has sculptured the coat of arms of the English White Bread Bakers and the coat of arms forming the union label of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers of America.

"As an international union covering both the United States and Canada, it nseems fitting for us to make this visible expression of good will and peace in honor of the king and queen of Canada," said Mr. Myrup.

The cake was given a place of honor in the reception room adjoining the dining room in the White House, where Mrs. Roosevelt had an opportunity to show it to the king and queen.

Now, with Mayor Hague enjoined from stamping on civil liberties, who can think of a way to get an injunction against Hitler?

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins admiring the big cake sent to White House by the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America. On left is plaque showing Ancient British White Bread Bakers' coat of arms. On right is plaque showing Bakery Workers' union label.

Delegate Gleaves Is Honored in Nashville In Unique Manner

W. M. Gleaves went to Nashville last week to represent Local 226, Painters and Decorators, in the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention. Brother Gleaves, earlier in life, had worked in Nashville on the police force.

On the first day of the convention, while on the convention floor, Brother Gleaves tells us that two husky deputies came up to him and placed him under arrest. They carried him to the jail and locked him up in a cell for "being drunk." This seemed peculiar, because he had been on the straight and narrow.

After thirty minutes of contemplation and fuming, the jailer took him from the cell and escorted him to a banquet table, where his old-time friends were awaiting him. Joy reigned supreme.

"I appreciate the honor," Gleaves reported, "but why in the heck did they have to be so all-fired complicated inviting me?"

CARPENTERS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Local 74, Carpenters and Joiners, returned J. L. Carpenter to the presidency last Friday night in its regular election of officers. Along with Carpenter, the permanent fixture, R. L. Malone, went back in as treasurer.

Others elected are Cecil Kilgore to the vice-presidency, H. C. Gray as recorder, Paul Payne as financial secretary, Carl Brook as conductor and A. B. Holt as warden.

Fred Hardin was made a trustee.

High Court Reverses Verdict Against 3 Tepco Strikers

Says 'Confessions' Secured By Promise To Be Let Alone And Be Given TEPCO Jobs

The state supreme court last week reversed a conviction in the Wayne county criminal court of three Tepco strikers who were charged with destroying power company property. A fourth defendant, not a striker, was confirmed in his conviction in the same case.

The three who were granted a new trial are John Teffeteller, Willard Fox and Coy Houston. The fourth is D. L. Staley, a TVA employe.

The indictment grew out of the strike of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers against the Tennessee Electric Power company last year in an effort to secure recognition of the union. During the strike numerous "outrages" were charged, and many strikers were picked up over the state in order to "question" them.

Power lines went down in Wayne county, and the four men were stopped in an automobile and taken to Nashville. An alleged confession was published, and in the trial it was brought out that the three were told that if they would sign a "confession" they would be taken back home, released and not bothered again. In addition it was claimed that they would be given employment by the company.

The court held "this was quite a substantial promise, quite sufficient to influence men in the position of these defendants to make a confession more calculated to serve their necessities than to serve the truth.

"In addition to this . . . we think these men must have understood from the way they were treated that the confessions obtained from them at Nashville would relieve them of any further prosecution. Clearly these confessions were not influenced by conscience, for the record shows that they were repudiated in other statements that defendants made when they were later arrested."

Chief Justice Green made the opinion, and H. G. B. King, of Chattanooga, was attorney for the defense.

AGREEMENT ENDS SEAFARERS STRIKE

New York City.—The strike of Seafarers' International union, an A. F. of L. organization, against the Eastern Steamship company line, has been settled by an agreement. The wage increase of $10 to $15 a month and overtime pay were not granted. Improvements in working conditions were granted.

Twenty-four ships were laid up during the strike, which lasted about a week, and some 3,000 shore employes as well as 1,000 seamen were idle for that period.

A New York taxi owner testifies that he paid $36,000 to a member of the legislature to get "favorable legislation." Rotten, of course. But not long ago, a Wall Street pool skinned the public out of $12,000,000 by boosting oil stock. More moral, or only more expensive?

Europe Is Far Ahead of United States In Residential Buildidg, WPA Finds

Washington, D. C. — A works progress administration report comparing residential building in Europe and the United States is just out; and it is a staggerer.

Sweden and Denmark, in the last decade, have built 350 dwellings to every 1,000 families. The United States, in the same period, has built 94 dwellings to 1,000 families. Germany is rated lowest of European countries in residential building, and yet is 33 per cent. ahead of us.

The report figures that if residential building were increased to the levels of some European countries, it would put 2,500,000 American workers to work. It would mean $2,000,000,000 for material and equipment, and more than twice that sum in building contracts.

The report quotes experts who hold that this country should build a million dwellings a year to keep up with the real needs of the country.

MAKING OF MOVIE BRINGS UNION DRIVE

McCall, Idaho.—The filming of a movie, of all things, has brought great union activity to this community!

Since Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer began location work on "Northwest Passage," hundreds of carpenters and loggers have received jobs. The carpenters promptly organized a McCall local and have received an A. F. of L. charter; lumber and woods workers have asked for a charter, which will be obtained soon; and Federal labor unions have been chartered for other workmen at both McCall and Payette, which is nearby.

The entire location job is unionized and is expected to remain so during all work on the million dollar production.

Green Asks Speedy "Housecleaning" Of Labor Board

The position of the American Federation of Labor on the federation's proposed amendments to the national labor relations act were set forth by William Green in a radio address over the Columbia Broadcasting System network.

Green declared that the situation created by what he called the "tragic" maladministration of the labor act by the national labor relations board and the "destructive philosophy" of the "united front," meaning by the latter the "extremists" on the payroll of the CIO must be remembered at once.

New Board Asked.

"We ask congress to do so," he said, by abolishing the present national labor relations board and establishing a new federal labor board of five members. Only in this way can the nation obtain the necessary housecleaning of a bureau which has wandered far afield from its original functions.

"It has reached the point now where our people, representing the American Federation of Labor and its 5,000,000 members, feel that they are entering a hostile camp when they appear before the board. It is not just our imagination. We knew we are viewed with enmity by the board and its staff. We know that from certain members of the board itself down through the roster of its employes there runs a common bond of sympathy with the CIO.

"United Front" Charged.

"This holds true especially among those political and economic beliefs lean to the left. The extremists on the payroll of the labor board and on the payroll of the CIO have undoubtedly formed a 'united front.' It is a 'united front" of ideas. By sharing a destructive philosophy and letting it influence official judgment they have managed to accomplish as much damage to the American worker as though they had actually sat down together and entered a conspiracy to reshape the American labor movement.

"We hope and trust that a new board will not duplicate the mistakes of the present one. But we must make certain that the wide discretionary powers vested in the board will not be abused in the future. Therefore, in order to assure fair play, we have asked congress to write into the law the rules of the game, rules that will apply to all and guarantee every party equal justice under the law."

Governor Proclaims Union Label Week

Washington, D. C.—"Union Label Week" in California, beginning May 7, was made official with a proclamation by Gov. Culbert L. Olson. Copies of the proclamation were sent to the governors of other states and also to the national and internation officers of American Federation of Labor unions as well as state federations of Labor.

The proclamation said:

"Inasmuch as the union label is the consumers' best assurance that the article so marked is made in America, under fair working conditions, by adult workers receiving American standard of wages;

"Now, therefore, I, Culbert L. Olson, governor of California, do hereby proclaim the week beginning May 7, 1939, as 'Union Label Week' throughout California.

"CULBERT L. OLSON,
"Governor."

The Long Fight Not Lost

The Supreme Court's decision that the Child Labor Amendment to the Federal Constitution is still a lawful and proper subject for action by states means that the long fight for child protection in the highest law has not been in vain. It will be a spur to vigorous action by organized labor, which has always favored this amendment.

The resolution for this amendment was passed by both House and Senate in 1924. It has been fought by almost every propaganda organization that reactionism could muster. The perfectly false and silly declaration that this amendment would keep farm children from doing chores on the home farm has been solemnly made in a score of legislatures; with other assertions quite as bad.

To date, 28 states have ratified the amendment—and 9 of them have admitted that they were first tricked into rejecting it. Eight more are needed. Labor will have a big part in getting them.

A Plain Warning

Arthur J. Wiltse, president of the Ann Arbor Press in Michigan, told a Senate committee the other day why he wanted the repeal of the National Labor Relations Act. He said:

"Threats, coercion and intimidation of employes are not proper causes for legal action, and heavier penalties than are assessed for almost any other offense."

There you have, in few and plain words, the fixed "principles" of financial overlords and their spokesmen. Government shouldn't interfere with industry. The rights and liberties and comforts of 40,000,000 workers are totally unimportant compared to the whims of a few thousand money magnates. Unions are a nuisance, and any legislation to protect them is a curse.

Mr Wiltse's remarks are a plain warning to labor that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

The Speed-Up in the D. J.

The difference in activity in the Department of Justice since Frank Murphy took charge is almost incredible. Records of crooked Federal judges are being overhauled—Manton is merely the first though possibly the worst. A sane, determined effort is being made to enforce the anti-trust laws. Among the many moves on this line is an inquiry before a Federal grand jury in the Southern District of California on the oil monopoly.

The "majors", meaning the companies which control 85 per cent of the gasoline handled on the Pacific Coast, in April, 1936, raised prices of gasoline from 4 to 4½ cents a gallon throughout the Coast area. In March, 1937, another half cent per gallon was added. No good reason exists why a grand jury shouldn't have probed this business three years ago—except the absence of Frank Murphy from the top of the department.

Wilmington Truck Drivers Strike Settled; Closed Shop Agreement Signed by Brinson for S. O. T. Co. and Atlantic States Line

Wilmington, N. C.—A closed shop agreement was signed here last Tuesday between R. L. Brinson, head of the Southern Oil Transportation company and the Atlantic States Motor Lines, and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, covering all drivers and warehousemen employed by the two companies. Signing of the agreement ended a strike begun on the 30th day of October, last year, by fifty-two truck drivers employed by the Southern Oil Transportation company. These strikers are members of Local Union No. 391, Wilmington.

Signing of the agreement also brought to an abrupt end a labor board hearing which started here Monday morning, and recessed at 1 o'clock upon request of both parties, and negotiations for a peaceable settlement were immediately begun.

R. L. Brinson, president of the Southern Oil Transportation company and head of the Atlantic States Motor Lines, personally attended the hearings and later engaged in the negotiations for a settlement. He was assisted by his attorneys, the Hon. J. A. Myatt, of High Point, and Major L. P. McLendon, of Greensboro.

Tommy O'Brien, international representative of the teamsters and chauffeurs, represented the striking truck drivers, and was assisted by Representative Anderson, of Richmond; George L. Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor; C. M. Fox, A. F. of L. organizer who has devoted much time to the interests of the local union; Hon. C. P. Barringer, attorney of Salisbury, former president of the North Carolina State Federation of Labor; R. C. Weigle, chairman of the strike committee for the local union, and other labor officials and representatives.

The agreement calls for a closed shop, with reinstatement of all strikers and protection of their seniority rights, and provides that wage scales shall be adopted through arbitration within ninety days.

The happy ending of the long drawn-out controversy is most pleasing to all concerned. The fifty-two truck drivers involved have stood firmly throughout the more than seven months, and have gained the admiration of the public here by their splendid deportment. The wives of the striking truck drivers have been most helpful throughout the trying period.

Some time ago charges were filed against the company before the national labor relations board. Regional Director Aicher, of the Baltimore office, has given his personal attention to the case, and has been ably assisted by Field Examiner Panello and other board representatives. Chief Regional Counsel Bloom, of the Baltimore office, was in charge of preparation of the case for the board against the company. Consistent suggestions of the labor board officials that the case be settled peaceably has been influential in bringing about the happy ending of the case, it is said. Commissioner E. C. Curtis, of the conciliation department of the U. S. department of labor, also contributed largely to the settlement.

The striking truck drivers have had the loyal support of the state federation of labor and all affiliates in North Carolina; the international union, with its powerful local unions from Atlanta to Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and on into the east, and city central bodies and local unions throughout the country, contributions having come even from the Pacific coast. Now that the controversy is happily ended and the men return to work under closed shop agreement, these same forces will throw their vast influence to Mr. Brinson's enterprises.

pies and "Finks" Still Employed y Many Employers, Witnesses ell Senate Committee

Washington.—Testimony has n piling up before the subcomtee of the senate education and or committee holding hearings the La Follette unfair labor ctices bill that a large number employers are still employing es and "finks."

James J. Matles, organizer for United Electric, Radio and chine Workers, named three mpanies—Yale & Towne, of mford, Conn.; Servel Electro-, of Evansville, Ind., and S. W. rber of Brooklyn. All these, sai were listed by the civil rtie committee as employing anti-labor services of the tal Trades Association and Corations Auxiliary company; and are still doing it. Their only mplaint is that employers are ng old and known spies and hir- new ones.

Union Employers Blacklisted.

Non-union manufacturers have cklisted electrical machinery ployers who have signed up h the union, and given their orrs to the recalcitrant few, witsses charged.

Chester Brazier, who said he had en employed twelve years as a bor spy by the Railway Audit d Inspection company, declared that "rail officials are looking forward to the day when investigation will stop, and they can go ahead full blast with the labor spy business."

But the frankest witness was C. M. Kuhl, a "reformed" strikebreaker from Youngstown, who told the committee that the strikebreaker's chief source of revenue is just plain theft.

Street Car Strikes Lucrative.

"Finks will take anything of value that isn't nailed down," he said. "Finks look at street car strikes the way that prospectors look at Klondyke gold.

"They had their heyday during the New Orleans street car strike," he went on. "Fink conductors kept all the fares, and shared them with the fink motormen. They even had to divvy up with the heads of the agency employing them."

President Roosevelt told the Retailers' gathering that a sales tax is an infallible method of making the consumer less able to buy. More truth seldom has been told in fewer words.

Well Organized Drive Against Relief Calls for Labor Action—Farmers in Semi-Arid Regions Co-operate Enthusiastically in Planting Shelter-belts.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—It was plain in Washington long before the Gallup poll took up the subject that there was a drive against relief. It showed in the cutting of the WPA appropriation. It is showing in the increasing talk about wiping out federal relief, perhaps with Uncle Sam standing part of the expense. And labor, which has been for federal relief rrom the first, and which knows that cutting off federal relief under circumstances like the present means something pretty close to slow starvation for millions, may well make itself heard—and felt.

Few people realize how early organized labor saw that unemployment on the depression scale is not a local thing. Leaders of A. F. of L. unions in New York sent out in March, 1930, a call for an "emergency conference." They stated in the call that "breadlines are growing, soup kitchens are increasing; the number of those driven to desperation because starvation faces them and their families is multiplying daily." And they called for a program, to be framed and carried through "by federal, state and municipal authorities," to deal with the depression then on hand, and others which they could foresee.

And only a month later, William Green announced that unemployment had already cost labor a billion dollars in wages.

The drive to cut federal relief to the bone or commit it to the states altogether is bi-partisan, is well financed, and will keep up until labor finds a way to call an imperative halt.

Reports from the U. S. forest service show that the idea of planting shelter belts of trees in the semi-arid region is working out splendidly—though not on the lines first tried. Instead of the government doing everything and on a large scale, the government does half or a shade less, in cooperation with the farmers of those regions. The forest service furnishes the trees and the information, the WPA does the planting, the farmers furnish fence material and cultivation, and clamor for a chance to furnish more.

"The farmers are doing so nearly 100 per cent of their share that the neglect is unimportant," a member of the forest service told me. "They have cultivated the young trees so carefully that more than 65 per cent of them grow. Crops and stock are both protected from dust storms in summer and blizzards in winter."

It began in the spring of 1935, and as one observer has put it: "It has survived searing drought, grasshopper and jackrabbit plagues, and public and congressional criticism." There are now growing 127,000,000 trees, from 3 to 35 feet high; and 150,000 farm dwellers are protected in their stock, and their comfort.

From the letters they write and the questionnaires they answer, comfort comes highest. Which is not strange. One can't be comfortable when his farm is being ruined before his eyes.

Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon-general of the United States, told the senate committee holding hearings on the Wagner national health bill that this bill "can bring our nation to a level of health such as it has never known before."

He said that at least 500 of the 3,000 counties of the United States need new hospitals.

He said that health insurance should be "an important factor in any complete national health program."

The American Medical association opposes health insurance. Somehow, remembering the family doctors I have known, I cannot help feeling that Dr. Parran expresses the bedrock medical sentiment in this country a lot better than the AMA.

HUNGARIAN UNIONS FACE TROUBLE

Budapest.—The possibility that Hungarian trade unions will be dissolved before the May 28 elections was hinted when the Ministry of Interior named a commission to investigate 39 trade unions. The investigators started a search of the offices of the concerns and it was reported that the trade unions might be dissolved if charges that union leaders had "misused" funds of the workers were proved.

NLRB Chairman Expects Board to Give Employers Right to Ask Elections

Chairman J. Warren Madden of the National Labor Relations board, told the house labor committee that he expects the board to modify its regulations to give employers conditional right to petition for collective bargaining elections.

Madden agreed with a statement of Representative Albert Thomas that such a regulation might "eliminate a lot of the difficulty and the unkind things being said about the Wagner act and the board.

"I think it would have that effect," Madden said, "and I haven't the slightest doubt the board will make some change in that direction."

Madden said the question remained of "what limitations ought to be put on this right." He explained that in many cases where employers were caught in a cross-fire of labor conflict, the right of an employer to petition for an election might not solve the difficulty because the contending factions could organize outside pressure such as boycotts.

He explained that the board believes that "unlimited right to petition for elections might do much harm," since "if an employer wants to interfere with a union, one of the most effective ways would be to bring up the question of whether the union has a majority at a time when the union obviously does not have."

A. F. of L. Unions Win Smashing Victory Over Company Union In Burlington Railroad Election

Chicago.—Craft unions affiliated with the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor have defeated the Mechanical Department Association a "dummy" union on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, in a collective bargaining election conducted by the National Mediation Board. The A. F. of L. unions received a total of 2,333 votes; the opposing "union", which was established 17 years ago, 1,875.

This victory, one of the biggest won by railroad labor in recent years, brings more than 4,500 workers into the A. F. of L. It means that all unions affiliated with the Railway Employes Department have established representation rights on the Burlington, one of the few major roads in the country on which there was still a "company union."

Winning unions included the International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers, Sheet Metal Workers International Association, International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Helpers, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers.

Bargaining rights were won by the Firemen an' Oilers three years ago; but the other unions lost out in that election. Next step will be a demand for a contract.

When He Grows up—

Some day this little fellow and others like him will compose the fourth generation to depend on the telephone in their daily activities. How much they will use the telephone is unpredictable, except that their demands will likely exceed today's.

And today's demands on the telephone system are large. The Southern Bell Company served 1,140,000 telephones in 1938, with 18,800 workers who received $26,600,000 in wages. It paid almost nine million dollars in taxes. Each day, an average of 9,582,798 local calls and 130,613 long distance calls were handled.

Telephone employes strive to give the kind of service their customers want. With this traditional spirit of service, backed by continuous scientific research, it is reasonable to expect that the Bell System will still provide the kind of telephone service this little fellow will want when he grows up.

GRADUATES NEED SOCIAL SECURITY CARD

As the graduation season draws to a close high school and college students were advised today to obtain social security account numbers before seeking employment. This advice was given by Louis R. Stein, Jr., manager of the social security board field office in Chattanooga.

"Many employers now insist that a new worker show his or her social security number before taking a job," Mr. Stein said.

"It is much easier to get a number before applying for work, whether temporary or permanent, full-time or part-time, than it is to have to go to our office later and get a card. Meanwhile, the job may be taken by someone else who already has a number. Numbers should be obtained even though there is no immediate certainty of work.

"Any person who works in business, commerce or industry is covered by the federal old-age insurance system, except in a few specific cases. There is no age limit on the down side, so far as coverage is concerned. Workers who reach age 65 no longer are covered under old-age insurance, as the social security law now stands, and deductions from their pay cease at that age."

Social security account numbers may be obtained easily, quickly and without charge in Mr. Stein's office, Room 214 James building, or application blanks may be secured at the local postoffice, completed and mailed to the Chattanooga office. The Chattanooga office serves Bledsoe, Bradley, Grundy, Hamilton, McMinn, Marion, Meigs, Polk, Rhea, Sequatchie counties in Tennessee, and Catoosa, Dade, Walker and Whitfield counties in Georgia.

Green Supports La Follette Bill as Move to End 50-Year Policy of War on Labor Organization

Washington.—The La Follette-T[illegible] bill forbidding certain oppressive practices by employers got off to the senate hearings to a flying start. Senator La Follette (Wisconsin), as one of the proponents of the bill, came first, with the most eloquent plea he has ever made. William Green, quite as naturally, followed with an unanswerable approval of the bill. The American Federation of Labor head said, in part:

"More than fifty years labor has suffered from oppressive practices designed to combat organization by workers to improve their working and living standards. The nature of these practices almost unbelievable. It is hardly conceivable that they took place in a free country.

"The disclosures made in the four reports of the civil liberties committee are startling. They reveal a condition, not only of bitter organized opposition to the principles of collective bargaining, but an opposition characterized by the use and maintenance of private armies and private arsenals, equipped and trained to do battle against attempts on the part of workers to organize for collective bargaining."

Green Proves Charges.

Green gave instances, including 400 armed guards at one plant and an arsenal including machine guns, sawed off shotguns and long range gas guns in another, and then:

"The story of the Remington Rand industrial struggle is one of the blackest chapters in the history of American labor relations. The mass employment of thugs, professional spies and strikebreakers such as the notorious Paul Bergoff, the attempts to bribe union leaders and influence public officials are matters of official record.

"Carefully planned scenes of disorder and violence were staged, to be described to the public as riots, to manufacture public opinion hostile to the strikers."

Unarmed Pickets Fired On.

He told the story of another case, in which hired thugs fired without warning on unarmed pickets and came near lynching by the neighbors. He gave the strongest approval possible to the bill, not only Title I, the main provisions, but also Title II, "which prevents the paradoxical situation of the federal government supporting the condemned practices by contracting for supplies and for the construction of public works with employers engaged in such activities."

J. Warren Madden, chairman of the national labor relations board, gave equally vigorous approval to the measure, and read a list of firms and corporations investigated by the NLRB which followed the forbidden policies.

Frank Murphy, attorney-general of the United States, declared that the bill is both "workable and enforceable."

Mayor Proclaims Union Label Week

Washington.—A Union Label week was proclaimed by Mayor M. W. Harrison, of Collinsville, Ill., for the week of May 15 to 20, inclusive. The mayor's proclamation said:

"The Collinsville Trades council, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, hereby declares May 15 to 20, 1939, as Union Label week in conjunction with a carnival.

"1. That union-made merchandise is always American-made.

"2. That the union label will raise the American standard of living.

"3. That the union label will improve working conditions.

"4. That manufacturers who display the union label pay higher wages, and work their employes shorter hours.

"5. That union-made goods are not made in sweatshops or prisons or by child labor.

"M. W. HARRISON, Mayor."

FINED FOR WAGE-HOUR ACT VIOLATION

Boston.—The Fisher Shoe company, Inc., of Hudson, and its treasurer, Max Fisher, were fined a total of $7,000 in U. S. district court for violation of the wages and hours law. Fisher pleaded guilty both for himself and the company to five separate violations against each involving wages paid 150 employes.

Rapid Progress Reported By Fabricated Metal and Enamelware Workers

Milwaukee.—About forty American Federation of Labor unions, with an estimated membership of 20,000, are affiliated with the International Council of Fabricated Metal and Enamelware Workers, reports Edward Wessa, secretary-treasurer of the council.

The council, said Wessa, has increased its membership by about 5,000 in the last year, and it has tripled it and workers have benefited all along the line since its formation three years ago. Almost all contracts provide for a closed union shop, a 40-hour week with time and one-half for overtime, and seniority rights. Within the last year, agreements have been renewed without reductions in pay and general progress has been made.

Largest company under contract is the American Toy company, of Toledo, O., which has an agreement with Juvenile Wheel Workers' union, Local No. 18528. Three big plants in Milwaukee, Wis., have contractual relations with council affiliates.

The council is headed by Paul Smith, A. F. of L. organizer. The council has made application to the A. F. of L. for an international charter and a union label.

MISSOURI LABOR URGES ROOSEVELT THIRD TERM

Springfield, Mo. — Franklin D. Roosevelt is an "unequalled friend of the wage earners" and there is no logical reason why he should not seek a third term, the Missouri State Federation of Labor convention declared by resolution. The labor delegates urged President Roosevelt to seek another term and said he was an "executive of unsurpassed ability." They elected Congressman R. T. Wood, of Springfield, state president for his twenty-seventh term.

Illinois State Senate Defeats "Labor Peace" Bill, Bitterly Opposed By Union Workers

Chicago.—The state senate has killed a "labor peace" bill to which Illinois labor was bitterly opposed and against which it made a united fight. The measure, introduced by Senator Simon E. Lantz, contained the bad features of anti-labor legislation recently enacted in Wisconsin, Oregon, Minnesota and Pennsylvania.

The motion to kill the bill by striking out the enacting clause was made by Senator Richard J. Daley, of Chicago, who argued that its enactment "would destroy labor's privilege to strike." The senate adopted the motion by a vote of 29 to 16.

Labor Denounces Measure.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly, of Chicago, actively supported the fight against the Lantz bill. Labor leaders, in a joint statement issued just before its defeat, branded it the "most insidiously dangerous labor proposal ever submitted in the Illinois legislature" and appealed to "the people of Illinois to set their faces sternly against the anti-labor proposals of Lantz and his supporters, whoever they may be, and to help the labor movement raise to their proper levels the standards of work and wages for all the working people within the borders of the state."

Hill Store Nonunion

BUILDING TRADES PICKET PROTESTS

Lockout of Meatcutters in 1929 Recalled -- A&P Stores Use Union Clerks As Well As General Friendly Policy With Union Workers

Once again an outraged labor movement in Chattanooga is being forced into a fight to protect itself from a Nashville-owned chain of grocery stores running under the name of H. G. Hill company.

Last week the Chattanooga Building Trades Council placed pickets in front of one of the Hill stores at Douglas and Fourth because of nonunion building "craftsmen" being used. Hill company has already been declared "Unfair" by Central Body as an aftermath of the terrific scrap against the company the latter part of 1929 when the company kicked out every union meatcutter they had employed.

Many members of organized labor are also recalling the fact that Hill company was prosecuted by the city for short-weighing its customers. Ten cases were filed. Nine of them were thrown out on the technicality that the buyer of the short-weight packages could not personally identify the manager of the store. One of the cases resulted in a conviction and a $25 fine.

Besides these two organizations, the Retail Clerks want it known that not one of the Clerks in the Hill stores are members of the Clerks' union. Possibly the Hill clerks have heard of what happened to the meatcutters.

It should also be remembered that the A. & P. stores employ union clerks, and have also made national agreements to employ union labor in every line of its business.

The absentee-owner, Mr. H. G. Hill, from his baronial estate in Nashville, has had frequent trouble with organized labor in Nashville also. However, since all he has to worry about is his steady stream of profits being milked from Chattanooga, it is not likely that he will be interested in anything like protest from Chattanooga.

Not unless that steady stream of profits dwindles.

JAMES SUPPLY GIVES NICE WAGE BOOST IN RENEWED AGREEMENT

The Retail Clerks' union this week announced that an expired contract with the James Supply company has just been renewed with only one change. The change provides for a 5 per cent increase in pay. The closed shop and other fine clauses remain.

Erskine Mabee, who assisted in negotiations, said of Mr. Bickers, in charge for the company, "If all employers would negotiate with organized labor in the same fine, fair and harmonious spirit that he has, there would be much less talk of so-called unrest and discord. We commend him for his attitude."

And Mr. Bickers himself said that after his first year of closed shop conditions in his place of business he was well pleased.

CORYELL & SON SIGN WITH BLDG. TRADES

L. C. Batey, secretary of Chattanooga Building Trades Council, announced this week that the Coryell & Son, manufacturers of petroleum products, had signed an agreement with the building trades to use only union building tradesmen in the future on any of its work.

LIQUOR STORES UNION IS PREDICTION NOW

Jack's liquor store, 115 West Seventh street, is the first of Chattanooga's liquor stores to ask for a union house card from the Retail Clerks' union. The house card has been ordered, and it is predicted by Erskine Mabee that in a few days every liquor dispensary will become unionized.

Bakers Win Victory

Columbus, Ga.—Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union has won a labor board decision against the Collins Baking company, and five men were reinstated and given back pay to Jan. 1. The company was ordered to cease and desist in its fight against the union, and recognize the organization as exclusive bargaining agency. Curtis Sims, international representative of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union, assisted the local in waging the battle for reinstatement of the members who had been discharged for union activity.

The illusion that times that were are better than those that are has probably pervaded all ages.—Horace Greeley.

They Had a Big Time

Members of Local 600 and some of their friends enjoyed a good barbecue meal at the Meatcutters' hall on Market street last Tuesday night. President Herbert Gilreath and Secretary George Henry were in charge of all the arrangements and were ably assisted in the work by Charley Sherlin and other volunteers.

"We believe," said Brother Gilreath, "that these get-togethers are very valuable to our members. Everybody has a good meal and a pleasant evening and gets a chance to talk over union problems with his fellow-workers."

Lodges—"It's disgraceful, Mrs. Skinner! I'm sure two rats were fighting in my bedroom last night."

Mrs. Skinner—"Well, what did you expect for $3 a week—a bull fight?"

KNOXVILLE BUILDING TRADES OBTAIN CLOSED SHOP JOBS

Knoxville.—Knoxville is receiving congratulations from all sections of the country because of the agreement obtained by the Knoxville Building Trades council with two contractors who have the contracts for the housing authority. It is the first general building trades closed shop agreement ever obtained locally. The Building Trades council was organized early in the year, and since its perfection all building trades unions have been experiencing rapid growth in membership.

COLUMBIA CORPORATION SIGN WITH THE BAKERS

Jacksonville, Fla.—A closed shop agreement has been signed between the Columbia Bakery corporation and the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International union, providing for an increase in pay of 12 cents an hour, vacation with pay, time and a half for overtime, and the union label to be placed on all of the products of the company. The Columbia corporation operates the Seybold Bakeries here and in Tampa, and the Stone Baking company in Atlanta. Curtis Sims, international representative of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union, is asking all union workers to look for the label on bakery products and patronize those concerns working under contract with the union.

ATLANTA TEAMSTERS OBTAIN CONTRACTS WITH EMPLOYERS

Atlanta, Ga.—Teamsters and Chauffeurs Local Union No. 728 obtained preferential shop agreements with the K. & L. Transportation, Inc., the Benton Rapid Transit Express Lines, and the New South Express Lines here last Friday evening. There had been short strikes called on the Benton and the New South, and the men who acted as strike-breakers during the short life of the strikes have been dismissed, and all of the old men put back. Seniority was established as of the time the men were first employed by their respective companies.

K. & L. employes did not come out on strike, the management having agreed to sign with the union. Increases in pay obtained are $4 a week for drivers and $3 a week for helpers. Business Representative B. F. Bussell, of Local Union No. 728, and Business Representative J. T. Odum, of Local 459, conducted the negotiations for the workers.

TWO-CENT POSTAGE SOUGHT

Washington, D. C.—Representative Whelchel of Georgia, a member of the House postoffice and post roads committee, has introduced a bill to restore the two-cent postage rate on first class mail. The president, in his annual budget message, stated that the estimates of appropriations for the postal service included in the 1940 budget are predicated upon the enactment of legislation to provide for the continuance during that fiscal year of the three-cent postage rate for first class mail matter other than for local delivery.

Williams Reelected to Presidency of IBEW Local 175

W. L. (Bill) Williams and T. H. Strawn were returned to their offices of president and financial secretary of Electrical Workers 175 at the elections held Tuesday night.

Other officers chosen for the coming year were: John Kennedy, vice-president; Elmer Crosby, recording secretary, and Bill London, treasurer.

T. H. Strawn, L. D. Vaughn, Robert Duncan, William Penn, W. A. Cofer, Bill Cooper and R. A. Harrison will serve as members of the executive board.

The examining board will consist of W. L. Williams, W. C. Harris and William Penn.

W. C. Harris was elected business manager.

These officers will be installed at the next regular meeting of the local, and appointive offices will be made at that time.

E. E. McDaniels, international representative, was present at the meeting and was asked to preside during the balloting.

Court Upholds Right Of Public Employes To Organize

Albany, N. Y.—A supreme court ruling upheld the right of public workers to organize for their mutual welfare, and criticized the state board of standards and appeals for refusing to approve incorporation of the Greater New York Park Employes association.

The case was ldecided by Justice Francis Bergan, who granted the group's petition to compel the board, a division in the state labor department, to approve the association's certificate of incorporation.

"This group of public employes has the right to organize, and under the membership corporation law it has the right to use the corporate form, and no justification of law has been established for the withholding of formal approval of the certificate," the court's opinion said.

SOAP COMPANY BUYS NON-UNION POTTERY

Washington.—The Proctor and Gamble company, Cincinnati, O., is reported to have entered into an agreement with the Shawnee Pottery company, of Zanesville, O., for pottery ware to be used as premiums in connection with the sale of Proctor and Gamble products. The Shawnee Pottery company is a nonunion concern.

"There are thirty-six 'fair' pottery manufacturers in Ohio who have collected bargaining agreements with the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters," said I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, "and there is no need for any Ohio concern to use pottery that does not bear the union label."

Q.—How does Tennessee's foreign white population compare with the United States?

A.—Only 2 per cent of the Tennesseans are foreign-born, while the U. S. has a foreign population of more than 30 per cent, according to the U. S. census.

House Committee Asks Increase in Old Age Pensions

Washington.—The ways and means committee of the house has voted to recommend that the federal contribution to old age pensions be raised from $15 as at present to $20. This makes it possible to have pensions up to $40 a month for all persons 65 years old or over; since the federal government matches the state payment.

Only five of the 25 members of the committee dissented from this proposition. But all members interviewed denied emphatically that was in any case a concession to the Townsend plan, which was defeated by a strong majority in the house.

Porto Rico Included.

The committee also voted to allow Porto Rico to participate in federal grants for dependent children and for maternal and child welfare. All these provisions will go into a bill amending the social security act, and Chairman Doughton says that every effort will be made to get the bill through at this session.

On the same day the committee took this action, Gov. O'Daniel of Texas signed a bill liberalizing the old age pension law of that state, and adding from 65,000 to 85,000 persons to the rolls, which now number 118,000.

No Pension Funds Voted.

It makes eligible for pensions persons who have passed the age limit who have not more than $1,500 property, $1,000 life insurance, or $350 in cash. Homesteads of 200 acres are exempted; and in the oil fields or the neighborhood of growing cities, such homesteads may be worth several hundred thousand dollars.

However, the bill to raise the pension funds has not been passed and the state has borrowed money to pay them so far this year.

Child Labor Amendment Still Subject To Ratification, Supreme Court Decides

Washington, D. C.—The supreme court, by a vote of 7 to 2, has ruled that the child labor amendment to the constitution is still subject to ratification, though introduced fifteen years ago. Suit had been brought in Kansas and Kentucky to annul the ratification of those states, chiefly on the ground that it had been hanging fire too long. The supreme court upheld the state supreme court in Kansas, which had held that the amendment can still be ratified.

Chief Justice Hughes wrote the opinion, but as he was ill at home, Justice Stone read it. Justices Butler and McReynolds dissented.

Mayor Hague Loses.

This, however, is only a part of the division of the court. Justices Roberts, Black and Douglas agreed with a dissent by Justice Frankfurter that the supreme court had no jurisdiction to consider the Kansas case. They also agreed with an opinion by Justice Black that if the court did consider the case, it should hold the amendment still open to ratification. Thus there were four separate opinions in the court.

The child labor amendment has been ratified by 28 states. Four more would adopt it.

The supreme court held that Mayor Frank Hague's administration of Jersey City matters violates constitutional guarantees of civil liberty. An injunction against Hague had been granted by the federal district court of New Jersey, and upheld by the circuit court. The decision was also 7 to 2, Justices Butler and McReynolds dissenting.

Mayor Hague's favorite pastimes have been to drive out, thriw in jail or club liberal speakers or labor organizers. On one occasion he refused to let a congressman speak.

Milk Price Order Upheld.

By a 5 to 4 vote, the court reversed an injunction issued by the federal district court of northern New York, invalidating an order which the department of agriculture issued on the prices of milk to be charged by producers to the "handlers" or middlemen. In general, the order raised the prices received by producers, but as there are nine classes of milk, the details are too complicated to quote.

The constitutionality of the order was upheld by Justice Reed, who wrote the opinion, and Justices Stone, Black, Frankfurter and Douglas. Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Roberts, Butler and McReynolds dissented, the last two signing a dissenting opinion.

The majority opinion ruled that when the product in question is to be used beyond state lines, "the power of congress is complete and perfect."

A similar decision by 6 to 3 was read in a similar milk case from Boston.

INCREASED PAY AND SHORTER HOURS FOR WHITNEY DRIVERS

Nashville. — Taxi and Truck Drivers' Local Union No. 327 report that the Whitney Transfer company is now 100 per cent union in Tennessee and wherever its trucks operate in St. Louis, Cincinnati and throughout Kentucky.

On Thursday, June 8, F. L. Medlin, president and business representative, and C. H. Anderson, vice-president and chairman of the organizing committee of Taxi and Truck Drivers' Local Union No. 327, went into conference with officials of the Whitney Transfer company at Bowling Green, Ky., and secured a satisfactory agreement at 6:30 p.m.

This agreement provides all drivers for the company with raises graduated from $5 to $9 per week, while working hours are reduced from approximately 12 to 9 hours per week. All time in excess of nine hours per day to be paid for at the rate of time and one-half, based on 45 cents an hour.

Agreement Signed By Leather Workers

Jasper, Ala.—An agreement was signed here Saturday between the Burton Manufacturing company and United Leather Workers Union No. 65, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, providing for seniority rights, recognition of the union as sole bargaining agency, a 40-hour week with time and one-half for all work done on Sundays and holidays, and for all work done in excess of 8 hours a day or 44 hours a week. S. E. Roper, of the A. F. of L. Birmingham office, assisted the workers in the negotiations.

GOVERNOR CONE VETOES SCHOOL TEACHERS BILL

Jacksonville, Fla.—Gov. Fred P. Cone played politics during the last week with the school teachers in Duval county, when he joined hands with the four members of the school board, who actively and strongly opposed the passage of the teachers' tenure law, which was approved by the Florida legislature.

After passing favorably both houses, the bill was handed to Gov. Cone for his signature, and after allowing the unfavorable members of the school board to present their arguments, Gov. Cone's veto message, contents of which are the same inferior arguments of the school board members in opposing the passage of the teachers' tenure law.

Westinghouse research engineers have developed a new miniature glass boiler which is probably the most compact and efficient steam-making plant yet constructed. The heating element consists of coils of resistance wire which become hot when electric current passes through them. Connected with a water supply, half filled with water and plugged into an ordinary electric circuit, the boiler shoots hot steam from a pipe in its top in fifteen seconds. The device is designed to sterilize dishes or glasses at a soda fountain, heat a towel in a barber shop or do any of the many tasks for which a little steam is needed.

FRIDAY, JUNE 23, 1939

To Mr. John Parks

We hope that Mr. John Parks will consider every angle of his proposed suit against the city for back wages due him before he takes definite action. The mayor does not like for people to sue for their wages.

Several hundred teachers have a stronger case against the city for wages than you have, Mr. Parks. The law of the state fixed their wages, while only a poor little bee-stung (but inoculated) commissioner has set yours. Despite the law, our mayor ruled the schoolteachers unconstitutional. When the teachers got silly ideas about American rights of entry into our courts their president was declared ineligible for public service.

How can you, Mr. Parks, just a single individual, have the audacity to think of asking our courts to make the mayor sign your pay check?

The Poorer States

Chairman Altmeyer of the Social Security Board has told the Senate Finance Committee that the Federal contribution to old age aid and to the blind should be varied in proportion to the wealth or poverty of the state, not made a blind 50-50 division between Uncle Sam and the State.

There are well grounded reasons for doing this, though it needs to be guarded carefully. Labor's prime interest is to have competent payments made in these cases. There are states so poor that they can scarcely pay a half of the needed pension, and any well informed person can name them, North and South. Better to have more money come from the central government than not to have it come at all.

There is no apportionment of the expenses of army or navy. There are times when social expenditures should be put, to some extent, in the same class.

Murphy Makes Another Good Move

Attorney General Frank Murphy has asked Congress to pass legislation which will put referees in bankruptcy on Federal salaries. On Murphy's plan, these salaries would never be more than $9,000 a year, and would be fixed by the Attorney General on the recommendation of the senior circuit judge of that circuit. In his request, Murphy says, in part:

"The present system is not conducive to an efficient and inexpensive administration of the bankruptcy act. It imposes a financial burden on estates in bankruptcy, thereby diminishing the amount of assets available for distribution to the creditors. Moreover, the fact that some referees receive a compensation which is much larger than the salaries of the judges who appoint them, is an incongruous and anomalous result for which there appears to be no proper justification."

The only trouble with Mr. Murphy's proposal is that he is too polite about it. He knows perfectly well of bankruptcy proceedings that could scarcely be described in language that will go through the mails. There have even been cases in which referees have drawn from $25,000 a year up while cutting the working force of the bankrupt company to the bone. The only reason they didn't cut wages was that the workers were union men and would strike.

The Murphy plan is good, sound, and—with careful watching—will bring a larger measure of fair play into bankruptcy proceedings than is often found now.

Details Lacking

An erudite professor speaking at a gathering in President Roosevelt's home county told his audience that "it is not relief, but work, that will save society." Now, if he would give details as to how to get work and get paid for it, about three million people on relief will make for jobs as fast as their legs will carry them.

The human race is the only animal whose children enjoy the privilege of looking out of factory windows to watch their elders play.

To Mrs. M.:

The bread you inquired about yesterday is non-union. This Perfection bread is sent in from Nashville, and there is no Bakery Workers' union in that city.

So do not buy it—we have plenty of good union-made bread in Chattanooga. Thanks for asking.

Speaking of Nashville—reminds me of the convention there a couple of weeks ago.

Did you delegates know that the Musicians' union there donated the music for the party at the Gerst camp and for the banquet . . . we owe them a vote of thanks.

While it is true that Nashville is sending in some non-union bread, here's one place where they are ahead of Chattanooga . . . every taxicab in Nashville is driven by a man with a union card in his pocket. Local 495 in Chattanooga had better take notice.

At the convention headquarters in Nashville, the young lady at the cigarette counter told me that they simply could not keep enough Raleigh cigarettes on hand during the convention. She said they had stocked in extra supplies of all union-made cigarettes and had sold a lot of all the union brands, but that Raleighs were leading the field.

Leaving Nashville, ladies and gentlemen, we skip over to Knoxville so that just tribute can be paid to a union meatcutter in one of the recently organized A. & P. stores. We stopped by to purchase a steak on our way to Norris to do a little fishing. After explaining that we had hunted for a union shop, we asked for an extra good steak. We really got a good one.

Enjoyed attending the Knoxville C. L. U. meeting—saw all the Knoxville labor folks and was especially glad to meet several of the Knoxville ladies.

If you want a good place to spend a few days fishing, swimming and vacationing generally, try Norris and Big Ridge Park. It's a nice place and the cabins are unusually comfortable.

P. S. Be sure to ask me about the big fish that did not get away.

YOUR DOLLAR

YOUR DOLLAR will be a regular monthly feature. The facts and opinions given are beased on the monthly reports of Consumers' Union, 55 Vandam Street, New York City, a nonprofit membership organization whose object is to safeguard buyers by testing and reporting on consumer goods. Note especially the information on labor conditions under which products are manufactured.

Antiseptics.

"Good for Germs" should be the label statement on certain widely advertised "antiseptics." For when tested under conditions resembling actual use, not only do they fail to kill disease organisms, but they permit these organisms to grow and multiply.

The greater the advertising ballyhoo, the less, it often happens, is the germ-killing power. Merphenyl Borate, an unadvertised product, is vastly more effective than such products as Pepsodent, Vick's Voratone, or Listerine. Mercurochrome, often used as a painless substitute for iodine, is comparatively ineffective. Lysol, though it is an active antiseptic, is too poisonous for use on the human body.

Iodine is still one of the most satisfactory general antiseptics. It may be used either in the 2 per cent alcoholic solution—Mild Tincture of Iodine, U. S. P.—or in one of the relatively non-irritating watery solutions—Iodine 1.85 per cent, sodium iodide 2.2 per cent in distilled water; or the 5 per cent Lugol's Solution. Highly effective, too, are Merphenyl Borate Tincture 1:500; Tincture Metaphen 1:200; Tincture Merthiolate 1:1000; Mecresin Tincture.

Correction—Union Made Shoes.

Your Dollar for April stated that the W. L. Douglas factory was under contract with Boot and Shoe Workers' union (AFL). This was incorrect. The W. L. Douglas company does have a union contract, but it is with the Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Workers (independent but co-operating with the CIO). The additional statement still holds, that according to report from the union, the Douglas company has marketed under its trademark thousands of shoes bought from the non-union Endicott-Johnson corporation.

Investment Plans.

Few workers can accumulate even as much as $1,000 in a lifetime of saving. Still fewer can achieve old age security.

These are facts that every worker learns. And that's the bait held out by investment trusts, such as Investors Syndicate. They offer plans "to help you save."

A little courage, a little will power, a lot of cooperation from the friendly investment trust, and you'll be sitting pretty with a neat return on your investment, the salesman says. What he neglects to emphasize is that you also need a little cash, paid on the line each month for ten or fifteen years. And should your courage and will power slip, or should you lose your job so that you can't keep up the payments during the first several years, you must take a considerable loss to get out.

So great is the loss of the investor's money on giving up the plan any time during the first five or six years, and so many are the investors who must take that loss, that the companies actually are largely dependent on the new business and the margin from lapsed certificates to meet their operating expenses and interest accumulations.

Here's How They Work It.

You join Investors Syndicate, making monthly payments of $25 to insure your future. After two years' payments, you lose your job, or maybe your wife needs an operation. Anyway, you need immediate cash more than future security. You go to your Investors Syndicate and ask for your $600 back.

"Ah, no," they say in effect. "It would sap your moral fibre and discourage thrift. We will save you from yourself by giving you back only $335." You scratch your head and read the contract—it's all down there, but you never noticed it before. You need the money, you have nowhere else to turn, and so you take the loss. Investors Syndicate chalks up a profit of $265 plus interest, to help meet payments, salaries and promotion expenses for getting new "investors."

Suppose you leave your money in, but miss a year's payments. The company graciously extends your term a year. In other words, they hold your money one year longer, without paying one cent of interest for that year on the money already paid in up to that time.

How Much Security?

Suppose that you, or someone in your family, is able to keep up the monthly payments for fifteen years. You have now paid in $4,500 in actual cash. Towards what? The company's promise to repay your investment plus 4 per cent compounded annually.

We've already seen that the company depends on income from new business and lapsed contracts to meet its operating expenses and payments to investors. Now—supposing fewer contracts lapse? Supposing new sales decrease? What assurance have you now, that fifteen years from now Investors Syndicate will still be in business and able to fulfill its promises?

A look at the company's assets as of the end of 1937 is discouraging. Of over 106 million dollars listed assets, less than nine million was in cash or government bonds, five million was in loans on ceritficates outstanding, and 28 million in mortgages insured by the federal housing administration. Nineteen million was in stocks and bonds, some in default, some very much depreciated from par value, 37 million in uninsured mortgages, and 6½ million in real estate listed, not at market value, but at amount of foreclosure of the mortgage, plus foreclosure costs, plus improvement costs. How much were the real estate and mortgages actually worth? If we can judge by the example of the five leading life insurance companies, investigated recently by the SEC, they were worth much less than the listed values.

It must be realized first of all that this is a private and independent company, not guaranteed by any responsible outside agency. All you have to depend on is the company's assets, fifteen years from now.

What Can You Gain?

The total picture, then, is about like this. You save under cast-iron regulations that don't allow for illness, unemployment or other misfortunes that are bound to come over a span of years. You face the risk of a big loss on a lapsed certificate. All for the promise of a private company, not guaranteed in any dependable way, to pay you 4 per cent on your investment.

A Safer Plan.

There is no need to take such chances.

For those who make enough to save, the United States government offers a safer and more attractive plan.

U. S. Savings Bonds, maturing in ten years, and paying 2.9 per cent compounded semi-annually, are offered for sale in every postoffice. You may buy on weekly, monthly, or other convenient basis. You may return the bond and receive your full investment, at any time after 60 days from purchase. $18.75 invested now brings you $25 in ten years, on the safest security money can buy.

Don't be misled by high-pressure advertising and emotional appeals. No private investment plan is safe for small investors.

(This information is based on articles appearing in Consumers Union Reports for January and May, 1939, by Bernard Reis, financial expert and author of "False Security." The reports may be obtained from Consumers Union, 17 Union Square West, New York City, at the regular price of 25c a copy.)

April Production Falls

Washington, D. C.—Shutdowns at bituminous coal mines and reduction of activity in textile mills was chiefly responsible for a sharp decline in industrial production during April, the board of governors of the federal reserve system reported. At the same time, Secretary Hopkins said that reports from 20,492 independent retail stores show that their sales increased 2 per cent. during April over the corresponding month last year.

AFofL Organizers to Aid Telegraphers in W. U. Drive

Washington, D. C.—Two additional organizers are being assigned by the American Federation of Labor to New York to assist the Commercial Telegraphers' union in its campaign to organize the Western Union Telegraph union, it was announced here by Frank B. Powers, international president.

"The campaigns in New York and Chicago have been highly successful," President Powers said. "Since organizers were first assigned in March by both the AFL and CTU, the Western Union employes have shown increased interest in affiliation with the Commercial Telegraphers' union and withdrawing from the 'company union.'

"We now have two organizers on the job in Chicago, under the leadership of AFL Organizer John Schreier, together with numerous volunteer workers. In New York, under direction of AFL Organizer Rose Sullivan, we have had three organizers since March, and by the end of this week, an additional two will be added.

New York Building Gain

Albany, N. Y.—In April, 1939, 160 industrial building plans were submitted to the state department of labor for approval. This number is nearly 93 per cent. higher than the average number of plans submitted in April during the previous fifteen years. The plans represent contemplated investments totaling $1,394,140 in industrial construction work in New York state outside of Greater New York. The investments represented by the April, 1939, plans are a little more than $500,000 less than the fifteen-year average for April.

Gillespie, Ill.—A strike of 2,000 miners employed in four Superior Coal company mines was ended after company officials agreed to miners' demands to divide available work among the miners. The strike was voted by members of Progressive Mine Workers of America, local No. 1, A. F. of L. affiliate.

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly.

Congress is generous in voting money for everything under the sun—except work relief projects.

Work relief seems under congressional disfavor, for some unemployment by giving the workless man or woman a job. It puts money in the pockets of the idle—money which goes straight into the channels of trade for food, clothing, housing and other necessities, assuring work for others and helping to keep the economic machine in operation.

Surely, work relief should come first on the "must" list of congress. So far, however, work relief has been far from being first on the "must" list. In fact, congress has acted very much as if it was bored with the whole subject and would like to forget it.

The whole nation would be glad to forget work relief, if that was possible. But it isn't and from the looks of things, it will not be possible for a long time.

Work relief is by far the most important subject before congress. The attitude of congress was shown by the $150,000,000 cut last January in the WPA appropriation. The cut was made in the face of warnings by the president and others that not a cent more was being asked for WPA than was necessary. The slash made curtailment of WPA inevitable and reductions in working forces have been going on steadily. With the reductions have come lower business levels and failure of the expected spring rise to materialize.

Now here we are, already feeling the summer let-down in many industries. Not a very bright prospect. And the attitude of congress toward work relief does nothing to brighten the outlook.

Generous provision for work relief would be a big help in changing the picture.

Labor in all camps has for years advocated provision for adequate work relief at adequate wages. Labor is of the same opinion still. It might be well for congress to bear this in mind.

Robert W. Johnson, who shocked hidebound industrialists a few years ago with his advocacy of higher pay and the 30-hour week, says his company will build a plant that will bring lower prices, increased production and higher wages.

It will incorporate the principles of decentralization and simplification and be operated on a 30-hour week.

Johnson, whose company, Johnson & Johnson, manufactures pharmaceutical supplies, says the plant will be constructed "sometime well within a year" on a site not yet selected.

"No one will be put out of work through the operation of this plan," he says.

"Even though new methods may be found, the people on the job will retain their status. All workers will be industrial technicians. None will be laborers."

All of which sounds interesting and will be a good trick if he can do it, especially the part about not discharging workers.

Shreveport, La.—S. B. Davis, 56, of Rodessa, was held by the sheriff's office on June 6 pending an investigation of an assault on two labor organizers.

Deputy sheriffs said they believed hired thugs attacked J. E. Bennett, 40, A. F. of L. organizer from Little Rock, Ark., and Ollie Logan, 39, president of the basket workers of Rodessa, on the night of June 3. The two were in serious condition at a Texarkana hospital.

A. J. Reinhart, general A. F. of L. organizer of Fort Worth, and Homer J. Odell, representative of the Houston Labor Temple, investigated the attack. They said they were "seeing if the authorities were doing their duty."

TEACHERS' UNION HAS PUT UP A VALIANT STRUGGLE

BY PAUL LONG

(Local No. 246)

To understand the American Federation of Teachers as it is today—a healthy and growing newcomer in the labor movement—it is necessary to trace briefly the history of teacher organizations that brought it about.

In the days of the little red schoolhouse, when teaching was a stop-gap occupation for women between their own graduation and marriage, and for men until they could get into politics or the law, no one thought of teacher organization. Certainly no teacher even dreamed of talking back to the school board.

In the 1850's, as communications became easier, a National Teachers' Association was formed. It held annual conventions of apparently anyone who could come, without forming local units. In 1870 it united with the American Normal Association and the National Superintendents' Association to make the National Education Association. One hundred and seventy persons attended this convention, but no mention is made in the records of the positions held by any. It is safe to say that each had to pay his own way and that superintendents and heads of schools preponderated—and predominated. As Ruth Gillette Hardy has said, "The mental picture of a 'teacher' as you still see it stressed in American textbooks of supervision is typically a young, unmarried woman who has little professional training or culture, no professional interest, who will leave in three or four years at most, and who will accept pretty nearly any terms of contract, salary, working hours, or size of class because she knows it is only temporary. Such a teacher needs to be kept under strict surveillance not only in the classroom, where the labor of supervisors has been to create as nearly as possible a foolproof curriculum and set of textbooks, but in her personal life where chaperonage seemed essential, and even today, there are contracts which specify that an employed teacher shall wear skirts of a certain length, keep her galoshes buckled, not receive gentlemen callers more than three times a week, and teach a Sunday School class! Therefore, a teachers' organization existed to discuss the relation of Herbartian Principles to Discipline, but not to interest itself in salaries, size of classes, or personal liberty."

Given the teacher a half century ago, perhaps this was the only feasible course of action for the school boards; but since that time the picture has changed a great deal. First in the large cities, then in smaller progressive communities, there was a demand for good schools and for a permanent body of men and women of real culture as teachers.

Unlike the doctor and the lawyer, the teacher of today is not a professional man, hence his interests cannot be safeguarded in the way in which the professions protect theirs. The answer to this situation has been the inception and rapid growth of the American Federation of Teachers. Local welfare groups of teachers who were especially oppressed—notably those in Chicago, Gary, and New York City—banded together in 1916 in the new affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

For this affiliation there were two sound reasons which appear more clearly in this country than in any other. First, it can never be too strongly stressed that the American labor movement is essentially non-political. It influences legislation by its platform and its active, well-known legislative agents; in this the American Federation of Teachers follows its exple. It endorses individual candidates of various parties on their records or platforms, but it endorses no political party; it puts forward no candidates nor does it, as an organization, raise party funds. Second, the American labor movement from its inception has aimed at the establishment of free public schools without class distinction or stigma of poverty. Before the splendid activities of Horace Mann commenced, the national conventions and state bodies of labor, from 1828 on, passed resolutions and agitated for free schools for all. The two movements coalesced to create the American public school which in many communities today is the only school attended by all classes without thought of seeking any other. American labor has continued to take the keenest interest in these schools and no state or national labor body meets without including resolutions for their support and improvement, often entering into minute recommendations on new types such as the continuation school, textbooks, curriculum and, since 1916, on teacher welfare.

To assert the need for a professional standing for teachers as distinct from the professional place of supervision required courage; to affiliate with their natural allies in the labor movement required more, for they were immediately attacked and have ever since suffered from opposition, sometimes open, sometimes insidious, as "unprofessional" (meaning interested in more than pedagogy). They have appealed, therefore, to people of courage who could think analytically and historically and cannot be caught by labels. The corollary of this is a membership of wide social vision, interested in the advancement of teaching in its broadcast sense and in the welfare of the world community without which no teacher can bring the oncoming generation committed to his charge to a full enjoyment of life.

Throughout the seventeen years of our existence our locals have devoted themselves in their various communities to the task of securing such state legislation and local board action as should secure for teachers the professional status, adequate salary schedules, and favorable working conditions which the National organization has made its objectives.

When a strong continuous local has existed as in New York since 1916, the value of the organization has been demonstrated. New York had a tenure law and a system of certificating teachers by examination free from personal or political influence before that date, but both are constantly subject to attack, often insidious. Every such attack has been defeated and always with the aid, often by the sole activity, of the Teachers Union. We have gained since 1916 a pension law which is a model to any community, based on city and teacher contributions actuarily sound, giving full insurance benefit, and on whose governing board ... ers are equally repres... the city. James L. McDevitt, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, and a speaker at the joint AFL-CIO rally, said that every man in the legislature had been told how labor regarded these bills, and that there was no excuse for them.

Martin F. Brennan, president of District 9 of the United Mine Workers, told the rally that the legislature has passed "laws that would put to shame even the Georgia chaingang laws."

The resolution to carry the matter into the next election seems almost universal.

Spector replaces Alex Rose as an employe representative on the committee. Rose resigned in order to devote more time to his activities in the American Labor Party, he explained in a letter to Andrews.

Cigar Makers' Union to Mark Diamond Jubilee With Celebration in Washington

Big Radio Program To End Three-Day Birthday Party

Reception, Luncheon, Exercises at Compers Memorial and Local Celebrations Throughout the Nation to Feature 75th Anniversary

Washington. — Diamond jubilee celebration plans have been announced by R. E. Van Horn, president of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America. The affair from which all indications will be a gala one, will be held in the nation's capital from July 26 to 28 inclusive.

Marking the 75th anniversary of the Cigar Makers' International union the celebration is a unique one, in that it is only the second time in the history of the nation that an international union has held a diamond jubilee.

Scroll for Van Horn.

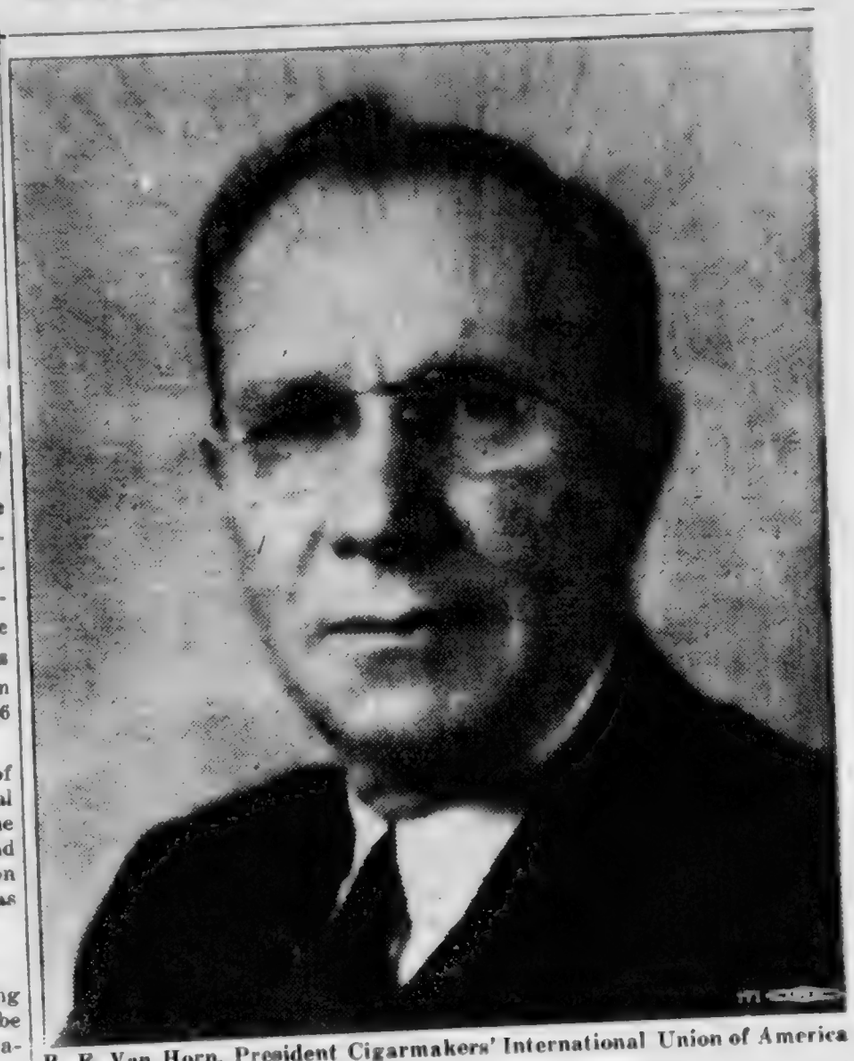
On Wednesday, July 26, morning and afternoon receptions will be held in the offices of the international union, Carpenters' building, Washington, while at 12 o'clock noon there will take place exercises at the Samuel Gompers Memorial in commemoration of his leadership of American labor for half a century. The memorial is on Massachusetts avenue, a short distance from the union's headquarters.

The second day of the jubilee will witness the presentation of an illuminated scroll to President Van Horn in recognition of the diamond anniversary of the Cigar Makers' union. Also, a luncheon will be given by the executive board to officials of international and national unions.

National Air Program

On Friday, July 28, the three-day jubilee will be brought to a close with a coast-to-coast radio program. Celebrations by local unions will occur throughout the country on this day. Prominent speakers, including many government officials, will be in attendance at the affair in Washington.

The eyes of labor will be focused upon this occasion, which promises to be a fitting tribute to the successful efforts which the Cigar Makers have made in behalf of the workers of this nation.



R. E. Van Horn, President Cigarmakers' International Union of America

Cigar Makers Pioneer Union.

From the very beginning of unionization in this country cigar makers' unions have played a prominent part in labor's achievements in the social, industrial and legislative fields. The second oldest international in the history of the nation, the Cigar Makers union traces its ancestry back to the year 1845. In that year, according to available records, the first organization of cigar makers was formed in Cincinnati.

Traditionally famous in the history of America, Baltimore, Md., was a cigar manufacturing center in the early days, and was numbered among the few cities having a union of cigar makers. Other cities included New York, Buffalo, Albany, and Philadelphia.

National Body Formed.

However, the first real achievement toward unity in the ranks of the cigar makers occurred on June 21, 1864, when delegates from several unions held a meeting in New York City and a national organization of cigar makers was formed. New York City was represented by two local unions, one English and one German, and Buffalo, Albany, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Cincinnati had delegates.

Andrew J. Zeitler, of Albany, N. Y., was elected the first president of the national organization. Other unions were advised of the action taken in the New York convention and several agreed by correspondence to join in this new "united front" in the cigar makers' ranks. In July, 1864, about twenty unions having agreed to join, the "Cigar Makers' National Union of the United States" became a permanent labor organization.

Name Changed in 1867.

Because of the desire of Canadian local unions to affiliate with the Cigar Makers' National Union of the United States the name was changed in the convention held in Buffalo in 1867. From that day on the union has been known as the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.

Auto Workers Vote To Join A. F. of L.

Detroit.—The independent United Automobile Workers of America, Homer Martin, president, has voted overwhelmingly to reaffiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

President Martin announced here that of 70,354 votes cast in a recent referendum of the membership, 66,768 favored reaffiliation, while 3,370 were opposed. Others were void or blank.

"The international union has, therefore, now become a part of the A. F. of L., which constitutes the main body of organized labor of America," he said. "We have been recognized by the A. F. of L. as an autonomous industrial union."

The United Automobile Workers withdrew from the A. F. of L. and joined the CIO in 1936. In March of this year, supporters of President Martin established the union as an independent organization at a convention here.

The United Automobile Workers of America is now an American Federation of Labor affiliate, the charter having been restored to the union by President William Green, of the federation. President Homer Martin, of the auto workers, received the charter from Mr. Green at headquarters of the federation in Washington.

Their Sun Is Growing Brighter! By Baer

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources
CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

The forest service ought to go into the movie business. It is doing one of the truly great works of the country. It is snatching back from the winds and dust storms a territory bigger than any European country save Russia. It is doing this by planting shelter belts of trees on a 100-mile strip from the Canadian line down well into Texas.

The 85,000,00 trees planted already are just a start at the work to be done. But a picture showing dust storms, and the planting, and the way the trees are growing, and the children eating watermelons grown in the shelter of those trees and eaten in their shade, ought to "sell" the big idea to anybody.

What few people who have not been there can realize is that an enormous stretch of our semi-arid land is very good soil. It is largely what geologists call "loess," a mixture of wind-blown sand, organic matter and other things. The forest service—a branch of the United States department of agriculture—furnishes the trees and plants them. The farmers furnish land, fencing material and cultivation.

As a result of the combination, trees in these shelter belts, with only two full growing seasons, are running from 12 to 24 feet high. The first tree thus planted was set in the ground March 19, 1935; so none of them, when October comes this year, will have more than five growing seasons, most of them much less. But in half the counties of seven states, the farmers are clamoring for more trees.

Czechoslovaks by tens of thousands are reported slipping over the borders into Poland, some of them going on to Russia. Naturally and inevitably, most of them are young men; and all of them hate the whole nazi regime with an intense and bitter hatred. It is claimed that more than 18,000 of these Bohemians and Slovaks are forming a Czechoslovak legion to swing into the Polish army if war breaks.

No one who knows much of the World war is surprised at all. Czechoslovakia was then part of the Austro-Hungarian empire, Summoned to fight for a regime they hated. They were not given arms until in camp with soldiers of other breeds. They were not allowed so much as white handkerchiefs, lest they should signal the Russians.

The first regiment of Prague went over to the Russian lines, bodily, taking even the band; and tens of thousands slipped over in less dramatic fashion. And when the Russian army went to pieces, the Czechoslovaks in that army marched across Russia and Siberia to Vladivostock.

"At the present time, the invitation of President Roosevelt to a general economic conference still stands. I hope and believe that an exchange of views by the nations may pave the way toward that enduring peace that was hoped for so fervently in 1919 by a weary soldiery and a war-torn world. For this, too, we should be prepared. It may mean for us the opportunity to clarify the social objectives of a lasting peace."—John G. Winant, director, International Labor Office.

Hat Minimum Wage Recommended

Washington.—The wage-hour millinery industry committee has recommended a single national minimum wage of 40 cents per hour for approximately 21,600 workers in both north and south. Officials estimated that the minimum—the highest permitted under the fair labor standards act—would mean pay raises for approximately 3,500 employes, or 16.3 per cent of the industry's workers.

Railway Brotherhood Journal Demands Union-Made Paper

Washington.—I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer, Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, received a communication from Robert L. Glenn, editor of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen's Magazine, stating that the contract on paper for this official railway brotherhood journal will expire in August. Mr. Glenn submitted the names of three paper mills to make certain that his next year's supply of 300 tons would be of union watermarked paper.

Daily the Union Label Trades Department receives requests for names of industries that display the union label on their merchandise. Mr. Ornburn said that he was highly pleased over the fact that the six railway brotherhoods that are not directly affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and all national and international unions, regardless of whether or not they are affiliated with the Union Label Trades Department are demanding the union label on paper and all other products purchased.

New and Modern Building

EVERYTHING in the way of equipment and fixtures is new and up-to-date — nothing has been overlooked that would be a factor in providing maximum shopping comfort and rendering the best possible service. In this new, beautiful store we will make every endeavor to render that type of courteous service that will merit the continuance of the patronage of our old Chattanooga friends and make us many new ones.

WOOLWORTH'S
in Chattanooga

Woolworth's participation in the growth of Chattanooga dates back twenty-two years.

The first store opened at 16 East Main street on Sept. 15, 1917.

The Market Street store opened one week later on Sept. 22, 1917.

In 1930 the store at 16 East Main street was enlarged to take care of constantly increasing business.

We have long felt the need for a larger store on Market street, and our merchandising expansion program finally made it imperative that we seek new quarters. This new store, we feel sure, is more in keeping with the spirit and enterprise of progressive Chattanooga, and we are happy to present this new Woolworth's as a tribute to a city in whose future growth we have every confidence.

INCREASED ASSORTMENT OF MERCHANDISE

The larger floor area permits a wide expansion of assortment in every department and you will find a host of interesting items and lines that have not heretofore been carried in our Chattanooga store.

AN IMPORTANT FEATURE OF THIS NEW STORE IS THE

Lunch Department

All fixtures are of the latest design—stainless steel counter equipment, mechanical refrigeration, thermostatically controlled gas ranges, thermotainers to keep bread and rolls deliciously hot and fresh, the latest developments in sanitary dish washing machinery—and at the counter comfortable upholstered seats with convenient purse and package racks. In the large spacious kitchen we bake our own pies, cakes and hot rolls daily. Fresh vegetables from local markets are used insofar as possible. Whether in its raw state or a finished product, our food is kept under perfect conditions.

TFL Warns Unions Against Schemes of Racketeers

Benefit Dances, Telephone Plugging Condemned As Pitfalls Pointed Out

A warning was sent out by the Tennessee Federation of Labor in its convention in Nashville against the unconscionable misuse of local unions' names and prestige by high-pressure promoters.

Here is the way the promotion racket works:

A glib talking promoter goes before a local union and says: "I will put on a dance and use your name as the sponsor. I will hire the orchestra, pay for the printing of tickets and sell them. All you have to do is to take the hundred dollars I will pay you for the use of your name. You do nothing. I do all the work."

To the unsuspecting union, this looks like Santa Claus. They approve of the proposition.

And here comes the hook. The promoter hires some half dozen high pressure telephone talkers. They call up Mr. Business Man and say, "This is Bill Jones of the So-and-So union at the labor hall. We are putting on a benefit dance to help out the home for crippled members, and the boys felt that you would want to take $25 worth of tickets." Suppose the business man says he cannot take them. He hates to admit that he does not remember good old "Bill." Bill talks like he should be remembered. Then "Bill" says: "Why, the boys will feel awfully surprised that you do not want to help them out. You know, we post the names of all the contributors on the board in the hall so we will know our friends." Frequently this tears down the merchant's resistance and he says he will take the tickets. Within five minutes a messenger is at the office with the tickets and collects the money.

The result is that the business man realizes he has been given a good shake-down. He is sore. Some day in the future the union will need Mr. Business Man's friendly feelings, which has been destroyed.

And what is gained? The union gets one hundred dollars. The high-pressure man realizes all the profits over expenses and one hundred dollars. He usually sells several thousands of dollars of tickets. He usually clears about a thousand dollars for himself in two weeks time. The business man gets no advertising value because no one but the promoter pays any attention to who buys tickets. Many times after the promoter gets the money he skips town without even putting on the dance or paying any bills.

Yet, this is one of the most profitable rackets in existence. Ordinarily hard-headed business men fall for it. They turn down legitimate advertising schemes, only to fall for the glib voice over the phone who says "This is Bill."

And the federation warns its local unions to examine carefully any Santa Claus schemes presented to them.

Sure Way to Economic Liberty!

July Fourth, This Year!

I. M. ORNBURN, Secretary-Treasurer
Union Label Trades Department American Federation of Labor

COLLECTIVE action by the thirteen colonies, in 1776, won political independence for our beloved country. Through a federation of states with the slogan, In Union there is strength," four million people brought forth on this continent what is now the greatest nation on earth.

The Declaration of Independence stated, "All men are created equal and endowed with certain inalienable rights. Among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Now, note carefully these words, "To secure these rights governments are instituted among men deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." That is representative democracy. It is collective bargaining. It resulted in the United States of America.

In the same manner that our forefathers brought about political liberty, over four million members of the American Federation of Labor can obtain economic freedom for all men and women workers in America.

Bona fide labor unions are also democratic institutions that elect representatives of their own choosing to obtain industrial justice through collective bargaining. Our slogan also is "In Union there is strength."

This comparison of labor unions to republics can be carried out to the last degree. We find that almost every principal of political democracy can be paralleled by principles of the American Federation of Labor which is carrying these fundamental rights of democracy into our economic system. We hope to do this in a peaceful manner through collective and cooperative action with the leaders of industry.

Organized labor does accept its obligation to manufacturers and merchandisers of "fair" products. We promise to buy the products and use the services of those certain industries which are unionized.

The best way to reciprocate with "fair" employers is to patronize only those firms that display the Union Label, Shop Card and Service Button. By so doing we uphold collective bargaining by collective buying!

Like a mighty crusade our vast army of twenty-five million Union Label-conscious consumers with an annual purchasing power of six billion dollars must patronize those employers who recognize us. I appeal to all members of labor unions, their families and friends to buy only union-made goods and to patronize only union services.

In 1939, let us make the words, Union Label, ring in the ears of consumers everywhere. We can thus bring forth economic liberty on this continent in the same way that the colonists won the political freedom that we now enjoy.

Famous Painters' Picnic Will Be Held July 13

Bill Gerst Expects to Attend As Special Guest of Local 226

Well, folks, here is what you have been waiting for the last year. Local 226, Painters, have announced they will serve their famous barbecue at their annual picnic next July 13.

For some 'steen years the Painters have had an annual affair, at which friends of the painters and the labor movement, and lovers of swell barbecue, have flocked in large numbers. This year Mr. William Gerst, of the Nashville Gerst brewery, has been invited to come to Chattanooga and partake of some barbecue that will be as good as the meat he served in Nashville to the federation delegates and visitors.

The frolic will be at Warner park. The committee in charge is composed of P. P. Thurston, Paul Saunders, F. S. Thurston, W. Gleaves and Roy Jett.

Plumbers, 'Fitters, Will Give Barbecue At Winnepesauka

Saturday, July 8, Will See Hundreds of Friends at Annual Affair

Local 43, Plumbers and Steamfitters, are sending invitations to attend their annual barbecue and fish fry. This year it will be held at Lake Winnepesaukah on July 8, from 9 till far into the night.

People who have attended these affairs always look forward to going back again, and this year will be no exception. Fat men, thin men and medium sized men will run, pull and tug for all sorts of prizes, and there will be all sorts of refreshments.

Don't crowd, boys. There's plenty to be had.

Clark Bros. Sign Closed Shop Pact With Truck Men

Only Furniture Store So Far to Recognize Union Drivers

Business Agent Blansit, of Local 515, Truck Drivers, announced this week that Clark Brothers furniture house had signed a closed shop contract with his union.

The agreement affects sixteen drivers. Mr. Blansit stated that to date Clark was the only furniture house in this territory that had signed an agreement with the truck drivers local.

It is believed that in a short while an agreement will be reached between Clark and the radio workers union also, which will put Clark in an enviable position to receive the wholehearted support of organized labor.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources
CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

The American Telephone and Telegraph company, head and boss of the Bell system, has more wealth than some small countries. It has much more wealth than the United States had at the time of Washington's inauguration. But the two-volume report on the A. T. & T. by the federal communications commission has been barely noticed. Perhaps, if attention is pointed to just one or two items, interest can be increased.

First, what is the labor record of the Bell system? Not so good. On Dec. 31, 1929, that system had 362,050 employes. On Dec. 31, 1933, it had 250,396 employes. Dividends were kept up and surplus was drawn on to pay them. But at a time when jobs were the most precious things in the land, the A. T. & T.—the Bell system—fired nearly a third of its people.

The Western Electric company is an electric appliance manufacturing company, owned bodily by the A. T. & T. Its profits, the FCC reports, have averaged from 21 to 23 per cent a year on the investment; and the FCC says that "the Western's prices bear no reasonable relation to the indicated cost of manufacture."

On Dec. 31, 1929, the Western Electric had 84,848 employes.

On Dec. 31, 1933, the Western Electric had 21,033 employes.

It is not likely, though entirely possible, that Japan's maneuvers in Chinese ports and on the Chinese coast will lead to direct war with western powers at once. But the calm assumption of Tokio that China is a Japanese province, to be treated as such forever, is anything rather than a suggestion of peace.

China has not much less than 2,000,000 square miles—more than half the area of the United States. Japan has about 150,000—about the size of California. China has more than 400,000,000 inhabitants. Japan has 70,000,000. The natural resources of China are incomparably greater than those of Japan: and it is perfectly clear that the Chinese resent the yoke being pressed upon them.

For Japan to carry out her obvious plans in China would be to set up the greatest slave empire in the world's history. There is no peace for anyone in that prospect.

"War would make as certain as death and taxes that civil liberty would perish in the United States. We are not yet rid of the persecution mania let loose by the last world war and the prospects of another emotional rage are alarming to contemplate. Nor are the almost certain effects of a war upon our domestic economy, now deranged and debt-ridden, to be contemplated with less anxiety. Even a victorious army, on its return home, will not accept the misery of unemployment and destitution such as we now have and which is likely to be augmented after the war speed-up and let-down."—Dr. Charles Beard, noted historian.

SHOE WORKERS OPPOSE BATA FACTORIES IN U. S. AND CANADA

Toronto.—Delegates to the Boot and Shoe Workers' union convention unanimously passed resolutions opposing establishment of branches in the United States and Canada of the famed Bata Shoe company of Czechoslovakia.

They also voted that the governments of both countries be petitioned to refuse entry of technical experts of the company.

J. J. Mara, president of the union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, said the union's opposition to the Bata expansion program was based on the company's "poor labor record."

The Bata company is now awaiting a Canadian government ruling on applications for permission to bring 250 skilled technicians into Canada from its European plants to act as instructors at a proposed new plant which, if present plans are followed, will be erected near Belleville. The plant, however, will not be built unless the technical experts are allowed to enter the country, company officials have stated.

Broadcasters Propose Ban on Sale of Time For Strike Debates

New York City.—Radio stations affiliated with the National Association of Broadcasters would not be permitted to sell time "for the discussion of issues arising from a strike" under the terms of a proposed code of ethics and standard practices on which are association will vote in July.

The code, which will go into effect Sept. 24 if the broadcasters adopt it at their convention in Atlantic City, was made public here at a meeting of the association's sales managers' division.

If time is given for discussion on strikes, the proposed code says, "it will be given on a fair and equal basis to all interested parties. If time is denied, the broadcaster will determine in his own mind that he has attempted faithfully to serve the public interest."

Q.—What is the origin of the word "honeymoon?"

A.—The term was taken from the ancient Germans, whose newly-married couples drank mead with honey for 30 days after the wedding. This name was applied to the period covered by that custom.

A Louisiana planter has made a sugar cane harvesting machine that is reported to have been successfully demonstrated. In a two-day test, the machine, powered by an ordinary tractor, cut through a field of 12-foot cane, topping, stripping and bunching the stalks at the rate of a ton every three or four minutes—the work of about fifty men.

BEWARE OF HIGH PRESSURE 'BENEFIT' DANCES, SAYS TFL

RESOLUTION NO. 5

Presented by J. L. Byrne, Nashville Central Body, and John H. Conroy, Plumber No. 352:

WHEREAS, the activities of high-pressure promoters, claiming to represent organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor in connection with alleged "Benefit" Dances, "Official" Programs, Entertainments, Union Directories, and various other affairs, are increasing in Tennessee; and,

WHEREAS, labor must do its part in curbing and exposing such rackets for the protection of its own organizations, together with friendly business establishments and individuals, who earnestly desire to aid worthy causes sponsored by labor; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the 42nd Annual Convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, in session at Nashville, Tenn., on June 5, 6 and 7, 1939, condemns such unscrupulous impositions on both labor and the general public, and makes the following suggestions for eliminating these unfair tactics in our state:

The public is warned against contributing to any purported "Official" project, publication, or other promotion, claiming sponsorship of the American Federation of Labor, the Tennessee Federation of Labor, or an affiliated council or local union, unless the solicitors present written credentials, signed under seal, by the President of the Central Labor Union of the section in which they are operating, and urge that all telephone solicitations be disregarded altogether, unless the caller is known personally as a representative of labor. It is also urged those contacted by unauthorized "promoters" give immediate notice to the Central Labor Union or other authorities at labor headquarters.

Local unions and affiliated councils of the Tennessee Federation of Labor are warned to use every precaution in accepting promoters' "schemes" to raise funds, as such affairs sometimes appear to be money-makers for an organization, but often leave a trail of losses and misunderstanding after the "promoters" have collected their big "divvy" in advance and left town for more "easy picking."

By the proper cooperation of all concerned, these unfair "promotions" can be eliminated and the Tennessee Federation of Labor hereby pledges itself to enthusiastically cooperate with every measure to end such abuses that reflect upon the good name of labor in our state, and impose upon friends who conscientiously desire to aid labor's worthy projects and causes.

PLANS ARE STARTED FOR 1940 TFL CONVENTION

Erskine Mabee Named To Head Committee

Committee of Five Appointed By Curtis Sims to Plan for Tennessee's Biggest Conclave

Memphis will be the host city to the 1940 convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, and the Chattanooga Central Labor union last night began planning for the biggest and best attendance ever presented in the state.

Erskine Mabee, secretary of Central Body, was appointed chairman of the committee, and was given many assistants: A. C. Kamin, V. W. Hallmark, W. L. Williams, Jean Paul Jones and P. R. Olgiati. The executive board will also work with the committee.

The purpose of the committee is to provide interest, even so far ahead, in the coming convention that Chattanooga will send the largest group of delegates ever sent to a convention. This should not be hard to do. Almost everyone wants to attend the Memphis conventions. The boys in Shelby make excellent hosts, and from the start of arrivals until the last delegate and visitor packs his bag to return home, things are stirring every minute.

2 FURNACE STORES DECLARED "UNFAIR"

The Holland Furnace company and the Chattanooga Blow Pipe and Heating company were declared "Unfair to Organized Labor" by Central Body at Monday night's session.

Several conferences were held with these two concerns at the request of the Sheet Metal Workers but to no avail.

Members and friends of organized labor are urged to remember this when they need such work done.

Labor Day Committee Will Have Session Saturday, July 14

Curtis R. Sims, of Central Body, informed the Labor Day committee there would be a meeting for them at the Patten hotel on Friday, July 14, to discuss plans for the Labor day celebration this year. The following compose the committee:

V. W. Hallmark, George Henry, Jean Paul Jones, I. R. Harold, Elmer Crosby, T. T. Buchanan, C. E. Norwood, Louise Tinker, Mrs. Leo Batey, Blanche Lamb, W. A. Witt, J. L. Carpenter, W. W. Gray, Arch Underwood, Roy Reynolds and Brother Clements.

Tallulah Bankhead hugged her uncle, the senator from Alabama, and begged him to refuse to cut out the federal theater project from the next year's WPA. If it comes to a question of good judgment on that matter, Tallulah Bankhead knows more about the stage than any seven men in congress.

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly.

Lots of Americans are blissfully unaware that they pay taxes.

Light on the number of these innocents is given by the American Institute of Public Opinion, popularly known as the Gallup poll.

The institute, headed by Dr. George Gallup, questioned a cross-section of the voting population in all walks of life, asking each individual whether he or she paid taxes of any kind.

Although virtually every person pays taxes, direct or indirect, the survey indicated that 25 per cent or one-quarter of the population do not think they are taxpayers.

These citizens are in the position of being separated from their money and not knowing it, which speaks well for the painlessness of many of our taxing methods.

Taxpayers' and consumers' organizations still have plenty of work to do, if the Gallup poll accurately reflects the public consciousness of taxation. The tax consciousness campaign is apparently a considerable distance from its goal.

The survey revealed that most of the persons who are not conscious of paying taxes are in the lower income levels—the group earning less than $20 a week.

Yet recent studies show that workers earning less than $20 a week pay taxes of more than $100 a year. These people probably contribute a larger proportion of their income to taxes than do better paid groups.

In their case the taxation wind is not tempered to the shorn lamb.

If all taxes were direct, we'd all be tax conscious. But a very large proportion of taxes are indirect and included in the selling price of articles we buy, hence we don't realize they are there, unless we take the trouble to do a little investigating.

Food, clothing, housing—nearly everything consumed or used has its hidden tax or taxes. In some cases there are a dozen or more taxes on one article.

Renters often say they pay no real estate taxes. If they thought a moment, they would see the foolishness of their statement. If there were no real estate taxes, their rents would be lower. The landlord figures taxes as one of his costs, to be covered by rents. Renters of the nation, as a matter of fact, are big payers of real estate taxes.

That one-fourth of the nation's population is apparently that it pays taxes is a situation that is hardly a laughing matter.

Corrupt politicians may think it funny and congratulate themselves that so many "poor saps" don't know they are being taxed. Lack of tax consciousness plays right into the hands of the dishonest politician, of course, which is all the more reason why every citizen should know how much he pays in taxes, how and when he pays them and how the taxation money is being spent.

Such tax consciousness would benefit the whole nation and make for the betterment of democratic methods and practices.

The house appropriations committee says in substance that Uncle Sam needs $292,695,547 worth of army planes because of Hitler. Probably they're right.

Federal Aid Urged To Raise Rural Teachers' Pay

Washington.—The National Education association has issued a report on the rural schools of America which obviously will attract attention. The average salary of the rural white teacher is less than $900 a year; and there are white teachers getting less than $200 a year. The rural negro school teacher in seven southern states averages $346 a year.

"When one considers the marked rural-to-urban shifting which has almost continuously characterized our population," says the report, "it is clear that the quality of instruction in rural schools is hardly less important to city dwellers than to those who remain in small towns or on the farms."

The National Education association has not formally indorsed any school bill now in congress. But it does say:

"The situation requires, in addition to all that can be done to improve the financing in schools within each state, an equitable plan of federal aid in education based in some degree upon the needs of the several states."

Ancient and Modern Proscription

Our ancient history tells us that in the old days three powerful political figures had just emerged from a successful campaign. Although they had been successful, they felt that they should eliminate those whom they felt had opposed them.

Thereupon, Pompey, Crassus and Caesar met in a tent and in turn they dictated individual names of enemies or even people they disliked. Caesar would say, "Now give me that guy Parks, er, er, I mean Caiuus Gallus." And then Pompey would say, "I'll take that Smith boy. Pardon me, I meant Bono Publicus." And so the list grew, and as the days went on the individuals on that list would quietly disappear, some to show up with cut throats, others executed for various fancied crimes.

We have our proscription list in modern times, just as implacable and almost as deadly.

However, it might be well to note that later on the original triumvirate met with uncomfortable ends themselves.

Labor Waits To Be Shown

It is not good news to labor that J. David Stern has sold the New York Evening Post. As head of the Philadelphia Record, Mr. Stern has been fairer to labor than any other newspaper proprietor of equal scope and power. He has championed the great majority of labor's demands, and has done this in a city where political bosses such as Penrose and Vare had wielded autocratic power for a generation.

George Backer, who has taken over the New York Evening Post, may do as well. In fact, Mr. Stern has given Mr. Backer a very high recommendation. But in this, as in other matters, labor likes to be shown, not told.

...ery Workers Negotiate Agreement ...h Hershey Chocolate Corporation

...y In 1937 the Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union of ..., affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, chartered a local composed ... of employes of the Hershey Chocolate Corporation, of Hershey, Pa. The committee for ... industrial organization, condemned by the American Federation of Labor as an organi... national to the federation, raided the Hershey group. During the months that fol... lowed the C. I. O. was routed, the A. F. of L. bakery local strengthened, and finally ... in March of this year the employes of the corporation, at an election held by the na... tional labor relations board, voted overwhelmingly for the Bakery Workers Local union ... as their collective bargaining agent. This article by Secretary-Treasurer Myrup, of ... the Bakery and Confectionery Workers union, reviews the history of the two years' ... organization drive which culminated in the agreement recognising the Hersey local as ... the sole bargaining agent for the corporation's employes.

We are most gratified to announce receipt of a very encouraging and record making report from Local 464 of Hershey, Pa., to the effect that after two months of negotiations with management, the representaives of he locatl union have signed a union agreement with the Hershey Chocolate corporation.

The agreement provides that Local 464 is the sole, exclusive collective bargaining agency for the employes.

The minimum wage rates of 60 cents per hour for males and 45 cents per hour for females (claimed to be one of the highest in the country for the industry), is secured.

A permanent conference committee, composed of representatives from the union and management, is provided to deal with future wage scale adjustments, as well as grievances.

Failure on the part of the conference committee to reach a satisfactory adjustment, agreement provides for the international union being called in, and upon latter's failure question in dispute goes to arbitration.

The 44-hour work week is established, including two weeks' annual vacation with pay, and time and one-half for novertime and holidays.

In the conferences the company was represented by its chief executives, the president, secretary-treasurer and general counsel, as well as Mr. Hershey himself, while the union was represented by its own negotiating committee; participated in also by the international field representative of that territory, under supervision of the writer, latter occasionally participating in conferences and giving counsel and advice.

Thus is brought to a conclusion for future progress an important page in the history of our international union.

C. I. O. Made False Promises.

For historical background we may state that the first step was in March of 1937 when a group of Hershey employes applied for and obtained a charter from our international union.

However, before the local union could be established and placed on a properly functioning basis, the CIO injected itself into the situation and raided the group by false and impossible promises, and our international union, not desiring of becoming involved in a three-cornered contest with a dual union and management, by choice of the employes themselves, was relieved of the impending fray and its responsibilities.

Nevertheless, we kept constant watchfulness on the situation and, as expected, during the year 1937 a vicious contest took place between management and the CIO, involving vigilants' and citizens' committees, all of which resulted in complete failure on the part of the CIO.

Following on the heels of that catastrophe, a company union was attempted, which was outlawed by the national labor relations board.

New Charter Issued.

Thereupon our international union was approached by a group of Hershey employes, with a desire to become associated with a responsible international union, in affiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

To insure this aim another charter was issued on April 25, 1938, and no sooner was this second charter granted than the union launched a determined membership drive.

During the immediately following months energetic efforts were made by the CIO to regain control of the Hershey situation, during which we firmly established our Local 464, Chocolate Workers.

Because of the continued dual contest of the CIO, the situation had to be brought to attention of the national labor relations board and our local union contended for certification.

Big Majority Choose A. F. of L. Bakery Workers Union.

Even though we had a majority of signatures on the petition, the board failed to certify, but directed that an election take place.

On March 10 such election did take place and in the contest our local union won out by a vote of 1,125 to 733 for the CIO.

Following the usual procedure, the labor board then certified our local union as the sole collective bargaining agency, and agreement negotiations were safely commenced, which terminated in the manner above described. There are between 2,400 and 3,000 employes involved.

As a result of negotiations, it was agreed that copies of the agreement be posted in each department of the plant, in lieu of past notices, to the effect that workers as a condition of employment were not required to join any union.

Large Hershey Local Predicted.

The psychological effect of this provision should result in initiating an intensive and renewed organizing campaign on the part of Local 464 to establish a permanent membership between 2,000 and 3,000. We wish our local successful continuation of such organizational work.

Our Local 464 is managed by a splendid staff of local officers, conscientiously desirous of making good in their new-found responsibilities for the purpose of solidifying their ranks still further for the purpose of improving conditions of the workers, and above all demonstrating to management that the purpose of a union is not alone to serve its membership, but to also serve by making its contribution towards a stable, well-paid and profitable industry, which is so sorely needed at this time in the candy and chocolate industry.

All during past organizing efforts and negotiation period, the sincere and responsible leadership of Local 464 readily saw and followed advice from the international union, and it is admitted that the international union and its officers and representatives were extraordinarily helpful.

The international executive officers want to express their sincere thanks to all those whose wholehearted cooperation made this victory possible. Due acknowledgment is also made of the fair-minded attitude with which management approached all questions during discussions entered into.

It is now to be hoped that these accomplishments will fix the beacon light for all helpless and unorganized candy and chocolate workers throughout the country. When they forge ahead, see the light, and their organization, too, has been accomplished, then indeed will we have the right to acclaim success.

COLORED RAILROAD WORKERS ORGANIZE LOCAL UNION

Spartanburg, S. C.—Charter was applied for last week by a newly organized local union of colored store employes of the Southern Railway company at the Hanye shops. T. D. Grimes, of the A. F. of L. organizing staff assigned to this work, organized the local union and will install the charter upon its receipt. Mr. Grimes also handled a grievance in Atlanta last week for the colored mail and baggage local union, and succeeded in having men reinstated to their jobs who had been discharged.

DATE FOR APPEAL HEARING

Philadelphia.—The U. S. Third circuit court of appeals set June 19 for hearing on the appeal of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers (CIO) from the $711,932 damages awarded the Apex Hosiery company as result of a sit-down strike in 1937. The verdict was awarded the hosiery firm under the Sherman anti-trust act, under which the court tripled the amount of the verdict returned by a federal court jury.

Cigar Makers 65 Years Ago Laid Foundation for Today's Widespread Use of the Union Label

Washington.—When the nation is tuned for the drumroll public celebration of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America, to be held in Washington and throughout the nation from July 26 to 28, inclusive, it will not only mark the 75th anniversary of the union, but it will also hail the 65th year of the use of the union label, by that organization.

The inauguration of the use of the union label in 1874, by the Cigar Makers' unions of that era, was the groundwork for the establishment of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor. During the early development of the union label and the successful struggle against the tenement house system, the cigar makers had Adolph Strasser as the head of their organization.

Strasser, who was one of the outstanding figures in the ranks of the Cigar Makers' union, but who is prominently mentioned in many of the undertakings of that organization, became second vice-president of the international union by appointment of President Hurst in June, 1786.

Led Big Fight.

Elected president of the Cigar Makers' union in the 11th convention, Rochester, N. Y., in September, 1877, Strasser served in that office until 1891. His term in office witnessed the rise of the use of the union label and the great struggle against the tenement house system.

Almost from the very moment Strasser took office, the question of the elimination of the tenement house system of employment was prevalent. In October, 1877, when the international union was at its lowest ebb and social unrest was rife, a general strike of cigar makers was called in New York with more than 15,000 workers involved. The strike was declared by President Strasser to be a "life and death struggle."

Some Progress Made.

The National Cigar Manufacturers' association had declared its determination not to yield to the demands of the workers or to reinstate them in employment so long as they remained members of the union. The strike ended in February, 1878, not as a decisive victory for the workers, but with some benefits accomplished. A reduction in the hours of labor, increased employment and higher wages were obtained.

Prior to these accomplishments, the people in the tenement houses worked from 12 to 18 hours a day, while in the factories they worked from 9 to 9½ hours.

Work Done at Home.

In the early seventies the cigar manufacturing industry, especially in the city of New York, was almost entirely controlled by manufacturers who had their work done in the homes of the employes. Under this system, a certain amount of tobacco was weighed out to the head of families, who, when the specified number of cigars had been made from it, returned the finished product to the manufacturers.

The worker, after having the rent of his tenement deducted, received either cash or a grocery order as his pay. Usually the grocery order was on some store owned or controlled by the manufacturer.

The international union, under the leadership of Samuel Gompers and Strasser, first tried to have the tenement house system outlawed under the taxing power of congress. Failing in this attempt the New York union in 1881 inaugurated an intensive drive to secure remedial state legislation and compiled and published a survey of the tenements in which cigars were made. The survey showed twenty-seven manufacturers in New York City using 1,427 families working from 14 to 18 hours a day and for miserably low wages.

Economic Power Wins.

After several more attempts to stop the manufacturing of cigars in tenement houses, including the enactment and death of a law to abolish this vicious system, the trade unions took the matter into their own hands. Through intensive organization, coupled with union label agitation, the union accomplished by utilization of its economic power what it had failed to achieve in the legislatures.

The cigar makers conceived the idea and have made continuous use of the union label since 1874 when some trademark or emblem became necessary to help check the invasion of Chinese workers in the cigar industry on the Pacific coast.

By 1887 other national and international unions having recognized the potential possibilities of the union label, adopted labels of their own. Notable among these were the hatters in 1885, and the bakers and garment workers who adopted labels in 1886.

Label Department Formed.

This union label agitation resulted in the formation in 1909 of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor. At that time John B. Lennon, of the Journeymen Tailors' union, was elected president, and Thomas F. Tracy, a vice-president of the Cigar Makers' union, was elected secretary. Since then a cigar maker has been continuously elected to an official position in the department, George W. Perkins having been its president, and I. M. Ornburn being the present secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department.

Cigar Makers' First President Killed In Civil War

The Cigar Makers' International union, which was born during the days of the Civil war, had as its first president Andrew J. Zeitler, of Albany, N. Y. Elected to that office in 1864, Zeitler, a soldier in the Union army, was president for only a short time. He was killed in action in the early spring of 1865.

In Church street, near the center of New Haven, Conn., stands the oldest cigar factory in the United States, controlled and operated by the descendants of its founders. In May, 1860, Lewis Osterweise, a young German immigrant, opened a cigar factory on Congress avenue. For almost eighty years this fastory has continuously manufactured cigars, always in complete co-operation with the Cigar Makers' union.

It is claimed that cigars were first manufactured for commercial use in the United States by the wife of a farmer living near East Windsor, Conn., and that the first cigar factory outside of the home was established in Suffield, Conn., in 1810.

Japan may be subbing for Hitler and Mussolini; but there's no doubt but she will come as near annexing China as she can.

New Relief Bill Gives Congress Increased Control Over Work Relief, Sets Monthly Wage

Washington.—The appropriations committee of the house of representatives has reported a relief bill which has nineteen points. Several of these are expected to be points of sharp controversy; others make little change in present practice. In general, the bill gives congress much more direct control of work relief than it has undertaken before.

The outstanding points, whether controversial or not, are these:

The creation of a works progress board of three members, not to take the place of a single administrator. The three will be named by the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and are to receive $10,000 a year each.

Fixed Monthly Wage Proposed.

The elimination of the federal theater, arts, writers, music and historical records projects.

The abolition of the prevailing wage feature of the present law, and the substitution instead of a fixed monthly wage.

The prohibition of any works progress administration project to cost more than $25,000.

The provision that $125,000,000 of the WPA appropriation shall be ear-marked for public works administration heavy construction projects.

The provision that all workers who have been on WPA rolls until Oct. 1, 1939, shall be summarily dropped. Provision is made for their getting back on the rolls after 60 days, but these are not entirely clear.

Sharp Controversy Seen.

The relief bill provides the $1,477,000,000 for the WPA for the fiscal year beginning July 1, next, which the president asked. The ear-marking of $125,000,000 of this for WPA heavy projects may or may not come out of the WPA funds.

Two things are considered on the Hill certain to bring sharp controversy. One is the provision limiting WPA projects to not more than $25,000. Administrator Harrington protested strongly against this, telling the committee that projects above this level were those in which the WPA worked best.

The other is a heavy slash in the appropriation which the president asked for the national youth administration. He asked for $123,000,000, which was cut to $81,000,000.

50,000 Poplar Trees Cut Down by WPA in Chicago

Chicago.—Walter Wright, superintendent of the Chicago bureau of parks, recreation and aviation, reported that during the last three years works progress administration gangs, operating under the sponsorship of the bureau, have removed 50,000 trees, most of them poplars, from the parkways along city streets.

What will be the score?

By Fred W. Braun, the Safety Man

The latest reports show that at least 378 people lost their lives by accident last Memorial day. Think of it—378 lives of people mostly pleasure bent. What a Memorial day it will be for their families—and 205 of them killed in highway accidents! A terrible toll for a holiday.

The next day of danger will be the Fourth of July. Everybody is planning a trip or an outing of some kind. The roads will be crowded with cars—all anxious to reach their destination in the shortest possible time. The call for carefulness will be louder than ever, and unless you wish to contribute your life to the record for the day you will be careful. Remember: the difference between careful and careless maybe your life—won't you drive carefully? Won't you keep in mind the simple traffic rules established for safe driving? Won't you take a few moments more and drive a little slower—moments that are cheap indeed when computed in life and death. Let's not have a repetition of the Momorial day massacre. Celebrate the "Fourth" sanely—carefully—safely—come back—alive!

CIO Asks Injunction Against Electrical Workers' Union

New York City.—The CIO is attempting to use the injunction as a weapon in its fight against the American Federation of Labor.

The CIO's United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers' union sought a federal court injunction restraining the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and fourteen contractors and manufacturers from alleged "boycotting" CIO-manufactured articles.

The complaint named two locals of the A. F. of L. union and seven of their officers. It charged that the defendants started a boycott against companies manufacturing electrical equipment under CIO contract, and therefore deprived the CIO affiliate of rights under the national labor relations act to elect its own bargaining agency.

It was the first proceeding of its kind in the United States.

It's You

You say the world looks gloomy;
The skies are grim and gray,
The night has lost its quiet—
You fear the coming day?
The world is what you make it,
The sky is gray or blue
Just as your soul may paint it;
It isn't the world—it's you.

Clear up the clouded vision,
Clean out the foggy mind;
The clouds are always passing,
And each is silver-lined.
The world is what you make it—
Then make it bright and true,
And when you say it's gloomy,
It isn't the world—it's you.

Federal Deposit Insurance Extended to State Banks

Washington.—Working men and women in communities not served by banks that are members of the federal reserve system are scheduled to benefit from the bill passed by the house of representatives relieving state banks with deposits of $1,000,000 or more from the requirement of joining the F. R. S. to qualify for federal deposit insurance membership after 1941. The measure will extend the benefits of insured deposits to localities not now enjoying them.

Women Answer From 12 States

To date, Touring Reporters have visited the principal cities of the Southern states; have asked 1297 users their famous question: "Has CARDUI help you?"

Of those 1297 users, 1206 said they were definitely benefitted by CARDUI. That's 93 out of every 100. What a record!

CARDUI is a good stimulant for lagging appetites, a real aid to digestion and assimilation. That's why its proper use enables so many women and girls to build up physical resistance, and thus helps them avoid the period pain of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition.

HILL STORES FEEL LOSS IN BUSINESS

Building Trades Declare War To Go On "Forever" If Becomes Necessary

That the H. G. Hill Nashville-owned chain groceries are feeling the effects of Chattanooga citizens' desire for fair play was demonstrated last week from the following report given by a union A. & P. butcher:

"Since The Labor World announced a resumption of organized labor's fight against the Hill stores two weeks ago, my business has picked up twenty dollars per week from former Hill patrons."

It is believed from other reports that many other Hill patrons are going to other groceries, mostly the A. & P. stores. The A. & P. chain is doing business with organized labor in every line of business.

The present skirmishes were renewed by the building crafts after the company refused to have union workers on a store remodeling. That store is now being picketed by the building crafts, and they indicate that in the near future there will be pickets on many other Hill stores in Chattanooga.

This is not the first time the Hill chain of Nashville has mistreated Chattanooga labor. In 1929 the Nashville employer gave his Chattanooga meatcutters a Christmas present in the form of a lockout after he decided that he did not want union labor working for him.

A spirited campaign on the part of Local 600, Meatcutters, practically destroyed the Hill meat markets and badly crippled the grocery business in those units. One part of the bitter memories held by Chattanoogans is the fact that the company was convicted here of short-weighing, while nine other cases were turned loose on a technicality.

The Hill units here have been declared "Unfair to Organized Labor" by Central Body.

Local 226, Painters and Decorators, at its last meeting elected the following set of officers for the coming year:

Trustees are W. M. Pool, C. F. Weidner and F. S. Thurston.

Other officers are Conductor Bob Steffey, Warden H. M. Ottman, Recording Secretary C. H. Thurston, and Business Agent C. H. Thurston.

George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen's Union, was invited to install the charter and administer the oath of office to the ladies who were elected to serve the Auxiliary during its first year.

The auxiliary will be Auxiliary No. 17, to Pressmen's Union, No. 165. The following officers were installed: Mrs. R. C. Reynolds, president; Mrs. Guy Aycock, vice-president; Mrs. J. T. Hoodenpyle, secretary, and Mrs. Paul Reynolds, treasurer.

The charter contained fifteen names as charter members.

Child Labor Found Almost Absent In Five Big Mid-Northern States

Washington, D. C.—Three reports from the Social Security Board give a clear picture of some important labor facts in five states—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin—which form together the second industrial region of the nation.

First, child labor is almost absent in those five states. Only 8,287 boys and girls under 15 received taxable wages in 1937, and a third of them were in Illinois alone. Their total wage bills for that year in the five states amounted to $354,728—about one-twentieth of one per cent of the total wage bills of the same states.

Children's Pay Small

John J. Corson, director of the bureau which gathers and analyzes these figures, points out that in those five states, youngsters must be employed chiefly on errand running part-time jobs. The average taxable wage of children under 15 in Illinois is less than $45 a year.

Next, in these five states, men from 40 to 45 years old earn higher taxable wages than any other 5-year age group. Michigan led, with average wage of $1,585; Indiana was last, with $1,367.

Wages in Age Groups

Men under 45 receive 72 per cent of the total male wages paid in the five states. In Michigan they get 75 per cent; in Illinois it drops to 70. Michigan leads in rate of wages in all age brackets up to 45; above 45, Illinois comes to the front. The average taxable wage of men from 60 to 65 was $1,295 in Illinois; $1,263 in Ohio; $1,227 in Michigan; $1,161 in Wisconsin, and $1,098 in Indiana.

Young men, from 20 to 25, in covered employments, get $918 in Michigan and down to $680 in Wisconsin.

Illinois Women's Pay Highest

Last is annual pay of the working women of these states. The average taxable wage for women in Illinois was $588; in Indiana it was $458; the other three ran between.

In age groups, Illinois led with $727 between 45 and 50. Ohio reaches the peak between 50 and 55, with $685. The other three states reach their peak below 40: Michigan, $699, between 35 and 40; Wisconsin, $621, from 30 to 40; Indiana, $564, from 30 to 35.

Labor Day Committee Will Have Session Saturday, July 14

Curtis R. Sims, of Central Body, informed the Labor Day committee there would be a meeting for them at the Patten hotel on Friday, July 14, to discuss plans for the Labor day celebration this year. The following compose the committee:

V. W. Hallmark, George Henry, Jean Paul Jones, I. R. Harold, Elmer Crosby, T. T. Buchanan, C. E. Norwood, Louise Tinker, Mrs. Leo Batey, Blanche Lamb, W. A. Witt, J. L. Carpenter, W. W. Gray, Arch Underwood, Roy Reynolds and Brother Clements.

TYPO AUXILIARY

Typo Auxiliary 219 will meet next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Country Women's club on Cherry street. Members are urged to be present.

SIGNED PACT SEEN WITH STERCHI'S

Will Be Only Store to Sign Both Radio Workers and Truck Driver Contract

Before The Labor World goes to press again it is an almost certainty hat Sterchi Bros., furniture dealers, will have signed a closed shop with Local 515, Truck Drivers.

Last Wednesday officials of Sterchi's and the union had a most agreeable conference which resulted in a draft being drawn up which only lacks the signature of the head office of Sterchi and the formal acceptance of the union.

Sterchi has already a working agreement with the Radio Workers, making this popular furniture store as nearly one hundred per cent organized as is possible in Chattanooga at this date.

The splendid spirit shown by the management indicates that members of organized labor owe to them the utmost support and friendship.

Cement Council to Meet Here Saturday

The Southeastern Council of Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers will hold its Constitutional Convention at the Hotel Patten, in Chattanooga, Tennessee, beginning at 10 a.m., Saturday, July 8, 1939. A permanent district organization of the workers in the Southeastern territory will be set up at that time.

Among those who will be present at the metting are: Representative Paul Aymon, of the American Federation of Labor; Secretary-Treasurer Toney Gallo, of the National Council United Cement Workers; T. R. Cuthbert, secretary-treasurer Tennessee Federation of Labor; W. A. Pritchett, organizer for the National Council of Cement Workers; Curtis Sims and Erskine Mabee, of the Chattanooga Central Labor Union.

Any other representatives of national or international unions of the A. F. of L. who may be in Chattanooga at that time are cordially invited to be present.

"The International Constitutional Convention, called by President Green, tops off the 1939 activities of the Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers," says V. O. Cunningham, secretary of the local Cement Workers. "We are proud of our new international union and are eager to get the machinery set up for our own International."

The convention will meet on September 11, 1939, in St. Louis, Missouri.

"We are naturally proud of the fact that Federal Labor Union No. 18269 was the first union of Cement Workers to be organized in the United States," Brother Cunningham continued, "and we hope to have our local as Number One in the new international."

Tennessee now has two cement plants and two lime plants operating under signed union contracts—the Signal Mountain Portland Cement company of Chattanooga, the Hermitage Portland Cement company of Nashville, the Gager Lime company of Sherwood, and the Southern States Lime company of Crab Orchard, Tennessee.

U. S. Court Voids NLRB Order Barring A. F. of L. Union From Run-Off Election

Unanimous Opinion Declares That Board's Rule Favoring C. I. O. Union and Keeping the A. F. of L. Affiliate Off the Ballot in the Election of the Consumers Power Company Employes Was Illegal.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Judicial District in a decision handed down here nullified as illegal an election ordered by the National Labor Relations Board to determine the bargaining agent for 3,000 employes of the Consumers' Power Company of Jackson, Mich.

The decision sustained the petition filed by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, challenging the legality of the board's order barring the A. F. of L. affiliate from the ballot in a run-off election of the Consumers' Power Company employes.

In the election held last January by the Labor Board among the Consumers' Power Company employes to select a bargaining agent a C. I. O. union received 1,160 votes and the Electrical Workers Brotherhood 1,072 votes, with 506 workers not voting for either union.

The C. I. O. union asked for a run-off election. The Labor Board granted the request, but barred the Electrical Workers Brotherhood from the ballot, giving the employes only a choice of voting for the C. I. O. union or no union.

The Electrical Workers Brotherhood had demanded a run-off election between the two unions. The brotherhood claimed that the Labor Board's plan could result only in a victory for the C. I. O., or a vote against unionism, the latter result being held unlikely.

The Electrical Workers Brotherhood petitioned the Circuit Court of Appeals for an order against the election planned by the Labor Board on the ground that its method of conducting the election was illegal. The Appeals Court issued a temporary stay just before the election was to be held in April.

"We think the order was illegal and that the proposed election was unfair in effect," declared Judge Xenophon Hicks in the unanimous decision setting aside the Labor Board's order for an election.

Judges Charles C. Simons and Florence A. Allen concurred in the opinion.

"The employe was not given full freedom of choice," the court said. "If he voted, he could either ratify or reject the nominee of the board, but if he rejected it he was through. He had no alternative. He could take the representative offered him or none at all—a parallel of Hobson's choice."

A Safe Offer

"Just insert this advertisement," said a weary-looking man to the clerk:

" 'Five hundred dollars reward to any person who will return black Persian cat to Mrs. ——,' " etc.

"Isn't that a big sum for a cat?"

"It was my wife's pet cat."

"Still—"

"Oh, that's all right. I drowned the —— —— thing."

Q.—What is the significance of the "liberty head" used on American coins?

A.—On the head is the famous "liberty cap," symbolic in America and France of a free people. The symbol arose from a custom in ancient Rome for free citizens to wear conical Phrygian headdress.

Q.—Why does an injury by a rusty nail cause lockjaw?

A.—It is not the nail itself, but the germs often found on the rough surface of a rusty nail which cause lockjaw. Then, too, the jagged wound caused by a nail is the type most suitable for the germ to multiply and spread into the blood stream.

A. F. OF L. CHARGES LEWIS WITH WRECKING PEACE TALKS

Says C. I. O. Dictator's Edict Terminating Peace Negotiations Is a Rebuff to President Roosevelt. Holds That Democracy, Not Dictatorship, Must Rule the American Labor Movement.

Washington, D. C.—An editorial in the August issue of the American Federationist, the official monthly organ of the American Federation of Labor, edited by William Green, president of the Federation, charges that John L. Lewis in his recent public statements has made it evident that the C. I. O. will take no further part in peace conferences and that this position brands the C. I. O. dictator as unwilling to bargain collectively upon matters affecting him.

The result of this attitude, the editorial indicates, will be destructive to labor peace and have a harmful effect on labor legislation and progressive undertakings.

The editorial accuses Lewis of ingratitude to President Roosevelt in wrecking the peace conferences which the President inaugurated. This ingratitude was especially repulsive, the editorial said, in view of the fact that White House influence was a decisive factor in winning the soft coal dispute for the C. I. O. autocrat.

The editorial in the Federationist follows:

"As the months have passed the real issue that has split the labor movement of this country has become increasingly obvious to all. It is between a labor movement self governed, with constitutional procedures and a movement created and controlled by an individual—between the ways of a democracy and the ways of a dictator.

Origin of Secession Movement

"The secession movement had its origin in defiance of the constitutional authorities of the existing organization in order to put into effect policies formed by a minority in the American Federation of Labor.

"The pages of history show that causes start with minorities and win adherents on their merits. But this rebel group was not willing to win on its merits but decided to tear down the home that had sheltered it and on its ruins erect a 'bigger and better' structure.

"But human institutions are not like material structures — they grow together and gain tensile strength from joint idealism, collective endeavor, and the common will that comes from living and working together.

A. F. of L. Methods Outlined

"Our American Federation of Labor is not perfect for it consists of human beings, but it has within it the capacity for development. Every labor movement has its periods of rapid and slow progress and an essential of rapid progress is unity within the ranks of labor.

"There were those within the American Federation of Labor who said:

"'Let's build on what we have, adding to what we have instead of scrapping years of experience.' And so we have done, finding ways to conserve the crafts so essential to a machine era of production, and to organize the workers of machine production and to coordinate the interests of both groups for collective bargaining.

C. I. O. Dictator Scrapped Peace Agreement

"The American Federation of Labor is not all-wise or perfect, but it has made sincere efforts to bridge the chasm between the American Federation of Labor and the secession group. An agreement was worked out satisfactory to the representatives of that group, only to be arbitrarily scrapped by the dictator of the group.

"More recently at the request of the President of the United States peace conferences were initiated. They were suspended because of the coal conferences in progress.

"When the coal companies reached an impasse, the President of the United States intervened effectively to the end that the miners gained a complete victory.

Scorned President Roosevelt

"Then the president of the United Mine Workers, who is also dictator of the rebel movement, instead of manifesting his appreciation of the President's aid which turned defeat into victory, declared that there would be no further participation in peace conferences.

"Despite his deep obligation for help, despite the fact that the President's program relies upon Labor support, despite the repressive labor legislation passed in many states last winter and determined assaults upon state labor departments and proposals to take functions from the U. S. Department of Labor, this dictator declared his unwillingness to bargain collectively upon matters affecting him and thereby sealed the fate of many progressive undertakings and laws.

"No lasting labor movement can be built upon dictatorial policies and principles. The welfare of groups and individuals must not be imperiled by the arbitrary decisions or the personal interests of a dictator.

Union Label to Appear On Well Known Line Of Distilled Spirits

Washington.—The union label will be displayed on "Wilson—That's all" and Union Leader whiskey, El Bart Gin, and other distilled spirits, manufactured by the Wilson Distilling company, Inc., Bristol, Pa., the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor announces. This firm has a collective bargaining agreement with Distillery Workers Union No. 21264, a federal labor union affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

The tripartite agreement was entered into among William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Edward Rittler, president of Local Union No. 21264 of Bristol, Pa., and Joseph H. Reinfeld, treasurer of the Wilson Distilling company, Inc.

At the present time there is a stock of Wilson products on the market that was processed under a union and does not carry the A. F. of L. union label, but as soon as new labels are printed the A. F. of L. emblem will appear on the black label of every bottle of Wilson Whiskey, El Bart gin and other distilled spirits manufactured by the Wilson Distilling company, Inc.

I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department, said: "In the field of alcoholic beverages the union label appears on almost all beer, porter and ale, but this is the first distilled spirits product that has obtained the right to display the union label. It is just more evidence of the progress that the union label is making in all lines of business."

GOVERNMENT CHARGES VIOLATION WAGE-HOUR LAW

Kansas City, Mo.—Criminal prosecution for alleged violations of the federal wage and hour law was initiated in federal court here when the government filed informations against the owners and general manager of the Universal Manufacturing company.

Those charged with employing children under 16 and with failure to pay a 25-cent-an-hour minimum wage were the co-owners, Richard S. Chandler and Mrs. Anna Berkowitz and the manager, Joseph Berkowitz.

The government listed thirty-five counts against the three. Brunson MacChesney, special assistant attorney general, charged that the company employs between 400 and 600 "home workers" and last year reported gross earnings of $75,000. Tickets for games of chance are manufactured, he said.

Why talk of relief as a "temporary affair" when one-third of the households on relief in New York City have no member who can take a job?

"The American labor movement will steadily move toward democratic principles and procedures and will not tolerate dictatorship within its own domain."

The Topmost Tower of Reaction

Vice-Chancellor Maja Leon Berry, high in the ranks of New Jersey judges, has ruled that strikes for union recognition are illegal, because they try to establish a "monopoly of employment." He went on to say:

"Has industry reached the point where his own employes and define his own business policies, to operate on the union or nonunion plan as he pleases?"

Such a perfect example of utter reactionalism should be preserved, indeed, but not in active control of a state's courts. He belongs in the museum class. He ranks with the western judge of forty years ago who laid down the doctrine that there could be no such thing as a peaceful strike; and seems never to have heard of the judicial charter, so to speak, that Chief Justice Taft gave to unions by saying that they rose out of the necessities of the occasion.

Judge Berry is consistent. He has ruled that free speech is a "qualified" right while property rights are "absolute." He has declared, judicially, that "a strike is ended when the places of the strikers have been filled." But he really functions as a horrible example, not as a working judge.

Freedom for Labor Vital

Because the National Labor Relations Board has interfered with the right of the labor movement to make its own decisions, the American Federation of Labor believes that the law should be amended to prevent continuance of this administrative mistake. Freedom for the labor movement is of more importance than any temporary advantage gained by the board deciding a controversy. The precedent of governmental control of voluntary agencies can lead to only one result.

Labor owes it to our democratic institutions to protect our free labor movement against governmental invasions.—William Green in American Federationist.

Uncle Sam Views Housing Needs of the Nation

(Cartoon by Jerry Doyle, Philadelphia Record.)

The acute shortage of decent housing facilities for the underprivileged families of America is finding a keen interest in congress these days. This month, the senate approved a bill to increase the government insured bond authorization of the United States Housing Authority from $800,000,000 to $1,6000,000,000. In the house of representatives, the bill will come before the banking and currency committee presided over by Henry S. Steagall, of Alabama. The measure, offered by Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, also increased to $70,000,000 the authorization for rent subsidies to be paid by the authority.

A Bouquet to the Linemen

Mrs. Jack Underwood.

It's just about time someone handed the linemen of Chattanooga a long deserved bouquet. I mean those men who denied themselves and their families to help the laboring class of people, for that is just what they did when they struck to try to come to an understanding with the Tennessee Electric power company for which they were working. While the strike was not a complete success it made the entire south more labor-conscious. The men gave their all in this great cause and even though the strike was not called off in their favor it was a great step in helping working conditions for the future generations, and after all that's what real men and women in organized labor are working for. There is not only today to be considered but a great many tomorrows and those tomorrows may mean everything for your children and mine. It may mean that they will work like galley slaves for a meager wage or it may mean that they will have a decent living with bright minds and strong bodies to enjoy it with, for like the old saying all work and—shall I say no chance to play—makes Jack a dull boy.

You men should have no regrets for even though you were looked down on by some for the part you played in this great undertaking you know and we all know that a man who will not stand up for his rights is a coward and is worth nothing to a company, to his family or to his country. A man that would not hold up for his own interest would not be likely to uphold a company for whom he is only working.

So I take this opportunity to hand you a much deserved bouquet, and if I know anything at all about the decent side of human nature, those whom you were trying to bargain with have in their minds tossed you a few. You can't help but admire real men and real Americans.

Breath Bad, Logy? You May Need This

Just as the lighthouse flashes a friendly warning to sailors, so Nature sends out headaches, bad breath, biliousness, which often warn of constipation.

Too many misunderstand or neglect those symptoms and thereby may invite a host of constipation's other discomforts: sour stomach, belching, loss of appetite or energy.

LO Takes Steps to Continue Work, Even If European War Begins, Geneva Conference Told

Geneva.—Steps have been taken to continue the work of the International Labor organization at Geneva, even if war should break out in Europe, the International Labor Conference here was told at the opening of its 25th session. Nearly 350 delegates and advisers from forty-six countries were present.

The United States delegation comprises: Assistant Secretary of Labor Charles V. McLaughlin and Carter Goodrich, U. S. labor commissioner in Geneva, for the government; Henry I. Harriman, chairman of the board of the New England Power association, for the employers; and Robert J. Watt, of the American Federation of Labor, for the workers. They are assisted by a staff of four government advisers, three employers' advisers and three workers' advisers.

Edmond Schulthess, former president of Switzerland, was elected president of the conference.

Swiss Ready to Aid.

In his opening speech, Schulthess recalled that it was Switzerland which, fifty years ago, sent out the first invitation to an international labor conference. He also stressed the loyal collaboration of his country in the work of the International Labor organization, and outlined the work being done in Switzerland to improve social conditions.

"In the course of the past year, as in the previous year," he said, "there was no labor dispute of any importance; at this time when her way of life, her characteristics and her achievements are finding expression in a national exhibition which you will visit at our invitation, Switzerland sets an example of social peace and unity which does equal credit to employers and workers and confers benefits on the country and the people."

"People Want Peace."

Schulthess pointed out that, important as are the problems the International Labor Conference will discuss this year, they are overshadowed by the great political conflict which divides Europe and threatens the peace of the world.

"The peoples of the world—and this should be made quite clear here," he said, "want peace and expect their governments to do all they can to maintain peace, as they have all promised to do without exception. Should, however, this confident hope not be fulfilled, we can only approve of the decision which the governing body of the International Labor Organization has taken at this critical time, with the approval of the employers' and workers' representatives, to give the director full powers to take all the necessary measures to insure that even in the event of an armed conflict the work of the organization will be continued in Geneva.

Governments Approve.

"That decision has met with the approval of a number of governments and they can count on the support of Switzerland. Only by such means can the center of an activity be maintained which may have occasion to render outstanding and much needed service by promoting agreement in economic and humanitarian matters."

At the opening session, Charles V. McLaughlin was nominated vice-chairman of the government's group of the conference, and Carter Goodrich as its secretary.

100,000 Shoes for Navy Made in Federal Prison

Washington.—One hundred thousand black dress shoes for the U. S. navy are being manufactured at the Leavenworth federal prison to avoid a shutdown due to operating losses. This information was given to Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, by James Bennett, of the Federal Prison Industries, Inc., in response to a suggestion by the Massachusetts senator that the Leavenworth schedule of production be reduced to lessen interference with private industry.

$150,000,000 Housing Bill Signed by Lehman

New York, N. Y.—Gov. Lehman signed four bills starting New York state on a $150,000,000 low-rent housing and slum clearance program. The measures authorize the state to lend municipalities or authorities not exceeding $150,000,000, of which not more than $50,000,000 may be actually loaned during the next fiscal year. The state is also authorized to subsidize housing projects for not to exceed $1,000,000 a year, of which not more than $250,000 may be expended during the coming fiscal year.

In announcing his signature to the legislation, Gov. Lehman said the purchase of building materials and the employment of thousands of workers on the housing projects would give a new stimulus to business.

4 More Gotham Hotels Sign Union Contracts

New York City.—Signing of union contracts with four more New York City hotels, in addition to several dozen hotels signed up previously, was announced by the New York Hotel Trades council, composed of five A. F. of L. local unions in the hotel field.

The newly signed hotels were the 44-story Essex House, Hotel Alamac, Hotel Sulgrave, and the Hotel Kimberly. The four hotels employ a total of over 750 workers, of whom about 500 are employed by the Essex House.

The main provisions of the union agreement include an immediate $1.00 a week increase for the workers, another $1.00 a week increase beginning July 15, paid vacations, establishment of minimum wages and the union shop.

The hotels Alamac, Sulgrave and Kimberly are owned and operated by the Emigrant Industrial Savings bank. Signing of the contract in these by the management followed establishment of picket lines in front of the bank's offices a little while ago. The picket lines were established, according to a union statement, when the management previously refused to sign any union agreement, although the council had been designated as collective bargaining agency for the workers of the three hotels, through certification by the New York state labor relations board.

Secretary Ickes has declared that "crackpots, bigots and racketeers are a very small minority in this country." But it's easier to see that when they're in jail.

Tragedy of Industrial Insurance Revealed Before Monopoly Committee—White House Musicale for King and Queen Unique Event.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—One of the great tragedies of the American worker and his family has been enrolled before the monopoly committee. It is the tragedy of industrial or weekly payment life insurance.

Here is a table, condensed from one of those laid before the committee, showing the percentage of industrial life insurance policies which terminated during sixteen years by the death of the insured.

1922-1925	6.14%
1926-1929	4.7 %
1930-1933	3.11%
1934-1937	4.01%

In other words, only from 3.11 per cent to 6.14 per cent of these working families received what they paid for. The rest of those policies went out of existence in different ways, the vast majority by lapses, that is, failures to pay.

Here is another table, showing the amount of industrial insurance bought by working families in these years:

1922-1925	$6,768,534,000
1926-1929	12,621,068,000
1930-1933	19,878,956,000
1934-1937	15,827,466,000

And here is another table, showing the total amount they collected out of that insurance in the same years:

1922-1925	$348,409,000
1926-1929	593,336,000
1930-1933	619,269,000
1934-1937	635,160,000

Without a shadow of doubt, the sizable sums which these workers were paid were a godsend to them when they got it. But without a shadow of a doubt, too, they got, collectively, from a little over 3 per cent to a little over 5 per cent of what they had bargained for.

Nothing else in the well planned and certainly well filled visit of the king and queen of Britain to Washington was quite so unique, so ingenious as the musicale which they heard at the White House.

Only in that place of all the world could such a program be given. America is not supposed by the Old World to have much distinctive music. The Windsors—George's predecessor in the World war took that name—can testify that we have quite a lot. Negro spirituals, cowboy ballads, folk songs from the southern mountains and from the early west—they covered a deal more than a century. "Buffalo Gals" was a fairly old song when the president's mother was a girl; and some of those spirituals probably are not as old as this administration.

Schubert and Tschaikowski were there, too; and at the finish, the royal visitors must have felt at home. They sang "God Save the King," which tune we swiped for "My Country 'Tis of Thee;" and the "Star-Spangled Banner," the throat-twisting tune first written for "Anacreon in Heaven."

P. S. Someone should tell some newspaper men that a young range calf is not a "doggie" but a "dogey."

Use of the national guard in labor disputes will be curtailed if a bill introduced by Congressman Coffee, of Washington, becomes law. The bill provides marshal law may not be declared until courts are no longer able to function and that if guardsmen are called out at all they must be subordinate to civil authority and must not abridge freedom of speech, press and assemblage.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States favors "amendment of the Wagner act to give both union and nonunion workers equal protection." What kind of "protection" may be left to the imagination.

In view of the tactics of the Servel company and its refusal to recognize the laws of the country and the bona fide organization of its workers, which finally resulted in a strike, the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers placed the products of the company on the unfair list. This company makes Servel Electrolux refrigerator—a refrigerator operated by gas and the only one of its kind made in this country.

"Violence Greets Guardsmen in Harlem," screeches a morning paper in a six-column 36-point head. But the story relates only a family fight that resulted in the death of a motorman at the hands of his brother-in-law and the shooting of a knife wielder by a deputy sheriff. None were coal miners. Yet Gov. "Happy" Chandler at once called out the militia "to preserve order and protect coal miners." What price happiness?

When the NLRB ordered a secret ballot taken by employes of a Shelbyville (Ind.) glove company the announced result was 34 to 33 for the union. The employer objected, claiming the vote of one employe, "wrongfully excluded," would have shown an equal division of opinion had it been cast. How the employer knew this is also a "secret."

When Frank P. Walsh died suddenly in New York City, organized labor lost a friend of long standing. Though not an affiliant of any union, he had served in many capacities, both state and national, in the interests of labor.

With television we may be able to see the point in some of those radio jokes.

Roosevelt Third Term Asked.

New York City. — President Roosevelt was called upon to become a candidate for a third term "in order to consolidate the achievements of the new deal" by Max Zaritsky, president of the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union, in accordance with a decision of the union's convention, recently held here.

Decent American Standards Kept Up At World's Fair by Union Labor, Culinary Workers' Board Says

New York City.—Far from creating "difficulties for foreign and other concessionaries at the World's Fair the labor unions have established and are maintaining decent standards and stabilized conditions in the organized places at the fair, the World's Fair joint board culinary committee of Greater New York, A. F. of L., declares.

In a letter to Dr. Neil Van Aken, president of the Foreign Government Commissioners club, who recently blamed troubles of foreign concessionaires on the labor unions, M. J. Obermeier, secretary-treasurer of the committee asked a conference with him. Obermeier said in the letter that the committee wanted "to bring to your attention various abuses that exist among certain foreign concessionaires" that should be cleared up and to clarify "the misunderstanding regarding the attitude of the culinary unions which you evidently have."

Says Only Fascists Hired.

At the same time Obermeier in a statement specifically made the charge that in the restaurant of the Italian pavilion at the fair it is the custom to employ only Italians who show proof of affiliation with some fascist organization.

"We especially deplore the un-American method prevailing at the Italian Pavilion restaurant under which waiters' tips are pooled and later divided among the waiters as well as head waiters and others," Obermeier declared.

Charges Low Wages Paid.

In certain of the unorganized foreign pavilion restaurants, Obermeier's statement charged, pay for waiters and waitresses range from nothing a week to $5 to $7 a week, while hours are unduly long and workers are subjected to the speed-up system.

The World's Fair joint board culinary committee of Greater New York has union contracts with the great majority of culinary establishments both foreign and domestic at the fair. The committee was established jointly by the New York and Brooklyn local joint executive boards of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes International Alliance and Bartenders International League of America. The two joint boards comprise sixteen local unions in the hotel, restaurant, cafeteria and club industry.

Sabotage Charge Denied.

"We emphatically resent the intimation in Dr. Van Aken's published interview that the culinary unions were guilty of sabotage by ripping up chairs in one of the foreign pavilion restaurants," said Obermeier.

"We consider this reflection on our unions and their membership so grave that we have placed the matter in the hands of our attorney, Sidney E. Cohn, for action to safeguard our reputation and with a view to preventing any future slanderous statements about us.

"The charge by Dr. Van Aken that nationals of the foreign concessions are not permitted by the unions to be employed by the foreign government agencies is shown to be completely without basis so far as the culinary unions are concerned.

Fair Pay Standards Assured.

"In the first place our contract specifically provides that only one-third of the number of workers employed must be obtained through the union. Besides, there is a clause in the contract expressly permitting the employment by the foreign government concessionaires of their own nationals in various key positions, and such nationals, if brought over for a temporary stay in the country, are to be exempt from the provisions of the agreement.

"The contract does, however, assure workers of a fair American standard of pay and conditions. The minimum for waiters is $12 per week and for waitresses $10 per week until July 1st, when a $1 increase will go into effect. Dishwashers get a minimum of $18."

LET PEOPLE VOTE ON WAR, SAYS SENATOR BONE

Washington, D. C.—A national referendum whereby the people would themselves vote to go to war is "only one part of a whole legislative and educational pattern" designed to keep America at peace, Miss Dorothy Detzer, executive secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, told a senate judiciary subcommittee.

"By itself it could have little value," he said. "But as a single part of a whole peace pattern, it has tremendous value and can help to create the direction and trend of American foreign policy."

Florence Brewer Broeckel, associate secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, argued that the war referendum would be extension of the principles of democracy.

Senator Bone, of Washington, joined Senators La Follette, Nye and Capper in support of the referendum.

"If the people want to vote to commit suicide," he said, "let them be their own executioners. God never made a man smart enough to be their judge and executioner. And not even the grace of God can save a people who want to commit suicide."

STERCHI SIGNS ANOTHER UNION PACT

Grants a "Closed Shop," Pay Boost, Vacations, to Employes in Delivery Department of Store

Last Monday afternoon saw Mr. O. C. Bowdin, head man of the Sterchi Stores, sign his name to a contract with Local 515, Truck Drivers, which is the second department in the popular Chattanooga furniture house to become completely unionized. Sterchi had already made a closed shop agreement with Local 662, Radio Workers.

The delivery contract had some fine features in it. First, every employe gets an increase in the weekly pay. All overtime is price and one-half, and after one year every employe gets a week's vacation with pay.

One of the highlights of the negotiations has been the manner in which they were conducted. As soon as the company was notified of a desire on the part of the union for a contract, a meeting was agreed on and basic principles discussed.

With very little exception the contract clauses were mutually acceptable to management and the union, and as a result within two weeks the complete contract was drafted.

Says H. F. Blansit, business manager of Local 515: "We wish that we had more people like Mr. Bowdin and Mr. Johnson to deal with. They have indicated a tangible friendly feeling toward organized labor that deserves recognition."

And Mr. Johnson, local manager of Sterchi Bros., says: "Tell your members of labor in Chattanooga that our trucks are lined up, waiting to delivery the best furniture values in town to your home."

Notice to Machinists 56

All members of Machinists' are especially urged to be present at the meeting on July 18 at 7:30 in the Memorial Auditorium. (Wheland Hall). There will be important matters to come before the organization.

G. K. AXLEY, Secretary.

Chatt. Bakery Pulls Fast One in Attempt To Evade Contract

Changes Management Wherein Campbell Oil Co. Owner Locks Out Unionists

Something new for Chattanooga. The Chattanooga Bakery, under a signed agreement with Local 25, Bakery Workers, has "sold" its business to some unknown buyers, headed by Mr. Sam Campbell, who sells Shell oil and gasoline all over Chattanooga.

Immediately the "new" management of the bakery declared that it had not bought the union contract; had nothing to do with it, and did not care to have anything to do with the union.

As a result, many of the active unionists in the plant were replaced by entirely new employes.

Mr. Campbell has remained adamant in refusing to deal with the union. Charges have been filed with the National Labor Board.

UNION MAN GIVEN ELECTION POST

Member of Street Carmens Union Gets Important Post

C. R. Cunningham, head of the Young Men's Republican Club of Hamilton County, was named the Republican election commissioner for Hamilton County this week by W. I. Davis, of Tazewell, G. O. P. member of the state election commission, according to an Associated Press disptatch from Nashville.

Cunningham will succeed Tom Weatherford as the Republican member of the Hamilton County election commission. Weatherford was a candidate for reappointment. Elmer Sloan also was reportedly a candidate for the post.

Mr. Cunningham is a member of Local 1212, Street Carmen's Union, in Chattanooga. The appointment is being received by trades unionists of Chattanooga with a great deal of pleasure.

At its annual affair, the union served all kinds of excellent barbecue, fried fish, potato salad, slaw, pickles, olives, lemonade, soft drinks and beer, winding up with ice cream.

During the day various forms of athletics were indulged in not to mention numerous groups participating in "bull-throwing," going over old times and new, showing now ancient pictures of days gone by and generally enjoying themselves.

Brewery Workers Elect Complete Slate For Coming Six Months

Other officers are Vice President Ernest Stutz, Recorder Erskine Fischer, Financial Secretary Bob Reich and Treasurer Charley Davis.

Work Stoppage Honors Two Killed in General Strike

San Francisco.—Twenty thousand members of San Francisco waterfront unions stopped work July 5 for twenty-four hours in a coastwide observance of the anniversary of the death of two workers in the 1934 general strike.

County Court Is Praised For Recommending Raise In School Bus Men's Pay

News' 'Charlie McCarthy' Editorial Is Snickered At By CLU Delegates Monday Night

Central Labor Union last Monday evening sent a resolution of commendation to the county court members who unanimously voted to pay the school bus drivers their increase in pay promised a year previous, and also approved of their present stand regarding school teachers pay.

The resolution was primarily caused by the editorial in the Chattanooga News several days ago that attacked the six "rebel" squires for wanting to "give" the "satisfied" bus drivers $21,000 additional money. The fact has been brought out that the drivers have been protesting their treatment by the county. On the strength of the county's promise to pay them more adequately, many invested in newer and better buses. The pay hike fizzled, and now these drivers drive the buses for exercise, in many instances clearing as much as $10 per month after gasoline, taxes and insurance is paid.

The News' editorial accused one of the "rebel" squires of being Charlie McCarthy and Wilkes Thrasher of being the Edgar Bergen. Many delegates got a quiet chuckle over that paragraph when it was mention that only recently the public press gave information that Judge Will Cummings bought a financial interest in the News.

And not long prior to the purchase of stock in the News, Judge Cummings had been criticized regularly, delegates said.

The resolution said:

Whereas, members of the Hamilton County Court recently agreed to live up to its promise to the school bus drivers and school teachers regarding their pay; and

Whereas, such action has been termed by the Chattanooga News editorially as "a queer sort of economy," at the same time branding the socalled "rebel" squires as Charlie McCarthy; therefore be it

Resolved, by Chattanooga Central Labor Union, in regular session this July 10, 1939, that we commend the members of the Hamilton County Court for their favorable action on the appeals of two groups of underpaid and mistreated employes, who have been promised and betrayed for many years; be it further

Resolved, that we suggest to the public an inspection of the stockholders of the Chattanooga News and then a re-reading of the News' editorial charging some one with being a Charlie McCarthy.

Hill Store Feel Sales Drop As Unions Protest

E. Chat. Hill Meat Market Owned By Loyal Union Man

Further demonstration that the active campaign on the non-union Hill Nashville-owned grocery stores is bearing fruit is evidenced by information received through Local 600, Meatcutters. George Henry, business agent for Local 600, wants the members and friends of organized labor in East Chattanooga to know that Mr. Kidwell operates a union meat market in the Hill stores on Glass street.

Brother Kidwell says that the Hill fight is ruinous to him, and that he is sole owner of the space he has leased in that particular Hill store.

This one meat market is not operated by Hill. The proprietor is a good union man, and deserves union support. All East Chattanoogans are commended for going into the Hill store there and buying meat, but march right out after the meat is bought.

It is suggested that grocery customers look up an A & P store and let the union clerks in those stores wait on them.

The Senate confirmed the appointment of Archibald MacLeish to be Librarian of Congress by a trifling majority of 64 to 8. Nearly every newspaper man in Washington predicted it.

Robert Bruce Hesketh, Long Union Official, Is Dead at 69

Cincinnati, O.—Robert Bruce Hesketh, general secretary-treasurer of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America since 1928, died here on July 4. Funeral services, which were attended by labor representatives from all over the nation, were held on July 7.

Mr. Hesketh, who was widely known and who had a long and useful record of service in the labor movement, was born March 28, 1870, in Great Britain, of Scotch descent. He was identified with the British Miners' Union from 1882 to 1885, working in the mines. From 1885 to 1888 he was an apprentice member of the British Typographical Union. He was initiated in Cooks and Waiters' Union No. 1 of Seattle, Wash., in 1889.

For nearly forty years, Mr. Hesketh was active in the labor and civic life of Seattle, serving in many positions of trust, including that of president and secretary of the Seattle Central Labor Union. He was president of the Washington State Culinary Crafts from its organization in 1922. He was elected to the Seattle City Council as a labor member in 1911 and was re-elected six times. He was president of the city council four terms and acting mayor several months. He resigned as president of the council to take over the union office here, succeeding the late Jere L. Sullivan.

As secretary-treasurer of the culinary workers' organization, Mr. Hesketh, who was known to thousands as "Bob," took a chief part in activities leading to the present prominence of the union in the labor movement. He was a well-known figure at conventions of the American Federation of Labor for many years.

Mr. Hesketh leaves a widow and three children.

Telegraphers' Union Building Strong W. U. Organization

Chicago.—One more step towards the building up of a strong American Federation of Labor union among employes of the Western Union Telegraph Company was taken when the company agreed to the use of a bulletin board in the Washington office and a check-off system for collection of dues from members of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union.

The Labor Board's certification of the CTU in Washington has been officially recognized by the Western Union and negotiations for an agreement are in progress.

The CTU's petition for certification of Indianapolis Western Union employes was heard by the Labor Board in June. An early election or certification is expected, following the precedent set in the Washington case.

Two charters are being issued to cover Western Pnion groups in New York, and considerable progress is also being made in Chicago.

The CTU will intervene in the San Francisco case, where the CIO is asking the Labor Board for certification. "Our information is that the CIO's membership in the Western Union in San Francisco is less than 10 per cent," President Frank B. Powers said here.

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly.

Congress is in the usual session-end tangle, says the newspapers.

Why should it be the usual thing? Why should it come to be accepted that a jam is inevitable at the end of the session?

A headlong rush to pass legislation as adjournment hears means that bills are often not given proper attention before being voted on. Senators and Representatives are in a hurry to get away from Washington.

Thus, too, the session-end jam provides an ideal opportunity for the slipping in of "jokers" which have a good chance to escape detection in the rush to adjourn. In the past more than one anti-labor "joker" has been put in legislation during session-end confusion.

There is no reason why they should not give full value for their pay.

They don't give full value when they fail to give adequate consideration to pending legislation in closing sessions.

If Senators and Representatives are so worn out that they can't stay in Washington as long as is necessary, a recess could be taken for a week or two to give them a rest.

The jam at the end of legislative sessions is one of the old American institutions that give the dictators a chance to jeer.

They are on the lookout for such opportunities. Herr Hitler is especially good at spotting them.

You may be sure he is keeping close tabs on the present congressional situation, especially in the field of neutrality legislation.

Neutrality legislation is a highly controversial subject and deserves thorough consideration and debate, if anything does.

For on it may rest the decision of peace or war for America.

The boys who fiercely denounce dictatorship in Germany and Italy but blandly ignore dictatorship in Soviet Russia are not on the square.

The way to put them on record is to ask them if they are equally opposed to dictatorship in Germany, Italy and Russia. If they dodge the question or refuse to answer it, they are pretty sure to be Communists or "fellow travelers."

The question is a good test of the sincerity of the shouter against Nazism and Fascism.

American Youth Congress, which includes a Communist element, has just been confronted with this test.

The congress, meeting in New York, was asked to approve amendments to its "creed" to condemn Communism equally with Nazism and Fascism as opposed to American ideals. The proposal was voted down by acclamation, whereat representatives of fourteen of the 135 participating organizations left the hall, announcing they were through with the congress.

The walkout apparently gave the congress cause to think and the next day the delegates approved a resolution recording opposition to "all forms of dictatorships, regardless of whether they be Communist, Fascist, Nazi or any other type."

This was not as strong as the original proposal, but apparently it will now be harder for the Communists to use the American Youth Congress as a mask behind which to work for the Russian brand of dictatorship, while at the same time making the well known welkin ring with fervent denunciation of Hitler's and Mussolini's variety.

Employment Faces Decline Unless More Money Is Voted Housing Program, Committee Is Told

Washington, D. C.—Building of decent homes for those who need them most is "the soundest investment that, as a nation of business men, we Americans can make," Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, told the House Committee on Banking and Currency, in urging increase in his agency's bond authorization.

Straus asked the committee to approve two amendments to the Housing Act, one increasing by $800,000,000 the lending power of the USHA and the other adding $45,000,000 to the amount available for annual grants-in-aid to achieve rentals within the reach of low-income families. Both amendments have been adopted by the Senate.

Present funds are all committed, the administrator said, and if USHA is to carry on its program "not by fits and starts, but in an orderly and continuous manner, it is important that more funds be made avainable now."

Most States Co-operate

The administrator said that despite the lack of funds, five additional states (bringing the total to 38) have qualified this year to take part in the USHA program. "Many localities, already participating in the program," he said, "are making only a bare commencement of their attack upon their housing problems and have requested additional earmarkings. Requests already received total well in excess of $800,000,000 and more are being received each day."

Straus pointed out that the pending bill authories the housing authority to enter the field of rural housing, and predicted that if the measure is enacted that problem "will be attacked vigorously, economically and successfully."

Bill to Increase Jobs

He said that without an increase in the authority's bond authorization the peak of employment created by the program will be reached in February and March of 1940 with approximately 160,000 men being furnished employment, and that a sharp decline would follow.

Under the pending bill, however, an employment peak of approximately 235,000 men would be reached about March, 1941, Straus said. Funds provided in the new bill, he added, would provide one-year jobs for about 355,000 men—135,000 on project sites and 220,000 in factories and other places benefitting indirectly.

They will provide decent homes for some 180,000 low-income families and will eliminate an equal number of unsafe, insanitary and unfit dwellings, he said.

Machinists Win Union Pacts With 15 New Orleans Shops

New Orleans.—Fifteen major commercial and ship repair shops signed a union shop agreement with the International Association of Machinists, effective July 1. The agreement calls for a two cent per hour increase in the minimum scale and a substantial increase in a number of other classifications. It is in effect one year.

St. John Longshoremen Ask Grain Rates Cut

St. John, N. B.—The waterfront council of the local International Longshoremen's Association has launched a movement aiming at the reduction of elevator and port charges on grain, in an effort to improve conditions at this port for steamship lines, agents, etc.

The council feels that the prevailing rates are higher than they should be and that the other Atlantic ocean ports of Halifax, Portland, Boston, New York and Baltimore, are being favored by grain shippers because of discriminatory rates at St. John elevators and wharves.

The Attack on Wages

The expected has happened. Congress, following the reactionary committee that handled the relief bill in the House, has abolished the prevailing wage on the WPA. It fixes an arbitary wage for an arbitrary period, from 120 to 130 hours per month; and the new hourly wages are far below the prevailing union wage. In almost every state of the union, skilled workers in particularly are protesting, and thousands are quitting.

Carpenters in New York, for example, have been workin, forty-eight hours in the four-week period for $85.75. They are now required to work 120 hours in the same period for $85.20.

One would think that even a reactionary Congressman would realize that this is a direct attack on the wages of all labor, especially of all skilled and unionized labor. One of the most encouraging things about the recession which the country has been going through since late in 1937 is that the cut in wages has been slight or even negligible. In the south, there has been an increase in most hourly wages since the WPA came on the field; and the result has been a distinct rise in the southern standards of living for labor. Now, Uncle Sam slashes the hourly pay—and what can other employers be expected to do?

Petitions are already coming in asking Congress to reconsider, and unions are certain to do all they can to get the wretched bungle righted.

ome WPA Activities Curtailed Under New Relief Legislation

Washington, D. C.—The relief passed Congress at almost the possible minute, with a total $1,755,600,000 appropriated for ers relief purposes during the xt fiscal year. The bill as it ssed Congress was not so dras- a slash as it was when it ssed the House; but although the changes made in conference e in the right direction, they ve a lot to be desired by labor.

It can best be understood by aling with specific things.

The conservatives wanted com- unities to contribute at least 25 r cent of the cost of all projects. his has been glozed over so that community can pay "in kind" d in some other ways. A rigid 25 r cent cash requirement would ve ruled out a good many com- munities.

Building limitation costs were compromised at $52,000. The House set it at $40,000.

Theater Project Ended

Rotation of employment was a bitter fight. The House proposed to drop everyone who had been on WPA rolls for eighteen months, and make them wait sixty days before getting on again. The waiting period has been shortened to thirty days.

The Federal Theater project was abolished. The whole Arts project was abolished by the House, but the conference saved Writers, Music, Art and historical records. The cost of these things is limited to $11,077,500.

The House receded from its board of control of three members; and the rule of the WPA will be little changed.

The administrative costs, which were cut by the House to $4,500,000, were raised to $5,000,000. The earning schedule requires 120 to 130 hours work a month.

Prevailing Wage Dropped

The prevailing wage provision, which has helped workers in private industry, especially in the south, is dropped. After August 31, "the monthly earning schedule shall not be varied of the same type in different geographical areas to any greater extent than may be justified by difference in the cost of living." There are about seven separate opinions as to how that instruction will work out.

One of the best works of the WPA was saved in the conference. WPA workers have done all the amazingly successful planting of shelter-belt trees in the states on the plains. They will still do so, though the allowance for it is small.

CHATTA. BRICKLAYERS ARE "OFF" WPA

The Labor World has been informed that Local 6, Chattanooga Bricklayers, has voted that its members in the future will not accept work on any WPA project.

Buying of Union-Made Manifold Books Urged

Oakland, Cali.—An appeal to members of organized labor throughout the nation to aid a manifold book from which has signed a 100 per cent union contract with a union of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

The appeal was issued by Manifold Book Workers Union No. 439, an affiliate of the International Printing Pressmen, by Frank Moran, business representative of the pressmen, in behalf of the Sunset-McKee Sales Book Company of Oakland, Cali.

"Every member of organized labor can help this firm, which is playing fair with labor, by looking at sales slips they get with purchases from merchants and other sources and see if they bear the name of Sunset-McKee in the lower left hand corner," Moran said.

"Sales people who use manifold books regularly can be very helpful by urging their employers, or at least diplomatically suggesting to them, to buy sales books from this 100 per cent union firm.

"To organized labor and its friends who believe in the American way, the way of collective bargaining, we now present an opportunity to assist our branch of the labor movement. Competitors of this firm, operating on a national basis, are unfair, and we therefore appeal to all members of organized labor to play ball with someone who plays ball with us.

"By so doing you will help the people of this industry to retain their improved conditions for other members in the industry.

"The firm manufactures all types of manifold sales books, and any inquiries will be gladly received by Manifold Book Workers' Union No. 439, Printing Pressmen, at 408 12th Street Oakland, Cal.," Moran said.

MERIT SYSTEM UPHELD

Montgomery, Ala.—Constitutionality of Alabama's merit system for selection of state employes has been upheld by the State Supreme Court. The court said: "It is generally recognized that the legislature may enact laws providing that appointments to office or to places of employment, according to merit or fitness, shall be determined by examination, competitive or otherwise."

Illinois has passed a lottery law, and 80 per cent of the takes are to go to "clear up slums." Also, and perhaps more effectively, to make more slums. The only good thing about lottery "statesmanship" is that it's not so common as it used to be.

Our ancestors were striking for freedom 163 years ago; but the Nazis of Danzig are striking to be annexed.

To Query Women All Over South

Touring Reporters have now asked over 1,200 women and girls of leading Southern Cities the now famous question: "Were you helped by CARDUI?"

Averaging all replies so far shows that 93 out of every 100 users questioned declared CARDUI benefitted them!

Users by thousands are eager to tell how CARDUI has given them appetite; helped them gain strength; has thus relieved them of the symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition. Many also say that, when symptoms indicate the need, CARDUI in larger doses helps "at the time" to soothe pain.

FACING the FACTS

With PHILIP PEARL

We understand that the followers of Father Divine, the kingpin evangelist of Harlem, customarily greet etch other with the expression:—"Peace! Peace! It's wonderful."

That goes for us too. Yes, indeed, peace is wonderful—that is, if only we knew how to get it.

Just to keep the record straight, let us explain that we're not talking about peace in Europe, or peace in Asia, or peace in any other troubled sector of the globe, but peace in organized labor in the good old U. S. A.

There seems to be a disposition among some people to disregard the cause of the war, the responsibility for its continuance, or any other relative factor except:—"How can it be ended here and now?"

Unfortunately it is impossible to answer that question without exploring at least briefly the causes of the conflict and the reasons why it has not yet been adjusted. Here goes!

The war began in November, 1935, when a small group of labor officials, headed by John L. Lewis, formed the Committee for Industrial Organization with the avowed object of putting into effect policies which had been rejected by a two-thirds vote at the American Federation of Labor Convention in Atlantic City only a month before.

Unprovoked Aggression

Despite repeated warnings, Mr. Lewis and his associates promptly started a campaign of unprovoked aggression against American Federation of Labor unions which had not joined their rebellion, very much in the manner of Hitler's and Mussolini's tactics. They raided A. F. of L. unions, violated jurisdictional borders, and committed a multitude of additional acts of aggression. In the face of this situation the American Federation of Labor saw the futility of continuing a policy of appeasement and expelled the rebel unions from its ranks. War then spread to all fronts.

First peace overtures came in October, 1937, when the C. I. O. discovered it was licked. Peace conferences began the following month. They progressed to the point where an agreement was reached satisfactory to the negotiating committees representing both sides. It was a fair, honorable and just settlement. It looked as though unity had finally been restored to organized labor. But at the last moment John L. Lewis personally stepped in and vetoed the agreement made by his committee.

That meant war and more vicious war. It continued uninterrupted for more than a year. The flimsy C. I. O. structure started cracking under pressure. The International Ladies Garment Workers Union quit the C. I. O. in disgust. The United Textile Workers Union deserted Lewis and returned to the American Federation of Labor. The United Automobile Workers of America followed suit.

Then, at the instance of President Roosevelt new peace conferences were instituted this spring. They continued for sometime without much definite progress. In fact each time it appeared that some progress had been achieved, John L. Lewis immediately nullified the gain.

Where Are We Now?

The last conference was held on April 4th. The next day Mr. Lewis telephoned to Vice-President Matthew Woll and said that negotiations would have to be postponed indefinitely, because he expected to be tied up with coal strike meetings and hearings on Wagner Act amendments. Mr. Lewis promised to notify Mr. Woll when the C. I. O. Committee would be ready to meet again with the A. F. of L.

We are still waiting for word from Mr. Lewis, We wonder if it will ever come. In May, Sidney Hillman, the C. I. O. brain-truster, made a speech in Philadelphia. Said Sid:

"I predict we will have peace within a year."

Madam Perkins, curatrix of Washington museum known as the Department of Labor, telegraphed Sid:

"I congratulate you on your statesmanlike utterance."

A month later John L. Lewis, brain-buster of the C. I. O., announced at a press conference:

"Peace is impossible."

Brothers and Sisters of the Labor Movement, that's where we are hung at the moment. We fervently agree that peace is wonderful, but how can we obtain it when one party to the controversy insists that peace is impossible? In the present circumstances all we can do is to wait and wonder whether Mr. Lewis means that peace is impossible for Labor or whether it is merely impossible for him personally and for his ambitions.

Illinois Supreme Court Bans Picketing Of Beauty Shop in Decision Seen Heavy Blow at Labor's Rights

BY ROBERT H. PERKINS

CHICAGO.—An Appellate Court decision restraining Hairdressers' and Cosmotoligists' Union, Local No. 548 D. Journeymen Barbers International Union, from picketing a beauty shop owned by Ross W. Swing, whose employes are not union members, has been upheld by the Illinois Supreme Court in a ruling which set labor back at least 10 years.

The court held that the Illinois anti-injunction act does not apply when there is no dispute between the employer and employe and declared that freedom of speech does not include freedom of libel or slander as the use of banners or signs.

Pickets had carried signs stating Swing's beauty shop was unfair to organized labor; but Swing contended this was untrue.

Union Asks Re-hearing

A temporary injunction was issued against the union in July, 1937, but was later dissolved. The case was then taken to the Appellate Court, which ruled against the union. The Supreme Court decision was the result of an appeal by the union, which contended that the Illinois anti-injunction act prevents issuance of injunctions in such cases and that the constitutional right of free speech protected pickets in displaying signs. The union has filed for a re-hearing.

"The Illinois Supreme Court has apparently found the union guilty of libel, without trial by jury," Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer, Illinois Federation of Labor, asserted, directing attention to the fact that injunction are issued by individual judges.

Rights of All Menaced

"The union men are threatened with punishment for contempt of court at the discretion of the individual judge, without benefit of a jury. If the right of free speech can be dealt with in that manner as relating to unions of workers, the same procedure can be followed as affecting the rights of the press, pulpit and the whole field of politics. All would then be subject to the whim of an individual judge, because the courts everywhere have held that restraining orders and injunctions must be obeyed pending appeal. There can be no freedom of speech or a free press under such circumstances."

Of the right to "so-called picketing by persons who are not employes of the particular employers involved," Olander said:

"That issue was settled by the U. S. Supreme Court several years ago in the American Steel Foundries case. The opinion was written by the conservative Judge Taft. It held that a central body of organized labor having no membership in a given plant could nevertheless send out pickets to call a strike at such a plant, because the central body members had a sufficient interest in the wage standards of a community to warrant such action."

Olander Warns Unions

Olander also issued a timely warning, saying:

"It is true, of course, that there is a difference between calling a strike or stating that the employer is operating a non-union shop or has refused to deal with the union, and the somewhat popular practice of stating that the employer is 'unfair.' The difference is that of fact versus opinion. The use of the term 'unfair' is argumentative. It is an expression of opinion, which may be accepted by some and denied by others, depending on the point of view.

"On the other hand, an announcement that the employer is operating a non-union shop is a specific statement of fact which, providing it is true, does not permit of any difference of opinion.

Employer Given Advantage

"The careless use of language sometimes gives the employer an undue advantage when the issue reaches the courts. This is not the first time I have pointed out the need for choosing our words with greater care, especially in situations likely to involve litigation."

Delegates of Retail Clerks' Union Meet in 19th Convention, Cheered By Big Gains of Recent Years

Cleveland, Ohio.—The nineteenth convention of the Rtail Clerks' International Protective Association, Lafayette, Ind., opens July 18 in Cleveland. Approximately 500 delegates from local unions of the United States and Canada are expected.

With membership showing an increase of over 75,000 during the past five years, the international is fast approaching a total membership of more than 140,000 members, according to C. C. Coulter, secretary-treasurer.

The history of the association dates from December 8, 1890. On that day the organization was completed at a convention in Detroit and a charter of affiliation granted by the American Federation of Labor.

It is significant to note that the international began with a membership of 248 clerks.

Muskegon Led Way

Fifty years ago a group of clothing, furnishing goods and shoe clerks at Muskegon, Mich., applied for affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. Upon securing their charter on March 1, 1888, they became the first salespeople to identify themselves actively with organized labor under the Federation and thus came to be the forerunner of the present Retail Clerks' International Protective Association, which name was adopted by the ninth convention held in Kansas City in 1899.

For many years, the principal object of the various local unions was to bring about earlier closing of stores. Many were successful in reducing the closing hour from 10 and 11 p.m. to 6 o'clock for at least two or three nights a week and in some instances every night except Saturday. However, it was not until after the late twenties that the objectives of the local unions gained force along the lines of higher wages, paid vacations, job security, steady employment and other advantages of trade unionism.

Marked Gains in South

Headway toward these advantages in the South have been particularly gratifying in view of low wages prevalent there. The Retail Clerks have made enviable progress in the Southern area in securing better wages and working conditions. The association now has closed shop contracts with the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company covering all stores in Florida and Georgia. These have given strong impetus to a sweeping drive to complete organization in Southern retail trade.

The convention this year looks toward the future with bright hope as it reflects upon its past success in securing contracts with employers providing rates of pay, rest periods, vacations with pay, security of employment and hours of work not exceeding forty per week.

Tremendous Need of New Housing Proved in Figures Given Monopoly Committee by Isador Lubin — Uncle Sam Shown Only Agency fitted to Deal Effectively with Migrant Problem.

BY GEOGE L. KNAPP

Washington, D. C.—Isador Lubin, U. S. Commissioner of Labor Statistics, is one of the most careful of all handlers of figures in Washington. He went before the monopoly committee to tell it something of what this country needs in housing. About 280,000 new families, he said, need new dwelling units each year. Another 45,000 units per year are needed to replace the so-called homes that should be destroyed.

Then there are 4,000,000 dwelling units in this country which are unfit for habitation, or need drastic repairs. To straighten up and replace these in 20 years would require 200,000 more dwellings per year. Or, to add up, we need to build 525,000 homes a year for 20 years; fully 200,000 more than were built last year.

But that is just a starter. Lubin told the committee that about 51 per cent of the city families in the United States not on relief have annual incomes of $1,500 or less a year each. Yet of all the housing built last year, only 15 per cent was built to sell at from $2.000 to $4,000 per unit, which is the top notch that can be paid by people with $1,500 annual income or less.

For several years, at least, Lubin tells us we need a quarter of a million homes a year of that price, and not more than 50,000 of them were built last year.

A WPA report on "Migrant Families" is showing the usual good sense of such reports. It says that since essentially the migrants are families which go from one state to another, Uncle Sam, as the only authority which is equal in all states will have to take charge. It may be left to speak for itself; but I should like to call attention to the utter change that has taken place in existing lifetimes.

When I was a boy in the upper Mississippi Valley, a very valuable set of workers were migrants. They were all bachelors. In the spring they came out of the "pineries," meaning the pine woods that were being turned into lumber, and scattered over a wide landscape. They sometimes helped to plant the crops, more often helped in haying and harvest, then in threshing; and then, when that was done in the northern part of the farm belts, back to the pineries again.

The pines are gone; machines are improved till a farm man does the work of anywhere from two men to 40; and the migrants are married.

La Guardia in Sharp Retort To Housing Project Foes

New York City.—Mayor La Guardia was booed when he opened the $13,000,000 Red Hook housing development in Brooklyn; but he shot back a reply which clinched matters.

"I can understand," he said, "how some people who thrive on maintaining unsafe, unsanitary dwellings which are firetraps can oppose projects of this kind. I am not concerned with them. The satisfaction of housing 2,540 families in a project of this kind more than makes up for the rudeness of any landlords' agents who come here."

The maximum income of families wishing to come into the Red Hook buildings is $1,300 a year. Mayor La Guardia says that he means to ask the United States Housing Authority to raise this limit.

COOKS' AND WAITERS' SCRAPS

»»»» Louise Tinker, Correspondent ««««

Sometimes non-union workers who receive fairly good incomes ask: "Why should we join a union?" The answer is, either justice or charity or both requires them to do so. If they are in an industry which is partially organized, it is entirely likely that they are enjoying good conditions because their non-union employers in order "to keep out the union" meets or nearly meets the higher wage and hour standards prevailing in union establishments. Clearly such non-union employes are eating the fruit not of their own, but of others' sacrifices and contributions. If you want to succeed, be honest to yourself and employer. Do not think of your own bread and butter alone, but your neighbors as well. By standing by each other union success is sure.

Abolition of Prevailing Wage Rates On WPA Projects Condemned By Green

Tells Conference of Union Representatives the American Federation of Labor Believed the Federal Government Was Committed to Maintaining the Prevailing Wage; "We Are Firmly Convinced," He Said, "That the Recognition, Application and Continuation of This Principle by Government Is Necessary to the Further Maintenance and Preservation of Wage Levels Established as a Result of Much Sacrifice on the Part of Organized Labor in Private Industry."

Washington.—Strong disapproval of the action of the United States congress excluding the prevailing wage rate provision from the WPA relief appropriation bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1, and substituting therefor the so-called security wage for 130 hours work per month on WPA projects, which means reduced hourly wages and longer hours for all skilled workers employed on such projects, featured the statement presented by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to the conference of representatives of national and international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, in the assembly room of the Washington hotel here on July 12.

The conference was called by Mr. Green to consider the emergency created by abolition of the prevailing wage provision and the policy to be applied by the federation, in the assembly room of the Washington hotel here on July 12.

The text of Mr. Green's statement follows:

"Representatives of National and International Unions Affiliated With the American Federation of Labor:

"You have been invited to attend this conference, for the purpose of dealing with an acute economic situation which arose out of the application of the so-called security wage provisions of the WPA relief measure recently enacted by congress.

"The importance of the economic problem to be considered, and the serious situation which has been created as a result of the enactment of the so-called security wage by congress justifies the call for this conference.

"The facts of the situation are as follows:

"The WPA relief measure which expired on June 30, 1939, contained a provision which provided for the payment of the prevailing rate of wages upon WPA construction projects. While difficulties were encountered in the application of this provision on WPA building construction projects, nevertheless it worked in a reasonably satisfactory way.

House of Representatives Abolished Prevailing Wage.

"A new WPA relief measure was introduced at this session of congress. WPA administrators appointed by the government appeared at closed sessions of the meetings of the committee on appropriations, making their recommendations and expressing their point of view regarding the changes in and amendments to the pending relief measure.

"On June 14, the relief measure was reported to the house of representatives for action by the committee on appropriations.

"The representatives of the American Federation of Labor and

CRACKER PLANT'S "NEW COMPANY" KICKS OUT UNION

Orient Flour Manufacturer Lets 'Scabs' Scurry Thru His Milling Co. Plant

Pickets are patrolling in front of the Chattanooga Baking company and the Mountain City Milling company today. Last year there was a ten-wek strike at the Mountain City Milling company, which owned and operated the Chattanooga Bakery.

After the strike the company signed a preferential union shop agreement with the Bakery and Confectionary Workers Union, and until last week things were going along under that basis.

Then things began to happen. An announcement was made public that the Chattanooga Bakery had been sold by the Mountain City Milling company to Mr. Sam Campbell.

Mr. Sam Campbell owns the Campbell Oil company, which distributes Shell Oil products all over Chattanooga and this district.

Mr. Campbell thereupon informed the union that he had not taken over the union contract and fired twenty-eight active union members, replacing them with green employes. Subsequent attempts to straighten the matter out with Mr. Campbell resulted in the union representatives being told to go to a red hot place.

Instead of going to the hot place, the union took a position in the equally hot place before his plant.

Although Mountain City Milling company declares it has nothing to do with the bakery, it has been reported that the "scabs" have been scurrying through the milling company in order to go to work in the "disowned" bakery.

Charges have been filed with the Labor Board against both the milling company and the bakery.

And in the meantime, sales for Orient flour and Chattanooga crackers and cakes have slumped. These products have been declared "unfair" by Central Body.

Cincinnati Union Building Program Sets Fine Example for All Cities

BY I. M. ORNBURN,

Secretary-Treasurer Union Label Trades Department, A. F. of L.

Cincinnati is setting a fine example for all other cities in America. It has a building program, known as the Robal Housing Project, which is 100 per cent union throughout. Every worker is a member of the Building Trades Council of Cincinnati and every piece of material used in the well-constructed and unique enterprise is union made.

The Robal Housing Project was started to meet he demand for union-built homes. The residence contractors who employed both union and non-union tradesmen went into bankruptcy in 1931 when home buying was at a standstill. In 1935 when home building started again, union men would not take jobs because the wages paid to non-union workers were much lower than union rates. The non-union built homes were picketed. Union workers were successful in preventing the purchases of unfair dwellings but failed in their organization drive because no homes were being built under union conditions. They were continually confronted by prospective home purchasers with the question, "Where can I buy a union-built home?"

Union Heads Act

To meet this demand for "union-made" homes, J. J. Hurst, president of the Central Labor Council, and Fred Hock, business representative of the Building Trades Council of Cincinnati, requested of the Building Trades Council authority to promote the building of union-built homes by union workers themselves. To these two men great credit should be given for the entire project.

Harry Price, an outstanding engineer and architect, who had built some of the finest homes in Cincinnati and also had assisted in the government housing program, was employed as consultant. He entered into the spirit of this unique enterprise with great enthusiasm; prepared sketches of plans, and drew up specifications.

Houses Finely Built

Many building trades unionists loaned money and desirable sites were selected in good subdivisions. Three houses are almost completed and are on display so prospective purchasers can see the workmanship and material that goes into them.

The homes will sell for about $7,000 and are built with materials and equipment that can be found in homes that cost $20,000 and more. The public can judge for itself the style, construction, copper piping, plumbing as well as the improved methods of heating, insulation and wiring.

Plan Is Co-operative

The dwelling will include details such as clothes poles, hooks, mail boxes and house numbers. Even the landscaping of the grounds, sodding, seeding, block top driveways and walks will be completed for the new home-owner.

The plan, according to Jack Hurst, is a co-operative plan through which union employers and union workers combine to build homes, "sold at cost" for those who desire skilled workmanship and the highest quality of materials. It has established a precedent in the real estate circles of Cincinnati that has aroused considerable speculation, but the union-built homes will be no gamble for those who buy them.

AFL Union Wins Six-Year Fight For Right to Represent Workers At Big Morrell Packing Plant

The union's victory ended a bitter fight which began in 1933 when the company discharged virtually every local union officer, refused to reinstate them and made every effort to prevent organization of its employes by a bona fide union. The Morrell "company union" was made over and became the Independent Packing House Workers Union of Sioux Falls; and several hearings before the regional board failed to convince the examiner that it was company-dominated.

Union Continued Fight.

For nineteen months, the A. F. of L. affiliate carried on a nation-wide boycott campaign against the company's products. It lost out in two elections because of alleged interference by company foremen, but it continued unceasingly its efforts to organize Morrell employes, bucked not only the company but by the CIO, which, it is charged, threw in with the "independent" group in an effort to defeat the Amalgamated. Now, with sole collective bargaining rights in the union's possession, its officers expect to open contract negotiations soon.

The international union is registering remarkable gains throughout the United States, reports Dennis Lane, general secretary-treasurer.

Locals Win Union Pacts.

Lane announced that Packing House Workers union, Local No. 103, of Houston, Tex., has signed union shop agreements with the Texas Packing company, Superb Packing company, and Chip Steaks Packing company, also that the four largest poultry houses in that city are in accord with Egg Candlers and Poultry Dressers union, Local No. 376.

Nearly forty packing houses are under contract with Local No. 545, of St. Louis, Mo.

Within the last three months, the Armour, Swift, Faunce & Brook and Gale E. Pugh packing companies have signed agreements with the Washington, D. C., local of the Amalgamated which guarantee 32 hours of work per week and provide for a 44-hour week, time and one-half for overtime, hourly minimums of 50 cents for men and 45 cents for women and vacations with pay.

They Learn from Southern Women

Touring Reporters, now conducting a Query among women of the South and West, report remarkable agreement as to the benefits secured by users of CARDUI.

Of the 1297 users who were asked: "Were you helped by CARDUI?" 1206—or 93 out of every 100—answered "Yes."

The word of users everywhere is given to show how CARDUI helps to improve appetite and digestion, and thus build up physical resistance. In this way it also works to relieve the headaches, nervousness, depression, that attend functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition. Have you tried CARDUI?

Local 846, Electric Linemen, affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, have moved their offices from 249 East Eleventh street to Room 310 of the Main street branch of the Hamilton Bank building.

SAVANNAH UNIONS REPORT INCREASED MEMBERSHIPS

Savannah, Ga.—There is much activity in the labor movement in this city, practically all local unions reporting increased membership, while several new locals have been organized during the past few weeks. Representative Furr, of the Pulp and Sulphite Workers, and Representative Brooks of the Paparemakers International, have been meeting with much success in the organization of the Union Bag and Paper Corporation. Arthur P. Smith, of the Boilermakers, Welders and Helpers International, has been here for some time, and reports an almost 100 per cent membership of his craft at the Union Bag place. Alex F. McDonald, of the Operating Engineers, makes like report concerning men in his craft employed in the Union Bag plant. Membership rolls in other organizations report additional gains from the employes of the same plant.

Roland Adams, board member of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, has been directing the organization of his forces, one result of which has been a greatly enlivened District Council of Carpenters. New officers have been elected and installed, and the carpenters are making rapid headway. John P. Spires, of the A. F. of L. organizing staff, has been of great assistance in all of the labor activities here, and J. T. McGee, president of the Savannah Federation of Trades, has aided all of the activities.

Employes of the Dixie Asphalt company's plant have perfected an organization, with assistance of local and international officials, and a charter has been ordered. President McGee expresses keen delight over the rapid gains being

NORTH CAROLINA FEDERATION PLANNING GREAT CONVENTION

Raleigh, N. C.—The annual convention of the North Carolina State Federation of Labor will open a three-day session here on Monday, Aug. 14. The Hotel Carolina has been designated by the local convention committee as convention headquarters. President Gillis, of the Raleigh Central Labor Union, and Joe Powers, vice-president of the State Federation of Labor, head the convention committee. Charles E. Ruffin, editor of the Union Herald, Raleigh's splendid labor paper, is lending valuable aid to the committee.

One of the highlights of the first day's program will be an address by United States Senator Robert R. Reynolds, who will speak from 12 o'clock to 12:45, and the address will be broadcast over Station WPTF. Frank P. Fenton, director of organization for the American Federation of Labor, and George L. Googe, southern representative of the A. F. of L., will address the convention.

Secretary H. G. Fisher reports that ten Central Labor Unions and a large number of local unions have already sent in credentials for their delegations. President C. A. Fink's report for the past year, it is said, will be one of the most interesting ever made by an executive officer to a convention of the North Carolina State Federation of Labor. The Federation's finances are in splendid condition, Secretary Fisher reports.

FACING the FACTS

With PHILIP PEARL

There used to be a time when the WPA was just a leaf-raking and grass-manicuring enterprise. The public didn't like it. they considered it a waste of their money. Demands grew for "useful" projects. These demands were encouraged by mayors and local governments. They wanted a new school or a new airport or a new municipal stadium. They could get these projects financed by the public works administration but that agency required municipalities to put up 45 per cent of the cost. Trying to save their own money at the federal expense, the municipalities pressed for the WPA to handle these projects. Then it wouldn't cost the local governments anything.

Well, they succeeded. The result has been the gradual decline and practical demise of the public works administration. Furthermore it has brought about the transformation of the WPA from a boon-doggling outfit to a public works agency.

Now the PWA by law and by policy paid prevailing wages on all its projects. When the WPA started going in for permanent public works a prevailing wage provision was also written into the relief act. Union labor cooperated to the fullest degree in the WPA program.

That is where the situation was when congress began considering the new WPA bill for the current fiscal year. As usual congress stalled to the last minute. Then the house passed a haywire bill eliminating the prevailing wage clause among other things.

Fearful of the consequences, the American Federation of Labor exerted all its pressure on the senate to restore the prevailing wage. And the senate did so, unanimously.

What Caused the Strikes

The differing house and senate bills were sent to conference. The conference committee just a few hours before the legal deadline reported out a hodge-podge bill with the prevailing wage clause dropped again. Because of the emergency and with the prospect of having to close down the whole relief program unless new funds were appropriated immediately, both houses hastily adopted the faulty measure. It became the law when the president signed it.

What happened? Within a few days union men on WPA started to quit. They were not ordered out. They just stopped. Their action was entirely local and spontaneous in character. They were just following the traditional principle that a union man, holding a union card, will not work at less than union wages for anyone.

These men are not striking against the government. They are loyal, law-abiding American workers. They are fighting for a principle that is almost a religion to them. They refuse to have the wage rates built up by collective action through years of struggle and sacrifice destroyed.

Is the attitude of congress as easily understandable? Is it in any sense logical? Let's see.

Under the Walsh-Healey act, which is the law of the land, the government says it will only purchase goods produced by labor which is paid prevailing wages by private industry. How can the government then refuse to pay prevailing wages on its own work?

Under the Davis-Bacon act, which is the law of the land, the government is committed to the policy of paying prevailing wages in the construction of federal buildings. How can the government then logically contend that it is wrong to pay prevailing wages on WPA building projects?

More Questions

These questions and others were cogently raised at the meeting of union leaders called by President Green to consider the grave situation. Is the government, asked one speaker, going to the steel mills and demanding a dollar's worth of steel for thirty-five cents? Is it asking the lumber manufacturers for a dollar's worth of lumber for thirty-five cents? Then how can it reasonably ask the union workman on WPA to furnish a dollar's worth of labor for thirty-five cents?

Yes, say the WPA administrators, but the WPA is not a business, it's a relief program. Is it? That's an important point. In actual fact, the WPA is now largely a public works program. It is constructing projects costing as much as forty million dollars. How can that be called relief? It isn't. It's public works. And on public works, the government should and must maintain the prevailing wage principle.

Why can't congress be sensible about this matter? It is becoming increasingly apparent that the combination of relief and public works in one program won't mix. Then why not separate them? Why not establish a purely relief program on the one hand and a separate public works program on the other? Unless this is done, or the prevailing wage is restored in the present hybrid WPA program, the whole experiment is doomed.

FEDERAL TAX SYSTEM SURVEY TO BE MADE

Washington, D. C.—Congressional fiscal leaders, after a conference with President Roosevelt, announced an agreement for an intensive survey of the Federal tax system to be conducted by the Tax Subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee. Under the plan, the committee would review all phases of the federal tax system, and would hold public hearings. Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, in testifying on proposed tax revisions earlier this year, advocated such an investigation of the entire system of federal levies.

MORE ABOUT GREEN HITS WPA WAGE

of the Building and Construction Trades department were surprised when they learned that the prevailing rate of wage section which had been included in the relief measure which expired on June 30, was eliminated from the new relief measure.

"Action on this measure was taken quickly by the house of representatives. The relief measure was passed as reported by the committee.

Senate Adopts A. F. L. Amendment Restoring Prevailing Wage Rate.

"When the bill was reported to the senate, the officers of the American Federation of Labor prepared an amendment which provided for the payment of the prevailing rate of wages on WPA projects. Senator McCarran, of Nevada, introduced the amendment. The senate responded favorably and adopted it.

"Our anxiety was relieved. We hoped and firmly believed that this important amendment to the relief measure would be maintained and accepted by the house of representatives.

Conference Committee Report Killing Prevailing Wage Rate Passed by Both Houses.

"On June 30, the bill was referred to a conference committee composed of representatives of the house and senate. The following congressmen and United States senators were members of the conference committee:

"Managers on the part of the house:

"Edw. T. Taylor, C. A. Woodrum, Louis Ludlow, Thos. S. McMillan, J. Buell Snyder, Emmett O'Neal, Geo. W. Johnson, John Taber, R. B. Wigglesworth, W. P. Lamberton, J. W. Ditter.

"Managers on the part of the senate:

"Alva B. Adams, Kenneth McKellar, Carl Hayden, James F. Byrnes, Frederick Hale, J. G. Townsend, Jr.

"We were tremendously disappointed when the conference committee finally reported a relief measure from which the prevailing rate of wage section introduced by Senator McCarran, of Nevada, and accepted by the senate, had been eliminated.

"We have never learned since, and we do not know now why the conferees of the house and senate agreed to the elimination of the prevailing rate of wage section from the WPA relief measure.

"The conferees submitted a report upon the relief measure on June 30. The WPA relief bill which had passed at the previous session of congress expired at midnight on June 30. Apparently, because of this fact, the report of the committee was rushed through both houses of congress and presented to the president for executive approval. The president signed the relief measure on June 30, 1939.

WPA Workers Spontaneously Strike Against Reduced Wage Rates.

"Immediately following the approval of the measure, WPA administrators throughout the nation notified all WPA workers of the change in their wage standards as provided for in the new relief measure.

"This action created a nation-wide protest on the part of WPA workers and the officers and members of American Federation of Labor unions directly affected.

"The workers became thoroughly aroused in the different cities and towns throughout the nation. They protested this reduction in wage rates which was being imposed upon them. Strikes occurred in a number of places. All concerned felt that a great injustice had been done.

"We diligently endeavored to prevent the imposition of this injustice, and we are determined now to do all that lies within our power to lift it and remove it.

Prevailing Wage Rate Is Necessary to Protect Wage Levels.

"The officers and members of the American Federation of Labor assumed that the government was thoroughly committed to the establishment and maintenance of the prevailing rate of wage principle.

"It was accepted and incorporated in the Welsh-Healey act.

"It is applicable to those employed by private contractors on government work and in carrying forward government construction projects as provided for in the Davis-Bacon act.

"It has been applied by the administrators of WPA relief measures during the distressing days of unemployment through which we have passed.

"The organizations of the American Federation of Labor see to it that the prevailing rate of wage principle is applied in practically all cities and towns throughout the country on projects originated and launched by municipal and state governments.

"We have always regarded the application of the prevailing rate of wage principle as fundamental and vital to the membership of the American Federation of Labor.

"We are firmly convinced that the recognition, application and continuation of this principle of government is necessary to the further maintenance and preservation of wage levels established as a result of much sacrifice on the part of organized labor in private industry.

Congress Should Promptly Restore Prevailing Wage Rate.

"The solution of the problem presented to this conference lies with congress. I know you who are in attendance at this conference share with me my firm conviction that an amendment providing for the payment of the prevailing rate of wage on WPA projects should be promptly adopted by the congress of the United States.

"Strikes on WPA projects reflect the state of mind of WPA workers. They have been spontaneous in character. They have never been ordered by the American Federation of Labor, because we fully recognize the fact that the remedy lies with congress, rather than through strikes on WPA projects.

"It was deemed advisable and necessary in view of these facts which I have recited, that the representatives of the national and international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor be called into conference for the purpose of expressing the sentiment of the workers throughout the nation as you know it and understand it, and for the purpose of calling upon congress to apply a remedy to the existing economic situation through the enactment of a prevailing rate of wage section to the WPR relief measure."

BROWN & WILLIAMSON SEND GREETINGS TO CIGAR MAKERS' UNION

Washington, D. C.—In a letter to Mr. R. E. Van Horn, president of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America, extending felicitations to the Union upon its Diamond Jubilee Anniversary to be celebrated in the nation's capital from July 26 to 28, inclusive, the Brown & Williamson Tobacco Company of Louisville, Ky., strikes a note of harmony and co-operation for which all labor is today striving. "The spirit of the times, public policy and social considerations have brought new attitudes towards industrial relations. We are coming to an understanding of the fact that what is good for the employe is good for the company and what is good for the company is good for the employe, and that there is no insoluble conflict of interests between them. Let us lock arms instead of locking horns so that our energies may be harnessed as a team to labor for the good of the whole in order that we may continue to progress and develop under a free government, chosen by a free people, to serve a free nation."

St. Louis Adopts New Municipal Cigarette Tax

Chicago, Ill.—St. Louis, Mo., has joined the list of cities levying municipal cigarette taxes, the Federation of Tax Administrators have reported. St. Louis adopted its two cents a package in June, and the city anticipates a yield of $1,000,000 annually. Cities now levying local cigarette taxes, besides St. Louis, include New York, Birmingham, Ala.; Kansas City, Mo., and four Florida cities.

Look for the Best

Look for the best in everyone,
No matter who it might be.
And when you meet people,
We are all human, aren't we?

No matter what his mask may be,
Look for the best—behind;
It perhaps may be hard to see,
But—"Seek, and ye shall find."

By this means discord often mends,
And hard feelings grow less;
It's the best way to make friends,
And true friends—bring success.

U. S. Employment Service Places Ban on Furnishing Strikebreakers

Orders All State Units to Stop Providing Workers For Employers Involved in Strikes and Lockouts.

Washington, D. C.—William H. Stead, acting director of the United States Employment Service, issued an order prohibiting all affiliated state employment services from providing workers and employers involved in strikes and lockouts.

It was stated that the order was entered after labor unions had complained that in some cases the Employment Service had acted as strike-breakers.

The new regulation reads as follows:

"Unless otherwise provided by state law, the State Service shall require that each employment office under its supervision refrain from referring any person to any position at any place of employment where there exists a labor dispute.

"For the purpose of this rule, the term 'labor dispute" shall include any controversy concerning terms or conditions of employment or concerning the association or representation of persons in negotiating, fixing, maintaining, changing or seeking to arrange terms or conditions of employment regardless of whether or not the disputants stand in the proximate relation of employer and employe.

"In carrying out this rule, the state director shall arrange with the state agency which receive notice of labor disputes for prompt notification of any labor disputes coming to the attention of such agency. Such notification shall be in writing and shall give the pertinent details of the dispute.

"In addition, the state director shall arrange with the various union organizations for prompt notification of any labor disputes in which such organizations might be involved, which notification shall likewise be in writing and shall set forth the details of the dispute.

"The state director shall notify managers of all local offices to arrange with local labor organizations for prompt notification of labor disputes, which notification shall be in writing and shall set forth the details of the dispute.

"In addition to the notice of labor disputes received from any state agencies or from labor organizations as set forth above, the state director and the managers of local offices, upon the receipt of information from any source as to the existence of any labor dispute, shall immediately verify the existence of such labor dispute by contact with the parties involved.

"When notice has been received in accordance with the procedure set forth above that a labor dispute exists at a certain place of employment, no person shall be referred to openings at such place of employment until such time as the state director has received notice from both of the parties involved that the labor dispute has been settled and has sent this notice to the local office.

"The state director shall arrange for the same agencies and organizations which gave notice at the beginning of the labor dispute to likewise give notice of settlement of such labor dispute. Each employment office shall keep a careful record of existing labor disputes in the area served by such office in which shall be recorded pertinent information with regard to such dispute."

Attack on High Building Trade Costs Aimed Primarily at Employers And Big Financial Interests

Washington.—Headlines in the newspapers are tending to give the impression that building labor is a principal target in the current investigation of the building industry by the temporary national economic committee.

The contrary is the case. Labor is not the primary objective of the attack; the primary objectives are the powerful employer and financial interests of the building and construction industries, particularly in big metropolitan centers.

Highlight of the investigation was the testimony of Thurman W. Arnold, assistant attorney-general, who centered his fire on collusive practices leading to high building costs.

Restraints Boost Prices.

"Unreasonable restraints of trade, nearly all of which are probable violations of the law, are, in my opinion, the most conspicuous reasons for high construction costs. They appear, today, at every level of the building industry," Arnold told the committee, known popularly as the monopoly committee.

Arnold charged that the effect of these alleged restraints of trade is not only to maintain prices at a high level but to increase them when business increases. "The result," he said, "is the ridiculous spectacle of a rise in building costs amounting in some cities to nearly 25 per cent which choked off the building boom of 1936 and 1937."

Labor Is Accused.

The witness cited various means by which he said producers and distributors of building material, contractors and labor participate in collusive practices which raise prices. It is important for labor to know exactly what he said about organized building workers. He told the committee:

"The building trades unions often participate in these policies of restraint and add new restraints of their own. In recent years they have frequently been used as strong-arm squads for collusive agreements among contractors, refusing to supply labor where the contractors' ring wishes labor withheld. In other cases the unions themselves have refused to permit the use of new products or new processes because of their fear that the new method might make it possible to erect a house with fewer hours of labor than the old."

General Attack Urged.

The assistant atforney-general said that because of widespread prevalance of restraints in the building trades, the key to effective enforcement of the anti-trust laws is to attack simultaneously all the restraints.

"The objective of anti-trust enforcement should be to establish a free and independent economy in the building industry—not government controlled or dominated," he said.

Arnold declared that elimination of building industry restraints would open the door for substantial price reductions, which would benefit all factors, including labor. Arguing for labor support of his program, he said:

"And finally, we can say to labor, 'You can get the same thing that the heavy industries are getting: a greater annual income, based upon having more work to do during the year, without need to stretch the hours of work and the rate of pay on each particular job.'

"Without such assurance it is certainly not fair to expect labor to take the brunt. It is neither fair nor practical to deal with any element of the situation without dealing with all of them."

Capital Highlights

BY GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington, D. C.—The reactionaries of Congress who doctored, or perhaps poisoned, the relief bill certainly did a noble job. They required a skilled workman on the WPA to work 130 hours a month for the wage which the privately employed skilled workman worked less than half that time to get.

In other words, they cut the hourly rates of all skilled workers on WPA; and thereby encouraged private employers to do the same. And it seldom takes long for the cut to go from the skilled to the unskilled wage.

Labor in all grades knows this, and therefore resents this. And ten million men and their families have been stirred to different degrees of hostility toward an act of Congress.

It is doubtful if so stupid a blunder has been made in Washington since President Hoover chased out the bonus marchers. It is devoutly to be hoped that the bills already introduced in Congress to remedy this bungle will go through in jig time.

Speaking to the Monopoly Committee the other day, Thurman G. Arnold, Assistant Attorney General told the investigators why building or construction has sagged more than almost any other industry.

"Although the decline in the volume of construction was conspicuously greater than that of most other industries during the depression which began in 1929, the level of building materials prices and of building costs fell less than that of other prices. When building recovery began, the effect was just the reverse. By 1936, the volume of construction, including public work, had recovered from the four billion dollars of 1933 to about eight billion.

"From 1936 to 1937, it rose less than a half billion dollars, and in the latter year totaled not quite eight and a half billion dollars, less than two-thirds the volume to be expected at prosperity levels. Urban residential construction rose about 27 per cent during the year, but was still only 40 per cent of the 1929 level.

"Nevertheless, during that year the cost of constructing a small homes rose more than 10 per cent throughout the United States, and in some large cities rose about 25 per cent."

Uncle Sam, already having 37 lending agencies which have outstanding credits of more than $7,000,000,000, is now being fitted up by Congress to lend $2,660,000,000 more. And what of it?

Every dollar of government loans shows a place where our private financial system does not give satisfaction. Farm mortgages, home mortgages, and the varied credits of RFC are enough to prove that. If the money loaned by Uncle Sam had been offered by our private banking and other financial companies on terms as good as those the government offers, the government wouldn't have offered it.

Those who want government to let business alone should be able to devise a private financial system that will do the work.

Social Security Board Explains Appeal Right Under Job Insurance

Washington, D. C.—The worker's right of appeal from a decision on his claim for out-of-work benefits under the job-insurance laws, and the steps to take in filing such an appeal, are explained in a statement recently prepared by the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation of the Social Security Board at the request of organized labor. The board says in effect:

Opportunity for a fair hearing, before an impartial tribunal, for all workers whose claims for unemployment compensation are denied, is required by the Social Security Act and provided in every state unemployment insurance law. Usually there is opportunity for a second appeal, before a board of review. Both first and second appeals may be made without cost to the worker. Finally, if he is still not satisfied, he may take his case to the courts.

Last year more than 13,000 appeals were filed by workers, of which about seven in every ten were decided in their favor. Employers, who have the same right of appeal, filed nearly 600 appeals, winning about three cases in ten.

Appeal Procedure Described

"Most important points to know about appeals," the board said, "are the following:

"(1) Anyone who is dissatisfied with the decision on his claim has the right to appeal. For example, you may appeal if you are denied benefits on the ground that you have not enough wages to your credit, or that you quit your job without due cause, or that you were discharged for misconduct; or you may appeal if you think the amount of your benefits is less than you are entitled to receive or if the number of weeks during which you will receive them is not correct; or on other grounds.

"(2) Before filing an appeal, however, you should ask the local unemployment compensation office to reexamine your claim and reconsider your case. Sometimes the matter can be adjusted without making an appeal.

"(3) There is always a time limit on appeals. In most states you must file your appeal within five days after you are notified of the decision on your claim.

"(4) When you file an appeal, you may either fill out a blank form which you can obtain from the local office of the state employment service where you filed your claim in the first place, or you may simply write a letter to this office stating that you wish to appeal. You should go to the office and make out the form there, if possible, because they will assist you in filling out the blank and will explain about the hearing.

"(5) Appeals are heard by an impartial tribunal, provided for by the law. In some states this tribunal is appointed by the board of review, in others by the state unemployment compensation agency. It may consist of one member or more than one. In either case, no member or members of the tribunal must have had no previous connection with the handling of the claim or with the decision which is appealed.

"(6) The hearing is informal and you can present your case in your own words. You may appear alone or you may be represented by an officer or agent of your union, or by an attorney. You or your representatives may testify and bring witnesses. If you fear that witnesses will not attend voluntarily you may ask the appeal tribunal to issue subpenas to compel them to come. The local unemployment compensation office will help you with this. The subpenas are issued without cost to you and witness fees are paid by the state agency.

Provision for Second Appeals

"All testimony is taken under oath or affirmation, and a stenographic record is made, in case of further appeal. This record is open to you or your representative.

"(7) Under most of the state laws, if the decision of an appeal tribunal was not unanimous, you have a right to a second hearing this time before a board of review. If the decision was unanimous, or if the case was heard by a one-man tribunal, the board of review decides whether there shall be a second hearing.

"(8) For a second appeal, you file application at the local unemployment compensation office as before, and if the appeal is allowed, you are duly notified of the date and place of hearing. The board may decide, however, to consider the question solely on the record of the first hearing. Or it may decide to have you and your employer appear personally for argument on the basis of the record. Or it may decide not to hear the interested parties in person at all, but merely allow them to file their arguments in writing.

"(9) The second appeal decision is final unless you decide to appeal to the courts. Here again there is a time limit, specified in the state unemployment compensation law, and this law also governs the procedure for court review.

"(10) For particulars as to appeals in your own state, inquire at the nearest unemployment compensation office, or write to the state unemployment compensation agency at the state capital."

Big Demand for Union Label Catalogue

Washington, D. C.—I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, announced that there never was such a demand for the official buyers' guide of his department as there is for the 1939 Union Label Catalogue-Directory.

Orders are pouring in to the Washington headquarters from officials of national and international unions, central bodies, and local unions for copies of this catalogue that contains the lists of unionized manufacturers.

A special price of 20 cents per copy in lots of 100 or more is being offered by the department. Single copies are 25 cents each.

Several national and international unions are sending copies of the Catalogue-Directory to all officials of their respective labor unions and to all organizers. There is also an increased demand this year from members of women's auxiliaries and union label leagues.

If this unprecedented request for copies continues the Union Label Trades Department will print a second edition.

TEAMSTERS UNION SIGNS WITH NASHVILLE FIRM

Nashville, Tenn.—An agreement was signed here last week between the local union of Teamsters and Chauffeurs and the Adkins Transfer company, operating a fleet of trucks from Nashville to Indianapolis and Chicago. The agreement provides for wage increases ranging from $5 to $9 per week. Working time was reduced to nine hours a day, with price and one-half for all overtime. Nashville labor is congratulating President F. L. Medlin, of the local union, for negotiating such a splendid agreement for this membership.

Central Labor Union Asks Mayor Bass to Fill Auditorium Bd. Vacancy

Also Recommends Primary Instead of Convention to Select Congressional Candidates—Names Submitted to Commissioner of Labor.

Quite a bit of discussion took place concer ing the Memorial Auditorium at the Central Body meeting last Monday evening. It was started over a protest being registered with Commissioner McMillan. It originated from the Stage Employes' union, who said that Commissioner McMillan had been allowing shows to play for profit in school auditoriums, thereby taking the business away from the city's investment in the auditorium. Every year the auditorium has been running a deficit due to lack of patronage.

It was also brought out that possibly the auditorium affairs had been neglected by the public due to lack of sponsorship, helped no doubt by the fact that the mayor has failed to appoint board members. Some say that the term of every member of the present board has expired years ago. There is one known vacancy. Another member of the board, it was declared, had not attended a board meeting for so long that he is now a name only. It was also brought out that the manager of the auditorium, Tommy Thompson, is doing a good job.

Central Body instructed its officers to ask Mayor Bass to name a complete board for the auditorium, putting interested friends of the auditorium in place of present deadwood. Board Member Neil J. Crowley seems to be the only one who has worked hard and consistently for the welfare of the auditorium.

While the Central Body stated that it does not attempt to dictate to either Republican or Democratic parties how it shall operate its private affairs, it did go on record that labor has consistently been in favor of primaries for selection of candidates for public office. In the pending election to name a successor to Congressman McReynolds, there has been discussions whether a convention shall be held or a primary. Central Body asked the democratic leaders to decide on a primary if at all possible to hold one.

Acting on a request from Commissioner of Labor Bryant to propose names of labor representatives to serve on a state advisory board with the department of labor, the following delegates were proposed to Commissioner Bryant: J. L. Carpenter, Erskine Mabee and George Henry.

Credentials for W. W. Gray and G. C. O'Neal were received and accepted from Local 526, Structural Iron Workers.

Clark Brothers Reported "Not Interested" One Way Or the Other

The radio delegation at Central Body's session reported on a conference with Mr. Clark, of Clark Bros. furniture store which attempted to sell Mr. Clark on the idea of having his radio repair work done by union men. Mr. Clark told the representative that he was "not interested" whether the work was done union or non-union. It is being done non-union at preset.

Clark carries on an extensive advertising campaign under the slogan of "The Working Man's Friend."

Building Trades Elect Officers

Chattanooga Building Trades council finished their election of officers last Wednesday evening at the labor hall after running off two dead dead heats the previous week for the office of secretary-treasurer.

Last week F. H. May and L. C. Batey tied each other up on two ballots, and the final vote was taken this week which made Batey the winner.

The president is Grover Tittle, of the sheet metal workers, with Bricklayer Dave Parks serving as vice.

J. R. Moss, of the Hodcarriers, is recording secretary, and John Dunn, of the Lathers, is tiler.

The three trustees are O. E. Cook, of the plumbers; A. Crawford, of the engineers, and H. F. Blansit, of the truck drivers.

ANOTHER CAFE SIGNS UNION CONTRACT

The Milliard cafe, at Third and Market, signed a closed shop agreement with Local 574, Culinary Workers, on Thursday. The proprietor of the cafe is an old-time member of organized labor. His name is D. B. Reece.

Placing of the new union house card brings ten new members into the union.

REWARD IS OFFERED FOR MABEE'S KEYS

Secretary Erskine Mabee lost a bunch of keys last week. They had an identification tag on them, and he says that if whoever finds them will return them to him they can collect a reward.

Teachers Win Bargaining In Chicago School System

Chicago.—"The Chicago Teachers' Union, Local No. 1, American Federation of Teachers, has been recognized as the collective bargaining agency for the city's public school teachers by the Board of Education," Kermit Eby, executive secretary of the union, has announced.

The right to represent the teachers would not have been won if a majority had not been union members, Eby added; and this majority was established only after a long, uphill battle.

For years, teachers had been victims of division among themselves. Union membership dwindled. Three years ago, Men Teachers Union, Local No. 2, Federation of Women High School Teachers, Local No. 3, Elementary Teachers Union, Local No. 199 and Playground Teachers Union, Local No. 209, American Federation of Teachers, had a combined membership of 1,800. Two years ago, these four organizations amalgamated and became "one big union," taking in all teachers regularly certified by the Board of Education; and today, with 8 out of every 13, or about 8,700 teachers included within its membership, the Chicago Teachers Union is the largest of its kind in the world and the second largest affiliate of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Formation of the union and its increase in strength has been responsible for a number of outstanding victories.

"The union," Eby declared, "was largely instrumental in securing restoration of half the salary cut and the additional weeks of the school term; it won the right to use school buildings for union meetings and to distribute union literature; it established its position on reprisals and restored Raymond M. Cook and Lyle Wolf, union members, to their positions; and it had enough prestige to bring all candidates in the recent mayoralty campaign to the same platform."

Much of the union's success is credited to its public relations program.

"The union has a weekly bulletin and a monthly magazine recognized nationally for its excellence of form and content," Eby stated. "It has a regular weekly broadcast over WCFL, the 'Voive of Labor,' and its representatives appear before hundreds of groups yearly."

COOKE "TAKES OFF" FOR PRINTERS HOME

Why a Wage and Hour Law?

EDITOR'S NOTE. This is the first of a series of six articles explaining the Fair Labor Standards Act prepared for The Labor World by the information branch of the wage and hour division, United States Department of Labor.

Regulation of the wages and working hours of labor goes far back in history.

Archeologists have found that in Babylon 3,000 years ago King Hammurabi issued an edict fixing the wages of workingmen. In 301 A. D. the Emperor Diocletian regulated the wages of laborers and teachers throughout the Roman Empire. In 1350, following an epidemic of bubonic plague, the English parliament passed a law limiting wages. Within ten years after the Mayflower landed, the Plymouth colony passed a law fixing the wages of carpenters, masons and thatchers.

For fifty years or more many of the forty-eight states of the Union have had laws limiting hours in certain kinds of work. The first of such laws were passed in the interests of safety. It was found, for instance, that long, fatiguing hours on the railroads led to more fatal accidents to passengers and train crews than short hours. Working hours in mines and in other hazardous occupations are now generally regulated by the states.

Nearly thirty years ago the states began to regulate the hours of women and children in industry. Many now also provide for minimum wages for women and children. Most of these regulatory laws have had the support of organized labor.

It had been seen for a long time, however, that state regulation, though desirable, is not enough. A manufacturer in a state that has minimum wage and maximum hour regulation may be at a great disadvantage in competing against a fellow manufacturer located in a state that has lower wage and hour standards. His labor costs are greater, and therefore he may have to sell at a higher price.

Some measure of uniformity throughout the country was considered desirable for the protection of both employers and employes, and only the federal government could bring about uniformity. As early as 1913 a bill was introduced in congress setting a $9 weekly minimum wage, but failed of enactment.

In part because of the depression, the demand for national minimum wage and maximur hour legislation was revived on a wide scale. It seemed absurd to many people that some of those who had jobs should be forced to work 50 or 60 or even 70 hours a week, while millions didn't have any jobs at all.

It also seemed unfair that many should be working long hours for wages so low that they couldn't possibly live on them. The taxpayers had to come to the rescue of such people by supplementing their low wage with relief. It was felt that employers had no right to call upon the public to subsidize them by feeding and clothing their workers and that an employer who did not pay a living wage should not be subsidized in competition with one who did.

A wage and hour law was introduced in congress in 1937. It failed of passage that year but the following year a bill, which became known as the fair labor standards act of 1938, was enacted. It was signed by the president June 25, 1938, and its wage and hour provisions became effective Oct. 24, 1938.

The law begins with this statement:

"The congress hereby finds that the existence, in industries engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce, of labor conditions detrimental to the maintenance of the minimum standard of living necessary for health, efficiency, and general well being of workers (1) causes commerce and the channels and instrumentalities of commerce to be used to spread and perpetuate such labor conditions among the workers of the several states; (2) burdens commerce and the free flow of goods in commerce; (3) constitutes an unfair method of competition in commerce; (4) leads to labor disputes burdening and obstructing commerce and the free flow of goods in commerce; and (5) interferes with the orderly and fair marketing of goods in commerce.

"It is hereby declared to be the policy of this act, through the exercise by congress of its power to regulate commerce among the several states, to correct and as rapidly as practicable to eliminate the conditions above referred to in such industries without substantially curtailing employment or earning power."

The law applies only to workers engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for interstate commerce. It prescribed that these "covered" workers must be paid not less than 25 cents an hour the first year (from October 24, 1938, to October 24, 1939), not less than 30 cents an hour from October 24, 1939, to October 24, 1945, and not less than 40 cents an hour after October 24, 1945.

It prescribes a maximum workweek of 44 hours from October 24, 1938, to October 24, 1939; of 42 hours from October 24, 1939, to October 24, 1940, and 40 hours after October 24, 1940.

An employe may work longer than the prescribed maximum workweek provided he is paid time and a half his regular rate of pay for overtime. The overitme pay is not based upon the maximum wage, but upon the regular hourly wage. If the worker is regularly paid $1 an hour, then he is entitled to $1.50 an hour for each hour of overtime worked.

Where an employe is employed on a piecework basis, the regular hourly rate of pay is the total earnings per week (including production bonuses, if any) divided by the number of hours worked. Thus, if the total earnings in any workweek of 48 hours are $24, the regular hourly rate of pay is 50 cents, the compensation for each of the last four hours is 75 cents and the total wage $25 (44x50 plus 4x75).

If the rate of pay is $22 for a 44-hour workweek (agreed or customary), the hourly rate is 50 cents and, where the employe works 48 hours, he will receive 75 cents for each of the last four hours, or a total wage of $25.

Southern Women Reply to Query

Wherever they go, the "Touring Reporters" find eager answers to their question, "Were you helped by CARDUI?"
Of 1297 users queried among those of 12 states, 1206 stated CARDUI benefitted them. That is 93 out of every 100!
Users everywhere are glad to tell how CARDUI has made them want and enjoy food; how, with its help, they gained strength, energy, were thus relieved of the symptoms of "functional dysmenorrhea" due to malnutrition. Many also say that, when symptoms indicate the need, CARDUI in larger doses helps "at the time" to soothe pain.

Bakery Workers to Conduct Union Label Drive.

Worcester, Mass. — A campaign to be conducted throughout the New England district on behalf of union establishments was among matters discussed at the recent New England Conference of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America. An appeal is to be made to members of trads unions to patronize union bakery shops, with special emphasis laid on shops that carry the union label on bread and other bakery products.

Board of Tax Appeals Set Up In Three More States.

Chicago.—State boards of tax appeals have been set up this year by Wisconsin, Minnesota and Ohio, bringing to eight the number in which such action has been taken, according to a report from the National Association of Assessing Officers. Other states having such boards are South Carolina, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Louisiana and Georgia. The oldest is the South Carolina tax board of review, established more than 20 years ago, and the youngest, up to this year, was the District of Columbia, which created such a board last year. Jurisdiction of the boards varies considerably, the association said. In most states, however, jurisdiction extends to all taxes originally assessed by the state department.

Cigar Makers Pioneers For Eight-Hour Day.

Washington. — Cigar makers were pioneers in demanding a shorter work day—the eight-hour system. The convention of 1866 saw the adoption of a resolution to work toward an eight-hour day as a legal day's work. Since May 1, 1886, eight hours have been the constitutional maximum work day in all cigar factories covered by a union agreement.

"Coal-in-the-Bathtub."

Washington.—The United States Housing Authority has cut the cost of large scale housing projects as much as 30 and even 35 per cent below the cost of the projects built by the public works administration, according to a statement by Administrator Straus. This has been made possible by careful attention to "details," Strauss said. Improvements in the method of design, and careful selection of materials have made cheaper construction possible, he said. In the projects already in use, the occupants have shown themselves "pathetically" anxious to keep up the good appearance of their dwellings. "There is no truth in the 'Coal-in-the-bathtub' theory," he said.

Providence Miners to Appeal To Unions for Burial Fund

(Reprinted from Evansville, Ind., Labor Forum.)

To the officers of all local unions to whose attention this article may come: Checks for contributions to the Duvin Miners burial fund should be drawn to the order of the Duvin Progressive Miners Union 505 and should be mailed to Secretary Clarence Edwards, District 5, Progressive Miners, Madisonville, Kentucky, Box 295.

Unprotected by workmen's compensation insurance and handicapped because of the limitations of its burial fund, the Duvin Progressive Miners Union of Providence, Ky., affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, will appeal to A. F. of L. unions for assistance in raising funds to carry out its burial agreement with the 28 members who were victims of the tragic explosion at the Duvin Mine near Providence last week.

A considerable sum will be needed since the local union has not been in existence long enough to build up a burial reserve sufficiently large to meet the requirements resulting from a death rate of disaster proportions. It is expected that the unions will respond generously, since they will realize the difficulties facing the families of the trapped men who normally would receive compensation benefits of $4,500 for each man who lost is life.

First of the Evansville local unions to announce a contribution to the Duvin local was Stereotypers Union No. 127 which, with a membership of only 13 persons, gave $25. Other local unions have indicated their intention to make contributions as soon as the question can be brought to the attention of the membership at regular or special meetings.

Earl Woodring, president; Arch Gold, treasurer, and D. B. Barns, Jr., recording secretary of the Duvin Progressive Miners Local at Providence were killed in the explosion, throwing the burden of union responsibility on the shoulders of Frank Wood, vice president, and Jack Ethridge, financial secretary, who were not in the mine when the tragedy occurred but assisted in the rescue work.

Wood stated to The Labor Forum that every effort would be made by the local and the international union to make good on the burial agreement and that any union assistance will be deeply appreciated.

OPEN LETTER TO OUR WIVES

Dear Sister I. B. E. W.'s:

Did you ever stop to think just how much depends on us? It's up to us to see that our families are warmly clothed, well fed and warmly housed. It's our job to get our husbands on the job at the proper time. We see to it that the children get off to school and are kept well. Then it's up to us to see that the house is kept comfortable and clean. These are but a few things we wives do every day and indeed it seems a thankless task; but whether the gentleman of the house says so or not, he's proud of all you do and proud of the well organized and systematical way you run the house. You know the reason you run his home is because he knows you're capable of running it. So in turn let's encourage him with his organization. While you do not draw a weekly pay check your family's health and comfort pays you for all your efforts. The health and comfort of his family is what he's working for too. So let's don't criticize our husbands for the stand they have taken for organized labor.

Have you ever thought where our country would be if it were divided? Would you like to swap your birthright here for one in Europe? Just such men as your husband and mine brought this country together in such a great way that has stood for a great many years and will continue to do so as long as there are men like ours. The men in those days saw what had to be done and they did it.

Our husbands, too, have seen what has to be done for their betterment and what will insure a decent living for the future men and women, your children and mine. They have seen the urgent need just as our forefathers did and they are setting out to do it. They need our help. They're doing something just as great, just as important and just as vitally necessary as the drawing together of this great nation of ours, which is in itself a monument to organization. Our husbands are helping to draw together the laboring class of people, so that it will be less difficult to give their families the necessities of life.

They need our help and cooperation and not our harsh rebuffs on every side. If your husband and mine doesn't stand together as organized men they will have to accept any wage their employer sees fit to pay. So you see if you don't always understand, leave it up to the "old man" just like he leaves the house up to you. Let's do our part by running our organization, which is the house, and let him run his. When it comes handy pat him on the cheek and tell him how smart you think he is to join the union and tell him how much you appreciate the effort he's making to make life more livable for you and the children; and tell him you're going to do your part by buying all union clothes and buy all your meats, breads and groceries from stores that display a union label. Then go to work at it in earnest, demand to see the union label on everything you buy, for when you do you're helping other union men and at the same time making your home more safe and your husband's job more certain.

Organization works in the home, too. You never see discord and lasting unhappiness in a home where all are in accord and all discuss their troubles in a sane manner and work them out satisfactorily for all concerned. After all is said and done, even though it is dangerous to say so, we are the leaders, aren't we? Let's give them a hand. We need them and they need us. We've had a trying time, that's true, but the sun is just over the hill. Together we stand, divided we fall.

Yours truly for organized labor.

MRS. JACK UNDERWOOD.

RATE OF FARM WAGES LOWEST IN 3 YEARS

Washington. — Wage rates to agricultural workers increased slightly less than usual during the April-June quarter this year, and the July wage index was the lowest for the month in three years, the agricultural marketing service of the U. S. department of agriculture said in its monthly report on farm employment. At 126 per cent of pre-war, the July 1 wage level was 5 points higher than on April 1 but 3 points lower than on July 1, 1938.

STANLEY ROUNDS

Southern representative of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, long active in promoting the interest of all A. F. of L. Unions throughout the south. Resident of Knoxville, Tenn., Mr. Rounds is one of the leaders in preparing for the mammoth Labor Day celebration at Norris Dam, when a massive bronze bust of Senator Norris will be unveiled.

notable events in the history of American labor in the country.

Gordon M. Freeman, secretary of the Trades and Labor Council, said that conferences with the Authority members had resulted in a happy agreement on the part of the latter to lend full co-operation and provide the structural features incident to the erection of the Norris bust. Its site will be at the Norris end of the great dam spanning the Clinch twenty-five miles distant from Knoxville.

Mr. Freeman declared that invitations would go, not only to Senator Norris (who will be present), but to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, Secretaries Cordell Hull and Harold Ickes of the State and Interior Departments, Senator Robert Wagner, of New York, and other notable figures in national circles.

The broad-gauge program was first discussed before the Knoxville Building Trades Council on Tuesday evening, being presented by Stanley Rounds, representative of the Structural Iron Workers International Union, and was followed almost immediately by a vote to extend full co-operation.

The presidents of all international and national unions of the Federation, of the State Federations of the seven valley states and all Central Labor Unions and Building Trades Councils and affiliated local unions, will also be formally invited to send large delegations.

O. S. Tislow, representative of the Painters and Decorators International Union, presented the matter to the local union of that group, No. 437, Wednesday night and similar action was taken.

The Central Labor Union is expected to take similar action next Monday night and dovetail its plans for Labor Day to fit in with the valley celebration.

Geo. L. Googe To Be Labor Day Speaker at Gadsden Celebration

Gadsden, Ala.—George L. Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, has accepted an invitation to be Labor Day speaker here at what is believed will be one of the largest and most important gatherings ever held in Alabama. The Gadsden Central Labor body is sponsoring the celebration, and all A. F. of L. unions from Anniston, Rageland, Guntersville and other cities in this vicinity have joined the Gadsden C. L. U. in the movement, and thousands of workers from those cities will join Gadsden in the day's celebration.

Committees have been appointed by the Gadsden C. L. U., and each of the other cities joining this city in the day's program has named committees to arrange the joint celebration. A monster parade is being planned, with music and everything that goes into the making of a real Labor Day celebration. R. Y. Hadaway is president of the Central body; J. S. Garrard is vice-president, and C. R. Johnson is secretary-treasurer. These officials head the Labor Day committee and are enthusiastic over the response made by the business men of Gadsden, the city and county officials and the civic organizations, all of whom are joining whole-heartedly in the Labor Day program and plans.

Labor in Gadsden and the cities co-operating in the Labor Day program are jubilant over the fact that Mr. Googe accepted their invitation to be principal speaker at the event.

YOUR DOLLAR

YOUR DOLLAR will be a regular monthly feature. The facts and opinions given are beased on the monthly reports of Consumers' Union, 55 Vandam Street, New York City, a nonprofit membership organization whose object is to safeguard buyers by testing and reporting on consumer goods. Note especially the information on labor conditions under which products are manufactured.

It's Still a Gadget

Buy a portable radio, if you feel you can't travel without Charlie McCarthy or the symphony concerts. But don't expect good radio reception from this year's models. They're expensive to run compared with ac-dc sets, and the sound output is apt to be distorted, especially as the batteries wear down.

If you do buy a portable radio, make sure to get at least the entertainment value you are paying for. If you plan to use it on a camping trip, try it out before buying, on distant stations. Many sets will not receive even high-powered broadcasting stations more than a hundred miles away. If you want to get distant stations, it'sb est to buy a set to which a separate antenna can be attached. Look for a set with standard sized batteries, which are usually cheapest to run and easiest to replace. And make sure that the set is really portable—that you can carry it without too great a strain.

Best buy for tone and sensitivity, though somewhat heavy (16 pounds), was the Lafayette at $19.95 (available from Co-operative Distributors and Wholesale Radio Service, Inc., both of New York City).

Women's Shoes

Eighty-six per cent of women wear badly fitted shoes, a university survey showed. Any shoe clerk can probably confirm the fact. Intelligent looking, carefully dressed women who would not think of buying a dress or a hat too small will accept—and even demand—5A shoes for 6B feet, pointed toes that make walking painful, high heels that throw the body into graceless posture.

No wonder women buy almost twice as many shoes as men. Poorly designed and fitted shoes have no chance of rendering good service.

If design and fit of a shoe are good, next most important are material and construction. Good quality leather uppers and insoles are points to look for, and "welt" construction is probably first choice for everyday wear.

Consumers' Union rates twenty-three brands of women's shoes on the basis of comparative quality, as determined by laboratory tests and examinations by a shoe expert. In general, it was found that best values are in the $5 to $7 price range, good buys can be found at around $4, but shoes selling at much less than $4 are not worth buying for steady wear.

High-Priced Air

Thirty cents a pint for ice cream mean from 30 to 52 cents per pound—depending on how much air the manufacturer chooses to whip into his product. The practice of selling by bulk instead of by weight leaves room for profitable sale of packaged air.

The extra price is not put into extra purity, for 52 per cent of the seventy-three New York City brands tested contained B. Coli—bacteria associated with sewage—in one or more samples. And all samples of frozen custard picked up at Coney Island contained B. Coli. It's safer to refrain from eating frozen confections made at amusement resorts, on machinery which may not be thoroughly cleaned from the beginning of a season to the end.

On the average, bulk ice cream is about as pure—or as contaminated—as individual and pint-size packages. The bulk variety of most brands of ice cream weighs more per pint than the packaged variety and is somewhat more economical.

Promises may get thee friends, but nonperformance will turn them into enemies.—Franklin.

JOSEPH A. McINERNEY, BUILDING TRADES HEAD, DIES AT FORTY-SEVEN

New York City.—Joseph A. McInerney, president of the American Federation of Labor Building and Construction Trades Department, died at Midtown Hospital here on July 10 after an illness of five months. He was in his forty-eighth year.

Born in this city and educated in the public schools here, Mr. McInerney long was identified with the labor movement. After serving for fifteen years as business representative of the Marble Polishers Union, he was elected two years ago as president of the Building and Construction Trades Department. He had passed much of his time since then in Washington.

Survivors are his widow, Mrs. Mary McInerney, and three daughters and a son.

Anti-Picketing Act Upheld by Oregon Circuit Court

Portland, Ore.—Three state circuit judges sitting en banc ruled unanimously on July 8 that Oregon's anti-picketing law is legal in its entirety.

The decision was handed down by Judges Robert Tucker, James T. Brand and Arthur D. Hay, who have been hearing the case for weeks.

Attorneys for the CIO, the A. F. of L. and the "Big Four" Railroad Brotherhoods announced they would appeal the case to the State Supreme Court.

These unions, united in a common cause, were plaintiffs in the case, seeking a declaratory judgment holding unconstitutional the anti-picketing law, passed last November.

Under the act, the court decided, labor unions may not picket an employer's establishment unless there is a legitimate controversy between the employer over wages, hours or working conditions within the establishment. If there is such a controversy, picketing and an employer boycott by the unions is not prohibited, the judges held.

He has been a resident of Miami since 1935 and is married. Miami Citizen bespeaks for Mr. McNeil every possible success in his new position.

...y WPA Projects for Repairing ... Rebinding Old Textbooks Ended

...ggerty Says 10,000 Inexperienced Persons Were Employed on This Work While Thousands of Skilled Bookbinders Were Jobless.

Washington, D. C.—One of the ...ids in which WPA projects in... the work which should have ...en given to bookbinders is that ...pairing and rebinding old ...ool books. During the last few ...ousands of dollars of public ...y has been spent by the ...A for this work. It has recently been stopped, however, by ...intervention of John B. Haggerty, president of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, ...d with the American Federation of Labor.

...inting out the extent of this evil Mr. Haggerty said that "10,000 men and women with no experience in the bindery" have been employed on these WPA projects while at the same time "we have thousands of unemployed skilled workmen."

Mr. Haggerty protested against these WPA projects for the repair and rebinding of school books, with the result that the following revision by the WPA on this subject was recently issued:

"This revision provides that projects to repair and/or rebind books for public schools are ineligible. Projects of this type which have already received presidential approval, but have not yet been placed in operation shall not be operated. Active projects engaged in the repair and/or rebinding of public school books shall discontinue this work as soon as other appropriate employment is found for the certified workers engaged in this activity. In no case shall such work be continued after May 31, 1939."

POTTERS' UNION URGES UNITY IN LABOR RANKS

Atlantic City, N. J.—Peace in labor's ranks was urged by the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, A. F. of L. affiliate, at the closing session of the union's 47th annual convention here. "Unity rather than strife in labor" was called for in a resolution approved by unanimous vote.

The delegates, representing 18,000 workers in the kitchenware, chinaware and sanitary ware branches of the pottery industry, voted to continue their "Buy American" program.

Congress Which Soaked Relief Consistent in Leaving District of Columbia Without Funds—Building and Loan League Doleful Over USHA—Record for Tax Evasion Convictions Hung Up.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—It is perfectly natural that the congress which dealt labor such slaps in the WPA bill should have left the nation's capital without funds for some days and almost compelled to borrow money to pay its workers. The stubborn stupidity which shows up by slamming labor in one way can be trusted to slam labor in another.

It might be questioned, too, if it is note quite as much contrary to law for the government of the District of Columbia to borrow money as it is for skilled laborers on the WPA to "strike against the government." These sweeping statements seldom bear examination. Certainly, the district authorities were morally right in preparing to get the money to meet their wage bills when congress failed to furnish it; but the sanction of law on that is open to doubt.

The United States Building and loan league is very doleful about the U. S. Housing Authority. "Housing is a far different thing from a home," declares one of its chief officials. "Superhighways around cities and over semi-central areas would make slums unprofitable. . . There is plenty of place for government aid in city developments while leaving the provision of shelter to the most elastic private business on earth—Building."

"Elastic' 'is right. Building, as financed and carried on up to date, is about the most up-and-down business in the country. And the result is that President Roosevelt's statement about one-third of the people being ill-housed is an understatement; that slums have invaded every city and a whole lot of rural districts; and that USHA is making the first hopseful fight against indecent housing that has been seen in this country.

The treasury made a record for convictions for tax evasions in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1939. One hundred and fourteen persons were indicted for this performance, and eighty-one were convicted. Penalties amounting to $39,237,830 were recommended for assessment. Among them was "Boss" Pendergast, of Kansas City; and in the next fiscal year probably will come a crop of such convictions from Louisiana.

Why experiment on our economic problems when union labels will solve them!

Mead Plan Promises School Construction Boo

Senate Proposes $100,000,000 for School Projects

Money, to Be Spent in Year Just Ahead, Would Enormously Improve Nation's Educational Facilities and Benefit Big Cross-Section of Labor and Industry.

Washington. — American school construction is promised the biggest boom of all time in a proposal offered by Senator James Mead (D., New York), in the form of an amendment to the pending spend-lend bill, or an amendment to an appropriation bill.

Senator Mead's amendment projoses to ear mark $100,000,000 for school construction, making that amount available for the year immediately ahead. In addition to this, there is unmarked money in the bill which may be called upon.

The Mead proposal beckons to the building trades, the school boards of the country, educators, material and supply manufacturers and many others, with a promise of spreading an immense fund through a tremendous cross-section of labor and industry and adding enormously to the education plant facilities of the country.

Antiquated Buildings Found.

Under the Mead proposal funds would be allocated on a basis of 30 per cent grant and 70 per cent loan.

The New York senator was led to introduce this amendment through investigation of conditions in New York state and throughout the nation. Deplorably inadequate facilities, often constituting serious health and fire hazards, were exposed.

> "In a surprising number of cases, buildings dating back to the Civil war period are still in use. In many instances, these buildings are not only devoid of any modern facilities, but have not even been kept in repair.

"There is a real demand and need for public assistance in the construction of non-liquidating projects such as public schools and hospitals," said Senator Mead. "While I do not have the figures exact as yet, I know there are a large number of school project applications now pending with the public works administration, which because of shortage of funds, could not be approved when the last batch of allotments were made by PWA. These are important projects and a way should be provided for their construction.

Need Held Unmistakable.

"In some instances schools have been burned down or have been condemned. New schools will have to be built to replace them. In other cases, new buildings are desirable but the communities simply cannot afford to build them. I know of several instances in New York state, where communities are practically begging for federal aid so that they can go ahead with school projects. The situation is sufficiently serious to merit immediate attention.

"Over 39 per cent of all school buildings in cities of 10,000 population are more than thirty years old, which means that they are obsolescent from both an educational and constructional standpoint. Thousands of elementary school children are still housed in one-room schools. There are over 6,000 such in New York state alone. Many of these should be replaced with modern, centralized schools. Thousands of our children in rural schools are still housed in buildings without running water and without modern sanitation facilities. I have considerable statistics which demonstrate the unmistakable need for new elementary and high schools. PWA is the natural agency to undertake assistance to deserving communities for such school construction as is drastically needed.

"Schools Essential."

"Schools are essentials to society. In my judgment, the federal government can undertake no more well-justified work than to aid in building newer and better buildings of this type. Especially, is it a responsibility in cases where the community involved absolutely must have the assistance.

> "Of course, I am not overlooking the economic importance of these projects so far as providing employment is concerned and so far as stimulating heavy industries is concerned. I have always held that to be the government's first concern, although when it comes to schools and hospitals, I'm not sure but the community needs are as urgent as the employment needs.

"I am introducing an amendment which will provide $100,00,000 for PWA to approve existing school project applications on a 70%-30% basis. It means, of course, in cases where bond elections have been held under the former 45%-55% basis that new elections will have to be held. But I do not believe that will involve serious delay nor a great deal of project withdrawals.

To Push Amendment.

"Frankly, right at this time, I am not so much interested in provision being made for the filing of new applications as I am that the pending applications now on file be approved. If it is desirable to file new applications, I believe that can be attended to at some future date. But, in the case of present applicants, they have been led to believe they were going to receive aid from the government. I think we should go through with it. Not only is it the fair thing to do, in many instances, it is a vitally necessary thing to do. I shall press for approval of my amendment."

Tracy Blasts Myth Wages Hike Costs of Construction

Materials Take Lion's Share, Says Electricians' Chief; Lack of Income by Third of People Held Heart of Problem

Dan W. Tracy, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, this week gave Senator O'Mahoney's "anti-monopolp" investigating committee facts and figures disproving claims that organized labor is responsible for the high cost of construction, particularly in the field of housing for low-income families.

Attempts to blame labor were made by business spokesmen who preceded Tracy on the witness stand, and newspaper exaggerated their statements to put the building trades unions in the worst possible light.

The committee was obviously deeply impressed as Tracy exploded the charges one after the other.

First, he pointed out that "for many years the builder's funds went fifty-fifty for labor and materials, but now 65 per cent goes for materials and only 35 per cent. to labor." Tracy backed these figures by proof from many studies made by government and private research agencies. All found that labor is getting a constantly decreasing share of the building dollar, and therefore, wages are not the cause of high construction costs.

Blasts Old Canard

Then Isador Lubin, chief of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, reminded Tracy of the old canard that "unions limit the amount of work their members may do in a day," and asked: "Is there any truth in that?"

"Absolutely none," Tracy replied. "Such statements have never been supported by facts, and I know from personal experience that unions do not limit production on any job."

Next, Tracy disposed of propaganda about the "big incomes" of building trades workers, by citing the average earnings of members of his own union, who are highly skilled and well organized.

In 1938, he said, the members of his union in 140 large cities earned an average of $1,532, "which is scarcely a profiteering income for skilled workers, and the average earnings were even less in the smaller towns and outlying districts."

Field Not Organized

The real problem before O'Mahoney's committee is how to get an expansion in low-cost housing, not only to provide decent dwellings, but also to increase employment and stimulate recovery.

Tracy explained that this is exactly the field where organized labor cannot possibly the responsible for high costs, because the great majority of houses costing under $15,000 are built by non-union workers, who have no say about wages or working conditions.

"Then, why are not adequate dwelling accommodations being made available to that portion of the population whose incomes fall between $1,000 and $2,000 a year?" Tracy was asked.

More Income Needed

"The answer is simple," he replied. .."At least one-third of our people do not make enough money to allo... live in a house of the... or in any house of an ade... standard.

"Those critics who as... the way to erect good ho... lower building wages are ... talking nonsense. That w... complish nothing except ... workers who, for more th... years, have struggled to r... standard of living."

President Gerald Foley, of TFL, Instrumental in Negotiations That Give 400 Employes Pay Boost and 40-Hour Week.

Foley said that the contract was signed Thursday by Thomas P. Kennedy, Jr., head of the firm, and by R. W. Reynolds, international representative for the Garment Workers, an A. F. of L. affiliated union.

He said that it provides a 45 per cent pay increase for machine operators, who represent the majority of the firm's employes; a 17 per cent increase for cutters, and a 10 per cent increase for machinists and other employes.

Foley said that the agreement also will provide a 40-hour week, time and a half pay for overtime, and other concessions.

Steelworker Killed At Chickamauga Dam

James H. Fox, member of Bridge and structural Iron Workers, Local 384, was killed at Chickamauga dam Thursday morning at 8:30. He was assisting in dismantling an electric shovel, using a crane. Part of the crane fell on a heavy beam, which flew up and killed him.

Brother Fox had been with TVA since 1934, starting work at Norris and coming here in 1938. He was born at Asheville, N. C., and was 40 years old. He resided at Hixson, Tenn.

He is survived by a wife, Mrs. Thelma Fox, and four minor children.

RAIL EMPLOYMENT GAINS

Washington, D. C.—Railroad employment increased in June, the Interstate Commerce Commission reports. Railroads employed 991,900 persons in mid-June. The figure was 3.58 per cent above the previous month and 8.39 per cent above June, 1938.

Judd Company Host To Local Union at All-Day Barbecue

Unusual Occurrence Sees Employes and Families Eat and Play

Something unusual was taking place all day last Saturday at Warner park. The H. L. Judd company, manufacturers of articles in wood, gave a barbecue in honor of the local union in its plant. Local 1882, Woodworkers, were the guests of the company, and the whole affair served to cement the fine spirit of co-operation between management and the employes that is existing.

The production manager in charge, Mr. Alloway, acted as master of ceremonies. In the morning hours, started by a brief devotional exercise, the children took part in the games with their parents. Immediately after lunch, with plenty of fine barbecue cooked in Warner park's pitts, very short addresses were made by friends of the union and the company, in which both parties were commended for the situation existing at the plant.

The rest of the day was given over to more games.

DRIVE IS STARTED TO ORGANIZE ALL COAL DEALER MEN

Truck Union Asking Unionists to Have Coal Hauled by Drivers With Cards.

H. F. Blansit, business agent for Local 515, Truck Drivers, announced this week that a drive is being started to organize all men driving coal trucks. To date three coal dealers are using 100 per cent union drivers for coal trucks.

"In a few weeks trade unionists will be ordering their coal for the fall and winter. We ask them to insist that the drivers of these coal dealers' trucks are required to show a union card before the coal is unloaded in the coal bins," Blansit said.

Sewanee Coal and Supply company, T. T. Wilson and Hibbler-Barnes are the three union coal companies to date. Others are expected to be signed up shortly.

Mr. Blansit also said that Chattanooga Transfer and Storage company had been declared "unfair" to his union. They refuse to deal with his union, he said.

Girls Quitting Work to Marry Rulled Entitled to Unemployment Benefits

Hartford, Conn.—Girls stopping work to get married are entitled to full benefits under the unemployment compensation law, Frank T. Odlum, unemployment compensation director, has ruled. He made the decision in three cases in which employers protested that marriage was not "sufficient cause" to allow compensation payments to girls quitting work.

Odlum explained that in the cases of two of the women they intended to pursue employment after marriage, while in a third case the applicant was compelled, by "economic necessity" to seek work.

The compensation was allowed under a section of the law which prescribes payments to persons who are "available for work" and who cannot find a position.

FLASH . . .

As the paper went to press word came in that a union agreement had just been signed between Local 656, Boilermakers, and the Chattanooga Boiler and Tank company.

Sam Godfrey, international representative, assisted in the negotiations on behalf of the union.

Local 74, Carpenters and Joiners, is all set for its annual picnic, which will take place this Saturday, August 5. Scene for the frolic will be Warner park, and it will be an all-day affair, with a full program of entertainment.

Building Industry Still In Horse and Buggy Age, New York Expert Says

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The building industry is still in the horse and buggy age, a New York housing expert told the Federal monopoly committee, predicting that only through scientific research will the day of low cost housing on a mass production basis become a fact.

Robert L. Davison, director of housing research for the John B. Pierce Foundation, said that the construction industry, hampered by "outmoded and illogical building codes" is unable to reach the low income groups because it has not madse use of newly developed materials which could reduce costs to a "fraction" of their present size.

He advocated the creation of a commission to consist of experts of the government, of industry, and university research laboratories, to test, develop, and publicize new methods and new materials, and to secure the co-operation of builders in making use of them.

NLRB CHANGES RULES TO LET EMPLOYER PETITION ELECTION

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The National Labor Relations Board has issued its promised rule, permitting an employer to petition for an election of his workers to determine a bargaining agent. The chief requirement is that "the board shall not direct an investigation on a petition filed by an employer unless it appears to the board that two or more labor organizations have presented to the employer conflicting claims that each represents a majority of the employes in the bargaining unit or units claimed to be appropriate."

It is held that when the majority question is not involved, a strike by a minority can be investigated by the board on its own motion.

The American Federation of Labor is in favor of permitting employers to ask elections and had urged the change in rules made by the board.

UNION LABEL CATALOG IN BIG DEMAND

Washington, D. C.—An unprecedented demand for the 1939 Union Label Catalog-Directory is reported by I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department, A. F. of L. Orders are pouring in to the Washington headquarters from officials of national and international unions, central bodies, and local unions for copies of this catalog that contains the lists of unionized manufacturers.

A special price of 20 cents per copy in lots of 100 or more is being offered by the department. Single copies are 25 cents each.

Several national and international unions are sending copies of the catalog directory to all officials of their respective unions and to all organizers. There is also an increased demand this year from members of women's auxiliaries and union label leagues.

MAN BITES DOG---

This Time It's Not a Case of Employer Recognizing Union But Union Recognizing Employer

Chicago.—When a union recognizes an employers' association for the industry in which it functions, it's considered news, as it is usaully the union which seeks recognition from the employers. This unusual step was taken when Bartenders and Beverage Dispensers, Union, Local No. 278, Hotel and Restaurant Employers' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America, American Federation of Labor affiliate, recognized the Chicago Tavern and Cafe Owners' Association as the official bargaining agent for Chicago taverns.

The union's action culminated five years of negotiations.

But Here's the Broom

The salesman waxed eloquent about the merits of a vacuum cleaner, but the village housewife wasn't impressed. She suggested that he talk less and show her what the machine could do.

Beaming broadly, the man fitted up the cleaner, thrust his arm into the chimney of the open fireplace and brought out a handful of soot, which he scattered over the carpet.

He then shoveled up some ashes from the grate and sprinkled them on the rug.

"Now," he said, smiling triumphantly, "I'll show you what this vacuum cleaner can do. You'll be surprised, madam. Where's the electric switch?"

"Switch?" echoed the surprised woman. "We use gas!"

A Splendid Help for Housing

Speaking at the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, wanted to know why public housing should not abolish slums, even as public schools had pretty well abolished illiteracy. And do you know, there is no other question that will give more trouble to the enemies of public housing thar. this.

Mr. Straus gave ten benefits which the country would draw from public housing. We shall quote here only six: Better housing, lower cost housing, more of it, stabilized values, more employment and better health and morals. The first five speak for themselves. But if there is anything that social students feel sure of today, it is the sixth. Slums breed both crime and sickness; and in every city where better housing has been tried, crime and sickness have gone down.

"There is, in my belief," says Mr. Straus, "no single, ready-made cure for all our troubles. Public housing by itself can no more do away utterly with crime or unemployment than it can eliminate reckless driving. But it will help to decrease many types of crime, and it will help to provide new employment. Although not the sole means of attacking our economic ills, it is an extremely important and effective instrument for building the great road of social progress."

The Way to Settle Labor Disputes

"The preservation of the free exercise of the right to strike imposes an obligation on working men and women to act wisely and to guard against abuses. Every effort possible ought to be put forth to avoid industrial strife and conflict.

"The differences which arise between employers and employes ought to be settled in the conference room in an atmosphere of good-will and mutual understanding whenever possible."—William Green.

In This Day of Change

Magna Charta is a name of note. But it was granted by an English King John to some Barons, and had to do, among other things, with the control by the barons of the property of their wards. And it was given by the king in A.D. 1215—which was 724 years ago.

English conditions changed, and there was the rebellion of Wat Tyler, in 1381. It was 100 years after that, that the Portuguese started the African slave trade. Within 10 years, America was discovered. Slavery was introduced into the American colonies in 1619. It took 246 years for it to become a war issue, and be abolished.

Then came the Industrial revolution, with the invention and use of labor-saving machinery. And in 1825 trade unions were allowed in England. The first pony express was started between Sacramento, California, and St. Joseph, Missouri, in 1860; and in exactly eighteen months it was superseded by the telegraph, in October, 1861.

Invention of the cotton gin made slavery profitable for a few in America; laid the basis for peculiar philosophies and creeds; prepared the way for secession; and pointed far forward to the address of Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg.

Every great event changes the current of men's thinking; wipes out old beliefs; modifies the meanings of words; abolishes philosophies. Greatest wisdom of the "founding fathers" was their provision for the changes which they foresaw to be certain, though but dimly sensed at the time. Traditions, basic principles, eternal truths—these are not terminals: they are milestones.

It is in the light of this record of experience, this product of the histories of men, that the American labor movement must find its way into the future.

Magna Chartas are never the capstones of history. They are but parts of the walls of human life.

Good Work by CCC

Robert Fechner, chief of the Civilian Conservation Corps since it was created and former official of the International Association of Machinists, has made a report covering the whole six years of its career. It is a most inspiring document.

The CCC has planted 1,741,000,000 trees: which alone would be an enormous help in stopping erosion. The corps has built 104,000 miles of truck trails or minor roads; 71,692 miles of telephone lines: 40,000 bridges; more than 45,000 buildings; nearly 5,000,000 dams of various sort, and about 16,000,000 rods of fence. It has developed 20,000 wells, springs, water holes and small reservoirs. And it has put in about 9,000,000 man-days in fighting and preventing forest fires.

"When the CCC was founded," says Fechner, "its twin objectives were to conserve unemployed youth and restore natural resources. The speed with which the green youngsters have learned to work efficiently on all sorts of jobs was a source of gratification to every person connected in any way with the CCC programs."

FACING the FACTS

With PHILIP PEARL

Dictator Lewis has declared war all over again on the American Federation of Labor. Chief Big Bad Wolf of the C. I. O., loudly beating the tom-toms, has returned to the warpath. Watch out for him. He is carrying a warped and mildewed bow and a moth-eaten arrow.

That's about the size of the latest threat—or bluff—to raid the building trades unions through the agency of an organizing committee headed by little brother Denny Lewis. Do you know Denny Lewis? He's a heavyweight from the neck down. Just reading about his appointment to lead the fight against the firmly entrenched and powerful building trade unions of the A. F. of L. reminds us of the practice of certain baseball managers when their team is losing by a score of 18 to 0, putting in a "concede" pitcher. Denny Lewis is a "concede" pitcher if there ever was one.

Aside from its ludicrousnesses, Big Brother Lewis' new move is significant in one respect—it clearly indicates his state of mind. If further proof were needed that Lewis has not the slightest desire or intention of making peace with the American Federation of Labor, here it is in black and white. Sidney Hillman, please take notice.

You will remember that Mr. Hillman, who is John L.'s chief batboy, predicted a short time ago that there would be peace in organized labor within a year. Undoubtedly Mr. Hillman wanted peace. He wanted it so much that he even dared to differ publicly with Mr. Lewis when the latter recently declared peace was "impossible." We wonder how Mr. Hillman feels now.

Where Are the Promises of Yesterday?

And we also wonder how those people who joined the C. I. O. in the belief that it was going to "organize the unorganized" feel about Mr. Lewis' newest adventure into wonderland. If Mr. Lewis wants to argue that he is going to organize the unorganized by raiding A. F. of L. building trades unions, we will hire him a hall and let him talk all day, but it won't get him anywhere. Because the facts are just the opposite and everybody knows it.

Nor will the workers in the building industry fall for Mr. Lewis' "bargain sale" offer of low dues and no initiation fee. They know that the next step inevitably would be for Mr. Lewis to offer their services to employers at "bargain" rates—in other words, to sell them down the river. Otherwise he couldn't possibly get a wedge in the industry. Mr. Lewis may be able to get away with such tactics in his own mining bailiwick, but if he ever tries it in the building trades he is likely to find himself in a jam.

There's no doubt that Mr. Lewis has been nursing the ambition of invading the construction field for some time. He has time and again tried to pull a little raid in one city and another city only to get his ears beaten in. The same thing will happen again every time he tries it.

But in the long run, Mr. Lewis' attempt to make a nuisance of himself to the building trades unions should prove of everlasting benefit to them. If ever anything could be counted on to knit these unions tighter together, it is this sort of threat from the outside. It would be a boon to the entire labor movement if the building trades unions, realizing their mutual interests, would co-operate more closely on matters of common concern to all of them.

We Live and Learn

And now a word about those who have been trying to knock the building trade unions on another front. They are a strange crowd. Look them over. You will find reactionary tories and extreme leftists side by side lifting up their voices in a raucous chorus about the allegedly high cost of labor in the construction field.

Well, we expect squawks from the tories whose wage-cutting policies are notorious. But what about the self-styled liberals? How can they excuse their presence in such company?

The answer is politics.

Some of the smartalecks on the extreme left side of the political ledger don't approve of certain leaders of building trade unions. They would rather see John L. Lewis in charge because they view him as a political partner. Comes the revolution, they expect John L. to be on their side or even carrying their standard.

So, forgetful of the fate of their last attempted purge, the boys on the left have started the ballyhoo against the building trade unions. One of their stooges—the only political columnist in Washington who doesn't sign his right name to his stuff—even went so far as to suggest "smashing" these unions. He repeated the usual baloney about "high wage rates" creating a bottleneck in the construction industry.

Well's let's see about these "high" wage rates. The average pay of the building trades worker is $1,172 a year. Is that a high wage? Isn't a man who, for seasonal and economic reasons gets only a few months work each year, entitled to high hourly rates?

Let the gentlemen who are so concerned about these "high" wages attend to their own knitting a little more closely. Let them concentrate on trying to restore business confidence and business activity instead of threatening to "smash" unions and "slash wages. It would be good news for the whole country.

Some Who Are Exempted

This is the second of a series of six articles explaining the Fair Labor Standards Act prepared for the Labor World by the Information Branch of the Wage and Hour Division, United States Department of Labor.

Since the fair labor standards act applies only to employes engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for interstate commerce, employers who can show that the functions of their employes are wholly intrastate in character are entirely excluded from its provisions.

In addition, specific wage and hour exemptions are granted to certain employes, including agricultural workers, seamen, employes employed in an executive, administrative or professional capacity; outside salesmen; fishermen, employes of retail stores and of certain small weekly or semi-weekly newspapers; employes employed within the "area of production" in handling, storing, packing, ginning, compressing, pasteurizing, drying, preparing in their raw or natural state, or canning of horticultural or agricultural commodities for market or in making cheese or butter or other dairy products. Certain employes of certain common carriers are given an overtime exemption only, being left subject to the minimum wage provisions of the act. There are certain other overtime exceptions, some for only part of the year and others for the whole year.

While the law extends its protection over workers employed in interstate commerce, it does not itself define the exact limits of interstate commerce. In enforcing the law the administrator is guided by such definitions as can be construed from decisions of the courts.

Any worker who wishes to know whether or not he is "covered" and receiving all the benefits of the act to which he is entitled will first make sure that he is not in any one of the exempted categories, for example, that he is not an executive, or employed as a professional worker, such as a certified public accountant or graduate electrical engineer. If he is employed in a factory he will have to know whether the goods he helps to manufacture are shipped outside the state by his employer or a purchaser from his employer.

After allowing for all exemptions, it is estimated that 11,000,000 workers are covered. Of these it is calculated that 163,000 are employed in Tennessee.

Labor union contracts with employers are not affected by the law, unless they prescribe lower wage and hour standards. A union contract, for example, could not set up a minimum wage of 20 cents an hour and a maximum workweek of 48 hours without payment of overtime.

There are two types of labor union contracts, however, which permit some leeway as to hours. If the employer has a contract signed with the union which provides that no employe shall be employed more than 1,000 hours during any period of twenty-six consecutive weeks, or if he has a contract guaranteeing either a fixed annual wage or annnual employment and providing that no employe shall be employed more than 2,000 hours during any period of fifty-two consecutive weeks, then the men can work longer than 44 hours in any one workweek (but not more than 12 hours a day or 56 hours a week) without being entitled to overtime pay. To be valid, however, such contracts must have been made as a result of collective bargaining by representatives of the employes certified as bona fide by the national labor relations board.

Otherwise, no "averaging" of hours from week to week is permissible. Any overtime in any workweek must be paid for in cash, and at the next regular pay period.

One section of the law prohibits the shipment in interstate or foreign commerce of goods produced in an establishment in or about which child labor has been employed.

Sixteen years is made the basic minimum age for employment in establishments covered by the act.

Children 14 and 15 years of age may work for their parents or may be employed under conditions that do not interfere with their health, schooling, or well-being as such conditions are determined by the chief of the children's bureau, but in no case may this employment be in mining or manufacturing occupations.

Children 16 and 17 years of age are excluded from occupations found and determined by the chief of the children's bureau to be particularly hazardous or detrimental to their health or well-being.

The child labor provisions are administered and enforced not by the wage and hour division but by the children's bureau. For information about these provisions, address the children's bureau, United States Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

GREAT LABOR DAY CLEBRATIONS PLANNED THROUGHOUT SOUTH

Atlanta, Ga.—Requests for Labor Day speakers coming into the southern headquarters of the American Federation of Labor from Central Labor Unions throughout the south indicate that Labor Day, 1939, will be observed in unusual manner. Paul J. Aymon, associate director of the A. F. of L., is busily engaged in procuring speakers for the day as requested by Central bodies.

Numerous cities have all arrangements for the day's celebration about completed. Parades will play an important part in the coming Labor Day celebrations, according to reports coming into Atlanta. Some Central bodies are planning radio hook-ups for their principal speakers, desiring to carry labor's messages to the public, whereby correct information about the American Federation of Labor's program and activities may be broadcast.

Labor Day, 1939, is destined to be an important day, for statements made by labor officials on that day will have direct bearing upon the whole future of all America, and the world. Recent actions by the Congress of the United States, the attitude of the Administration, the activities of the Secretary of Labor, the hostile actions of many state administrations, and other subjects of general interest will be discussed by Labor Day speakers on Sept. 4.

Union Label Now Used On Packed Dried Fruit and Nuts

Washington, D. C.—Earl T. Baker, secretary-treasurer of Dried Fruit and Nut Packers Union No. 21084, of Santa Clara county, California, has notified the American Federation of Labor Union Label Trades Department that the official union label of its organization now appears on packed dried fruit and nuts. In speaking of the new products bearing the union label, I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the department, said that union label-conscious consumers in every part of the country could create a great demand for the dried and nuts bearing the label by urging local retailers, and especially cooperative owned stores, to place orders for these products with Earl T. Baker, secretary-treasurer, Dried Fruit and Nut Packers Union No. 21084, 45 North First street, San Jose, Calif.

LABOR TO CARRY FIGHT FOR CHANGE IN RELIEF LAW TO POLL, GREEN TELLS UNION CONVENTION

New York City.—William Green, president of the A. F. of L., in an address to the thirty-second convention of the International Longshoremen's Association, served plain notice that if Congress did not right the wrong done to the WPA, 5,000,000 union voters would tend to that job at the election next year.

"We accepted," said Mr. Green, "as a principle that the government was committed to pay the prevailing rate of wages. It is written in the Walsh-Healy Act. The representatives of the government must determine what the prevailing rate of wages is in each community. We thought that was part of the Ten Commandments of the government.

Action Not Understandable

"We assumed that we were committed to that policy. Imagine our surprise when the recent relief bill was passed by the House and we found that the provision was eliminated. We became active and the A. F. of L. prepared an amendment to restore it. The Senate accepted it and referred it to the conference committee of the Senate and House and the committee liminated it.

"I can't understand the action of the committee. I can't believe it was a move of the leaders of the government. It's bad enough to have distress and suffering in the country but it's woirse when you stir up the righteous indignation of people who have this injustice perpetrated upon them.

Worker Forced to Strike

"Today the only thing the working man can do is to resort to his economic strength—which means strikes and strikes. It seems inconceivable that our government would make a contribution to that end. The workers of this country are not going to accept a reduction in wages without justification. If there is one thing that is needed to bring back prosperity it is an increase in purchasing power

"We are going to petition Congress to right the wrong that was committed and we are going to place the responsibility where it belongs. We are going to mobilize the strength of the 5,000,000 men and women members of the A. F. of L. and their friends.

"If Congress refuses, then, in pursuance of our non-partisan policy, we will be heard from in the next political election."

Growth of Co-operative Medical Service Shows America's Determination to Have Health of All Given Proper Care—Big Majority Favor Action Against Japan's War of Conquest.

By George L. Knapp

Washington, D. C.—"Social organization for the control of disease is an invention of this century. Co-operative medical service is one of the most important parts of this invention. The co-operative method and the co-operative movement parallels the organization of workers in unions. It furnishes them essential services, at the same time that union organization establishes conditions of work that make health and happiness possible.

You have read plenty of smoother sentences; but seldom have you read a more important statement. Jacob Baker, president of the Federal Workers of America, was speaking at the first convention of Group Health Plans; and linked this great health movement tight to labor unions—as he shouid.

Young as is this movement of co-operative medicine, more than 1,000,000 persons in the United States are benefiting from it right now; and they are spread from Washington to Los Angeles, and from Wisconsin to Arkansas.

This is one of the 57 signs of the growing determination of the American people to have proper and universal care of their health. At present, the fraction of American people who lack proper medical attention is at least as large as President Roosevelt's classic one-third who rae "ill-fed, ill-clad, ill-housed." Seven out of the 10 chief causes of death strike the poor harder than the well to do; and the public is not only getting tired of this state of affairs, but showing it.

Doctors probably give more of their work for nothing than any other profession on earth. But do we trust our schools to charity?

Fifty-one per cent of the American people are in favor of stopping the sale of war materials to Japan. Eighteen per cent want to protest to Japan through our state department; 6 per cent are ready to fight, and only 25 per cent are willing to go on doing nothing about Japan's work in China.

In other words, 75 per cent of Americans, according to the Gallup poll, want a stop put to the atrocious war of conquest now going on in China, which organized labor has denounced from the first.

It is not the first or the fiftieth time that organized labor has led the procession of enlightened opinion in this country.

Southern Women Eager to Tell!

"One is bound to be gratified by the enthusiasm of Southern women for CARDUI!" says one of the Touring Reporters now conducting a Query in Southern cities.

"Of the 1297 CARDUI users we have seen so far," she said, "1206—or 93 out of every 100—said it definitely benefitted them!"

CARDUI'S remarkable success in helping weak, rundown women who suffer from headache, depression, nervousness, and other symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition, is explained by the way it promotes appetite and digestion, and so builds physical resistance. Try CARDUI!

A. F. OF L. OPENS VIGOROUS FIGHT FOR RESTORATION OF STANDARD UNION WAGE RATES IN WPA

Washington.—A vital principle, even more important than the question of wage rates, is involved in the effort to restore "prevailing wages" on WPA work, declared President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, at the conference of representatives of national and international unions, held in Washington in response to his call.

"There can be no compromise with the principle involved. By the methods used, the orderly processes of collective bargaining are set aside and wages and working conditions, gained through years of painful effort, are arbitrarily set aside for those determined by congressional action. Such practices cannot be tolerated in a democracy," he declared.

"The mere matter of relief wages is not the question. The A. F. of L. has drawn a clear distinction between relief wages and those on public works." As an example, President Green cited the CCC in which boys were recruited from the streets to be placed in camps at a wage of $30 per month. "That is relief," President Green said, "and the A. F. of L. never questioned, in fact supported the condition established."

The report of a special committee, of which Harry aBtes, president of the Bricklayers, was chairman; and Matthew Woll, vice-president of the A. F. of L., was secretary, was unanimously adopted.

This report declared that the "very lifeblood of a trade union structure is the standard union rate of wages." It pointed to the Bacon-Davis act, establishing prevailing wage rates on government work; and the Walsh-Healey act, extending the same wage provisions to government contracts in excess of $10,000 as indicative of the violent departure from existing law involved in the so-called security wage of the relief act.

In no case, the conference declared, had there been even mention of reduction in prices of material. Thus labor, the human element, had been selected to bear the entire burden of economies and this at the expense of principles and material conditions painfully gained by decades of struggle.

President Green was instructed to immediately present vigorous protests to the president, to the president of the senate, the speaker of the house and to all members of the house and senate.

He appointed the following committee to call on the president and others: Harry aBtes, Bricklayers' union; Daniel J. Tracy, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; George Q. Lynch, Pattern Makers' league; John P. Frey, Metal Trades Department, A. F. of L.; I. M. Ornburn, Union Label Trades Department; Herbert Rivers, Building and Construction Trades Department.

Speakers at the conference charged that the new wage scale would "depress union wages in private industry" and "grind union labor into the mud."

"Public money must not be spent in such a way as to depress wages in private industry," George Meaney, president of the New York State Federation of Labor, said.

Meaney said that it would be impossible to employ relief labor exclusively on such projects as the $39,000,000 New York airport.

Contractors asked for thousands of skilled mechanics, many of them A. F. of L. members, he said.

"These are the men they are ztrying to grind into the mud today," he declared. "If this is relief why do they examine these men to see that they are real mechanics."

James McDevitt, of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, and other delegates felt that the WPA strikers would be "in an impossible situation," if definite guarantees were not obtained that they would be restored to their jobs when the situation was settled.

Labor-Backed Housing Measure Killed As House Refuses To Even Consider Bill

Washington.—Flouting the demand of organized labor for expansion of the federal housing program, the house refused to even consider the senate-approved bill to expand the low-rent housing and slum clearance program of the United States Housing Authority by $800,000,000 in additional bond authorizations.

By the same process by which it killed the $1,950,000,000 lending bill two days before, the house voted down the rule which would have made consideration of the housing bill in order. The vote was 190 to 170 against consideration.

Previous to the vote, labor demanded approval of the bill in a vigorous statement by Harry C. Bates, chairman of the housing committee of the American Federation of Labor.

Defeat of Bill "Betrayal."

Declaring labor expected the house to give prompt consideration to the bill, the statement went on to say:

"Failure on the part of the house to consider and to pass amendments assuring the continuation and expansion of the USHA would be a betrayal not only of hundreds of thousands of families now living in slums in our cities and rural areas, it would also be treason to more than 700,000 unemployed building mechanics and laborers who would be assured employment under the provisions of this bill.

"This measure has already passed the senate by an overwhelming majority with the strong support of both parties. It has been reported favorably by the banking and currency committee of the house and approved by the committee on rules.

"This bill has the active support of five million members of the American Federation of Labor, their families and their friends. It also has the unequivocal indorsement of all representative groups whether they are employers, builders, consumers, business men or just plain citizens. The reason for this widespread support is that the essence of this measure is real and rigid economy. The costs of providing good and soundly constructed housing where and only where such housing is most needed and cannot be privately built without public aid, has been pared down by the USHA to the last pareable cent. It is also economy in the real sense of the word to wipe out crime-breeding, disease-ridden slums which cost the nation hundreds of millions of dollars a year in terms of our health bill, our crime prevention bill to say nothing of the immeasurable cost of the growing juvenile delinquency, infant mortality which are the inevitable consequence of the fact that substandard homes breed substandard citizens.

"It is an incontrovertible fact that every dollar to be authorized by congress for the continuation of this program will yield more in terms of re-employment and in terms of permanent economic benefits to the nation than any other program hitherto undertaken or any other program proposed to date."

UNION LEADERS HOLD INSTITUTE

Asheville, N. C.—Forty leaders from the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union in Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia held an institute at the Southern Summer School for Workers at Asheville over a recent week-end.

The institute was conducted by Mark Starr, national educational director of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, and John Martin, southern regional director of the same union, in cooperation with the teachers of the Southern Summer school.

Including students from the I. L. G. W. U. attending the school this summer, there were forty members of that union present at the institute from Dalton and Atlanta, Ga.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Roanoke, Va., and Baltimore, Md.

The Southern Summer School for Workers is in the midst of its thirteenth summer session.

King-Dobbs Co. Concludes 3 'Closed Shop' Pacts

Another great advance was finalized by organized labor in Chattanooga last Thursday evening when a closed shop agreement was signed by the King-Dobbs company and three local unions. The local unions involved are the bakers, teamsters and clerks.

This contract means more than just another agreement. It means that Chattanooga now produces 100 per cent union-roasted and distributed coffee. The King-Dobbs company manufactures the "Fleetwood" products, including Fleetwood coffee.

Wage increases were secured. The lowest increase is $2 per week, on up to $5.50 per week. Every employe receives a week's vacation with pay. Overtime pay is also granted, with the closed shop.

Some fifty members of the three unions are affected.

Says C. B. Norwood, business agent of the Bakers, who assisted in the negotiations: "We commend Mr. Henry King for his fine co-operative action. We bespeak for him to the labor movement a most hearty support of his business that he so richly deserves."

Brewery Workers Sign All Atlantic Units in One Pact

Five Cities Included for Two Years With Successive Increases in Pay.

Word comes to The Labor World this week that the Atlantic Brewing company, with five plants in as many cities, have just signed a closed shop agreement with the Brewery Workers unions in those cities.

All agreements are for a period of two years. Every employe in every unit receives an increase in pay the first year and another increase for the second year.

Every employe also receives a week's vacation with pay.

The Atlantic has a large brewery in Chattanooga and runs an advertisement every week in The Labor World.

Chatta. Bakery Strike Still in Deadlock

Pickets are still in front of the Chattanooga Bakery as a result of the discrimination against the union employes several weeks ago. The bakery was "sold" to a new organization headed by Mr. Sam Campbell. When the "new" company took over, the union employes were dismissed, their places being taken entirely by new people. The non-members were retained.

Mr. Sam Campbell also heads the Campbell Oil company, which distributes Shell products.

The Mountain City Milling company, in the same building with the Chattanooga Bakery, "originally" owned the bakery, and several incidents during the strike appeared as if the milling company is helping to beat the strikers.

Orient flour and the bakery products are on labor's "unfair" list.

"He's a danged fool besides bein' underwitted, born in the dark o' the moon, wide in the shoulders an' narrer between the eyes." Some of the reactionary Congressmen who thought they could make the WPA a government wage-cutting device ought to learn that old "lumberman's litany."

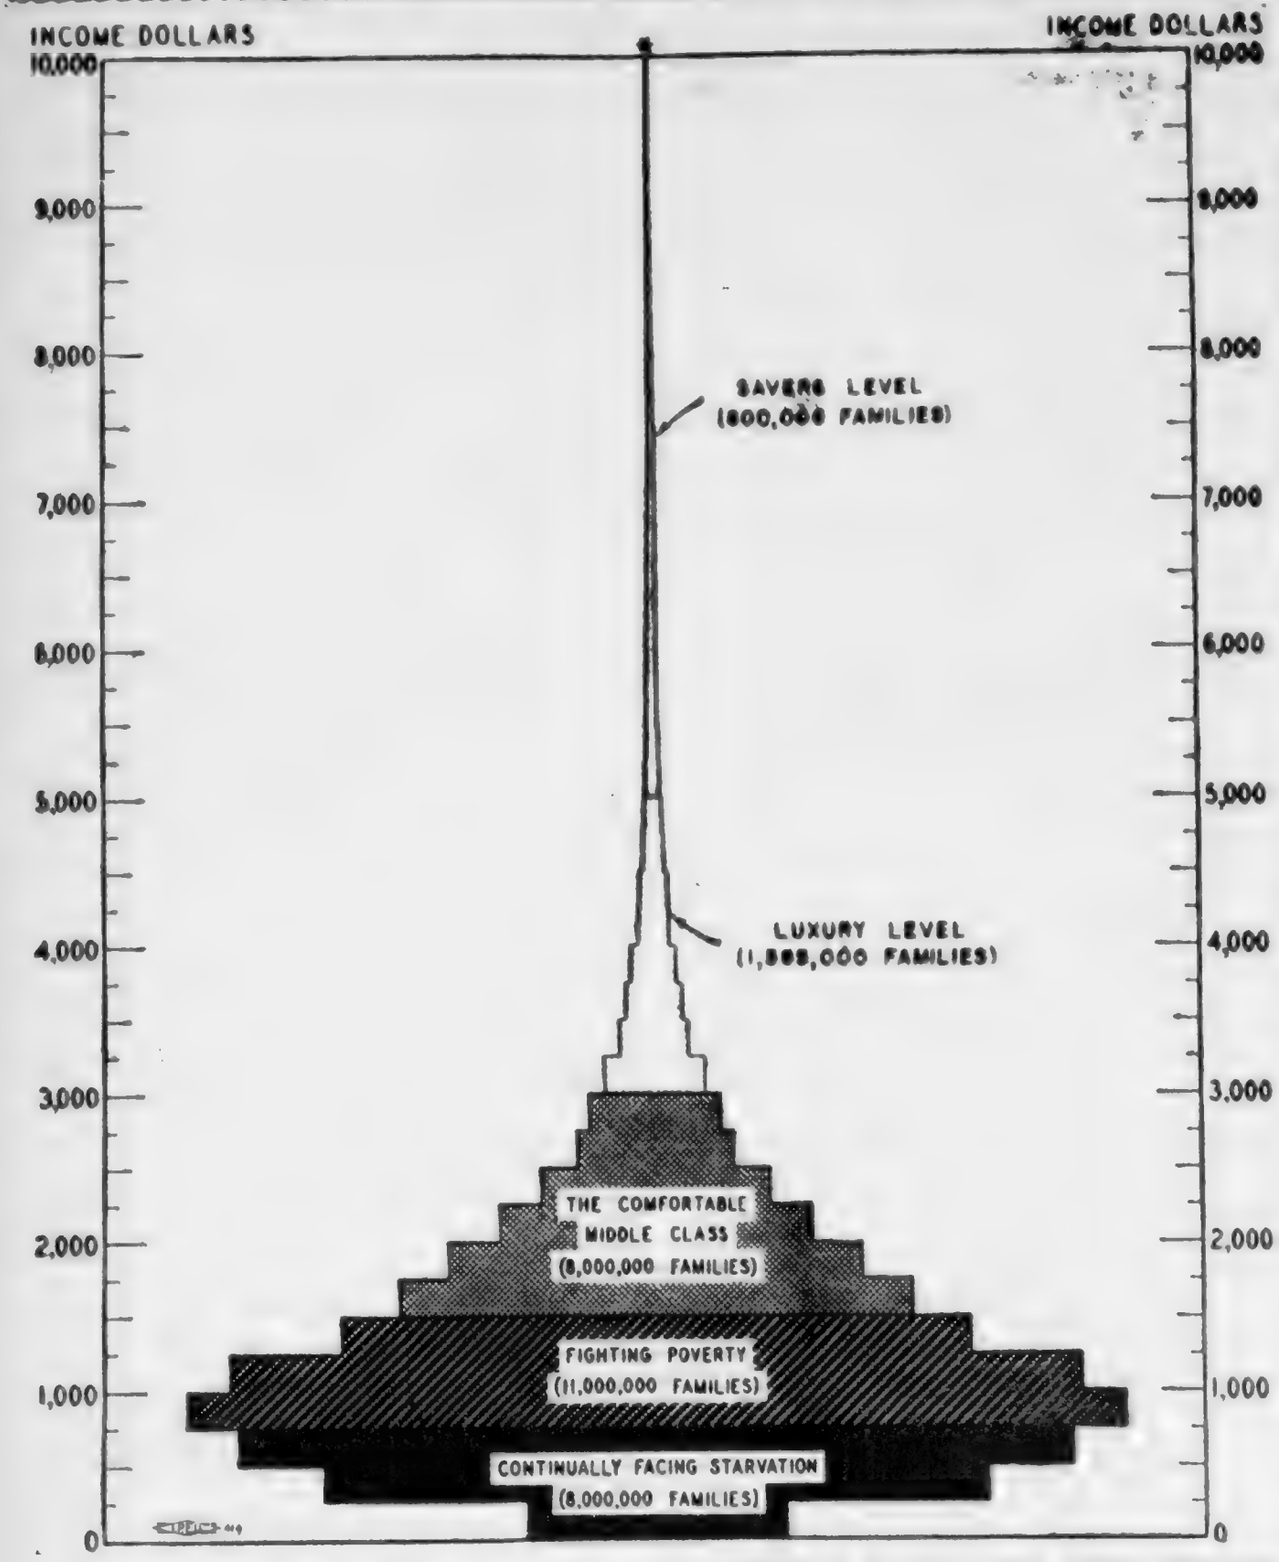
This Isn't a Cartoon; It's a Sermon



The above chart was put in the record of the O'Mahoney monopoly committee's last hearing. It made a deep impression. It provides a shocking answer to the question: "What is wrong with America?"

The chart is doubly convincing because it comes from a source which could not possibly be charged with "radicalism." It was reproduced from "Social Education," a book prepared by the Stanford Educational Conference, under the auspices of the conservative Stanford university, and published on Aug. 1 by the conservative McMillan company.

The tapering diagram represents America's approximately 30,000,000 families. The width of the diagram, opposite any "income dollars" figure, is in proportion to the number of families who receive that income, up to $10,000 a year.

The chart is cut off at $10,000, because it would have to be several hundred feet high to reach the highest in years, running into millions of dollars per family.

"THE 283,000 FAMILIES WITH INCOMES ABOVE $10,000 A YEAR," THE COMMITTEE WAS TOLD, "GET A LARGE SHARE OF THE TOTAL INCOME AS NEARLY 11,000,000 FAMILIES AT THE BOTTOM."

As a matter of fact, the chart leans over backward to be conservative in interpreting its figures. It says that only the families receiving less than $1,500 a year are "facing starvation" or "fighting poverty," and that those between $1,500 and $3,000 are in "the comfortable middle class." Government studies have repeatedly shown that at least $2,000 a year is necessary for a decent family standard of living.

But, taking the chart as it is, it provides graphic proof that 19,000,000 families, including about 76,000,000 men, women and children, or nearly two-thirds of the entire population, live below the poverty and starvation lines. That is what is wrong with America.

TYPO AUXILIARY NOTE

By BLANCHE MAUPIN

The August meeting of Typographical Auxiliary 219 was held Tuesday night at the Times recreational rooms.

The crowd was not as large as usual, due to vacations many of the ladies are enjoying during the hot weather.

The business meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. L. M. Worthington, after which a social hour was enjoyed.

The label committee sponsored an unusual "quiz." Each member was given a copy of 20 questions which dealt with union-labeled lebeled merchandise and questions of general interest to the labor movement. Thus, everybody was able to check up on just how much (or how little) she did know about what is union in Chattanooga. The prize, a beautiful pair of union labeled hose, was won by Mrs. Jean Pease.

We are glad to report that two of our sick members, Mrs. M. M. Morris and Mrs. W. A. Baker, are getting along nicely.

* * *

Two new members took the obligation Tuesday night—Mrs. H. P. Smith and her daughter, Miss Lena Smith. Mrs. Smith was a charter member of the Denver auxiliary and belonged to that group for several years.

We welcome them and hope we may have more to report soon.

Mrs. O. G. Elder was unable to attend the meeting because of a severe case of laryngitis. We hope she can be with us next time.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

REWARD! In a letter from the Broom and Whisk Makers' union recently, they said that they did not believe that a single union-labeled broom could be found in Tennessee. This column offers a special reward to the Chattanoogan who can locate one here. That doesn't uphold the reputation of our local labor movement.

BOUQUET . . . to Mrs. John Sehorn who, at 76, is the oldest member of Typo Auxiliary 219. Mrs. Sehorn is a charter member of the auxiliary, and was one of the charter members of the old Typographical Auxiliary many years ago.

She is still interested in all union affairs, and came by just a few weeks ago to find out where to get in touch with a union carpenter to make some repairs on their house.

It is just such people as the Sehorns who keep the real spirit of organized labor alive.

Speaking of auxiliaries . . . over in Memphis, 25 per cent of all the unions have auxiliaries (from a recent issue of the Memphis Labor Review) and that would make our own per centage way, way down.

They also have club rooms for their auxiliaries, and are able to help them in many ways. Chattanooga had better get busy.

THOMAS ALVA EDISON was the only honorary member that the Electrical Workers' International union ever had, according to a report of one of the recent numbers of their journal.

The rumor goes around that a certain member of organized labor is such a loyal union man that he even bought a house because it is located on Union avenue.

If you are interested in a little special reading, try Benjamin Franklin, by Carl Van Doran. This quite long, but very good book, should be especially interesting to the printers, since it is about the most famous member of the printing trades . . . not to mention the fact that the book bears the printern' label on the frontispiece.

to the Editor

Editor of The Labor World:

The public generally feels pretty good that it has finally secured our own public power system. We wanted it because it is a public utility.

Yet, in all the public power fight all the hard things that were said about the Tennessee Electric Power company has no comparison to what citizens are being loaded with by our power company.

The power company at least had to read our meters and we had some idea what our bills would be. I think that the water company charges us whatever it needs to make its quota to send to New York.

It is high time that some investigation is made of our City Water company. Why should this New York company be allowed to charge us what they please, while our meters are covered up with grass and dirt, month in and month out?

Let's do something about it. Please print this and let's see if some of our readers think like I do.

Respectfully,
B. S. SHORT,

AUTO DEATH RATE DOWN LAST YEAR

Washington, D. C.—The nation's death rate from automobile accidents droped sharply in 1938, preliminary census figures show. Motor vehicles killed 32,428 persons, or 24.9 per 100,000.

The 39,643 deaths in 1937 were a record high, everaging 30.7 per 100,000. Nevada had the highest death rate with 65.3, and Rhode Island had the lowest with 12.2.

Women Answer From 12 States

To date, Touring Reporters have visited the principal cities of 12 Southern states; have asked 1297 users their famous question: "Did CARDUI help you?"

Of those 1297 users, 1206 said they were definitely benefitted by CARDUI. That's 93 out of every 100. What a record!

CARDUI is a good stimulator for lagging appetites, a real aid to digestion and assimilation. That's why its proper use enables so many women and girls to build up physical resistance, and thus helps them avoid the periodic pain of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 11, 1939

What Is Stoppsng Us?

This is the tenth year of unemployment. Three months from now will mark the anniversary of the 1929 crash. And the American Federation of Labor states that unemployment is still measured by about 10,400,000.

Is this an act of God? Doubtless there are those, of older theological persuasions, who sincerely think that it is the meaning.

But when skilled workers see idle and depreciating machinery standing in closed factories; see 50 per cent of the installed machinery in great industries useless and unused for a decade; see over 500,000 new young workers come onto the scene every year with no adequate or secure employment for them and the families they ought to be raising—there is liable to be something of a challenge to the old faiths.

Science has taught the last generation or two a quite abiding faith in the general reasonableness of things. We believe that as long as the seasons come and go in their regularity, and the laws of nature hold gravitation in place, things which have a useful and reasonable function ought to be able to go on.

The query is becoming pretty insistent: What is stopping us from using the things we have made, to produce the things which we need?

When the answer to that question becomes clear. it behooves those who have furnished the stopper to keep out of sight for a while.

States and Hospital Service Plan

Popularity of the movement to lower the costs of medical and hospital care is indicated by the action of eighteen states in passing special enabling acts permitting non-profit hospital service plans under regulation of their insurance departments. In nine more states the voluntary hospital insurance plans are operating without the acts.

New York was the first to encourage the movement by passing enabling legislation in 1934. Since then marked progress has been made. Additions of 1939 include Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Iowa, Ohio, New Mexico and Vermont. Other states with the permissive laws are Alabama, California, Illinois, Mississippi, Georgia, Maryland, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and New Jersey.

Approximately sixty different hospital service plans are operating in twenty-four states, it is reported. The plans at present include more than 3,000,000 subscribers who are guaranteed a certain number of days of hospital care for monthly contributions ranging from 50 cents to $1.00 per person.

Although varying in detail, the plans under state laws provide for a joint guarantee of service by local member hospitals. The number of hospitals in each plan ranges from one in Kingsport, Tenn., to more than 300 in New York City.

Booming Union Label Products

Organized labor has found that observance of union label weeks increases the demand for union label goods and services. One of the latest labor bodies to show the value of union label week was the Gibson County Central Labor Union of Princeton, Indiana, which held a successful week, during which the union label was much in the public eye.

Full co-operation was given by Princeton merchants who displayed union label goods and posters and by two local daily newspapers, which gave space to union label week activities and co-operated in issuing a special edition which was distributed to every home in Gibson county without cost to the union label committee.

Union label weeks have been found of value wherever tried. Results explain why they are gaining in popularity throughout the nation.

WPA CONSTRUCTION WORKERS FINISH 15 NEW BUILDINGS DAILY ON AVERAGE

Washington.—Col. F. C. Harrington, work projects commissioner, has announced that WPA workers on building construction projects had achieved a rate during the eight months period ending last March 1 of approximately fifteen buildings completed per day, or about 450 per month.

Total building projects completed during the period from July 1, 1938, to March 1, 1939, was set by Col. Harrington at 3,583 new buildings completed, 10,267 to which improvements were made and 338 for which additions were built. All were public buildings of various kinds—schools, hospitals, auditoriums, etc.—and a substantial proportion were built at a total cost in excess of $100,000. Under the new relief bill WPA is prohibited from undertaking any building project costing more than $52,000 in federal funds.

"The completion of the construction of fifteen new buildings every day by WPA workers, and the improvement of several hundred others is a considerable contribution to the nation's wealth," Col. Harrington said. "This achievement is particularly significant, I think, in view of the fact that a great part of the work was carried out during the winter months when construction normally comes to a standstill."

Business Agent Spriggs Feeling Pretty Cocky

It has just been discovered why the business agent of Local 846, Electric Linemen, has been going around with an under-sized hat cocked on the side of his head, with his chest stuck out and throwing his weight around generally.

Mr. Elbert Spriggs, suh, is a grandfather for the first time. His son, Mr. Lee Spriggs, of Detroit, Mich., announced to him that his granddaughter had been born at 4 o'clock Saturday morning, Aug. 5.

June Out-of- Work Payments Increase 8 Pct. Over May

Washington. — Payment of $43.-157,675 in job-insurance benefits during June has been announced by the social security board, bringing the total amount of benefits distributed to unemployed insured workers during the past year and a half to nearly $623,000,000. More than $229,000,000 in benefits has been paid during the first six months of this year.

Forty-six states, the District of Columbia, Alaska and Hawaii are represented in this June total. In July benefits became payable in two remaining states—Illinois and Montana—making the unemployment insurance program fully effective throughout the country.

June benefit payments increased 8 per cent over the total in May, due largely to the sharp increases reported by California, Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, New York and West Virginia. Fourteen additional states also reported increases, the most noticeable being in Florida, Iowa, New Hampshire and Tennessee.

Decreases in the amount of benefits paid during June were reported by twenty-nine states, with the largest reductions occurring in Alaska, Idaho and North Dakota.

For the country as a whole the average weekly benefit payment for total unemployment was slightly in excess of $10. For partial unemployment the average weekly benefit payment for the countr yas a whole was slightly more than $5.50.

What Happens to Violators

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of six articles explaining the Fair Labor Standards Act prepared by the Information Branch of the Wage and Hour Division, Department of Labor, for the Labor World.

Drastic penalties are provided for violations of the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Among the prohibited acts are:

The transportation, offering for transportation, the shipment or sale in interstate commerce of any goods in the production of which workers were not paid at least the prescribed minimum wage, including time and a half for overtime. Such goods, popularly known as "hot goods," may be barred from interstate commerce.

Refusal or failure to pay the prescribed minimum wage, including time and a half for overtime.

Discharging, or in any other manner discriminating against any employee because that employee has filed a complaint or has testified, or is about to testify, in any proceedings relating to the Act.

Violating any of the child labor provisions.

Failure or refusal to keep adequate payroll records.

Any employer who wilfully violates any of those provisions may be fined not more than $10,000. For a second offense he may not only be fined up to $10,000 but may be imprisoned for not more than six months. In addition, goods produced in violation of the wage and hour provisions may be tied up by injunction and barred from interstate commerce. A large quantity of lumber produced in violation of the law by a Virginia firm was impounded under this provision. In Chicago a large quantity of toys was tied up.

The employer who fails to pay his workers the prescribed minimum wage, including time and a half for overtime, faces still another liability. Any of his employees may bring suit for his unpaid minimum wages, and if successful he can collect double the amount due, plus a reasonable attorney's fee. This has been called "the self-enforcing clause." On this point the law says: "Action to recover such liability may be maintained in any court of competent jurisdiction by any one or more employees for and in behalf of himself or themselves and other employees similarly situated, or such employee or employees may designate an agent or representative to maintain such action for and in behalf of all employees similarly situated." This means that a labor union could bring such a suit on behalf of its members.

The law does not specify any particular form of records that must be kept by employers. Nor has Administrator Andrews prescribed any particular form. He has ruled, however, that they must show the individual worker's name, his address, the hours worked, the amount of pay received and the date of payment. If overtime is worked, the records also must show the regular rate of pay, the basis upon which wages are paid, and the amount paid for overtime.

Duly authorized inspectors of the Wage and Hour Division may enter any plant or factory subject to the provisions of the Act, inspect and copy the records and question the employees. Only by talking to the employees may it be possible to ascertain whether the law has been complied with. This is especially true in instances in which it is suspected that the payroll records may be inaccurate or deliberately falsified.

Any employe covered by the act who has reason to suspect that he is not receiving the benefits to which he is entitled would do well to obtain a small pocket notebook in which to set down each day the time he goes to work, the time he quits for lunch, the time he resumes work after lunch, and the time he quits work for the day.

Such a record will be of great assistance to the inspector if he has occasion to check up the employer's records. It will be of great value if the employe wishes to make a complaint of noncompliance against his employer. It also should prove useful in case the employe wishes to bring suit against his employer under the "self-enforcing" clause.

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly.

Congress, as the hour of adjournment drew near, accentuated the heat, fury, confusion, buck-passing and division of this session. All along cynically political lines.

The three-party cleavage has sharpened even in the last few days. New dealers licked to a frazzle. And by a combination of revolting Dems, egged on by a solid phalanx of "tongue-in-cheek" republicans.

The first has a front. Economy. Retrenchment spending. No more pump-priming.

The second? Confuse and confound the Dems to set the stage for return to power of their party.

Hornswoggle the Dems into attack upon their party shibboleths—prevailing wage—fair standards act—labor relations act.

Jockey the vote of their disciplined and experienced bloc to worse confound the confusion, divide and redivide and frustrate.

A sweet game of practical politics.

The anti-new dealers, Dems and Republicans and what have you, hope they are on the way to "get theirs," repudiation of the new deal. "We will liquidate the depression if government will quit interfering with us."

What will they do with it? Will those for whom they speak make good?

There is a rise of industrial activity. A claim of 424,000 new jobs during the period when the confusionists were wrecking Dem unity.

What is it? A gesture, a speculative flurry? Or will there be unity, push and pull and tug until we climb out of the slough, put 11,000,000 back to work, regain the confidence and courage which was the motive power before 1929?

Or will the wrecking squad and those for whom they speak push through to repeal or cripple the labor relations act, the fair labor standards act, the social security legislation, the prevailing wage, the Wagner-Healey and Bacon-Davis acts? Fight unions, continue wage cutting openly as is now done secretly? Ride with a high hand? That would be folly but consistent folly.

Warnings—plenty of them. Spontaneous strikes of desperation in WPA. With about 800,000 to be cut off because they have been on too long. More and more industrial conflicts—Cleveland—Detroit—Massachusetts — Colorado. Each more violent and determined than the last.

Or will they be wise? Keep faith with the sorely tried and amazingly patient people? Improve and perfect hastily passed emergency laws with good objectives? Prove that they can be trusted to perform their duty to the social and industrial order?

They had better. Trial after trial have been given them. They may be about to be given another. If they fail—what then? Hunger. Despair. Hopelessness. Desperation. Violence. And then what?

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Work of the International Labor Office at Geneva is shown at an exhibit at the New York World's Fair, in the education and science building, a short distance from the central theme—the Perisphere and Trylon. The exhibit is worthy of the attention of every member of organized labor who visits the fair.

Included in the exhibit is an illuminated map of the world showing the countries which are members of the International Labor Organization and indicating by a series of colored lights the countries which have ratified international labor treaties. Above the map is a photo-mural of the International Labor Office, building and grounds, with a view of Lake Geneva on one side and of Mont Blanc on the other. Inscribed on either side of the map are quotations from the International Labor Charter.

A panel on one side of the booth gives the principles on which the ILO is founded. On the opposite wall another panel shows the state of ratification of ILO conventions. An historical account of the International Labor Organization is given pictorially by means of a mechanical book chart.

There is a philatelic collection showing various stamps which have been issued by the Swiss government of the International Labor Organization since its establishment in 1919; also photographs of the three men who have served as directors of the ILO—Albert Thomas, of France; Harold Butler, of Great Britain, and John G. Winant, of the United States, the present direcor. There are also photographs showing the interior of the Inernational Labor Office building in Geneva, with scenes of special interest: a Gompers room, established in honor of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who presided the session of the peace conference commission at which the International Labor Organization created.

A special feature of the are photostatic reproductions the original documents con with United States membership the International Labor Organization. These include the joint ference resolution accepting bership for this country and proclamation by President velt on Sept. 10, 1934, announ the membership of the States in the International Organization.

Samples of the various tions issued by the ILO and phlets describing the work organization are on exhibit.

An interesting part of the hibit are the colored wooden tistical charts which were from the central office in Ge comparing industrial prod wholesale prices, imports a ports, cost of living and unem ment in different countries.

ABOUT JURISDICTIONAL DISPUTES

(From The Journal of Electrical Workers)

There was a time not very long ago when jurisdictional disputes were mainly caused by the unorderly introduction of new materials into industry. Without control or rationality, manufacturers produced new building materials and threw these upon the marget, regardless of their effect upon manpower and building technique. As a result, for self-preservation, workers were forced to protest this unplanned dumping, and the resultant situation was usually covered by the phrase "juriesdictional dispute."

Now a new cause of jurisdictional disputes has arisen, namely unemployment. There is a bitter battle for bread, for life even, for jobs. All this has been recently illustrated by the riot ni Pennsylvania initiated by farmers for what they called "the right to work." A mob with pitchforks drove union workers off the jobs.

Until the unemployment problem is settled on an orderly basis, we may expect to see more jurisdictional disputes. There is one hopeful sign. It is likely that the uprising of the farmers indicates that the farmers want organization on an economic basis in terms of trade union experience, and if this is true, they should have it.

With Congress Record Made, It's Now Up to Voters to Find Out How Senators and Representatives Stood on Labor Measures—Winter Didn't Stop WPA Road Building.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

[illegible] the La Follette committee on labor practices and [illegible] and criminal penalties for such acts. It gave both the secretary of labor and the attorney-general authority to bring prosecutions; and, on investigation, to demand an injunction against such practices. Such a law would be likely to discourage even Tom Girdler.

Killed the $800,000,000 addition to the house program, a good deal more than half of which would go to labor.

Killed the legislation for a $3,000,000,000 fund to loan or use as guaranty for loans to small business. Some, probably much, of this would find its way to the labor pay envelope. Uncle Sam, instead, chose that to corporations through the RFC.

Hamstrung the WPA with restrictions, and refused the requested $50,000,000 of emergency money for relief.

Look up your congressman and see what his attitude was on these. That's all—this time.

WPA built 67,956 of highways, roads and streets in the eight months ending March 1, this year. In spite of the fact that nearly half this period fell during winter, when even the railroads lay off a lot of the maintenance-of-way men, the average construction was 8,500 miles per month, 300 miles per month higher than the previous three years. Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA commissioner, said, in giving this information:

"The thousands of miles of roads built by WPA during the past four years constitute one of the most important contributions the work relief program has made to the nation's welfare. Much of this work has consisted of small feeder roads from the main highways reaching into farming areas which previously had been isolated for much of the year. Farm-to-market roads built by WPA have given YEAR-ROUND access to markets and shopping centers to hundreds of thousands of American farmers, greatly improving their economic condition and bringing them nearer to schools and churches."

The capitals are mine—I am perfectly acquainted with the old time "farm-to-market" roads in winter.

Also, in those eight months, the WPA built 8,818 new bridges, laid 111,570 new culverts, totaling in length about 550 miles, eliminated four grade crossings, put up 171 miles of guardrails and guard walls.

This is not strictly Washington news, but it will add many-fold to the publicity of proposals which labor will approve among the readers of labor papers. Leonard Boudin, in the New Republic, suggests the following amendments for the Wagner act:

Triple damages for discharged employes, fired in violation of the act. Triple damages were assessed against a union away back in the days of the Buck Stove and Range case; and the A. F. of L. fought that tooth and nail. It has been a threat to strikers ever since, and a big sum in triple damages is assessed against the Apex hosiery plant strikers now.

Make officials of a corporation personally libel to that corporation for damages caused by violation of the act.

Forbid government contracts to employers convicted of violations of the act.

Not So Dull

The village idiot sat over a rain puddle with his fishing rod and line. A passing tourist, dropping a quarter in his jar, asked:

"How many have you caught, young man?"

"You are the third," was the reply.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF ALL THE WAGE EARNERS

Vol. XXIV. CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE, FRIDAY, AUGUST 18, 1939 Number 15

SENATE BLOCKS PREVAILING WAGE RATES ON ALL WPA PROJECTS

Non-Partisan Coalition Votes Against Attaching McCarran- Amendment to Deficiency Appropriation Bill.

Washington, D. C.—Legislation guaranteeing that workers on WPA projects shall be paid prevailing hourly wage rates was definitely and positively defeated in the United States senate on Aug. 9, 1939, when a non-partisan coalition of senators voted against suspending a senate rule in order that a vote might be taken on Senator McCarran's proposed amendment to the third deficiency appropriation bill providing that the prevailing wage rate be paid on all projects financed by the government, including those coming under the works projects administration.

Text of McCarran's Amendment.

The amendment proposed by Senator McCarran read:

"Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, the rates of pay for persons engaged upon any projects financed in whole or in part by moneys of the United States of America shall not be less than the prevailing rates of pay for work of a similar nature in the same locality as determined by the government agency having charge of or which has advanced moneys for such projects."

A senate rule bans from appropriation bills amendments containing legislation. Such amendments are in order, however, if the senate by a two-thirds vote agrees to suspend the rule. The presiding officer of the senate (Senator Harry S. Truman, of Missouri),

Delegates from No. 89, Typographical union, are on their way to the international convention which will open on Saturday, Aug. 19, at Fort Worth, Tex.

Harris Hix left Chattanooga Friday morning, and will meet George Brimlow, the other delegate from No. 89, at Fort Worth. Mr. Brimlow left Chattanooga some weeks ago, and has been vacationing in Oregon and points west.

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Pease will also leave this week and will attend the convention. Mrs. Pease will represent the Chattanooga Auxiliary at the W. I. A. convention, which meets at the same time as the Typographical union. The Chattanooga Auxiliary was organized within the past year, and Mrs. Pease will be the first delegate to the W. I. A.

Local printers will be interested to know that Nelson Borland, who worked in Chattanooga about 12 years ago, and took an active part in union affairs, will attend the convention this year as a delegate from Winnepeg, Canada.

Scaffold Fall Kills T. Hester, Brother Barber A. C. Hester

Inspector's Leap Off Bridge Fells Platform--Five Hurt In 40-Foot Plunge

Tom Hester, 49, brother of A. C. Hester, popular barber of Chattanooga, was killed yesterday. An inspector's leap onto a wooden scaffold suspended from a bridge forty feet over Wolftever creek, near Harrison, broke the structure loose yesterday afternoon and resulted in the death of two men and injury to five others, three of whom were seriously hurt.

The inspector, James T. Adams, 39, employed in the highways and railroads division of the Tennessee Valley Authority, was one of those fatally injured. His home was in Wheat, Tenn., near Harriman, and his headquarters were in Cleveland, Tenn.

M. G. Walker, bookkeeper for the A. T. Anz Construction company, said an investigation revealed that Adams, bridge engineer on the project, caused the collapse of the scaffold by jumping from the bridge. Waller said the leap overloaded the scaffold, composed of 4x4 timbers, and caused it to sway just before the collapse.

The bridge was being "jacked up" to bring it above the waters from Chickamauga dam lake and widened four feet to carry heavier traffic.

Those injured in the accident were:

Kelly Keisling, 25, of Monroe, Tenn., who was boarding in East Chattanooga. He suffered a fracture of the spine and possible internal injuries.

Jim Lee Gass, 22, of Tyner, brother of Dr. O. G. Gass, Chattanooga physician. He received a possible fracture of the spine and numerous body bruises.

Hubert Ellis, 39, colored, of Willow Grove, Tenn., fracture at the base of the spine and a deep laceration in his back.

E. S. Lingerfelt, of Tyner, bruises and abrasions.

Fred Wooten, of Harrison, bruises.

OVER MILLION MORE WORKERS GAIN BENEFITS UNDER SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

New Law Passed by Congress Provides That Payment of Old Age Pensions Shall Begin on Jan. 1, 1940—Family Insurance Is Established—Payroll Tax Limited to 1 Per Cent.

Washington, D. C.—The amendments to the social security act passed by congress just before adjournment enlarged the scope of that measure, liberalized the benefits and fixed Jan. 1, 1940, as the date when the payment of pensions shall begin instead of 1942 under the terms of the original act. It is estimated that under the amended law over 45,000,000 persons will be entitled to some of the forms of social insurance.

The more important features of the new law are:

1. Freezing the old age insurance tax at 1 per cent for the next three years, instead of permitting it—as would have been the case under the existing law—to rise to 1½ per cent each for employe and employer during the next three years. This provision was estimated to save both employes and employers about $275,000,000 during 1940, and about $825,000,000 during the three years.

2. Providing that only the first $3,000 of an employe's salary may be taxed under the unemployment compensation sections of the law.

3. Advancing the date for beginning payments of liberalized benefits to the aged, for aged wives and for widows, children and aged dependents to Jan. 1, 1940. Those who are entitled to annuity payments upon reaching the age of 65 in 1940 would be able to obtain these payments if they reached that age during the remainder of this year.

Broader Coverage Provided.

4. Extending the social insurance coverage to about 1,300,000 more workers, including seamen and bank employes.

5. Obligating the federal government to contribute, dollar for dollar, up to $20 a month, for state old-age pensions, against the present limit of $15.

The conference committee of the senate and house of representatives in reporting the final draft of the bill estimated that about $1,755,000,000 in benefits under the liberalized system would be expended during the next three years, or about $1,200,000,000 more than would have been spent under existing law.

For annuity participants, a new formula was set up. Upon reaching the age of 65 the annuitant's pension would be determined upon the following basis:

A basic amount computed by applying 40 per cent of average monthly wages, up to the first $50, plus 10 per cent of average monthly wages in excess of $50, such amount to be increased 1 per cent for each year of coverage, up to a maximum salary of $3,000.

If the annuitant's wife is 65 years of age, he would receive an additional 50 per cent of his annuity benefits. If there are children under 16, or attending school and under 18, the parent would receive an additional compensation amounting to one-half of the primary insurance benefit of the parent.

The widow of a fully insured annuitant would be eligible to receive three-fourths of the annuity accruing to the insured. Widows of those who die before they become eligible to annuities, and dependent children, would also receive liberalized benefits.

AFL Auto Workers Ask Poll of G. M. Plants

Detroit, Mich.—The International Union United Automobile Workers of America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, petitioned the national labor relations board to hold elections in General Motors corporation plants throughout the country to determine bargaining agents.

Elmer Dowell, director of the General Motors division of the union, announced the filing of the petition and said his union claimed 75 per cent of all General Motors employes. He added that his union plans to fight the C. I. O.-U. A. W. "through elections rather than strikes."

Annual Building Trades Pay Urged By New York Mayor

New York City.—Working out of a program to pay building trades workers on an annual income basis instead of a daily wage basis was advocated by Mayor La Guardia in addressing the New York State Conference of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union.

The Mayor admitted that no solution of the problem of an annual income in the building trades had been found and went on to say:

"I don't know how it will be worked out, unless there is a pooling of all builders and contractors, with some system of insurance to guarantee continued or sustained employment. The problem is not easy, but we have solved more difficult ones and I believe that before long some formula will be found for continued and sustained employment for workers in the building trades."

The mayor declared the failure of congress to approve President Roosevelt's housing program was "a big mistake," for which congress would have to answer to the American people.

"This program didn't end by the ill-advised action of congress," he declared. "It is going to be renewed in January and I'm as sure it will be approved in January as I am that there will be a congressional election next year."

La Guardia deplored the loss of time and the added cost of "jurisdictional disputes" and urged that a way be found to prevent them. He also recommended that an agreement be made on wage scales at the beginning of a construction job, to be maintained until completion. He pointed out that this plan had been followed on the Red Hook housing project and others in this area.

Following his address, George Meany, president of the State Federation of Labor, said a standard rate of wages was the most vital principle in the trade union movement.

Ex-CIO Official Says Unions Would Vote For Labor Peace

Boston. — A nation-wide vote among members of the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. "would bring instant peace," a former C. I. O. official who has been seated at the State Federation of Labor convention, said. Michael C. Flaherty, Rhode Island's 1938 regional C. I. O. director, gained admission as an A. F. of L. delegate to the 54th annual state convention here, although he refused to apologize for his C. I. O. service and insisted that organization by industry must come. Flaherty now is a member of the Boston Painters' Union, an A. F. of L. affiliate.

State Employe Went Out As a Strikebreaker; Lost His Job

Atlanta, Ga.—The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes is an organization that has already added great strength and influence to the labor movement. Its fine influence was felt in a new way here last week, in connection with the striking Retail Clerks, Meat Cutters, Butchers and Truck Drivers in the more than one hundred stores operated in Atlanta by the Rogers grocery company.

When the strike was forced upon the employes of the Rogers chain of stores, many city policemen hired themselves out to the Rogers company as strikebreakers, and with uniform and big gun intimidated the strikers and browbeat the pickets. Although ten members of city council signed a petition to end this dastardly work on the part of the city's supposed to be law enforcement agency, the plan continues.

L. L. Lateer, employed by the state of Georgia, wanted to grab a piece of that easy money from the Rogers outfit for himself. Although he was in nowise a law enforcement officer, he hired himself to the Rogers company, was engaged, and began strutting and flashing his official badge and arms about the stores where pickets were on duty.

BRINGS HOME THE BACON

ALBERT W. GOSSETT

Southern Representative for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, one of the most rapidly growing organizations within the A. F. of L. Mr. Gossett's organization is always productive of immediate and beneficial results to the membership, thousands of employes now enjoying security of their positions since enrolling in this great organization.

There is a strong union among the state employes of Georgia, although Lateer had never jointed the union. But Albert W. Gossett, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, County and Municipal Employes, upon being informed that a state employe was serving the Rogers stores as a paid defender of strikebreakers, called his local union officials together and they went directly to the state officials under whom Lateer worked, and within a few minutes Mr. Latter was brought in, his commission as a state employe taken from him, his badge and his gun stripped from him—and Lateer joined the jobless army.

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes has already worked wonders for its membership throughout the south in getting civil service for public employes, salary and wage adjustments, and the inhumanly long hours that some public employes have been forced to work have been reduced in many instances as much as one-third. The organization also has brought to the general labor movement a group of educated, influential men and women that means much to all labor in the south, and to public employes a feeling of security never before enjoyed by them.

Mr. Gossett maintains headquarters in Atlanta and directs the organization work throughout the houth. It is one of the most rapidly growing organizations in the country, and is bringing tens of thousands of state, county and municipal employes into labor's great army under the banner of the American Federation of Labor.

to the Editor

On Friday last, there was an article in the Chattanooga News with the heading "The Prices Are Down, But the Dollar Still Holds Its Value," and after saying that government efforts and organized labor had not done much among farm labor, he said they had no such thing as an eight-hour day, and he is right.

Among all that's been done among the other workers in this country, there is a large class of honest toilers that have almost been forgotten—that is the farm laborers who are dependent on their work for a living just as we in the shops in town, and they have to go from daylight until almost dark for the least wage scale as a whole than any other class of workers. I spent many years among the large river and valley farmers and average wages were 50 to 75 cents per day, and if you had asked a dollar they would have asked you to move on.

When fall came, the workers' children had to quit school and pick cowpeas to get shoes, and while their old dad was helping the landlord fill their large granaries and market their fat cattle and hogs they were thinking, "How am I going to get through the winter?" for they have nothing ahead and there is not much work on the farm in winter.

Again, when the boys are old enough to go to high school, one boy goes to school and the other has to take up the plow or hoe to help keep the wolf from the door.

Now we don't wish to say anything harsh about those men—it was the custom to pay low wages and work long hours. But don't you think it would be much better to give the laborers a short day—say from 6 to 11, with an hour for lunch, then from 12 to 4 p.m., thus giving them time with their children to cultivate 2 to 3 acres in corn, potatoes and other things for themselves.

Now, I don't know how the people look at this matter, but I think that the employes on the farm should be considered just the same as all other workers.

As to the farmers themselves they deserve the best chance possible, for after all is said, we know that our living comes from the farm and the thing to do is for both the employer and his employes to work together for the good of each other in a spirit of good will and brotherly love, remembering that Him who looks down to see each sparrow fall, is also looking down on each of us, and the same Master who said for the servant to render good service also told the masters to pay his servants that which is equal and just—and that means a living wage for an honest day's work.

Yours truly,
J. P. HUGHES,

Goal Reached at Last

Organized labor joined in with Chattanooga last Tuesday, when the properties of the Tennessee Electric Power company were transferred to the Chattanooga Electric Power Board upon payment to Commonwealth & Southern for value in full.

Labor has contended that public utilities should be operated for the benefit and profit of all citizens rather than for particular groups of capital. We are proud of our part in the long and arduous fight to realize public ownership of power and light facilities.

To the Electric Power Board and to Mr. S. R. Finley we extend our co-operation and best wishes.

A Wise Step

We read with much gratification a press report that the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor has decided that the day of stoppage of work because of jurisdictional disputes is over. The Building Trades Department is composed of all the international unions in the building trades craft unions. Their ruling is that in event of squabbles between different crafts as to jurisdiction, the work shall continue under the craft in possession of the work until a decision has been handed down by the high authorities.

We hail this as a wise step. In the past the labor movement has been greatly embarrassed by stoppage of work on 100 per cent union jobs due to inter-union quarrels, and union employers have been unjustly penalized thereby.

Erosion Must Be Fought

Now that the frontier is gone, and the New England and Southern farmers cannot move out to get new land, Americans are beginning to look back at the farms they have been leaving.

What they too often see, in the southeastern states especially, are gullied, eroded, washed out farms, ruined for any ordinary farming purposes. In the north, where the great timber lands formerly stretched for hundreds of miles, similar pictures meet the eye of the traveler.

Virgin timber, standing for hundreds of years, unburned and uncut, laid the foundations deep and rich for our American farms. The Indians used the forests only to raise crops of wild game, excepting for their little gardens for maize and gourds. But the white man had a big way with him, and he went after that stored-up fertility with big gangs of ax-men. Burning the timber, for the greater part, he planted year after year, and sold his crops in Europe.

America was getting ahead. But at the same time, America was literally "losing ground." And when the erosion processes started, of wind and water cutitng of the soil, and black dust storms carrying top lands away for hundreds of miles, America began to pay, in the loss of products, loss of homes, and abandoned communities, for the "cash in hand," which she had collected for the crops.

Now, it has become necessary for a governmental policy and program, to attempt to retrace the steps taken so hurriedly in the early days. And this is no fad, no scientific dream. It is a cold necessity, for the fertile soil that has been washed down into the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico must now be replaced, by the slow processes of soil-building. But happily, we have the answer. And here's hoping we have the good sense to apply it.

Molders' Union "Eighty Years Old and Proud of It"

The July issue of the Journal of the International Molders' Union of North America is a handsomely printed and historically valuable souvenir of the union's 80th anniversary.

The record shows that the first convention was held in Philadelphia, where 34 delegates from local unions in Philadelphia, Troy, Albany, Utica, Peekskill, Port Chester, St. Louis, Jersey City, Providence, Wilmington, Del., Baltimore and Cincinnati convened July 5, 1859.

Successfully launching the national organization, which has continued until this day, a prominent part was taken in the movement toward a national labor movement of crafts upon the principle of the American Federation of Labor. Charles Silvis, of Philadelphia, one of the outstanding figures in the dawning American labor movement and active in the establishment of the Molders' Union, contributed much to this national effort.

Of nine men who met in Terre Haute, Ind., on Aug. 2 and 3, 1881, in connection with the movement for formation of the A. F. of L., two were members of the Molders. The Molders were also prominently represented in the convention for permanent organization of the A. F. of L., held in Pittsburgh in November of the same year.

In addition to pioneering in the field of national organization, this militant union has also contributed materially to trade union history and development. Among the many other "firsts" in its record is that of having signed the first national agreement with an employers' association. This agreement, made in 1891 with the Manufacturers' Protective and Development Association, is still in existence.

In addition to the early figures in the movement, such as Charles Silvis, the Molders have contributed largely to leadership in the A. F. of L. Among such might be named Joseph F. Valentine, for 23 years president of the Molders and for a long period a member of the A. F. of L. Executive Council.

As might be expected, the International Molders Journal, as one of the earliest official periodicals, has played a prominent part in the development of labor journalism. Inaugurated as a regular publication in 1895, there have been but four editors, David Black, 1896-1903; John P. Frey, now president of the Metal Trades Department of the A. F. of L., 1903-1927; Robert T. McCoy, 1927-1933, and John F. Dunachie, present encumbent.

Thrasher Is Right

The session of the Hamilton county court on Wednesday was most illuminating. Friends of Erlanger hospital made a plea to the court to grant enough money to keep the beautiful new hospital running efficiently. On the face of the whole affair it appeared that the so-called "rebel" squires were not concerned about the welfare of Erlanger and as a result were hard-hearted in their decision to cut the appropriation.

However, at the close of all the arguments for Erlanger, Squire Wilkes Thrasher rose to his feet and made a speech which cleared up the whole situation to this writer at least. He clearly defined his objectives.

Erlanger is a city-county owned affair, and necessarily the operating costs should be borne by the city and county. However, the city has not been shouldering its just share of the burden, and it is Thrasher's intention to force the city to assume their just burden.

We feel sure that the city will take up its share of Erlanger.

Speeding Chief Auto Accident Cause

What causes traffic accidents? Everyone has a theory and the variety of these theories is as great as the problem itself. But the National Safety Council, Chicago, in the 1939 edition of its statiscal yearbook, Accident Facts, presents an analysis of the problem that is based on cold facts and figures.

According to the records, the greatest single driving sin is speeding—listed in the official summaries of fatal accidents throughout the country as "exceeding the speed limit" or "too fast for conditions."

Nineteen per cent of all drivers involved in fatal accidents in 1938 were speeding, the council's figures reveal. In some states this percentage was as high as 51 per cent, in others as low as 2 per cent.

The council's statistics show that about half of the drivers involved in fatal accidents violate the law or good driving practice. Since many accidents involve two vehicles, there probably is a violation by one driver or the other in more than 60 per cent of all fatal accidents.

Labor's Plea.

Buy American, union made,
You never can go wrong;
Every time a sale is made,
It helps our cause along.

Then you're sure of one thing,
Which stands out vividly;
It's made in our America,
And not across the sea.

Now listen, union workers,
Won't you please be true;
Buy and wear the union label
As you have pledged to do?

When trading union wages,
Bear this thought in mind;
Charity . . . begins at home,
And charity . . . is kind.

The label is the ensign
That helped to set us free;
Yes, union label buying
Is the answer to this plea.

ruled that the McCarran amendment was legislation, and hence not germane to the appropriation bill. Consequently it could not be considered unless two-thirds of the senators voted to suspend the senate rule.

Senator McCarran and other senators who believed that hourly prevailing wage rates should be made mandatory on WPA work, clearly and definitely declared that unless the rule was suspended so that a vote could be taken on the McCarran amendment, legislation to protect WPA workers in this respect was killed for the first session of the Seventh-sixth congress.

Rule Suspension Motion Defeated.

With this plain understanding of the significance of their action, 31 senators voted against suspending the rule and 40 voted in favor of suspending the rule. Inasmuch as two-thirds of the senators present did not vote in the affirmative the motion to suspend the rule was rejected. The vote follows:

For the motion to suspend the rule, 40—Adams, Ashurst, Barkley, Borah, Brown, Capper, Chavez, Clark Idaho; Danaher, Davis, Downey, Gerry, Gibson, Johnson, Calif.; Johnson, Colo.; La Follette, Lodge, Lucas, Lundeen, McCarran, Maloney, Mead, Minton, Murray, Neely, Nye, O'Mahoney, Pepper, Pittman, Schwartz, Schwellenbach, Shipstead, Thomas, Okla.; Thomas, Utah; Truman, Vandenberg, Van Nuys, Wagner, Walsh, Wheeler.

UNION ANNOUNCES UNUSUAL PLAN

(From the Typographical Journal)

Molders Union No. 221, Joliet, Ill., affiliate of the A. F. of L., has launched a movement whereby it hopes to greatly improve conditions by throwing the power of organized labor into a drive both new and novel in conception and operation. It embraces a new philosophy in the labor movement, presenting a constructive, helpful plan, whereby the employer, who is fully co-operating with organized labor, shall, in return, receive wholehearted support from trade unionists.

Molders Union No. 221 has the full co-operation of the Central Trades and Labor Council of Will county, Illinois, in spreading of its new philosophy of wholeheartedly boosting the real friends of organized labor, rather than wasting time and energy in a negative campaign against non-union concerns, which, at the best, are but poor competitors.

How Labor Benefits

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the fourth of six articles explaining the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, prepared for The Labor World by the information branch of the wage and hour division, United States Department of Labor.

Although the fair labor standards act has had the vigorous support, before and since its enactment, of all important national labor leaders, it has sometimes been difficult for the individual union man to see how it will benefit him personally.

Many members of organized labor already were receiving much more than 40 cents an hour, which is the highest minimum wage contemplated in the act. Many already under union contracts were receiving time and a half for overtime work. Many trades unions, by bargaining agreements, have established a shorter workweek than 40 hours, which is the maximum to be reached under the act in 1940.

Yet even these well-protected workers will receive important indirect benefits.

Not all workers are organized. Outside the labor movement there are many millions of men and women employed in interstate commerce, or in the production of goods for interstate commerce, who were wholly without protection until their governments came to their assistance. They constituted an enormous reservoir of low-paid labor to which certain employers could turn in their efforts to resist the legitimate demands of organized workers for higher wages and better working conditions. Indirectly, they were in competition with every man or woman who had a good job.

Moreover, when these people receive wage increases, the nation's mass buying power has been increased. And everybody knows that the goods made in the mass production industries cannot be sold unless there is widely diffused mass buying power.

Before the fair labor standards act, Mary Jones worked in a Chattanooga factory for $7 a week. After the act became effective she was raised to $11 a week—25 cents an hour for a 44-hour week. She was able to buy a new dress, a new hat and a new pair of shoes, to go to the movies more frequently, to eat more and better food.

Just one worker's increased buying power has an infinitesimal effect upon the total of the nation's business. But when you multiply one Mary Jones and one John Smith by hundreds of thousands or millions of Mary Jonses and John Smiths, the total effect may be tramendous.

The farmer sells more produce and with the money he receives he can buy more goods manufactured in the cities. The grocer from his increased business, can buy a new automobile; the automobile maker can build a new house; the housing contractor can buy a new electric refrigerator, and idle railroad workers are called back to work to help move these goods from farm o city, from city to farm from city to city. Thus the benefits of increased buying extend on and on in ever widening circles until everybody benefits in some degree. And the goods for which there is now an improved demand have to be manufactured, and the people who manufacture them are, in many cases, organized workers. Yoy may be one of them.

Thus factories that formerly ran only part time may now have to operate full time to fill the orders.

The hourly rate of pay any worker receives is important, but even $1 an hour is not a very good wage if he who receives it has an opportunity to work only two months a year. Even with no increase in his base rate, his annual earnings rise with each added week of employment he gets. And it takes the buying of many millions to keep the factories running so that all the workers will be employed for longer periods and others now idle will be called back to work.

Several months ago an investigation was made of the manner in which American families spend their incomes. It was found that there were 16,000,000 families receiving less than $1,250 a year. The investigators figured out that if all these could be raised to $1,500, and if they spent their money as do those already receiving that amount, $800,000,000 more would be spent each year for food, $400,000,000 more would be spent for clothing, $600,000,000 more for rentals, $450,000,000 more for fuel, light, refrigeration and house furnishings, $385,000,000 more for automobiles, and $200,000,000 more with the doctor, the dentist and the druggist.

The fair labor standards act isn't so ambitious as to aim at a minimum national family income of $1,500 a year, but it is a step in the right direction.

Economists emphasize the importance of our foreign trade, but when you come right down to it, the greatest potential American market is not in China, or India, or even in Canada, but right here at home.

Molder Local Launches Plan to Improve Conditions

Joliet, Ill.—Molders Union No. 221, affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, has launched a movement whereby it hopes to improve conditions by throwing the power of organized labor into a drive both new and novel in conception and operation.

It embraces a new philosophy in the labor movement, presenting a constructive, helpful plan, whereby the employer, who is fully co-operating with organized labor, shall, in return, receive whole-hearted support from trade unionists, rather than the negative course, which, to a great extent, has been followed in the past by organized labor in publishing a "We Do Not Patronize" list of products made by non-union manufacturers.

Joliet, Ill., is one of the great steel manufacturing centers of the United States. Among the important allied activities is the Moore corporation. This company has been engaged, for 83 years, in the manufacture of cooking and heating appliances — coal and gas ranges, coal-gas and oil-gas combination ranges, furnaces and circulating-radiating heaters for coal, oil and gas. Union workers are employed in their plant 100 per cent.

A large percentage of the molders in Joliet are employed by the Moore corporation, who has been in business here for 83 years and enjoys the finest of reputation. Moore's products carry the union label and are proud of the confidence which they have earned with their workers who have been putting skill, confidence, efficiency and artistry in Moore's products.

Movement Creates New Philosophy

Like most all manufacturing industries, the Moore corporation has felt the effects of unsettled world conditions. As new problems have arisen, so likewise, have new ideas been developed. The Moore corporation has been successful in keeping the fires of its furnaces burning and its employes have been kept from relief rolls. For this reason the Molders Local No. 221 is launching a concentrated nation-wide movement to help improve their new philosophy, that the employer who is producing 100 per cent union made goods is deserving of the wholehearted support of organized labor.

Appeals have been made to labor unions all over the United States, asking that they tell their membership of the long and creditable union affiliation of the Moore corporation and that appreciation be shown by the purchase of Moore's products.

Already there is hearty response from many sections of the country with dealers reporting increased sales of the union-made coal and gas ranges, circulating-radiating oil, gas and coal heaters and furnaces made by the Moore corporation. Likewise, inquiries have come from many crafts regarding the plan which is being presented by Molders Local No. 221—other lines hope to adopt this new idea in their line of manufacturing as a means of helping their industry out of the depression.

Molders Local No. 221 has the full co-operation of the Central Trades and Labor Council of Will county, Illinois, both affiliates of the American Federation of Labor, in spreading of its new philosophy of wholeheartedly boosting the real friends of organized labor, rather than wasting time and energy in a negative campaign against non-union concerns, which, at the best, are but poor competitors.

During the first three and one-half months of 1938 the Moore corporation payroll was $70,000. During the same period of 1939 this has been increased to $110,000, as a result of increased production. It is hoped through the campaign launched by Molders Local No. 221 to greatly increase this before the end of the present year, thereby successfully whipping the depression.

The Gospel of Sunshine

(The following article was submitted by T. R. Underwood, of the Street Car Men. We are glad to reprint it.—Ed note.)

Be ambitious! Gaze out into the future. Live in the great today and in the expectant tomorrow. Aviate every now and then to fancy's grandest concept. A change is mental rest and adds power. Look ahead! Set your stakes far afield. And, having reached a certain point, press ever on. Do not retreat. Try to make each today surpass each yesterday, and generally they will—this is a source of pleasure without end and pleasure helps so much, for good cheer follows in its wake and the best part is, GOOD CHEER IS CATCHING. If you feel good, it passes to the other fellow and puts all present at ease. By nature, our feelings and sympathies are elastic —we grieve, we rejoice, we share our surroundings, and the adjustment and response come quickly. Man is a moody creature and is easily changed from a frown to a smile. Try to bring this about for the good of both.

Ambition is one of the most vital of those dynamic powers that parent the desire and determination to accomplish any valued aim in life. The great constructive force of ambition must be given especial emphasis in contradistinction to its opposite, the destroying power of apathy.

Q.—How is vanilla made?

A.—It is extracted from seeds of a plant bearing the same name, belonging to a genus of orchids. The species producing most of the vanilla of commerce is native to the countries of North and South America, and is also cultivated in other warm regions, said Dr. A. J. Sharp, U-T botanist.

Zaritsky Condemns Raid By CIO on Building Trades As Enhancing More Bitterness

Calls on Lewis to Make Peace and "Heed Rank-and-File" in Its Demand for Peace

Charging that the CIO "raid on the building trades" will bring "enhanced bitterness and strife" which will "only divide the labor movement still further at a time when it needs unity more than ever," Max Zaritsky, president of the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union, called upon John L. Lewis, president of the CIO, to state his terms of peace.

In an editorial over his signature in the "Hat Worker," official publication of the hatters' organization, Mr. Zaritsky states that so far as the American Federation of Labor is concerned, they had already in effect stated their terms of peace as far back as November, 1937, when a tentative agreement was reached between committees of the A. F. of L. and the CIO.

"We heard at our convention," he writes, "that the committee who negotiated peace between the CIO and the A. F. of L. at that time had come to an agreement, but that the agreement was vetoed at the last moment. This assertion has not been denied. If the agreement reached then was not acceptable, what are now the points of dispute?"

On page four is reprinted an editorial by President Zaritzsky, of the International Union of United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers. We think this is one of the finest editorials yet written regarding the disunity in American labor.

Mr. Zaritsky ridicules the idea that questions of basic trade union policy divide the CIO and the A. F. of L. "The original issue for the creation of the CIO," he says, "has long been disposed of. It is meaningless to say that the CIO will continue as a separate body as long as the A. F. L. will not recognize the principle of industrial unionism. The A. F. of L. has long recognized this principle. I venture to say that there are fully as many industrial unions within the CIO as within the A. F. of L."

Mr. Zaritsky points out that in a number of states and sections the members of the CIO and the A. F. of L. refuse to fight and have reached working agreements on local labor problems. He feels, therefore, that the strife is continued artificially and "for abstruse and devious reasons." It may satisfy "inflated vanities and ambitious," he says, "but serves no other useful purpose."

Mr. Zaritsky states further that while the trade unions now have the largest number of members in their history, counting both the CIO and the A. F. of L., their power and influence are much less than they were when their numbers were fewer. "They used to teach," he writes, "that the whole is never less than the sum of its parts, but here is a case where the whole is much less than its two parts. In fact, the labor movement with its 8,000,000 workers is now much less powerful than when it had four, three, or even two million members in its ranks. For in the old days, these members were united and worked more or less as a compact body, speaking more or less the same voice. Now that they are divided, the power of one is checked by that of the other and the influence of one is used to destroy that of the other."

In view of the fact that the opponents of unionism are gaining the upper hand in congress and other legislative bodies, and in view of the impending presidential elections, Mr. Zaritsky insists that labor must settle its differences and mend its fences as rapidly as possible.

He ends his article by calling for the peace terms and for a speedy conclusion of peace.

MINOR AND HOLLAND FURNACE COMPANIES "UNFAIR TO LABOR"

Local 51, Sheet Metal Workers, are calling to the attention of the labor movement an its friends that the Minor Furnace company and the Holland Furnace company are "unfair to organized labor."

The Minor company is owned by a man and his brother-in-law. Minor is a former business agent of the union, and the "in-law" is a former secretary. Both are now fighting the organization which at one time they were interested in before they went into business themselves on a nonunion basis.

The Holland outfit is a branch chain affair. All the materials are made in Michigan and shipped into Chattanooga, according to Grover Tittle, president of the sheet metal boys.

The true way to gain much is never to desire to gain too much.—Beaumont.

Pilgrim Congregational Church Invites Labor Folk to Labor Sunday Sermon

Sunday, Sept. 3, the day preceding Labor day, is known as Labor Sunday. On that Sunday all over the United States many churches honor Labor day by special sermons, inviting members of organized labor as guests.

In Chattanooga the Rev. Alfred W. Hurst, of the Pilgrim Congregational church, Oak and Lindsay streets, has issued an invitation to all members of organized labor to come to his church Sunday, Sept. 3. Services will begin at 11 a.m.

Hester Accident Causes Loss to Labor Movement

Due to lack of time last week, all the facts concerning the fatal accident to Tom Hester near Harrison were not available. Brother Hester's death took from the labor movement a valuable and loyal union man. He was a member of Local 74, Carpenters.

Brother Hester joined Local 143, Carpenters, in Canton, Ohio, on Oct. 23, 1918. He transferred to the Chattanooga local July 22, 1932. For a short period he left the construction trade in order to run a farm near Nashville, at Hermitage, Tenn. However, he had remained a loyal booster of organized labor, and upheld the traditions of unionism that has always been dear to the Hester family.

Surviving him are his wife and three children. Two of the children are girls, aged 19 and nearly three. One boy is 17 years old.

He has a brother operating a union barber shop on Broad street at Ninth. The brother, A. C. Hester, has held many posts of trust in the local labor movement during the past 25 years.

The Labor World joins with the entire movement in its blow received, and extends its sympathy to the bereaved family.

Mrs. FDR Speaks Here Sept. 12

A lecture by Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt at Memorial auditorium on Tuesday evening, September 12, will open the 1939-40 season of Cadek Choral society. Members of the chorus will be seated on the stage with the first lady and directed by Conductor J. Oscar Miller will give several numbers. The season includes the lecture by Mrs. Roosevelt and four other concerts, Dec. 12, March 8 and May 6 and 8.

The annual ticket campaign for Chattanooga's civic chorus got under way this week with A. Lee Read as general chairman; Miss May Archibald, ticket chairman; Thankful Everett, publicity director; and Mrs. Paul H. Dietrich, associate publicity director. Conductor Miller and President Edward Schaefer are ex-officio members of the campaign committee. Headquarters are at the Chamber of Commerce, 819 Broad street, where Miss Ruth Davis, campaign secretary, and members of the chorus will be on hand daily until after the first concert to sell tickets and give information about the chorus.

A series of brilliant concerts has been arranged by Conductor Miller for the current season. New York guest soloists will assist at the December and May concerts when the singers will be accompanied by a 40-piece orchestra with Ottokar T. Cadek as concert master. Chattanooga soloists will be featured in March.

Mrs. Roosevelt's lecture is on the regular season ticket of the Choral Society. Other attractions include Handel's oratorio, "Samson," Dec. 12; a program of popular music, March 8, and the May Music Festival to consist of an artist recital, May 6, and a concert performance of Bizet's opera, "Carmen," May 8. The guest soloists selected by Conductor Miller are Florence Vickland, soprano; Lydia Summers, contralto; William Hain, tenor, and John Percival, bass-baritone, for December, and Mary Hopple, contralto; Helen Marshall, soprano, and Theo Karle, tenor, for May. Miss Hopple, who will sing the title role in "Carmen," and Mr. Karle are being brought back for return engagements with the chorus by popular demand.

Cadek Choral society, now enerting its tenth year, is the largest civic chorus in the entire south, numbering some 200 members.

AFL Exec. Council Warns Suspension Typo. Union For Assessment Arrears

Atlantic City, N. J.—The International Typographical union, one of the founders of the American Federation of Labor, has been conditionally suspended by the executive council of the A. F. of L., for failure to pay the special assessment levied two years ago to fight the CIO in a militant organization campaign.

In announcing the council's action, President William Green said that unless the entire assessment of about $22,000 was paid up the typographical union delegates would not take their places on the federation convention floor in Cincinnati in October.

Assessment Contested.

The special assessment was contested by the late Charles P. Howard, president of the I. T. U., who held that when the A. F. of L. was formed his union accepted a certificate of affiliation, and consequently under this arrangement each national union had complete autonomy as to its jurisdiction and was not compelled to pay other than per capita dues to the A. F. of L.

The assessment, one cent a member a month, was levied by the 1937 A. F. of L. convention.

Typos Hold Convention.

Meanwhile the International Typographical union opened its eighty-third annual convention at Fort Worth, Tex. No immediate action was taken regarding its suspension by the A. F. of L.

"The membership as a whole is not disturbed by the suspension, for they fully realize what the A. F. of L. has been endeavoring to do," said Francis Barrett, of New York City, first vice-president. "We shall follow the even tenor of our ways."

Claude M. Baker, of San Francisco, president of the union, said he had worked hard to prevent the suspension, but declined to predict what action the present convention might take. Both the statement by Barrett and Baker were made in the light of reports that the A. F. of L. executive council had "automatically" suspended their union.

Mr. Baker and Mr. Barrett declared the suspension did not imply in any way that the I. T. U. would seek to affiliate with the CIO.

Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the A. F. of L., usually an I. T. U. delegate to the A. F. of L. conventions, would be technically disqualified from the October convention if his union failed to pay the assessment.

Answer Indicated.

What may prove to be the final answer on the question of the typos convention at Fort Worth, is indicated by the action of Local No. 6, the I. T. U.'s largest unit, in calling upon the convention to stand firm in its refusal to contribute the $22,000 to help finance the A. F. of L.'s campaign against the CIO.

The local, 15,000 members strong and known as "Big Six" among union printers, wired the I. T. U. convention at Fort Worth, urging that no action be taken on the assessment question.

Denies Newspaper Reports.

Frank Morrison, executive secretary of the A. F. of L., in a letter to the typos convention, stated that the I. T. U. had not been suspended by the A. F. of L. as reported in newspapers shortly after the close of the executive council meeting at Atlantic City. The letter was sent to Woodruff Randolph, secretary-treasurer of the I. T. U.

Mr. Morrison's letter explained that the executive council of the A. F. of L. had adopted a resolution to the effect that if the I. T. U. at its convention in Fort Worth failed to make provision for the assessment the A. F. of L. might take action toward suspension.

After the Morrison letter was read, both Mr. Randolph and Claude M. Baker, president of the I. T. U., interpreted the executive council's resolution to mean that suspension of the I. T. U. was "conditional" upon continued failure to pay the assessment and not "automatic" as President William Green, of the A. F. of L., was quoted in press dispatches as having reported in Atlantic City.

Chattanooga Gets Local Office for U. S. Conciliation

Chattanooga welcomes today Mr. C. H. Williams, representing the bureau of conciliation of the United States department of labor. Mr. Williams arrived in Chattanooga Thursday to take up residence and open his office, which will probably be in the local federal building.

At the request of Central Labor union and with the valuable co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce and Dr. Steelman, head of the conciliation department, a regular full-time office for conciliation will be maintained in Chattanooga.

The conciliation department was established in 1914, at the same time the United States department of labor was established.

Mr. Williams comes from Birmingham, Ala., originally, but he has been located in Charlotte, N. C., and Washington, D. C., for the past several years.

The Board of Common Pleas Judges of the state of Pennsylvania has voted, by a majority, to reappoint the eight members of the Board of Prison Inspectors who are officially responsible for roasting to death four convicts in Holmsburg prison last August. Can such things be? But they are.

SSA Amendment Bars Politics Among Workers

Washington.—The new "merit system" amendment to the social security act would prohibit political activity by 100,000 employes of state welfare offices, according to an estimate of social security board officials.

The amendment, approved by the last session of congress and effective Jan. 1, directs that all employes of state welfare offices which receive any part of their administrative expenses from the federal treasury must be selected and work wholly on a non-political basis.

Consequently, said a board official, "if a man goes out and does a little campaigning, we'll have to say to the state where he is employed, 'we can't give you a dime as long as this man is working.'"

The 100,000 employes are in state offices handling unemployment compensation and administering assistance to the blind, to children and to the aged. Such offices receive federal funds.

Board experts said that between now and the effective date of the amendment an approved "merit system" plan would be submitted to all states and territories.

THE OLD U-BOAT SPIRIT

(From the New York Times)

A German newspaper, commenting on recent naval maneuvers in the Baltic, says triumphantly that "the spirit of the German U-boat of the World war lives on in our new U-boat arm." What was that spirit?

It showed itself in the sinking of thousands of tons of allied shipping—which may have been good for Germany. It showed itself also in the murder of unarmed ships' crews and passengers, including women and children—which turned out to be bad for Germany. It showed itself finally in a mutiny of submarine crews which spread through the fleet and helped to end the war. It did more than any one thing to create the world opinion which made victory for Germany impossible.

If this spirit is abroad again, it is nothing for the German people to be thankful over. For them, as for the rest of us, it is an evil omen.

Death of Communist Party in the U. S. Predicted by Congressman Thomas

Washington.—New evidence uncovered by the Dies committee investigation of un-American activities will "kill the communist party in the United States," it has been predicted by Representative J. Parnell Thomas.

Thomas declined to amplify his statement but another member of the committee declared that Dies investigators had evidence of a purported financial link between Soviet Russia and communist activities in the U. S..

The committee will meet soon to prepare plans for new hearings which are expected to resume shortly and continue inedfinitely through the autumn.

"We'll disclose the real big shots of the communist party," Thomas said.

Another committee member said that the Dies agents had "much more startling information this year than last year because it had more money and investigators with which to pursue its inquiry."

The committee members said Dies agents on the Pacific coast had uncovered "a wealth of material" on communist activities, some of which had been turned over to the labor department and some to the justice department. Other material has been found bearing on an "important" nazi spy case.

N.L.R.B. Orders Employes (A.F.L.) Reinstated

Washington.—The National Labor Relations Board has ordered the Atlantic States Motor Lines of High Point, N. C., to reinstate 20 employes with back pay.

The order, based upon a stipulation, directed the company to discontinue an alleged company union and cease discouraging membership of its employes in the Teamsters and Chauffeurs International union (A. F. L.).

UNITED PRINTING TRADES LABOR COUNCIL CHATTANOOGA

FRIDAY, AUGUST 25, 1939

NAME YOUR PEACE TERMS

There are eight million workers in the United States organized in trade unions. This is the largest number of members that the labor movement has ever had. Any organized body possessing such a huge throng should be able to exert enormous influence in a democracy. The voice of eight million people, all of them approximately with the same problems and interests and controlling probably some sixteen million votes at a conservative estimate, is a voice that ordinarily would be heard and heeded. Yet we see these eight million workers and their families flouted, their interests and needs disregarded, their gains robbed and despoiled.

The reason is an obvious one. The eight million workers may be organized, but they are not united in trade unions. They are rather divided in trade unions. They are divided between the two factions of the trade union movement, the CIO and the AFL.

Long, long ago—longer than I dare confess—they used to teach me at school that the whole is never less than the sum of its two parts. Here, however, is a case where the whole is much less than its two parts. In fact, the labor movement with its eight million workers is now much less powerful than it was when it had four, three or even two million members in its ranks. For in the old days these members were united and worked more or less as a compact body, speaking more or less the same voice. Now that they are divided, the power of one is checked by that of the other and the influence of one is used to destroy that of the other.

The Double Deal in Congress

The last session of Congress demonstrated in a striking and portentous way what our enemies' intentions are toward labor. No matter how we construe the actions of Congress in the closing days of the last session, one thing is clear. The enemies of labor held the whip hand there. A coalition of reactionary democrats and stand-pat republicans took over the legislative body, took it away from the people, and rode rough-shod over the desires of the people.

I think that the Tory Congressmen overreached themselves. I think that they tipped their hand too early. I can sense a mounting tide of anger among the people at the flagrant betrayal of the Nation's interests.

Already the straddlebugs are scurrying for cover. Already they rush to print with explanations and apologies for their traitorous deeds, and try to represent that there was no organized coalition against the New Deal, but that they acted strictly according to their convictions. I welcome their apologies, and their explanations are as balm in a painful situation. It proves that the common people of our nation resent this betrayal. It proves that the Congressmen know that they have double-crossed their constituents and are trying to cover themselves up. The culprit caught red-handed always tries to establish an alibi or, at least, some mitigating circumstance. So do the double-dealing Congressmen who went on a rampage of willful opposition to the desire of the people.

In view of the fact that the reactionary clique in Congress finds it necessary to explain and apologize for its misdeeds, there is a possibility that they may be more circumspect in the next session. This was an off-year in politics, and so the Tories could afford to indulge their spite and ill will. Next year, however, the national elections will be on, the nominating conventions and the presidential election campaign will stir the land. Even the most frost-bitten reactionaries and the most bitter opponents of progress will tone down their invidous disregard of the needs of the people. It is not at all unlikely, therefore, that those who voted according to their "convictions" in Congress in 1939, and stabbed the New Deal in the back, will try to represent themselves as high-minded progressives and ardent New Dealers in 1940.

But it will all depend. It will depend on many things. For the present we know where they stand and what they will do when it is their "convictions" they wish to consult and not the people. Their "convictions" tell them to destroy the New Deal, spike the people's advances and rob labor of all its gains.

The composition of the next session of Congress will be the same, but its color and actions may be entirely different. It will depend, as I say, on many things, but largely it will depend on what labor will do to protect its interests.

Money Out of Pocket

And here permit me to digress for a moment. People talk of the New Deal, of the Wagner Act, the Wages and Hours law, the Social Security laws as if they were something abstruse and theoretical. The New Deal, some are inclined to think, is one of those beautifully idealistic philosophies which are handsome to decorate our national household, but which can be dispensed without injury to our dwelling and mode of living. Let me say, therefore, that the New Deal and all the laws comprising it, far from being abstruse and theoretical, are the most practical of realities. It is because they are so real and practical, that the reactionaries are so viciously determined to destroy them. They mean dollars and cents to the people. They mean bread and butter, a richer and more abundant life, and a greater measure of security in old age.

Now, if a gang of hoodlums waylaid you and tried to rob you of your money, you would try to protect yourself as best you might. You would use weapons if you possessed any, or would call for help. And if someone tried to enter your house and claim your possessions, you would fight back and have him thrown out. Certainly you would not consider the bandit's or the thief's "conviction" or natural inclination to rob a justification for taking your property. Yet what the Tories in Congress tried to do is no less a direct assault on your posessions than if they had dipped into your pocket and taken your money away. That's what the whole thing amounts to, in effect. They want to take away what little you have, and give it away to those who already possess so much.

The Tories hate Roosevelt and the New Deal with a bitter and venomous hate, but it is not an unreasoned hate. They have cause to hate him, a dollars and cents cause. The Labor Relations law is one cause of their animus. It means dollars and cents to a labor-baiting industrialist to be able to prevent his workers from organizing. It means money to a tyrannical employer who has sweated and underpaid his workers to spike the Wages and Hours law. It means money to have to pay taxes to provide some bit of security for workers whom they do not hesitate to throw on the scrap heap when it suits their convenience. It means money to them and it means money to you. And whether you who have so little will give it away to them who have so much, will depend on what you and your Congress will do.

Labor's Real Fight

Labor will have to fight for its dearly won gains. The arch reactionaries in Congress who gave away their game too early, have shown that they intend to do once they obtain full power. They voted an investigation or smear campaign against the Labor Board and they want to amend the Wagner Act to death. They tried to deprive the Wage and Hour administration of the funds necessary to enforce the Act. If they will not be able to kill the New Deal laws, they will try to empty them of all force and meaning by withholding money for their enforcement.

In view of the terrific struggle that is clearly ahead of labor and ahead of the common people of our country, how is labor preparing to meet the situation? Is it united and intrenched to meet the enemy? Has it a program and plan of action?

I have only to pose the questions to show how tragically unprepared we are. Eight million of us are organized, but our power is dissipated in fighting one another instead of fighting the common enemy.

I, therefore, want to ask the following question of the powers that be:

How long is this fight to go on? What are the terms of peace?

The original issue for the creation of the CIO has long been disposed of. It is meaningless to say that the CIO will continue as a separate body as long as the AFL will not recognize the principle of industrial unionism, for the AFL has long recognized it. I venture to say that there are fully as many industrial unions within the AFL as in the CIO and fully as many craft unions within the CIO as in the AFL.

The Raid on the Building Trades

If the main issue has been disposed of, I want to know what other issues there are to divide labor. I want to know whether raids on other unions are likely to promote more unionism and greater strength for labor. I refer specifically to the announcement by John L. Lewis that the CIO would enter the building trades field. I wonder what purpose such a raid would serve. The building trades are among the best organized in the country. Opposition unions would not add to the power of the building trades workers, but would weaken it. The raid on the building trades may serve to settle certain petty scores; it may salve the spirit of vengefulness, but certainly would not add an iota to the strength of labor. On the contrary, the enhanced bitterness and strife would only divide the labor movement still further apart at a time when it needs unity more than ever.

What, therefore, is the real purpose of the announced raid on the building trades?

Finally I want to ask who and what is in the way of peace? We have heard at our convention that the committees who negotiated peace between the CIO and AFL had come to an agreement, but that th agreement was vetoed at come to an agreement, but that the agreement was vetoed at the last moment. This assertion has not been denied. If the the points of dispute?

Heed the Rank and File

Let me say that the rank and file of labor does not want this war. Let me repeat this and state it asemphatically as I can. No, we do not want the war among us to continue. The working people who are members of the AFL and the CIO have no cause to hate and fight one another. It is only men with inflated vanities and ambitions who continue the strife. They continue it artificially and for abstruse and devious reasons.

Already in many states and sections the workers refuse to fight. I can name huge sections of our land where even the forms of the division between the CIO and the AFL have been lost sight of, and the members of both organizations fraternize and help one another as working people should.

How long, therefore, will the rank and file be held in artificially created warring camps?

How long and what for?

Name your terms of peace!

Let us know what they are and then let us have peace.

Headache, Bad Breath Tell of More to Come

Just as Paul Revere's famous ride warned of the Redcoats' coming, so Nature's messengers — headaches, biliousness, bad breath—often warn of faulty elimination.

Neglecting these signs may cause a host of constipation's discomforts: sour stomach, belching; no appetite or energy; mental dullness.

It's so easy to wake up your lazy insides. Just take spicy, all vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT. Its unusual help comes from its principal ingredient—an intestinal tonic-laxative which imparts tone to lazy bowel muscles.

Millions of packages used testify to BLACK-DRAUGHT'S merit. Try it.

ESTES KEFAUVER
Democratic Nominee for CONGRESS

I want to thank the people of the Third District for the cordial welcome you have given me upon my visits to the various counties of the District. I appreciate the interest you have shown in my candidacy. I have enjoyed meeting you and discussing with you the various problems that affect you and your communities.

I appreciate to the fullest extent the compliment paid me by the Democrats of this District. I want to thank my many friends for their tireless efforts to make my nomination possible, and I want to pledge to the people of the District that it will henceforth be my chief duty and aim to make myself more and more deserving of the faith and confidence you have shown in me.

I am sure that you do not expect me to perform any miracles if I am elected. It will be necessary for me to study, to get acquainted and to learn before I can be of full value to the people of my District. This will take time and I hope you will bear with me. Appreciating the opportunity which is mine, I will do my best to perform my duty but I would be the last one to say that I shall go forth to Washington as your Representative with any inner assurance that I am more than a poor, hopeful student seeking light and experience in order to enable me to some day be a worthwhile Representative.

This, however, I want you to know—of all the honors that have ever come to me in my life, I feel more deeply grateful over this than any other. If I am elected, I will go about my duty with full humility, conscious of the imperfection of my own training for the task ahead and therefore all the more determined to bend every effort and energy of my mind and heart to repay with faithful and useful service the confidence bestowed upon me.

My opinions upon matters in general are well known. I am a Democrat and I believe in the Democratic philosophy of life. I believe in freedom and the safeguards which the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution establish for it. I shall not be found wanting in the effort to maintain them. I believe in the protection of the economic system of private property within which men's individual initiative can be utilized.

One or two things I would like to add to this. Be assured that I shall take up the task of representing all the people of this District with my hands untied. Since the beginning of this contest I have steered clear of secret alliances and pledges. I intend to continue this course. My duty and obligation are to no boss, individual, group, clique or special interest. They are to the people of this District as a whole. My purpose is to seek to aid the general welfare and to work for the common good. This I now deeply and sincerely promise and pledge and to this end I shall dedicate myself.

New York AFL Unions Band to Push Department Stores Union Drive

New York City.—A group of A. F. of L. unions have formed a department store council, to handle the drive which is being made to unionize department store workers. The unions include the Retail Clerks' International Protective association, the maintenance council of the Building and Construction Trades council, the Bookkeepers, Stenographers and Accountants' union, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and the Wholesale Dry Goods and Notions Employes.

James J. Bambrick, president of Local 32-B of the Building Service Employes International union—one of the members of the council mentioned, believes that this maneuver will give the A. F. of L. victory in organizing the store workers of this city.

Banks Come Under Labor Act, NLRB Rules

Declares Bank of America Is Engaged in Interstate Commerce; Employes of 16,000 Banks Involved.

Washington, D. C.—The national labor relations board ruled that the provisions of the national labor relations act covered employes in approximately 16,000 banks.

Specifically the board decided that the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association of California was an employer engaged in commerce within the meaning of the national labor relations act.

The decision was signed by Chairman J. Warren Madden and Edwin S. Smith. William M. Leiserson, newest board member, did not participate in the decision, due to the fact that the case was argued before he was transferred to the NLRB from the chairmanship of the national mediation board.

Operates as Private Business.

Officials of the bank contended that it is exempt from the national labor relations act because it is an instrumentality of the United States government. In overruling this contention, the labor board said:

"The United States did not create the respondent (the bank), as it has many other agencies, for the purpose of carrying on its governmental functions. The United States merely provided a permissive means by which the respondent could be organized and do business. Having so permitted the respondent, the United States has subjected it to certain regulations and has conferred upon the respondent certain rights and privileges. While subjected to certain governmental regulation, the respondent performs no governmental functions other than such as are purely incidental ot its business, such as it might perform for any other person dealing with it.

"We find that the respondent is not the United States within the meaning of section 2 (2) of the act. We further find that the respondent is an employer within the meaning of Section 2 (2) of the act."

The bank also sought exemption from the labor act on the ground that it was not engaged in interstate commerce.

The board replied that banks afford "facilities for the commercial system of the United States without which commerce would completely fail," adding:

"We find that the operations of the respondent have a close, intimate and substantial relation to trade, traffic, commerce and transportation among the several states and with foreign countries."

It was stated in informed quarters that the policy of exempting banks from certain forms of federal regulation is based on statute law, but originated with the comptroller of the currency, who, in 1928, objecting to certain bills which would have broadened state taxing powers over national banks, wrote:

"National banks are instrumentalities of the federal gover... As such they cannot be ta... the state except with the ... of the government and tha... to such extent as the gover... permits."

Raising Pay by Wage Orders

This is the fifth of a series of six articles explaining the Fair Labor Standards Act prepared for The Labor World by the wage and hour division, Department of the United States Department of Labor.

Congress decided that industries engaged in interstate commerce, or in producing goods for interstate commerce, should pay their workers not less than 10 cents an hour by 1945. But it provided a way by which certain industries could reach the 40 cent level in advance of the date, or could reach 40 cents by gradual steps, according to conditions in the individual industry.

These are the steps necessary in establishing a minimum wage level for an industry:

1. The administrator is to appoint an industry committee for each industry. Each committee is to consist of equal numbers of representatives of the public, of employers in the industry, and of employees in the industry. Each committee is to be furnished with technical, economic advisors, and stenographic assistants by the administrator.

2. The committee shall make a study of the industry to embrace such factors as production costs, labor costs, transportation costs, competitive conditions, costs of living, and the wages paid in the industry in accordance with union labor contracts.

3. After this study of the industry, the committee shall recommend a minimum wage for the industry. The recommended minimum shall be such as not to curtail employment in the industry and not to give any group of employers in the industry an advantage over their competitors.

4. When the recommendation is received by the administrator he must hold public hearings. He also must consider all the factors that have been considered by the committee.

5. After the hearings the administrator may do one of three things: (a) He may issue a wage order, putting the recommended minimum into effect with the force of law, (b) he may send it back to the committee for further consideration, or (c) he may appoint another committee to study the industry and bring in a fresh recommendation. He may not, in any event, issue a wage order that has not been specifically recommended by an industry committee.

Seven industry committees had been appointed up to June 1. They are for cotton, silk and rayon textiles, woolen textiles, wearing apparel, hosiery, shoes, hats and millinery.

Five of the committees have agreed upon wage recommendations. They are: For textiles, 32½ cents an hour; for woolens, 36 cents; for hosiery, 40 cents for full-fashioned and 32½ cents for seamless; for millinery, 40 cents, and from 32½ to 40 cents for work on different kinds of wearing apparel. Two of these recommendations are now formally before the administrator. Public hearings on the hosiery and textile recommendations were held in June. But as this was written no wage orders had yet been issued.

However, it is estimated that if wage orders are issued carrying all the recommended minima into effect, 237,500 workers in these industries will receive wage increases up to the minima, or more workers than there are people living in Chattanooga. In addition, some workers now above those suggested minima would receive increases in order to preserve the customary differentials between the skilled and the unskilled, or the skilled and the semi-skilled.

The work of the industry committee is of tremendous importance to all workers, but especially to organized labor. Labor has an equal voice with employers and public representatives in arriving at the recommendations, and organized labor has its opportunity, of course, to present its side of the argument before the industry committees and also at the open hearings before the administrator.

46,000 Hosiery Workers to Get Pay Increases

Washington.—Pay increases for 46,000 hosiery workers, effective Sept. 18, are assured under approval of recommendations of a wage-hour industry committee by Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer F. Andrews.

The recommendations were the first to be approved by Andrews since the fair labor standards act last October. They establish a 5½ cen-per-hour minimum for 80,000 workers in the seamless hosiery division and 40 cents an hour for 60,000 full-fashioned hosiery workers.

It is estimated that 30,000 seamless and 16,000 full-fashioned workers will receive raises.

Amalgamated Meat Cutters Given Full A. F. of L. Support In Fight With C.I.O. to Organize Packers

By ROBERT H. PERKINS

Chicago. Ill.—The Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America is receiving the full support of the American Federation of Labor, with which it is affiliated, in its dispute with the packing house organizing committee, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The dispute came to a head with the announcement by John L. Lewis, CIO leader, that there would be a strike against Armour and perhaps Swift, Wilson and Cudahy, the largest packers in the United States, unless their representatives agreed to sit down and negotiate a national agreement with the CIO union. Both A. F. of L. and CIO unions are bargaining locally with Armour & Co. and a national agreement would be in opposition to packing house employes who are members of the A. F. of L. union.

CIO Fire Centered on Armour.

Armour & Co. was singled out because its representatives have refused to accede to CIO demands. Center of the attack is Armour's big Chicago plant. The CIO union has been certified the collective bargaining agency for employes of that plant by the National Relations Board. It claims that it won the right to represent employes of that plant in a labor board election, but the vast majority of the employes did not participate in the election and it is contended that only a minority favor the CIO union. Representation rights are claimed by both A. F. of L. and CIO unions.

Leading the fight against the CIO are Patrick E. Gorman, president, and Dennis E. Lane, secretary-treasurer, of the Amalgamated. Assisting them are John Fitzpatrick, president, and Joseph D. Keenan, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and several organizers sent here by the A. F. of L.

Fitzpatrick Lauds Amalgamated.

Fitzpatrick, in a recent statement, declared that credit for all of the improvements in wages, hours and working conditions must go to the Amalgamated. Ten or twelve years ago, he said, an employe might be required to work 1 hour or 12 hours per day and be paid the maximum rate, which, for the vast majority, was 17½ cents an hour. The Amalgamated, he added, established an 8-hour day and a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour, with a provision that if a worker reported for work, he was to be given at least a half day's pay.

"The Amalgamated," said Fitzpatrick, "is in full possession of the possibilities of organizing the packing industry and no raiding, wrecking crew of destructionists, under the direction of that unscrupulous and avowed disrupter of the A. F. of L., John L. Lewis, can succeed in his unholy cause."

Total membership of the Amalgamated is about 150,000 and this figure is increasing. Strong organizations of meat cutters and packing house employes have been developed. The union is in agreement with about 400 independent packers and is in accord with retail meat dealers in cities and towns from coast to coast.

The CIO union claims a membership of 78,000, but a report by Van Bittner, head of the Lewis forces in Chicago, places it at about 10,000, this being the result of some three years' efforts.

TEACHER TALK

As we pointed out in our letter to the city commission the other day, something that looks very much like skulduggery is going on at city hall. Here is the situation: A larger government (Tennessee) desires to aid a smaller one (Chattanooga) in its educational program. A budget has already been worked out, exclusive of this new source of revenue. When the new funds are paid to the city they are intended to be added to the city's accustomed support. If this is done, you have "state aid to education." What we believe the commission will find, however, is that someone diverted $21,588 from its original education budget and replaced it with the $21,588 state agent. Such a perversion of the intent of state aid would mean that every function but education is served by a grant for education.

The federation is asking the state attorney-general's office for a ruling on such tactics. As the amount of state funds is slated to increase each year, teachers everywhere will need to watch for retrenchment by city and county governments.

We hope that as the new school year gets under way more and more teachers will become union-minded and realize that company unions, chambers of commerce, P.-T. A.'s and politicians have at best far less interest in our battles than we ourselves have.

You should know that Mr. O. C. Kirkman did a little lionbearding the other evening at the schoolmasters' watermelon cutting. When Mr. S. J. McCallie made the error of saying that the federation had opposed the recent merger plan, Mr. Kirkman explained that the federation had drawn up and submitted recommendations under which it would approve consolidation, that these included the election of an independent school board.

The Chamber of Commerce, we happen to know, opposed so democratic and disinterested a control of education. Neither Mr. McCallie nor Commissioner McMillan mentioned it in the minor set-to reported in the Times Wednesday morning. The reticence of each is explicable—for different reasons.

It should be said, in fairness to Mr. McMillan, that he did co-operate in working out the plans. His demands, with the exception noted, were essentially those of the federation.

Mr. McCallie unconsciously revealed a great deal about our American apathy in matters of government when he said that "the county court, the city commission, and everyone concerned except Commissioner McMillan" had been willing to accept the merger plan. The trouble is that the body politic—even parents and teachers—fail to concern themselves about the most vital of our common problems. We are going to suggest that the federation make a study of educational administration. We've heard somewhere that an elective school board is a good thing. None of the powers that be suggested trying it here, however, so maybe wer're wrong.

Our delegates to the national convention at Buffalo will be back next week. We are counting on their bringing new ideas and enthusiasm with them.

KEFAUVER AND DODSON SLATED AT WARNER PK.

Candidates for Congress Will Address Unionists on Labor Day.

Headlining the Labor day celebration at Warner park next Monday will be the addresses to be delivered by the two candidates for congress. Estes Kefauver, democratic nominee, and Casto Dodson, republican candidate, will speak from the same platform in front of the grandstand. The oratory will start at 5 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made for a fine 12-piece band to play for several hours for those who have an ear for music.

For those who want to play all during the day there has been drawn up a complete program allowing all ages to compete.

A fine display of fireworks will thrill the kids and grown-ups, too, starting in the latter part of the evening to send everyone home with a complete satisfaction.

The swimming poot will attract hundreds duridng the day and evening. In the midway the concessions will be oiled and primed to care for pleasure seekers, and the grassy areas have plenty of facilities for basket and picnic lunches.

People who will not trouble themselves with fixing a lunch will be served in Warner park's union eating establishment.

The Labor day committee of Central Body, headed by Elmer Crosby, has done a fine job. The stage is all set for a glorious and sane Labor day. Come early and stay late.

Olgiati, Hargraves Have Things Ready

Much of the success of the Labor day celebrations at both Warner and Lincoln parks will be due to the untiring efforts of two members of the city department of playgrounds. These men are also good members of organized labor.

P. R. Olgiati, a bricklayer unionist, is superintendent of parks, and Ed Hargraves, teacher unionist, is director of recreation. They have the parks and the program in shape so that nothidng has been left undone.

Sound service will be on hand so that everything that goes on can be carried to all parts of the play area.

Negro Unionists to Have Big Day At Lincoln Park

Members of the negro race are planning to go to Lincoln park by the thousands. The Labor day program at Lincoln will be as complete as at Warner park, including fireworks and speakers.

Prominent negro orators will dish up the oratory, and the athletic contests will keep young and old busy.

STANTON SMITH IS RE-ELECTED VICE

Word comes from Buffalo, where the teachers' union is in session, that Stanton E. Smith has been re-elected as vice-president of that national union.

Union Label Trades Department, American Federation of Labor

LABOR DAY or any other day is a good time to remind Labor Unionists and their friends to buy Union Label, Union-made products and to patronize Union services. Every time one buys non-union goods and uses non-union services, he is tearing shingles off his own home.

During the last four depression years, all National and International Unions affiliated with the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor have increased their membership. Some affiliates have doubled and even tripled their membership. The fact that they have adopted Union Labels, Shop Cards or Service Buttons and the intensive Union Label campaign carried on during the last few years have greatly helped to increase the number of members in the Union Label family.

Union services that are not designated by labels have also enjoyed a great benefit from the Union Label-conscious consumers who demand Union workers on every repair or construction job, in all hotels and restaurants, on all forms of transportation, and wherever the work can be done by members of American Labor Unions.

LABOR DAY is the best day to take the Union Label pledge. It is: "I promise to patronize only those firms that display the Union Label, Shop Card or Service Button!" Only by collective purchasing of Union Label goods and using Union services can Labor Unionists maintain American Labor standards. It is the best method to increase buying power and keep our country on the road to permanent prosperity. Let's put shingles on our own homes!

Pilgrim Congregational Church Invites Labor Folk to Labor Sunday Sermon

Sunday, Sept. 3, the day preceding Labor day, is known as Labor Sunday. On that Sunday all over the United States many churches honor Labor day by special sermons, inviting members of organized labor as guests.

In Chattanooga the Rev. Alfred W. Hurst, of the Pilgrim Congregational church, Oak and Lindsay streets, has issued an invitation to all members of organized labor to come to his church Sunday, Sept. 3. Services will begin at 11 a.m.

Commissioner of Labor S. E. Bryant will be a guest of the labor movement at the park Labor Day and will be on the speaking program.

JOHN MAHONEY STARTS DUTIES WITH COOKE

Active Trades Unionist's Appointment Keeps Union Record.

An announcement of interest to the organized labor movement generally came this week from the office of Commissioner Bob Cooke. Local trade unionists will be pleased with the news that John T. Mahoney, active member of Musicians' union, Local No. 80, has been named secretary to the commissioner. Mr. Mahoney is well known to Labor World readers in particular through his contributions to our columns, his latest series of articles having appeared under the title "Law and Labor." He succeeds Frank Chamlee, who resigned in June to enter private law practice. During the summer months the duties of secretary in Commissioner Cooke's department were handled by Ed Hargraves, in addition to the latter's work as recreation director. However, the work of the recreation division had become so heavy it was quickly learned that Mr. Hargraves' entire time was required for the successful operation of the citywide recreation program.

Mr. Mahoney has been active in the local labor movement for more than a decade. He has served as president, secretary and sergeant-at-arms of Local No. 80, as well as delegate to the Central Body, and represented Local No. 80 in the recent convention of the state federation at Nashville. In 1936 he was a candidate on labor's ticket for the state legislature and was elected with D. M. Coleman. As a member of the state lawmaking

Clerks Sign D & W Food Store in St. Elmo

The D & W grocery, located at 5522 St. Elmo avenue, is a 100 per cent union store now. They have signed a shop card contract with the retail clerks and also have a union meat market.

The hundreds of trades unionists in St. Elmo hail this development with much interest, especially since the fight against the anti-labor Hill store in that neighborhood has waxed warm.

Nazi Work Corps Are Restricted

Units Set Up By Hitler As Part of Totalitarian Scheme

Paris, France.—The International Federation of Trade Unions, with which the American Federation of Labor is affiliated, issued a statement regarding the recent changes in the structure of the Nazi Works Corps in Germany, which were established by Chancellor Adolf Hitler to destroy the free German trade union movement when he took over dictatorial authority in the Reich.

Under the new regime, according to the I. F. T. U., the Works Corps have been deprived of their functions as works representatives and have been turned into a regime to train recruits for the Nazi party.

Following is the text of the statement issued by the International Federation of Trade Unions:

"Before Hitler came into power the 'National Socialist Factory Organization' was the forerunner of the German Labor Front. It was set up by Hitler in order to undermine the trade unions and to make the workers docile machines in the factories. When the unions were destroyed and the German Labor Front was forced on the workers, the Factory Organization had to disappear also.

"But the workers were not won over to the Nazi idea of factory fellowship and still held fast to their old trade union ideals.

Workers Were Deceived

"In order to break this resistance, the Nazis, therefore, created a new organization, the Works Corps, formed out of the nucleus of the old Factory Organization members, and with all the usual military trappings, uniforms, drill, etc., and, of course, a flag given by the factory 'leader'!

"But all this was only to deceive the workers as to the real aim, which was political agitation for the Nazi Party and the organization of labor espionage. In order that the aim might be easily attained the workers were forced to join the Works Corps, which were placed under the control of the Labor Front and allotted certain tasks.

Ley Outlines Works Corps Functions

"Dr. Ley, the leader of the Labor Front, described this work in detail in the 'Voelkischer Beoabachter' of May 8, 1939.

"The Works Corps, he said, were formed in order to provide a solid nucleus for the followship of all engaged in the works, and to act as the 'shock brigade' in the execution of the work of the factory. Ley then praises the Works Corps, which, he says, provided a guarantee for the National Socialist conception in the works, and carried on propaganda for healthy dwellings, public health, technical training and 'Strength Through Joy.' They also solved practical problems, by showing their fellow-workers the necessity, for example, of the campaigns for warm meals at work, good light and clean working-rooms.

"Ley also praises the work done by the Works Corps in increasing output, and finally states that, as a reward for the determined and self-sacrificing work done by the Corps, they will now be incorporated into the section of political leaders and will be entitled to wear their uniforms. 'I greet the men in the works and am proud that the German Labor Front, as the instrument of the Party, has once again made a great step forward.'

"But all this talk about recognition and reward means in reality that the Works Corps have been removed from Ley's command.

Abolished as Works Representatives

"According to Hitler's Order of May 5, the German Labor Front has to confine itself to 'social tasks,' which means that the struggle between Ley and Himmler, head of the Gestapo, has been won by the latter.

"The Works Corps cease to be independent bodies and must retire from their functions as works representatives. The uniforms still in their possession may be used, but no new ones may be acquired.

"Such of the Corps members as have shown themselves to be 'sound' will be incorporated into the 'Political Corps of the National Socialist Party.' These will mainly be the leaders of the Works Corps, while the ordinary members will be regarded as candidates for positions as vacancies occur. Where they prove worth, they will be taken into the Party.

Gestapo Spy System Gets Busy

"The end of the Works Corps represents the funeral of a great Nazi hope. Most of the members only wore the black uniform against their will and under pressure. The hope of getting the workers into the Party through the Works Corps has proved vain. Very often, in fact, the Corps took the part of the workers when opposition broke out. Hunger and class feeling are stronger than Nationalist Socialist phraseology!

"Special pressure is being applied to make the Works Corps members better instruments for the Gestapo spying system. In conjunction with the employers, a large-scale exchange of jobs is being arranged. Normally this is only possible through the Labor Exchanges, but this time it will take place without them, the idea being that the persons thus placed in a new job will be able to spy with much more security and secrecy. But the workers will most certainly soon see through this little game!"

WHAT NEXT?

B. F. Sturtevant Co., of Boston, says that by use of its "Vitalized Air-Conditioning" system the air in railroad cars can not only be made comfortable, but can be passed through ultra-violet light rays to make it more healthful, can be given the refreshing ozone of mountain air, and can be sprayed with water to remove dust and bacteria; or to add the salty tang of the seashore.

"Wire-Twisters" Move Into Building All Their Own on McCallie

LOCAL 175, Electricians, has every reason to be proud of itself these days. They have just moved into their fine remodeled building just purchased on McCallie avenue, situated close by the overpass over the railroad.

The building was purchased outright by the local, and after a lot of paint, wiring and other fixtures installed, you wouldn't know the place. The office of Business Agent Harris is located there, and a fine meeting hall is upstairs. There is a lounge and reading room for members to rest in and pass leisure hours.

Local 175 is nearly thirty years old. When the wire twisters first got together electricians received a grand salary of $1.50 per day. And they only had to work ten or more hours per day. There was no such thing as overtime pay.

Today, the wage scale is $1.25 per hour, with an eight-hour day and five-day week. Truly, the boys have done good work in organization. Chattanooga today electrically is union. And nowhere in the country does the standard of qualification run as high as here.

Some of the living "old-timers," who nursed 175 along, are: E. C. Murdock, Jess Hilton, E. B. Messer, W. N. Stilwell, Riley Pyle, Benton Godsey, Alick Fricks, Vance Tallent, Walter Fourton, Obey Colston, Gus Gerald, R. A. Simons, V. Clark, T. J. Tucker, J. C. Fournier, L. A. Ragon, Ed Span, Wm. L. Williams.

Others of the old-timers who have gone to their rewards are: L. A. Hall, H. C. Toles, Buck Orr, Birt Black, Carl Scott, Frank Labosket, E. Z. Vanhouser.

It is hoped that Local 175 will be followed by other local unions in owning a home all their own. It was no easy task, testified to by the building committee composed of W. L. Williams, W. C. Harris and W. J. Copeland. The nice thing about it all was the co-operation and interest shown by the entire membership. they said, and when the building was dedicated on Aug. 20, with its pretty white front and flashy awning, the rest of the labor movement applauded.

BILL WILLIAMS HAS OLDEST CARD IN IBEW LOCAL 175

President William L. Williams (Bill, to you), is proud of the fact that he has the oldest union card in Local 175, Electricians. Bill came into the local in 1912, when they were making $1.50 per day, and glad to get it. Since then he has had a varied career.

Here is his record: Two years with the Fred Cantrell company, one year with James Supply company, fourteen years with Terrell Electric company, and ten years with the city as electrical inspector.

And he has helped build Chattanooga. Worked on the lock at Hales Bar, made Hamilton National bank what it is today, and put up the Market street bridge.

Finishing Chattanooga, he has worked all over the southland, Texas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

He has seen some tough times, too. When he first got his card he had to sit tight and say nothing. The fellow that gabbled about a trade union in those days lost his job.

"Now the boys have to have a paid-up card to work," he says. "Pretty nice for the youngsters nowadays, but it was worth it. It makes us feel good to know that we have helped our kids today have an easier time."

Not bad, Bill.

ON SATURDAY, AUGUST 26, Local 175, Electricians, held their annual barbecue and picnic at the Rod and Gun club, near Harrison, Tenn. Several hundred friends and all the membership had a big time from noon until late in the evening. Barbecue was served from four o'clock on.

The barbecue was just another feature of the aggressive union of wire-twisters. Besides being on their toes economically, they intend to broaden their field of endeavor toward bringing the members of the families closer together. It is said that before long there will be a fine chapter of auxiliary members, through which the wives, sisters and daughters will be able to assist husbands, fathers and brothers in furthering trade unionism. Through auxiliaries trades unions are able to educate the membership to spend union-earned wages for union-made products.

Elmer E. Crosby was the lucky man, winning the fine barbecued ham for the attendance drawing.

The elected officers of Local 175 are as follows: W. L. Williams, president; vice-president, John Kennedy; business agent and financial secretary, W. C. Harris; treasurer, W. D. London, and recording secretary, E. E. Crosby.

Phil Angel Banged Up in Wreck, On Feet Again

Phil I. Angel, of Angel Printing company, and a member of Typographical union, is able to be back at his office again, although he still squeaks a bit when he moves.

Mr. Angel was injured last Saturday when his car was hit by a speeder and crashed into the Gilman paint window. Hospital examination indicated that no bones were broken, although he was severely bruised.

Driver of the car that hit the Angel car was fined in city police court.

If 60,000 marchers join a New York parade for the union label, it should get some followers in every American city.

Lookout Mtn. Hotel Declared "Unfair"

At the request of Local 80, Musicians, Central Labor union last Monday placed the Lookout Mountain hotel and patio on its "Unfair" list. The declaration was caused by the refusal of the management to hire union musicians instead of the non-union orchestra it is now using.

Labor's Rights Must Be Upheld

Prof. K. W. Taylor, McMaster University, Toronto, Ont., speaking on "The Church and the Working Man," said among other things:

"If the members of the working class are to achieve what I have already described as a status, a dignity and a sense of responsibility consistent with the Christian conception of personality they must have the unquestioned right to develop their own organizations, the right to choose their own leaders and representatives, the right to affiliiate with other groups, the right to collective bargaining, and its corollary, the right to strike."

War Is Here

From now on, you will have to fight Communism alone. Mr. Hitler will not help on that job another lick. He promised Joe Stalin that he would quit saying nasty things abou. communists, for 10 years.

Anyhow, you perhaps need not worry so much about the Comintern, because Joe has also joined the Anti-Comintern. Which will take the strain off your conscience for a while.

And don't let yourself get messed up with any compunctions about conscience, or anything like that. This thing of killing Communism is international, you know. And from now on out of here, there is no ethical standard whatever in international affairs. That was shown at Munich; as it had been shown in Spain. It has long been demonstrated in Germany, and Italy, and was announced years ago at Moscow as a sine qua non (that means, "without which nothing").

And don't try to be consistent. That is only for little men and nations. You need not even be logical. Yes, yes—the French are logical—that is what they were at Munich. And see where it got them. You are at liberty to try to beat this here international anarchy, if you are so disposed. Jesus tried it. And you know what they did to him.

Even the U. S. Has Its Troubles

In Europe the sword of Damocles hangs over the neck of Poland. Lebens-Raum—"room to live in"—is the battle cry of Hitler. And he is a bachelor. A year ago, England was dreading the over-night howl of the sirens, warning of the Nazi bombers. Now, she is coolly calculating on the chances of her food-ships escaping the stabs of Nazi submarines.

France's Maginot Line of fortifications is paralleled by the German Siegfried battlements. Italy is practicing her defences against a French approach over the Alps. Spanish Franco hails the new Nazi-Communist pact as another corner-stone in the encircling wall about the democracies.

European neighbors glare at each other across rivers and mountain chains. They are calculating how to regain sections of their respective back yards, taken from them by the Versailles treaty. Whose chickens may be in those back yards now, is another question.

And America is not free from the war-mania. A new secession movement is on. New England has been attacked at her most vital point; and that is the spot at which the turkey gets the axe.

An invasion of state rights, and gubernatorial perogatives has crept stealthily from the Pennsylvania Avenue White House. President Roosevelt has presumed to misplace the Pilgrim accent on a people's gratitude.

From Texas to Maine the rebellion is on. Descendants of Pilgrim Fathers in the Far West, and of Pilgrim Mothers in the Dee South, are resenting this interference with the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of plum pudding on that sacred day, the last Thursday in November.

Truly, it is a year of Mars, the planet of war; and confusion is reigning all around the world.

SCOTTISH CO-OP SERVES 900,000

Sales Last Year Amounted to 147 Million; Employes Number 30,500

New York, N. Y.—The co-operatives in Scotland with 900,000 heads of families as members, lead the co-operatives of the world in percentage of membership, in sales per member, and in the amount of goods produced in co-operative factories for co-operative members, according to Neil S. Beaton, president of the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society, in an interview at the Co-op Center here.

"Three-fifths of the families in Scotland are now members of the co-operatives, which do 15 per cent of all retail trade in the country," Mr. Beton declared. One-quarter of Scotland's milk is handled through co-operative societies, 22 per cent of the coal, 20 per cent of the bread, and 28 per cent of the meat trade is done by the co-ops. "The battle of the future," Mr. Beaton said, "will be between the co-operatives and the chain stores."

The Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society owns factories producing boots and shoes, hosiery, raincoats, tophats, linen blankets, tweeds, linoleum, jams, coffees, confections, bicycles, radios, furniture and other household supplies. Last year, these factories produced $35,000,000 worth of goods, while retail societies reported sales of $112,000,000—an increase of $6,200,000 over the sales in 1937.

Mr. Beaton pointed out that all of the 14,500 employes of the Scottish Co-operative Society and the 30,000 employes of retail co-operatives are members of their respective trade unions, that the co-ops provide vacations with pay, and sick leave, and require that all employes at 65 years retire on pensions paid by the co-operatives.

The co-operative electric light bulb factory just completed in Glasgow and owned jointly by the Scottish and Swedish co-operatives will be dedicated when Mr. Beaton and the other members of the Scottish deputation return to their home country, August 15. Mr. Beaton is accompanied on his American tour by John MacKenzie, a director of the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society, and David Muir, manager of the co-operative flour mills.

"A new venture in co-operative business will be launched the first of October," Mr. Beaton said, when the co-operatives will finance the instalment purchase of furniture, radios, phonographs, bicycles and other durable goods. It is expected that $5,000,000 of goods will be purchased on this plan during the coming year.

"The double taxation on co-operatives levied by the national government has acted as a boomerang, creating sentiment in favor of the co-ops and stimulating their trade," Mr. Beaton said. In addition to regular property taxes and individual income taxes, the co-ops are assessed a tax of 27½ per cent on all income transferred to reserves or used to purchase new equipment.

A. F. of L. Gains In Closed Shop Agreements

New York.—Increasingly favorable contracts from management have been gained by organized labor during the last two years, according to an analysis of union agreements just made public by the management research division of the National Industrial Conference Board.

The number of closed shop agreements rose from seventeen to thirty-four in the last two years, according to the study covering 114 union contracts. Almost the entire gain was made by the A. F. of L., which had twenty-eight contracts with this clause, in comparison with twelve two years ago.

The CIO lost ground in this respect, having only two closed shop agreements in 1939 against five in 1937. Four of the seven independent unions whose contracts were examined provided for the closed shop.

Postal Service Substitutes Get Vacations, Sick Leave

Washington.—The substitutes of the postal service ended several years of strenuous effort through the passage, July 10, of a bill extending to them the privileges of vacation and sick leave enjoyed by the regular employes.

This legislation will also be of benefit to the substitutes by establishing their status as employes of the postoffice department. At the present time, they are in the anomolous position of being subject to all the regulations governing regular employes, including deductions from their scanty and irregular earnings to support the civil service retirement act. At the same time, they are, by a ruling of the comptroller-general, debarred from vacations, sick leave and other privileges extended by statute to the regular workers.

KNOXVILLE READY FOR BIG LABOR DAY DEMONSTRATION AT NORRIS

Knoxville. — While the entire south is planning Labor day programs of a magnitude never before undertaken, it is believed that the Knoxville celebration will eclipse all other cities in the matter of attendance and intense interest. A feature of Labor day in Knoxville will be the presentation and unveiling of a bust of United States George Norris, "father of the TVA." The exercises will take place at Norris Dam, named for the senator, where the bust will be placed in such position that people who visit the great dam can see the bust of Senator Norris from my approach.

Many cities in the TVA region will send large delegations to participate in the exercises. The bust is labor's gift to the TVA, as a mark of the high esteem in which the Nebraskan is held. Officers of several state federations of labor, city central labor unions and local unions will take part in the event. Senator Norris will be guest of honor at the occasion, and many notables in the United States government and in governments of the seven states traversed by the TVA will attend.

Marion Hedges, head of the research department of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, who is the originator of the idea of placing the Norris bust at Norris dam, will be present when the bust is unveiled and presented to the TVA.

He has also served almost every post of honor in the state and city labor movement during his long career in the cause of organized labor.

GLASSBLOWERS Local 156

All set for the picnic; to be held Labor day. The invitation extends to the entire factory and officials . . . the committee has made arrangements for approximately 750, and has completed plans whereby the entire day will be taken up in fun and frolic for young as well as old.

* * *

One of the events will be a slow pitch ball game between the old-timers and the youngsters. The line-up of the old-timers will be those of 50 years or more service and will include BILLIE BLAND, NICK CLEARY, AMY GANTZLER, FRANK MEACHAM, PREACHER HISEY, JAKE HEIDER, WILEY CHAMPION, MILT DOREMUS and CHARLES MILTON, SR. This team will take on all comers. And the committee has worked hard on this program, we hope a big time will be enjoyed by all.

Now all is "quiet on the western front," as the vacationists have returned . . . Frank Meacham, Sammy Dykes, Ed Coppinger and Wiley Champion. From the amount of fish these caught, the streams will have to be replenished for others.

All the sick folks are now back on duty except John Blansit who, we understand, will report Sunday for work.

Oh yes, we now have a 100 per cent UNION store in our part of town. As for the details who—where—why . . . you can get them.

We'll be seeing you at the picnic. All you prospective ball players not in condition please report to Harry Smith, head coach.

Definition of a Scab

AND THOSE WHO EMPLOY HIM

By Jack London

A SCAB is a two-legged animal with a cork-screw soul, a water-logged brain, and a combination backbone made of jelly and glue. Where others have hearts, he carries a tumor of rotten principles. No man has a right to scab as long as there is a pool of water deep enough to drown his body in, or a rope long enough to hang his carcass with. Judas Iscariot was a gentleman compared with a scab. For betraying his master, he had character enough to hang himself — a scab hasn't. Esau was a traitor to himself. Judas Iscariot was a traitor to his God. Benedict Arnold was a traitor to his country. A strikebreaker is a traitor to his God, his country, his family and himself.

Operating Eng'n's Deny Press Report Regarding Strike

Virgil R. Rader, corresponding secretary of Local 917, Operating Engineers, denied this week the correctness of press reports of the recent stopping of work on the College Hill housing project. The news report was that the trouble was caused because Business Agent Crawford insisted on his nephew being put to work.

Mr. Rader said that Mr. Crawford was carrying out the orders given him by the local union.

He also announces a special meeting for Sept. 3, in Knoxville, at the Labor Temple, 311 Morgan street, to which all members of Local 917 and 917-A are invited, especially the TVA employes.

Another meeting will be held at the same place the next day, Labor day, not later than 8:30 a.m., to go in a body to Norris dam for the unveiling of the bust of Senator George Norris.

The new plan of awarding an attendance prize at each month's meeting was put into effect for the first time and Mrs. Ruby Williams was the lucky person, winning a pair of union-labeled Phoenix silk hose.

The League accepted the invitation of E. E. Crosby to hold its next meeting at the Electricians' new home on McCallie, and the members are looking forward to seeing the new place.

LOS ANGELES COURT KILLS ANTI-PICKETING STATUTE

Los Angeles. — The anti-picketing ordinance adopted in the 1938 city elections is dead, as the result of a unanimous decision by judges of the appellate department of the Los Angeles superior court, who held major provisions of the statute unconstitutional. The measure was fought in the court by representatives of the A. F. of L., the CIO, and the Southern California branch of the American Civil Liberties union.

Action of the court voided a statutory provision limiting the right to picket to cases in which there is a "bona fide" strike—defined as a vote by a majority of all classes of employes in favor of the strike—and a provision prohibiting picketing except by "bona fide" employes.

The net effect of the decision, in the opinion of lawyers, is "to wipe the ordinance off the statute books." Provisions not ruled on by the court include a limitation on the size and content of picket placards and the number of pickets, as well as the requirement that pickets carry credentials as representatives of the majority of workers.

In ruling that the particular sections of the ordinance involved in the appeals were unconstitutional, Presiding Judge Shaw, with Judges Bishop and Schauer concurring, said:

"We see nothing in reason to suggest that pickets in a place where a minority of the employes are on strike will be given any more to violence, obstruction of the streets, intimidation, annoyance or disturbances than those where a majority strikes."

"Neither does it appear that the length of time a picket has been employed at the place he pickets bears any rational relation to the probability of his acting in a manner contravening the ordinance."

The option of the appellate department is final, subject only to possible appeal by the city directly to the supreme court of the United States.

Young Dems. Indorse New Deal—Not Specific on Third Term—Nye Warns Republicans—NAM Scored for Anti-Union Propaganda—La Follette to Spotlight Associated Farmers.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington. — Congress has gone, leaving behind it the usual vacuum, sighs of regret or relief, the usual let-down, accentuated by the heat of this exceptional season. Replacing the fury of battle over writing legislation, by a congress which appropriated more money than the president asked, but refused in most instances to consent to spend it his way, are voices attempting to use the Washington sounding board from the various hinterlands.

The Young Democrats, meeting in Pittsburgh, answered the president's blast against reactionary leadership by going right to the end of the springboard but refusing to quite take the dive overboard for the third term. Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, of Texas, at the same time came out flatfootedly for that "outstanding liberal democrat," John Nance Garner, also of Texas.

Then Candidate McNutt declares that the "country wants a third term for the Roosevelt ideas." Mr. McNutt gave no elucidation as to whether he believed himself to be the heir and apostle of these ideas or whether they would be best effectuated by their author.

But the Young Dems did charge boldly forward, cheered on by Senator Guffey, Solicitor-General Jackson, Mayor Kelly, of Chicago, and other centurians in the new deal legion, to indorse the selection of a new deal candidate for president.

In the meantime, the republicans have not been voiceless. President-emeritus Hoover became flamingly indignant over a statement by Senator Alben Barkley, sailing master of the new deal senate ship, that Mr. Hoover's administration added $6,000,000,000 to the public debt without leaving behind a single monument in the form of public works, not even a covered bridge. This occurred in the course of Leader Barkley's effort to cheer on the columns of the Young Dems to more good deeds for the new deal and the party of which they are the junior wing. Mr. Hoover even made reference to a "Liars' Research Bureau," the existence of which is unrevealed by a careful search among the myriad of agencies and establishments of the national capital.

On the investigation front, activities have speeded up by release from the exactions of the legislation session.

Martin Dies returned to Washington announcing the resumption of the efforts of his committee to hunt out all the red bugs under every social, business, political and trade union chip.

Senator La Follette's Civil Liberties committee, investigating a different brand of subversive activity, gave out a 315-page partial report upon the work so far performed. In it is a charge that the National Association of Manufacturers is continuing to be no better than it has been. It is, the report says, continuing its "traditional policies of opposition to labor organizations and to governmental action tending to improve the conditions of labor." It is charged with a nationwide campaign to nullify the administration of the labor relations act, through leadership and finance furnished to some 3,000 member companies.

Out of this, it is said, came a flood of "biased propaganda directed against organizations of American working men and against the social legislation adopted by congress."

The authorization of an appropriation of $50,000 brought forth the Civil Liberties Committee announcement that the Associated Farmers of California would be investigated. Evidently the committee wants to find out who the Associated Farmers are and who they associate with. A prediction as to any possible participation in the anti-labor ballyhoo temporarily successful in Oregon and equally vigorous but not so successful in California. In both states, considerable of the tom-tom beating was conducted in the euphonious name of agriculture.

But the president still holds the stage. All these voices were heard through the overtione of the president's declaration that no straddlebug or reactionary will have his support.

American Federation of Labor Defends Gompers' Philosophy, Green Says

Fighting All Attempts "To Set Aside Democratic Procedure and Substitute Therefor Autocracy, Minority Control, and Force Within the A. F. of L., He Says at Cigar Makers' Union Jubilee.

Washington.—The American Federation of Labor is resolutely defending the philosophy of Samuel Gompers against all assaults and will continue to do so tomorrow and forever. This militant statement featured the address of William Green, president of the federation, in an address here launching the three-day Diamond Jubilee of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.

The exercises, held in the shadow of the Gompers Memorial at Tenth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, were opened by three trumpeters in the braid jackets of 75 years ago. Mr. Gompers, president of the A. F. of L., excepting one year, from 1886 until his death in 1924, was a member of the Cigar Makers union and its delegate to the 1881 labor congress that formed the American Federation of Labor.

The position of the A. F. of L., Mr. Green said, is the same as that expressed once by Mr. Gompers and now engraved on the base of the monument:

"No lasting gain has ever come from compulsion. If we seek to force we tear apart that which, united, is invincible. There is no way whereby our labor movement may be assured sustained progress in determining its policies other than sincere democratic deliberation until a unanimous decision is reached. This may seem a cumbrous and slow method to the impatient, but the impatient are more concerned with immediate triumph than with education and constructive development."

Introducing Mr. Green, John M. Baer, a representative in Congress from North Dakota from 1917 to 1921 and now the well-known labor cartoonist, who was chairman of the meeting, said:

"The influence of any labor union never reaches the highest standard until it is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Only then will its influence be effectively felt.

"We have here today two great leaders, President William Green and our beloved Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor. These men have carried on the fight that Samuel Gompers urged the workers of America to carry on.

"In introducing the next speaker, it is unnecessary for me to say anything about him. We all know him, we all love him, we all admire him, we respect him as one of our splendid citizens and greatest labor leader in the world, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor."

Following is the text of Mr. Green's address:

"Chairman Baer, President Van Horn, members of the Executive Board of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America, fellow trade unionists, ladies and gentlemen:

"This is indeed an historic occasion. It is historic because we are very rarely afforded the opportunity to participate in the celebration of the 75th anniversary of an international union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

"I know you are all deeply impressed with the historic sequence of this event, meeting here, as we are, at the base of this grat American Federation of Labor monument, in the shadow of the statue of that great leader who sacrificed almost half a century of his life to the upbuilding of the American labor movement. It seems appropriate and fitting that the opening ceremonies of this Diamond Jubilee of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America should be held here.

Antedated the A. F. of L.

"It is worthy of note that the formation of this great organization antedated the formation of the American Federation of Labor itself.

"It was formed, organized, established and began to function before the American Federation of Labor was formed. In fact, it was the one outstanding and leading organization of labor that led and participated in the formation of the American Federation of Labor.

"In the light of that fact, it seems quite fitting that the American Federation of Labor should have called upon this organization for leadership. And its first leader, its first great leader, the man we loved, the man who occupied a larger place, perhaps, in the hearts and minds of the membership of the American Federation of Labor than any other single man, my distinguished predecessor, the great and mighty Samuel Gompers, was given to the American Federation of Labor by the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.

"He was educated in the school of trade unionism, developed in the open forum of deliberation created by this organization. He expounded his own special economic philosophy, and the records show that the same economic philosophy is still a part of the economic philosophy of the American Federation of Labor.

Promoted Factory Reform

"At this time it seems fitting and appropriate for me to point out the interesting, and, I might say, unique policy sponsored by the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.

"I should like to carry you back in retroaction to the development of this organization. Cigars were made by hand. It called for experience and skill and training of years to make cigars.

"As far as I know, cigarettes were not on the market at that time. At any rate, I am sure, the ladies at that time did not smoke cigarettes as extensively as they do today. Cigars were rolled and made by hand. The change in the method of manufacture took place many years later.

"One of the great fights in which these splendid men and women pioneered was for the development of wholesome surroundings, well-lighted plants, and improved and proper sanitary conditions. The Cigar Makers' International Union led in that fight for factory reform, for the development of cleaner and more decent and sanitary manufacturing plants.

Carried on Unique Educational Work

"But that was not all. The members of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America realized and fully appreciated the value of education.

"While the cigar makers were engaged in the manufacture of cigars, there was always some outstanding member of the union who sat by and read a book or paper while the workers were steadily employed.

"I can readily visualize that my distinguished predecessor, Samuel Gompers; and that equally distinguished leader of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America, Brother George Perkins, Brother Strausser, just referred to by a previous speaker, and other leaders rolling their cigars, making them out of their skill and training, while an important and distinguished member of their union sat by reading from a book on economics or politics, or the news of the day.

"They absorbed information and acquired knowledge and education while steadily engaged at their work. As a result of that information and knowledge and education undoubtedly came the movement to which I have referred for better working conditions and decent wages for cigar makers.

"But I am dwelling too much upon these matters. I want to say that I am proud of the opportunity afforded me, with you who belong to this organization, to take part in these preliminary exercises of the formation of this great organization.

Tribute to Gompers

"It seems proper to refer again to that great man, Samuel Gompers. Our hearts were broken when we learned that he had passed into the Great Beyond. He had given 70 years of his life to labor and to our great movement. He was an outstanding member of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America. If this great organization had played no greater part in our movement than giving to the world Samuel Gompers, trained in the school of trade unionism, that organization would have fully justified its existence.

"When it was determined to erect this fine monument, it was thought proper to inscribe upon it some of his finest statements. They were selected by a committee appointed to provide for the erection of this wonderful monument, the finest in Washington, in honor of Samuel Gompers. And so we examined his writings and speeches carefully and analytically and we selected what we thought was the best, to be inscribed upon this monument. Just listen:

Labor Movement Tries for Realization Of Finest Aspirations of Human Spirit

The labor movement of America demands for all of our people the full benefit of the life-giving forces of our marvelous civilization through constantly increasing wages and improvement of working conditions and through a reasonable and proper reduction in the hours of work. The labor movement of America demands for the wage earners and for all who serve usefully in any capacity, a sound and just economic basis for life and freedom in the fullest meaning of those terms.

The labor movement of America has ever had high regard for the development of the ethical and the spiritual in life, realizing the right of all humanity to partake freely of the great satisfaction that comes to enrich life as a result. The labor movement of our country, recognizing the fact that all freedom and all higher development of life, rest upon first providing assurance of the essentials of existence, has first demanded economic justice as a basis for all other things. But the labor movement has always taught that the material is essential to something higher, and that the inspiration of our movement has its deepest springs in something above and beyond the material.

The labor movement strives for economic improvement with unrelenting zeal and fidelity because economic improvement is the first fundamental requisite; but it holds out to all mankind a flaming torch lighting the way to a greater fullness of life, to complete realization of the finer and nobler aspirations of the mind and soul.

The labor movement fixes as its goal nothing less than the complete richness of life, without limitation of any kind, the attainment of the complete human ideal, in all of its economic, ethical and spiritual implications.—From a proclamation suggested by the American Federation of Labor as appropriate for Labor Day.

Union wages can be maintained only through the purchase of union label, union-made and American-made products and the use of union services. There is no other way to obtain economic security.

Buying union label goods and using union services are the only means of insuring union wages, shorter hours and better conditions. Every time we patronize unfair firms we tear down American labor standards.

Don't forget to patronize only those firms that display union labels, shop cards or service buttons. They are the best guarantee that the goods are union-made and that the services are performed by union employes.

rkers Haʌe Profound Interest In Control of Business Cycles

Geneva, Switzerland.—In reviewing the course of economic development during the year 1938-39 the International Labor Office Year Book, which has just been published here, emphasizes, that the most notable of these is the increasing control over business cycles.

After pointing out that during the last 12 months it has been practically demonstrated that a recession can be reversed by deliberate government action, the Year Book says:

Unbalanced Budgets and Recovery

"On the other hand, the full success of such a measure is contingent upon means being found of achieving a high level of business activity once the decline has been checked.

"Provided this can be done, budgetary deficits incurred for the purpose of reinforcing purchasing power can be made good by budgetary surpluses during the intervening years.

"Failing this, a dangerous dilemma arises. Either a country must continue to pile up deficits or else it must deliberately abstain from taking the necessary measures to counteract depression. The latter course is not likely to be practical politics in most countries.

"On the other hand, to incur a series of budgetary deficits is disturbing and in the end is liable to impair government credit. This danger must not be exaggerated.

"The widely held view that in some manner it is 'sound' to run into debt for armaments but 'unsound' to do the same thing for public works, which are used as a stabilizing factor and result, moreover, in real values being produced, is being more and more questioned.

"Nevertheless, until the control of business cycles is substantially self-financing, it cannot be looked upon as satisfactory."

Investment and Prosperity

The Year Book then urges the need for taking deflationary measures from time to time to prevent a recession developing into a slump as well as the need for securing that such measures are followed by private and public activities, which can serve as means of increasing and sustaining the stream of investment.

"Both workers and employers are directly affected by these developments," it says. "Probably no single thing could do more to promote social justice and to improve labor conditions generally than the control of business cycles. For business men, also, sustained demand means an avoidance of losses and an enhanced ability to plan for the future.

"This new phase on the struggle brings with it, however, new problems, or more correctly, old problems in a new guise.

Larger Income for Low-Wage Groups

"It may well be asked whether increased investment is the appropriate means of achieving full prosperity or whether a distribution of income permitting of increased consumption by the poorer sections of the community is not a preferable solution.

"On the other hand, it will certainly be urged upon governments that one of the major factors in preventing investment from developing as it should is the costliness of the improvements demanded in conditions of work.

"It will also be alleged that the monopoly conditions obtaining in certain industries are primarily responsible, since they prevent industrial development by restricting output and keeping prices up instead of lowering prices and increasing production.

"In the world of today, also there is the further possibility, affecting employers and workers alike, of industry being converted into part of the state machinery if free enterprise conspicuously fails to solve the unemployment problem."

The union label is a better sign of quality than all the advertising ballyhoo of unfair goods.

Ornburn's Labor Day Message

I appeal to all members of labor unions, women's auxiliaries and union label leagues to insist that every person in their families purchase only from firms that display the union label, shop card or service button. I also appeal to our loyal members of American labor unions to urge all their friends to patronize only those fair firms that use union services. We appreciate the volunteer efforts of our friends in the past and urge them to carry on our effective union label campaign with a renewed vigor!

Every dollar spent for union label goods and union services is a vote for collective bargaining. We must press forward with utmost energy our just claims that union label buying is the only method by which America can recover from the present depression. Every purchase, regardless of how small it is, is another stone in a paved road to improved American standards and permanent prosperity.

The best way to put money into your own pay envelope is to insist on the union label every time you take anything out of it. Be consistent! If you desire union rates of pay then you must demand products that are made by workers who receive union wages. Teamwork requires that the collective buying horse pulls equally with his collective bargaining mate —the labor union movement!

Among members of labor unions and their families there are none who do not buy some union label goods and a very small proportion who do not demand the union label on everything that he buys. This fact is proven by everyone in attendance at union meetings who can make a 100 per cent union label display on articles of clothing and on the pack of cigarettes that he carries. These members of labor unions not only condemn unfair shops on meeting night, but they also patronize fair firms every day in the year.

YOUR DOLLAR

YOUR DOLLAR will be a regular monthly feature. The facts and opinions given are based on the monthly reports of Consumers Union of 55 Vanam Street, New York City, a non-profit membership organization whose object is to safeguard buyers by testing and reporting to consumer groups. Note especially the information on labor conditions under which products are manufactured.

Over a million railroad men have lost their jobs since 1920, Consumers Union points out in a series of articles by two railroad authorities on what ails the railroad industry. Passenger traffic has declined, and since 1933 American roads have been losing as much as $200,000,000 a year on passenger service.

Yet Americans travel at least four times as much as they did at the height of railroad passenger prosperity. They are using automobiles and busses, while passenger coaches roll along five-sixths empty.

Why has railroad travel fallen off? High rates, obsolete equipment and poor service drive away the customers. The roads may reply that they are already losing money on their passenger service and can't afford to lower rates or improve the service. But, the writers argue, it's possible to improve the service, increase the revenue and bring this important industry back to the position of public service it should occupy. Experiments already tried by several roads indicate that straight 1c a mile fares, instead of the present 2½c basic fare (with exorbitant additional charges for Pullman travel) may quintuple passenger traffic. Modern, air-conditioned, high speed trains, now highly advertised but hard to find, will attract enough additional passengers to pay for themselves several times over. Single unit motor rail cars with Diesel electric motors can provide comfortable, air-conditioned, fast travel even on short local runs, at 23c a mile operating costs instead of the 42c a mile used up by old style equipment.

The railroads talk about new passenger equipment, but install very little of it. CU's articles demonstrate that only one out of every 22 trains running is a modern train. Only 5% of locomotives have been built since 1929. Fifty-nine per cent date from before the war.

To compete effectively with auto travel, railroads should make it possible for the passenger to take a train, instead of "catching" it as he now does. Railroads can, if they will, pick up the passenger at his home, relieve him of all the fussy details of securing tickets and checking baggage, deliver him and his baggage to his street and number destination, after a comfortable, speedy, tipless ride. That is not fantastic wishful thinking, but the sober report of a federal investigation.

Such improvements, Consumers Union believes, would enable the railroads to re-employ many of the million men who lost their jobs, would create new jobs and new business in equipment building, would provide decent salaries instead of tips to railroad porters, waiters and sleeping car attendants. In so doing, they would contribute materially to national recovery. And they would provide convenient, safe and comfortable travel to millions of Americans.

Electric Toasters

Toasters that pop up, toasters that flash lights and ring bells, toasters that deliver your toast on a conveyor, were among the models recently tested by Consumers Union in an effort to improve American breakfasting. Points to look out for in testing a toaster were found to be: freedom from table scorching and shock risks—such as excessive heat radiated downwards, or electrical connections between the frame and current-carrying parts; convenience, and ability to make good toast. Of the 34 toasters tested, nine made exceptionally good toast, 20 were average and 5 made toast that was burned and underdone.

A fairly satisfactory non-automatic turn-over toaster was found as low as $1.95, good semi-automatic toasters which ring a bell and turn off when toast is done on either side can be bought at around $3.50. (Sears Heatmaster Cat. No. 1973, $3.29, plus postage; Proctor Model 1444, $3.95), and well made, completely automatic toasters cost from $7.25 up. Complete ratings of the 34 toasters, by brand name, are carried in Consumers Union Reports for August.

Slips

Good fit and good wear are what a woman wants most in a slip. In spite of standard construction and comparative freedom from style changes, Consumers Union found in tests of 60 slips that it's still hard to find these simple qualities at a reasonble price.

Getting a good fit is not so difficult if you try the slip on before you buy. Try to get a written guarantee against excessive shrinkage, to make sure the garment will still fit after it is washed.

ATIONAL DRIVE ON DONNELLEY FIRM BREAKS GRIP ON PUBLICA.ION AND DIRECTORY PRINTING GENERALLY

nting Trades Campaign Against Anti-Union Chicago Concern Effective---Big Contracts Go to Union Houses

very day reports reach the or- zation committee of the Chi- Printing Trades unions of essful efforts in the nation- campaign against the anti- n Donnelley concern. One of latest successes is reported by George, secretary of the Al- Printing Trades Council of St. s—that the monthly magazine he Shell Petroleum company changed printers and that a n office in St. Louis will do the in the future. The St. Louis nittee's work places a number ion workers in excellent posi- and at the same time proves power of organized labor in ing results in the country- campaign against the leading baiter of America.

m Wichita, Kan., comes a al report of progress against Donnelley periodicals, TIME LIFE. Charles H. Carr, secy of Wichita Typographical n, writes that both these ines formerly had such enor- sales on newsstands in Wich- t the sales people had diffi- in supplying the demand for . The Wichita union inaugu- an active campaign, starting its own membership but y extending its efforts to the e trade union movement. Re- were had almost at once and Carr informs us that circula- of the magazines has been cut to a point where few people from piles of "dead ones" clutter the newsstands.

year ago the anti-union Don- printing enterprises, vari- known as R. R. Donnelley & company, the Lakeside Press he Reuben H. Donnelley cor- ion was making every effort rd establishing a national poly of directory, catalog and cal printing. Over a period of years the Donnelley concern had contrived to secure control of many important telephone directories. One jurisdiction after another was raided by Donnelley agents and telephone directories that had been printed in local union shops were removed to the anti-union Donnelley plants.

Two big mail order catalogs also were removed from union shops to the Chicago Donnelley plant. Several of the largest and widest circulated periodicals were produced by the Donnelley enterprises, as well as much other printing, such as books, financial reports, house publications and tourist literature.

But not today, thanks to organized labor's drive against this concern. A year's effort has almost brought to a standstill Donnelley raids upon other jurisdictions; the attempt to monopolize certain classes of printing was smashed before it reached completion. This success, according to the organization committee of Chicago Printing Trades Unions, is due to the splendid support received from the labor movement of the United States and Canada.

Such periodicals as CURRENT HISTORY and YOUNG CATHOLIC MESSENGER have been removed from the Donnelley plant and placed in union offices—one in Dayton, Ohio, the other in Springfield, Mass. Although an Eastern edition of LIFE is being printed at the Cuneo plant in Philadelphia, a major portion of the work on that periodical is still done at the Donnelley plant in Chicago, while all work on TIME, a publication owned by the same company that publishes LIFE, is done by the Donnelley enterprises. Hence, both TIME and LIFE remain on the "we don't patronize list" of organized labor.

The St. Louis and Wichita experiences are only two of many examples of effective work and the fact that such activity is proceeding in scores of places throughout the country explains how the Donnelley attempt to secure a monopoly on certain classes of printing has been broken. It also indicates that the anti-union Donnelley concern is definitely on the defensive and that the time is not far distant when all printing now being produced under anti-union conditions at the Donnelley plants will be produced under union conditions. A continuation of the Donnelley drive is a guarantee of success against one of the most relentless enemies of labor in the country.

Scores of telephone directories formerly printed by the Donnelley plants are now produced in local jurisdictions under union conditions and in all the larger cities still having Donnelley directories there exist special committees of the printing trades unions that are working to have such directories produced under union conditions.

The principal task, now on a national scale, is to continue the campaign against the circulation of TIME and LIFE and to adversely publicize Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward, the two big mail order houses that persist in keeping their catalogs in the Donnelley plant.

Big New York City Club Signs Union Contract

New York City.—The famous Bankers Club of America, 120 Broadway, has become the first large club in the city to sign a union contract. The agreement was signed with the Hotel and Club Employes Union, Local 6, A. F. of L.

With the signing of the agreement the union withdrew pending charges of unfair labor practices against the Bankers club which were scheduled to be heard before the New York State Labor Relations Board. The union charges had accused the club of "dilatory and procrastinating tactics to avoid collective bargaining."

Under the terms of the agreement, Hotel and Club Employes' union, Local 6, is recognized as sole collective bargaining agency for the club's employes, the shop chairman is recognized, pay increases of up to about 7½% are obtained by the employes, and preferential hiring through the union is agreed to by the club management, which also agrees to hire all extra waiters and other extra employes only through the union.

In all, 222 of the 240 employes, comprising waiters, bartenders, cooks, kitchen workers, hall boys and porters, benefit under the contract.

Hotel and Club Employes' union, Local 6, has been certified as collective bargaining agent for the employes of the Racquet and Tennis club, the Harvard club, the Princeton club, the Drug and Chemical club and others.

Scab Herder, Once Wealthy, In Jail With Dime to Name

New York.—Ten years ago Peter De Vito was a notorious strikebreaker, worth half a million dollars. This week, police picked him up on an assault charge after a brawl and found that 10 cents was all the cash he had in the world.

Behind the bars of a Manhattan jail, De Vito told reporters of his dramatic rise and fall, while police and the United States district attorney filled in some of the gaps in his story.

De Vito started out his underworld career in the Brooklyn trucking business, then largely a racket, and by 1929 he had "muscled out" most of his rivals. Some were "taken for rides."

He then went into strikebreaking, doing "big jobs" for such firms as Standard Oil, American Can and other huge corporations which wanted unions smashed. Federal officials said that out of his $503,000 income in 1929, over $250,000 came from Standard Oil.

Then Uncle Sam went after him for lying in his income tax returns and later for illegal liquor operations. De Vita said he spent all his money fighting those cases. He won, but ended up flat broke. Unable to stage a comeback, he turned largely to panhandling.

Opposed Compulsion

"'No lasting gain has ever come from compulsion. If we seek to force we but tear apart that which, united, is invincible. There is no way whereby our labor movement may be assured sustained progress in determining its policies other than sincere democratic deliberation until an unanimous decision is reached. This may seem a cumbrous and slow method to the impatient, but the impatient are more concerned with immediate triumph than with education and constructive development.'

Pledges Fight Against Autocracy

"There is a literary gem, full of facts. Compulsion? That is the position of the American Federation of Labor today in resisting compulsion, in resisting an attempt to set aside democratic procedure and substitute therefor autocracy, minority control, and force within the American Federation of Labor. And that I pledge you, standing here in the shadow of this great man, will never be accomplished within the organized labor movement of our nation.

"Now I must close, and I appeal to all the members of our movement, all who admire it, all who are present here, to rededicate themselves to the philosophy of this great man, to the advancement of the cause of the American Federation of Labor.

"Let us again renew our vow that, come what may, let it be today, tomorrow or forever, we will stand undismayed in defense of the splendid economic philosophy expounded by this great leader of the American labor movement."

COOKS' AND WAITERS' SCRAPS

»»»» Louise Tinker, Correspondent ««««

Once upon a time there was no [illegible] organization in Chattanooga. [illegible] of a number [illegible] on the roll that such an organization could be [illegible] and it was. On Friday evening, March 24th, with Erskine Maben acting as chairman, a charter for the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America was installed. The number required to be 374. The following officers were elected to head this organization: L. O. Abbey, president; L. O. [illegible], vice-president; D. R. Snell, recording secretary; Tony Brown, financial secretary; Vernal Pace, marshal, and Richard Mendenhall, executive board. Joe Dodge, then president of the Central Body, spoke to the newly born.

Then on the night of March 29 the organization declared the following restaurants as unfair to the Culinary Workers' affiliation from of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America: Steak House, Harry's Place, Dennis Cafe, also Central Dining Room. The latter signed thereafter. Soon the Home Plate, Maypole, Ellis restaurant and Bob Green's was placed on the same list. Immediately thereafter Bob Green signed a contract which he has retained.

At a meeting on the night of April 9 Erskine Mabee reported that the Maypole had sued the organization for $250, all on account of the fact that the Young Men's Democratic organization failed to cross a picket line of the culinary workers to attend a banquet at said restaurant. Remember blonde Jane Doe?

We believe Mr. Hudlow is the leader of a bunch of operators who exert every effort to destroy the organization. Too, do you remember that the employes of Mr. Hudlow asked for the refund of their initiation fees supposedly at the request of their "boss?" Shortly, [illegible] happen—just another move to keep the employes from making a decent living. Mr. Hudlow went into the show business when he placed before his door, and alongside the culinary workers' picket, a man who did more to hurt his business than to do harm to the living picket and her organization. Mr. Hudlow and his aids have never excelled that of Barnum and Bailey—hard as he may have tried.

Time has come and gone as has events. Rather than helping us get decent wages, and rather than have an organization in his place of business, Mr. Hudlow has [illegible] and time gone into court for an injunction to prohibit the culinary workers from picketing the place. Said injunction is still pending in court.

Today, despite the obstacles that have come the way of this young organization, they are making progress. Only last month 20 members were obligated, and under the leadership of the following officers the organization continues to push ahead: W. F. Newton, president; Lon Allen, vice-president; Antoin Awad, financial secretary; Marie Moore Jones, recording secretary, and Louise Tinker, business agent.

I. T. U. Is Not Suspended From A. F. of L., Printers Are Told

Fort Worth, Tex.—Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, said in a letter to Woodruff Randolph, secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical union, in convention here, that the A. F. of L. had not suspended the International Typographical union, as reported in press dispatches from Atlantic City last week following the adjournment of the A. F. of L. Executive Council.

The Atlantic City dispatches said the I. T. U. had been suspended because it had refused to pay the assessment only automatic in the American Federation of Labor. Morrison's letter explained that the executive council had adopted a resolution to the effect that the I. T. U. at its coming convention or its executive board, is to make provision for the payment of the assessment that the secretary-treasurer of the A. F. of L. be directed to return their per capita tax check, and if any cash be received in the meantime that the same be held until the action of the I. T. U. convention is known on this question.

Labor a Decisive Factor in Housing Movement Federation of Labor Told by USHA Official

Boston, Mass.—"In the development of public housing in America, labor has played a significant role," Warren Jay Vinton, chief economist and planning officer of the United States Housing Authority, told the Massachusetts Federation of Labor at its annual meeting here.

"Without the vision and the realistic approach, which characterized labor's participation in the early stages of the public housing program, we would today still be talking and writing about housing instead of building homes for workers' families," Vinton said.

John Carroll Praised.

John Carroll, as chairman of the state board of housing and as an active member of the Boston Housing Authority, was praised by Vinton as "an outstanding example of the ability of labor to provide leadership in community affairs."

Mr. Vinton asked the federation to step-up and extend its activities in relation to public housing and pointed out that there was necessity for such action.

"When I said that labor played a significant role in the development of public housing in America, I meant that labor not only contributed to the housing movement but was a decisive factor," Vinton declared.

He stated that it was labor's proposals for a public housing program that helped crystallize the experiences of the early efforts in the housing program. "In the resolution passed at the annual convention of Labor, held in Atlantic City in October, 1935, we saw the first outlines of the present program," Vinton said, and "it was my privilege to work in close collaboration with your committee at that time and also to help further at the Tampa convention in 1936.

"The present program of the USHA, a program which is completely decentralized, which places the initiative and responsibility directly in the hands of local committees, is the program which grew out of this early formulation by your convention, representing organized labor in America," he continued.

Labor's Concern Three-fold.

In summing up labor's main concerns, Vinton characterized them as "three-fold." The first concern being employment at wages and working conditions that would protect and extend the gains made through years of struggle and sacrifice. Secondly, the increasing of wages and the resultant raising of the standard of living; better homes where one can raise families in healthful surroundings, and at rents one can afford.

Vinton said the third concern of labor is the general well-being of the nation as a whole. "Without a healthy and prosperous economy, redistribution of wealth is meaningless, nor, as we have learned during the last decade, can wage standards be maintained," he declared.

Better Homes for Workers.

"Public housing serves to increase the national income and adds constantly to the improvement of physical standards and the total wealth of the nation," he continued.

"Low-income workers today cannot afford to live in a decent home. In the housing act, congress recognized this and provided a subsidy to make it possible for low-income families to live in decent homes. In addition to providing such homes, the housing act requires the elimination of slums."

In conclusion Vinton said:

"I say, and I say it with the deepest conviction, that the future of public housing in America depends in large part on labor. I say this because housing is so integral a part of all those principles for which labor stands."

Barkley Hits Employers Not Sharing Responsibility Of Unemployment

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Senate Majority Leader Alban Barkley in an address before the Young Democrats annual convention in Pittsburgh, eulogized the new deal record, and condemned those who had failed to share the responsibility of unemployment.

"The Roosevelt administration has done everything humanly possible to create employment, and if some of those who are in position to employ labor had done their share, there would be far less unemployment now than there is," Barkley said.

Infantile Paralysis Campaign Award Made

Washington. — William Green, chairman of labor's committee for the celebration of the president's birthday here, last week, to David L. Behncke, president of the Air Line Pilots association, the William Green award for the infantile paralysis campaign in 1939.

The award, a large silken banner, inscribed to the air line pilots and embossed with the seal of the infantile paralysis campaign, was merited by the Air Line Pilots association for having contributed most per capita of its entire membership. The per capita contribution of the association averaged over 25 cents per member.

At the presentation ceremony in the national headquarters of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Green expressed the appreciation of the entire labor committee for the generous co-operation of the Air Line Pilots association in the 1939 campaign.

Other Awards to Follow.

Similar awards will be presented to the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union of America and to the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America.

The International Ladies' Garment Workers' union will receive the Matthew Woll award in recognition of having contributed the most to the labor committee's anti-paralysis fund. The total contribution of the garment workers exceeded $6,000.

The Keith Morgan award will be presented to the Amalgamated Meat Cutters as a memorial for having contributed the largest sum to the paralysis campaign from any one international union office. The contribution of the international to the infantile paralysis campaign was $200.

Final Report In.

Labor's committee for the celebration of the president's birthday announced its total collection for the 1939 campaign to be $47,500. Over ninety unions, national and international, of the American Federation of Labor participated in the fund raising campaign to combat the inroads of infantile paralysis. The major portion of the contribution was raised through the giant birthday messages sent to the president as labor's silver salute.

Mrs. FDR Speaks Here Sept. 12

A lecture by Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt at Memorial auditorium on Tuesday evening, September 12, will open the 1939-40 season of Cadek Choral society. Members of the chorus will be seated on the stage with the first lady and directed by Conductor J. Oscar Miller will give several numbers. The season includes the lecture by Mrs. Roosevelt and four other concerts, Dec. 12, March 8 and May 6 and 8.

The annual ticket campaign for Chattanooga's civic chorus got under way this week with A. Lee Read as general chairman; Miss May Archibald, ticket chairman; Thankful Everett, publicity director; and Mrs. Paul H. Dietrich, associate publicity director. Conductor Miller and President Edward Schaefer are ex-officio members of the campaign committee. Headquarters are at the Chamber of Commerce, 819 Broad street, where Miss Ruth Davis, campaign secretary, and members of the chorus will be on hand daily until after the first concert to sell tickets and give information about the chorus.

A series of brilliant concerts has been arranged by Conductor Miller for the current season. New York guest soloists will assist at the December and May concerts when the singers will be accompanied by a 40-piece orchestra with Ottokar T. Cadek as concert master. Chattanooga soloists will be featured in March.

Mrs. Roosevelt's lecture is on the regular season ticket of the Choral Society. Other attractions include Handel's oratorio, "Samson," Dec. 12; a program of popular music, March 8, and the May Music Festival to consist of an artist recital, May 6, and a concert performance of Bizet's opera, "Carmen," May 8. The guest soloists selected by Conductor Miller are Florence Vickland, soprano; Lydia Summers, contralto; William Hain, tenor, and John Percival, bass-baritone, for December, and Mary Hopple, contralto; Helen Marshall, soprano, and Theo Karle, tenor, for May. Miss Hopple, who will sing the title role in "Carmen," and Mr. Karle are being brought back for return engagements with the chorus by popular demand.

Cadek Choral society, now enerting its tenth year, is the largest civic chorus in the entire south, numbering some 200 members.

Criticism.

There is honest, constructive and open-minded criticism; there is criticism biased and destructive, there is wanton criticism, there is hypocritical criticism. Constructive criticism is lending a helping hand; it suggests the elimination of the weak and replaces strong support. It gives encouragement, ideas for improvement, and causes one to feel the touch of brotherhood. It has been said that a wise man criticizes kindly. So let us all be more careful in the future and let our criticisms be honest, constructive, and not destructive criticism. Remember a friend in need is a friend indeed.

TEACHER TALK

Mr. Bass has dealt the cause of public education another blow. If local politicians are to get away with his tactics, state aid will never do the schools any good. Presumably Mr. McMillan did all he could to get the $21,588, but he got no support from the rest of the board. We hope that the state will take action to prevent such misuse of its funds in future.

Harry Deuberry (B. S., University of Chattanooga, '30; M. S., University of Syracuse, '32), whom many teachers will remember, dropped in at the office the other day, and we pumped him about teaching conditions in the north. It was the usual story of a salary twice as large as ours, with annual increases, and excellent working conditions. He is teaching physics and chemistry in the high school of Naples, N. Y. Fond of Chattanooga, he was on his way to see city and county bigwigs about a position here, but after hearing our story he gave up the idea and expressed his sympathy.

We made an error in last week's column when we quoted Prof. Spencer McCallie as saying that the federation had opposed the consolidation plan. What he said was that the federation had favored it. He was wrong just the same, of course, for we had gone on record as neither favoring nor opposing, but suggesting certain conditions upon which we thought such consolidation would be satisfactory.

As we go to press we have just received copies of the Buffalo newspapers covering the national convention. As soon as possible, we'll pass on to you some of the memorable thoughts quoted therein.

We are fortunate in having Dr. George S. Counts as our new national president. He has said that he will devote much time to federation activities, and expects to make a speaking tour of the country. Dr. Counts, well-known and highly respected in the fields of education and sociology, is professor of sociology at Teachers' college, Columbia. He is the author of several popular books, among them "Prospects of American Democracy," "The American Road to Culture," and "School and Society." Before teaching at Teachers' college, he was a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago. He is a member of the National Educational Policies Commission, one of the editors of the magazine, "Frontiers of Democracy," and is on the executive board of the Progressive Education association.

Our own Stanton Smith was re-elected, as you no doubt read, as vice-president of this area.

The long-delayed salary suit against the city was postponed again this summer because of the illness of our lawyer, J. W. Thompson. This could not be helped. We are committed to seeing that suit through the courts. Mr. Thompson told us last week that he will soon be able to resume his practice, that he was studying the case carefully, and that as soon as possible he will have it tried. Since the chancellor takes his vacation late in the summer, the case will probably not be tried until about the 1st of October.

Money talks louder when you buy union label products.

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly.

Now comes a law? Lots of laws, thousands of them. More problems. Too big for anything but government. So more and more—"There ought to be a law."

For information, read daily bulletin on "Care and Feeding of Laws," otherwise known as Congressional Record.

Popular conception: Senator Loudgale "arises in his place," reads proposed bill. Eloquent address. Welkin rings. Enthusiastic shout of "Vote, Vote." Bill passes amid cheers for Loudgale.

In that how it is? Nerts!

First, Representative Whosis of Umpty-Steenth, R. I., is waited upon by more or less righteously indignant delegation. The gadget industry is going to the bowwows. Layoffs, wage cuts, bankruptcies.

Right after Whosis' last election, his district had a drought. And now this gadget thing comes up. Bad for Whosis. Whosis drafts bill. Introduces same. Speaker sends bill to committee. Committee already has several headaches per square inch over cause and cure of much more important squeegee industry.

Bill for relief of squeegees sponsored by chairman of committee. No time to monkey with gadgets. Whosis gallumps about. Induces chairman, "just to get rid of the pest," to bring up gadget bill at end of committee hearing on squeegee bill. Squeegee bill ordered reported favorably by committee. Chairman feels expansive and benevolently suggests also approval of gadget bill. Which goes on calendar. Gets mildewed there. Whosis induces chairman to call up bill under "unanimous 'consent.' Representative Whatsis does not like Whosis and objects. Bill passed over. Passed over three times and goes off consent calendar.

Adjournment coming on. Whosis starts to gallump about in earnest. Drives chairman of rules committee into jitters begging for special rule. Hearings all over again before rules committee. Rule denied on ground of congestion of business and "must" legislation.

Whosis transfers activities to senate. Gets Senator Mountainpeak interested in desperate plight of gadgets. Senator introduces bill. Entirely different from Whosis bill. Mountainpeak bill licked in committee. Called up by senator on floor. Licked again. Mountainpeak bill attached as rider to every appropriation bill. Kicked out on floor. Threatens to filibuster if not passed. Finally slips through. "Damn it all, give the big so-and-so the bill so we can get somewhere."

Whosis bill comes up in house. Slips through on "consent calendar" while Representative Whatsis is out of chamber at committee hearing on his bill for relief of dofunnies.

Conferees appointed in house and senate on Mountainpeak and Whosis bills. Conferees do not meet. Whosis starts gallumping again. In dead earnest.

Speaker of house, president of senate, chairman of rules committee make wry faces. Congestion of business. "Must" legislation. No demand for Whosis bill, anyway. Whosis appeals to homefolks. Wires, postcards, letters come in, demanding passage of bill. Session adjourns, bill still in conference. Next session conferees meet. Fail to agree. Bills return to respective houses with conferees recommendations that they "do not recede" on differences.

Conferees finally butcher both bills beyond recognition to reconcile differences. Both houses accept conferees report and bill passes. Gadget industry wildly indignant.

Whosis licked in next election.

MORE ABOUT JOHN MAHONEY

body he served on the labor committee and was active in support of all labor measures. His intelligent, conscientious service to the citizens of Hamilton county as a whole is a matter of record. His indicated ability as an "embryonic" statesman was recognized by friends and foe alike.

After the regular session of the state legislature, Mr. Mahoney was named as trial attorney for the national labor relations board, and made an enviable record in a short itme in his handling of labor cases in Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina. In April, 1938, he resigned this position to accept an appointment by the commissioner of labor of the state of Tennessee as district manager of the Tennessee state employment service, where he served until his appointment by Commissioner Cooke.

In accepting the secretaryship to Commissioner Cooke, Mr. Mahoney stated that there was no official under whom he would rather work. He recalled that it was Commissioner Cooke's influence as a personal friend and as editor of The Labor World which resulted in an orchestra which he headed affiliating 100 per cent with the local Musicians' union. Since that time "Bob" and his new secretary have been close friends, a fact which will undoubtedly contribute to the continued success of the department.

Mr. Mahoney's appointment makes the administrative staff of "Commissioner Bob's" department again "100 per cent union"—including, of course, the "commish" himself; P. R. Olgiati, superintendent of parks, president of the Bricklayers' union; Ed Hargraves, recreation director, member of Teachers' Federation; R. G. ble, assistant superintende parks, past president and bu tive member of the local T Drivers' union, and Mr. Mah All of the foregoing are dele to Central Body except Mr. honey, who resigned as dele some time ago because of co ued absence from the city.

The Labor World congratu both the commissioner and his secretary and predicts a succ ful and happy program for department.

ISLATIVE ASSAULTS ON LABOR VS AND WORKERS' RIGHTS AUGUR R OF STRESS FOR MOVEMENT

GILBERT E. HYATT

has happened to labor in months since last Labor nd particularly within the months? Many things.

ut of the crowding events, velopment is to be selected, d probably be that this was ting period, or the beginf such a period of the use tent of legislation for the ion of economic ills, previeserved for the functioning ective bargaining or rather battle ground between orlabor and the anti-union

It true that the year has been terized by large gains in unmbership. It is also notably at this has penetrated into formerly believed impregto organization.

ing Toward A. F. of L.

he other hand, it is also true A. F. of L.-C. I. O. wran"dragged its weary length with no more, and probss, prospect of solution than abor last celebrated its naholiday. The comment can e that the advantage of poincluding growth and pubnding, has swung notably the A. F. of L., but the of cleavage seem to have harpened rather than dulled fact.

ch occurrences as the split from the C. I. O. of the nternational Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and the return to the A. F. of L. of thousands of automobile workers and textile workers are outstanding incidents in this trend.

But the fact cannot be denied that this division has offered excuses for anti-labor assaults on fundamental rights and that some of these have occurred in surprising territories. The thought immediately arises of drastically restrictive legislation in Oregon, Minnesota, Wisconsin, etc., and determined efforts in this direction in California and eleswhere.

Wage-Hour Act in Effect

These are phases of what appears to be the most fundamentally significant development, trial of the recent experiments in resort to legislation and government supervision of industrial relations.

During the year, the Fair Labor Standards Act went into effect. The exact date was Oct. 24, 1938. This act invaded a field, minimum wages and maximum hours, formerly reserved for a desperate battle ground in the union field.

The National Labor Relations Act has been tossed about in a three-cornered struggle between the A. F. of L., seeking by amendment to prevent future administrative favoritism for the C. I. O.; the C. I. O., which does not want the present act disturbed; and the anti-union lobby, which is endeavoring to destroy, by legislative subterfuge, the purpose of the act, which is the protection of collective bargaining.

"Prevailing Wage" Not Dead

Fierce battles have spotted the period with respect to the "prevailing wage." Believing that its efforts had established this as an accepted policy of government, organized labor, particularly the building trades, was disconcerted by its exclusion from the new Relief bill. The spontaneous strikes of desperation are fresh in our minds. While restoration of the prevailing wage was defeated in congress, the question of restoration and permanent establishment will surely be to the fore next January.

More Attacks on Labor Coming

The vigorous anti-union lobby, mobilized in the present congress for assault upon the Fair Standards and Labor Relations Act, will continue efforts along two fronts. One of these will be repeal or emasculation of existing remedial legislation. The other will undoubtedly be a frontal attack upon the structure of organized labor such as appeared in the "Oregon episode."

Against this, labor will fight and undoubtedly succeed, in retaining the legislative gains already made and in perfecting the statutes upon which these are based. It will, of course, mobilize its political forces against any invasions of individual or collective liberties whether through perversion of existing law or the enactment of new ones.

It is inevitable that alignments will come into head-on collision in the next presidential elections.

Public Opinion Polls to Guide City Councils Tried in 3 Cities

Chicago.—A new idea for finding out what the people want in municipal government was noted recently by the International City Managers' association. The idea—local public opinion polls to guide council action—recently has been used by at least three cities, Winnetka, Ill.; Syracuse, N. Y., and Montclair, N. J., the association said.

Winnetka citizens were solicited by postcard to determine whether they wanted a grade crossing elimination program, and councilmen voted according to their expressed approval of the program.

Syracuse manned polling places with volunteer election officials for four hours one evening to permit voters to express preference on daylight saving time, the council to vote inaccordance with results.

Montclair's council, puzzled over expenditure reductions, took an advisory opinion by postcard poll to determine which services citizens wished to maintain and which ones to curtail.

Although government "by questionnaire" easily could be carried to extremes, the association said, "if used with discretion this simple device of sampling public opinion offers great possibilities."

In any case, the association said, polls would be supplementary to council elections, which "are not entirely satisfactory for determining public demands."

Use of public opinion polls to aid administrative as well as legislative decisions was suggested as a possibility. For example, the growing number of cities publishing annual reports may want to extend their distribution, yet not waste copies on uninterested citizens. Such cities would inclose an announcement of the forthcoming report with the water bills, along with a postcard to be returned by citizens wishing to receive a copy of the report.

THE LABOR WORLD

Labor Day Edition — FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1939 — Section A

Secretary Frank Morrison's Labor Day Address

LABOR DAY is a milestone of special interest to the American Federation of Labor. We weigh developments for the period of time marked off as they have helped or retarded the progress of organized labor.

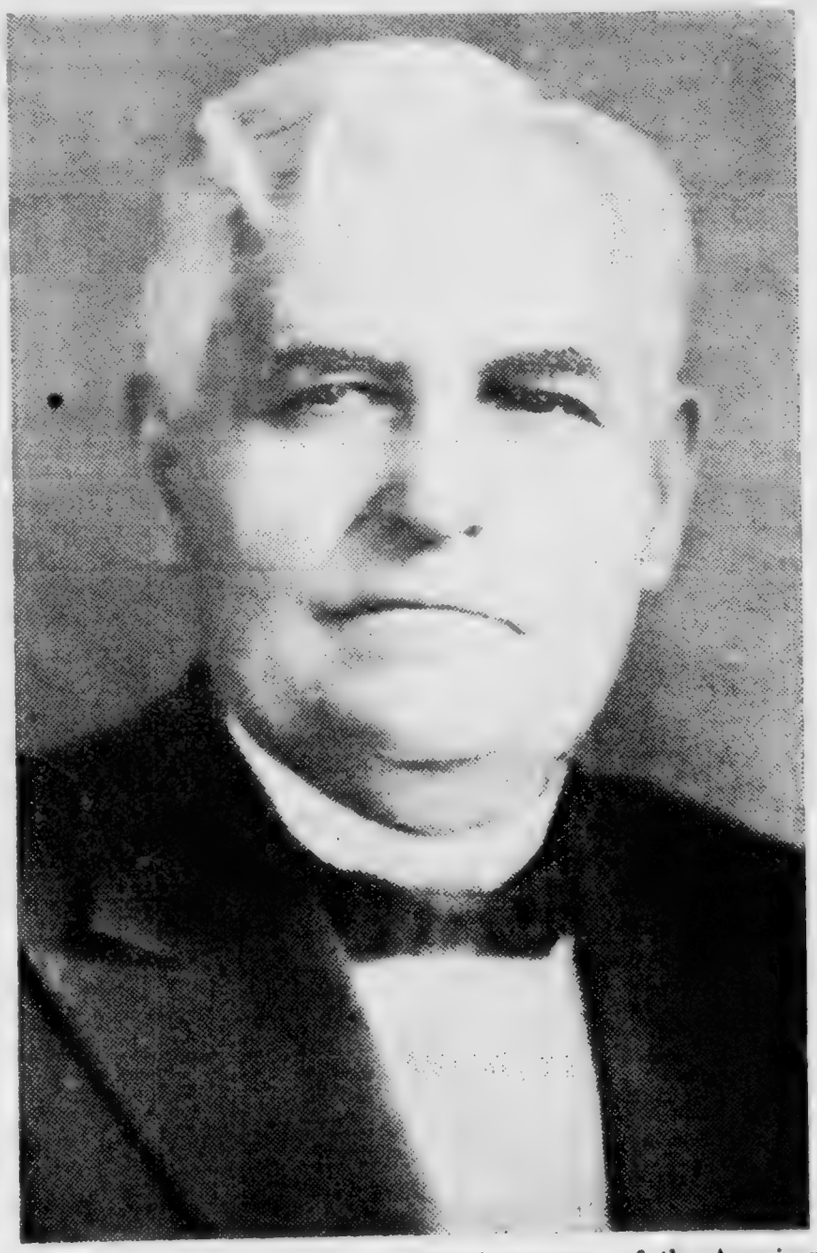
Within the past few years the American Federation of Labor has passed through one of the severest tests to which it has been subjected in the fifty-eight years of its existence. This was created when representatives of affiliated organizations formed a dual movement for the purpose of over-riding the decision of the 1934 convention dealing with organizational policies.

The leaders of this rebellion attempted to justify their warfare against the American Federation of Labor on the repeated charge that it had outlived its usefulness, that it is not suited to the complex conditions of modern industry. They launched a secession movement as a crusade against the alleged futility of the American Federation of Labor. The leaders of that secession movement must be disconcerted with the results insofar as converting members of unions who have passed through the crucible of experience.

It has been inspiring to witness the promptness with which the loyal organizations have fulfilled their financial obligations to the American Federation of Labor through this trying period. Would this be the case if these organizations believed that the federation does not live up to its objectives in every reasonable manner?

The membership of our affiliated unions are not united in a mutual admiration society. They pay dues to their unions for the very practical purpose of securing benefits in the way of improved conditions of employment. The representatives of their organizations are held responsible for results and

Secretary-Treasurer
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR



FRANK MORRISON was elected secretary of the American Federation of Labor by the 1896 A. F. of L. convention. He was elected secretary-treasurer by the 1935 convention following the consolidation of the offices of secretary and treasurer, and has been re-elected every year since 1935.

there is no test more gruelling than the requirements which the membership of an organization expects its officers to meet in conducting negotiations with employers.

At present there are 105 National and International Unions affiliated to the American Federation of Labor with a large proportion of the total membership covered by union agreements with employers. There are over 50 directly affiliated local unions whose members are working under union agreements.

These agreements may not work out to the complete satisfaction of all individuals, but to the membership as a whole, as long as maintained, they stand as instruments that protect them against reductions in wages, lengthening of hours, overtime without compensation, and other unfair practices experienced previous to the organization of their union and the regulation of conditions in a written contract.

The goal of every trade union is to secure an agreement with employers to regulate wages and conditions of employment and to maintain union representation in the administration of questions relating thereto. The ability to do this is the test of the value of every trade union to its members. A union that fails in this faculty cannot retain the respect and support of its membership. There is very little publicity attending the many instances in which employers and representatives of trade unions reach agreements without any serious interruption in negotiations. Continuously, trade unions, representing many thousands of workers affiliated to the American Federation of Labor, are operating under wage agreements that have been negotiated with employers without fanfare or any untoward incident on either side, and renewed periodically in the same manner. The daily press finds little news value in the orderly processes of the activities of our great trade unions. It is not surprising that the public has but little information in regard to the magnificent service rendered for the members and the far-flung benefits of the trade union movement to labor, to industry and to the nation.

Executive Council
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor consists of the president of the federation, fifteen vice-presidents, and the secretary-treasurer. The members are elected by the annual convention of the federation for one year, their terms beginning on Jan. 1 following the convention. The council is the administrative agency of the American Federation of Labor. It is required to give a detailed report of its activities to the annual convention. The duties of the council include watching legislative matters affecting the interests of working men and women, organizing workers into unions either directly affiliated with the federation or with affiliated national and international unions, chartering unions, requiring observance by affiliated unions of the obligations assumend in their certificates of affiliation, and administering the funds of the federation, which for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, 1938, totaled $2,430,770.78.

Canadian Labor Seeks Public Aid in Drive To Abolish Senate

St. John, N. B.—Organized labor has taken the lead in a drive to abolish the Canadian Senate. It is pointed out that appointments to this chamber are for life and for no reason at all except outright political service.

The difficulty in getting a quorum of Senators has been pointed out by Senators themselves. For the final two weeks of the session, only a handful of the Senators were present, all the others having left Ottawa, although important legislation was on the agenda. The policy of the Senate has been hopelessly standpat, the composition being almost wholly of lame duckers from the House of Commons, and those who contributed heavily to the campaign funds.

Each administration distributes the life appointments to its supporters, at the expense of the taxpayers. Organized labor is seeking public support in the movement to eliminate this highly expensive system of political reward.

Nutshell Facts

WHAT AFL MEANS TO WORKERS OF AMERICA

What does the American Federation of Labor mean to the American working man and woman? The answer is best given in the declaration of AFL conventions, expressing the aspirations and philosophy of the Union Movement.

LIBERTY, EQUALITY AND JUSTICE PROCLAIMED

"This session of the American Federation of Labor marks an episode in the progress of enlightenment unparalleled in the world's history. We meet in solid phalanx, regardless of creed, regardless of dogma, with national pride, but without international prejudice. The world is our field of action and man is our brother. We not only proclaim, under the unsullied and untarnished banner of trades unionism, but live the principles of liberty, equality, fraternity and justice.

"Ours is an affiliation of men of like interests, and of a kindred spirit. It is the natural growth of a sentiment for unity that binds and seals the compact for harmony, fidelity and fellowship. Our cause demands that there is no worker so deep down in the abyss of misery and despair that we dare refuse to extend a helping hand in his uplifting; that there is no high pinacle of grandeur to which the toiling masses should not aspire to attain.

"The trade unions are of, by and for the wage-workers primarily, but there is no effort which we in our movement can make but what will have its beneficent, salutary influence upon all our people. The misery of the past, the struggles of the present, and the duty of the future, demand that no effort be left untried, that all energy be exercised, and opportunity taken advantage of, to organize the toilers of our country upon the broad platform of the trade union, in full affiliation with the AFL.

"The dim, distant past, with all its pain and travail, must give way to the better and brighter future for which the workers have borne the burdens, and made the sacrifices that the people of our time, and for all time, may be truly free.

RIGHTS OF MINORITY GUARANTEED

"There are many gatherings of men and women in which things that are thought inconvenient or unacceptable are approved by reference to a committee, where they are killed and buried. The American Federation of Labor has this record, that no matter what opinion may be held by a delegate, if he expresses it in the form of a resolution it is given consideration by the convention. We realize the thought and the principle that that country is best, that organization is best, where the greatest freedom obtains and where the rights of the minority are guaranteed.

SOLIDARITY OF LABOR PROMOTED

"The growth of this federation is not merely numerical. It has an inheritance of good deeds done, a present of active ability, a future of potential possibilities. What we will we can. To transform inertia into determination, ignorance into intelligence, disunion into a cohesive associated effort, is the legitimate and practical propaganda of this federation, and it has most assuredly justified its mission.

"The wage earners of America are better educated economically, broader-minded fraternally, and more independent in the exercise of their powers as citizens because of the existence of the federation and its affiliated national, State, central and local bodies.

"The federative principle is a powerful force in promoting the solidarity of labor. Back of all organization is the individual with his personal bias, prejudice and temperament. In our annual conventions the labor representatives of the contingent get knowledge of each other's ideas and personalities.

"The course of labor has been the division and misunderstanding existing among men of different races and creeds. In removing this misunderstanding what other influence has accomplished so much as the association of men carrying the union card?

MORAL SUASION USED INSTEAD OF COMPULSION

"Compulsion in a voluntary association of voluntary associations is a very dangerous trend of affairs. A dominating policy in this direction would mean destruction in the end. Moral suasion means progress from the bottom. Along these line we have been working; along these lines we have formed machinery, we have formed the city central bodies, the State Federations and the Departments. We have them all ready for the individual action of union men, and if individual action is brought into play in these organizations we know the city central bodies and the State Federations will be built up from the bottom and will endure forever."

LABOR DAY, 1939

By William Green

With the advance of civilization we are discovering new and advancing already known facilities and requisites necessary to the enjoyment of a fuller, more enriched and more abundant life. Labor Day is set aside as a tribute to those who toil. In turn, it affords an occasion for the workers to give earnest consideration to matters which concern their welfare as workers, and as citizens. Though we have progressed even now to the point where we can enjoy comforts and luxuries of life far beyond the most extravagant dreams of our fathers, it is but human to reach still further and to strive for even fuller and better lives. That is as it should be, for progress is not based on smug satisfaction with past accomplishments in any field. Desire for a wider enjoyment of educational advantages is accompanied by a continuing struggle for more material comforts and a more equitable share in the products of industry, both in wages and shorter hours of work, with a resulting increase in time available for recreation and cultural improvement and financial means to take advantage of opportunities presented. The very strength of our nation is attributable in a large degree to the appreciation which the workers feel for their unlimited opportunity to advance their own interests, to follow their own desires, politically, economically and religiously.

It is characteristic of human nature to be willing to fight and sacrifice to achieve those objectives which seem to be most desirable in life. Advantages which have been won by the workers will not be readily relinquished or given into the control of any individual or group seeking to set up dictatorships—whether such dictatorships be economic or political. The workers realize that the trade union is their sole hope for the preservation of their industrial welfare and the advancement of their conditions of life and work. It is through his union that the worker seems to make real and effectual his hopes and aspirations for a more abundant life. No other means are available for this purpose. As an individual the worker cannot effectively meet the forces of economic power and privilege which control the industries of our time.

At their inception unions were primarily agencies for the advancement of work interests—higher wages, shorter hours, protective legislation for women and children, and better working conditions generally. Their scope of activity has broadened with the need for a better life, and these agencies now serve to advance the interests of those represented in the unions in civic, social, educational and governmental affairs. The American Federation of Labor, as represented by its component units, is a democratic organization, and is concerned with the perpetuation of a democratic form of government for our nation. The workers claim as their priceless heritage our established principles of freedom—of the press, of speech, assemblage, to exercise our right to worship in accordance with our own conscience. Trade unions are recognized as proponents of liberty and it is largely for this reason that they have been the first group to be victimized by dictators in totalitarian countries. Dictators realize that workers will not submit to total destruction of every form of representation, and in an attempt to pacify this inherent feeling on the part of the wage-earners, government-controlled and administered organizations have been established. The workers of America have watched with intense interest and dismay the destruction of trade unions in the totalitarian countries of Europe. They have seen what it means to accept a substitute for democratic government and this has only strengthened their determination to prevent a repetition of the fate of certain European countries in our own.

The right to strike in protest against injustice is denied to the wage-earners of totalitarian countries, where the workers are no longer free to exercise their economic strength in times of dispute with employers. The workers never want to strike. It is they who suffer most in times of economic displacement, for incomes stop and not only do the workers themselves suffer, but their dependents are equally victimized. We wish it were never necessary to resort to strikes, but at the same time, we will resist every effort to take from us the right to strike if that course seems necessary. Democracy and freedom to strike parallel one another. The exercise of the right to cease work—to strike—is accompanied by a deep sense of obligation to act wisely and to avoid abuses of that right. Every effort possible should be exercised to avoid industrial strife and conflict. We hope that the time will come when all differences which arise between employer and employed may be settled in the conference room in an atmosphere of good will and mutual understanding. The well being and convenience of the public should at all times be a consideration in determining action upon matters in dispute. Mutual tolerance and respect for the rights of all concerned would reduce the number of strikes to a minimum. Absolute freedom is necessary to the attainment of such an objective, however, and this is one of the reasons why the American Federation of Labor stands constantly on guard against encroachments on our liberties through restrictive legislation and maladministration of existing laws which have been enacted for the protection of the rights of the workers.

Labor Day, 1939, finds us still confronted with staggering ranks of unemployed. Years of experimentation in an effort to find a real remedy for the evil of unemployment have availed substantially nothing. The government has expended vast sums of money for relief and to promote made-work. These undertakings have given but temporary relief. We are forced to the conclusion that the real solution for unemployment is the re-absorption of idle workers in private industry. How that is to be accomplished is yet to be determined, but it is a problem which must be met. It is problematic just how long our present social order can stand the strain of continued public spending for relief and relief projects. Certain it is, however, that so long as these millions are idle, and until they are re-employed in private industry, government spending for relief purposes must continue. Whatever is preventing the adjusting of our economic ills should be remedied as rapidly as possible. Every effort possible should be made to ascertain the causes of this maladjustment of our economic affairs, and the indicated remedy should be applied at once. The solution of our unemployment problem still remains of paramount importance to the workers as well as all other citizens of our nation.

Among the manifold lessons which we learned as a result of the World War was the absolute necessity of co-operation between all groups of citizens at all times, and particularly in time of national or international crises. Labor rose to the occasion to a man and gave wholehearted support to our government in its hour of need. Labor's opinion was sought and our advice given serious consideration. Without the support which Labor gave the war could not have been brought to a successful conclusion. We were hopeful that our proved willingness and ability to serve when needed would convince those in authority of our place in national and international affairs. However, when our abilities were no longer critically needed there was a marked tendency toward reactionary policies toward Labor and a decided inclination to ignore our rights when depression manifested itself. We know now that in order to afford a continuing protection for our rights and to make ourselves heard, wage-earners must depend wholly upon their trade unions. As unions become weakened through loss of membership or division or for any other cause, opportunity is afforded for those who would shackle the workers to make unwarranted inroads on our progress. I am moved to bring this matter to your attention at this time because of the ominous signs of war which are present in the Old World. It is within the memory of most of us how comparatively minor clashes and eventually wars in Europe finally engulfed our nation. We know that there is no other group in society more affected by war than Labor, for the wage-earners and their dependents represent approximately 88 per cent of the population of our nation. Our opinions, therefore, should certainly be considered in the formulation of international as well as national policy.

Labor wants peace. We are opposed to the involvement of our nation in European or other foreign wars. We want peace for the entire world, and to that end are willing that the services of our government be extended in the promotion of peaceful solution of world problems. However, we are strongly of the opinion that the exercise of mediation and moral pressure in the interests of world peace should be such as to prevent the inclusion of our country in any conflict which may arise between foreign nations. The influence of the American labor movement will be directed toward the realization of this goal of peace and to the pursuit of a policy of strictest neutrality toward those countries which may be engaged in war or military conflict. The voice of Labor should be sounded unmistakably, and our unions strengthened to give weight to our opinions.

One of the most important of the manifold services which the labor movement as represented by the American Federation of Labor is rendering to our nation is our relentless fight against the forces of communism, naziism, fascism or any other "ism" which threatens the well being of our country. The American Federation of Labor will continue to combat any attempts which might be made now or in the future to establish a dictatorship as a substitute for our democracy, no matter in what guise it may present itself. We place freedom above and beyond every other privilege we may enjoy and we know that should we lose that we will have lost all, for ourselves and for posterity. This is one of the objectives precious enough for the workers to be willing to sacrifice, even to life itself. It is the cornerstone of democracy and a priceless heritage which we have received, and which we will preserve for those who will come after us.

Geneva Labor Conference Approves Convention Limiting Work Hours In Road Transport to 48 Weekly

Geneva.—A convention or international treaty and four recommendations dealing with the regulation of hours of work in road transport were adopted by the International Labor Conference at its 1939 meeting here.

The convention limits hours of work in the industry to 48 per week, but authorizes the competent authorities to sanction higher weekly limits for subsidiary work and for work frequently interrupted by periods of mere attendance. It also authorizes the competent authorities to exempt workers engaged in certain categories of work, as for instance in transporting sick and injured persons, and in forestry or agricultural undertakings.

Tobin Urges Convention.

Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, in a plea for adoption of the convention told the conference that with the exception of three or four industries such as the steel industry, road transport employed more men, directly and indirectly, in the United States than any other line of work. He placed the number of trucks in operation there as 5,000,000, and said that at least two and a half billion dollars had been invested in their manufacture and operation.

Tobin based his plea for the convention largely on humanitarian grounds. He stressed the number of road accidents resulting each year from tired drivers falling asleep at the wheel, and said that from the point of view of road safety the conference should give the convention its full support.

Four Recommendations.

The four recommendations adopted by the conference were designed to supplement the convention. One urges governments to require the use of control books for workers engaged in road transport. Another deals with night work in road transport, and the determination of the classes of workers to be authorized to perform such work. The third deals with methods of regulating hours of work in the industry, and the fourth concerns rest periods for professional drivers of private vehicles.

OPEN SHOP vs. NONUNION SHOP

By SAMUEL GOMPERS --- 1850-1924

The titles "open shop" and "closed shop" are both misnomers—both the terminology of the opponents of labor. Incalculable mischief results from general acceptance of wrong definitions in relation to public questions and issues. Not infrequently the public belies its clam for enlightenment by clinging year after year to a falsehood in the face of the proof of falsehood. The effort of hostile employers to break down the Union Movement through the establishment of nonunion shop conditions is a case in point.

Employers hostile to trade unionism long ago gave to the union shop the name "closed shop." They also coined the term "open shop" to describe the kind of shop which it was their name to operate in opposition to the union shop. There is such a thing as an open shop, but it is not the kind of shop that most employers mean when they say "open shop," and least of all, is it the kind of shop that is meant by enemies of labor. The Labor Movement has time after time defined clearly all these terms. Their misuse continues, and for that reason it may serve some purpose and may break down some small amount of misapprehension if they are defined again.

The union shop is a shop in which there is a definite agreement between the employer and the workers as an organized unit. In union shops nonunion workers sometimes are employed, but only when union men can not be had. Most agreements provide that when no union workmen are to be had nonunion worners may be employed with the proviso that they make application for union membership within a reasonable period of time.

The nonunion shop is a shop in which union men are not employed, in which there is no organization of the workers and in which the workers, as a consequence, have no voice in the determination of questions which affect them. In such shops the distum of the employer is final as to all things and his right of discrimination or discharge, for any reason or for no reason, is absolute.

The anti-union shop—and that is generally the "open shop"—is a shop in which the employer pursues a militant policy in opposition to organization. It is the shop of the crusading employer, bent upon maintaining industrial autocracy and upon restoring it where trade unionism has broken down. The kind of shop which certain employers' associations today are endeavoring to establish under the name "open shop" is, in reality, the anti-union shop.

The "open shop" crusade is not what its name implies. It is a crusade against unionism. It is a crusade to break down the organized labor movement and to restore industrial oligarchy. There is no such thing as an "open shop" campaign in America. Every person who has the opportunity to speak or to write, who has the opportunity to convey the information and counsel to his fellows, owes it as a duty to truth to expose and condemn this fraud. What there is in America is a campaign on the part of autocratic employers to kill trade unionism in order that nonunion shops may be conducted, wherein conditions of labor long since abolished in union shops may remain without audible protest from silent, powerless workers.

An Unaffiliated Local Union Drawback to Labor

North Carolina Leader Presents Pungent Facts Concerning Need for Workers to Support Movement; Non-Union Workers, He Recites, Draw Benefit from Organized Labor's Struggles.

This message to local labor unions, prepared by Secretary Fisher, of the North Carolina federation, is just as applicable in Tennessee as within his home state, and equally so as to the Central Labor Union here and elsewhere, and for that reason is reproduced.

I have been thinking of the [illegible] which our state federation of labor, our international unions and local unions have been following, and it occurs to me that we are losing quite a lot of free work for others. Wage rates have been greatly increased during the past two years through the efforts of the organized labor movement and every unorganized person has been getting the advantages of these increases, although they have done nothing to assist in gaining these advancements for themselves.

I believe we do not push our organization campaigns hard enough. I believe that we do not make an effort to see the non-union man, and explain to him that the shorter hours and improved working conditions have come to him through the efforts of the organized workers and then appeal to him to come on in and bear his part of the burden in waging our battles for increased pay and improved working conditions. The average man would, I believe, respond to our appeals if made in an intelligent manner.

But the non-union worker who accepts his advantages and advancements without contributing anything in obtaining these valuable solutions is no worse than the unorganized local union which accepts all that the state federation of labor does for its membership, and yet remains out of the state body.

Every local union in the state needs the state federation of labor, and the state federation of labor needs the affiliation of each and every local union. Each International union urges its local unions to affiliate with the state federation of labor, and some of the internationals require by law that their subordinate local unions so affiliate with the state body. We could do so much more effective work if all of the local unions in North Carolina were affiliated with our state federation of labor. The officers and members of local unions not affiliated with the state federation of labor are standing in their own light.

Because of the importance of this one defect in our set-up, I am again calling upon all central labor unions and all affiliated local unions to make an intensive effort in each locality in the state to get all local unions affiliated with our state body. It is to your interest for the state body can never reach the full extent of its power and influence until all of the locals in North Carolina are affiliated with the state federation of labor.

THERE is tremendous power in a simple circle. That is why the ever widening circle of people who drink beverages from sanitary bottles is so rapidly expanding a line of activity that has long been one of the major industries of the nation—bottled drinks. Nothing excels glass for purity, for preserving flavor and for cooling convenience. There is no need for one to drink beverages that have been weakened by melting ice. The glass bottle is sanitary wherever you find it, and it is convenient for keeping drinks at home.

FROM Havana, Cuba, to the far western United States, CIRCLE C beverage bottles carry the name of Chattanooga to millions . . . bring refreshing carbonated beverages to thirsty multitudes who know them for their satin-smooth crowning surfaces that are so kind to the lips. New York Times Urges Magnanimity In Case of Gastonia Strike Leader

New York City.—Discussing the case of Fred E. Beal, a leader in the Gastonia (N. C.) strike of 1929, the influential New York Times said editorially:

"Nearly ten years since Fred E. Beal, a leader in the Gastonia textile strike, was convicted of conspiracy in the killing of Chief [illegible] O. P. Aderholt. Much has happened both to Beal and to North Carolina since that time. Beal, released under a $5,000 bond pending appeal went to Russia and, according to his own testimony, was prevented from coming back to face a second time. Finally he became disillusioned about communism, escaped to this country, wrote and published a book severely criticizing the Russian experiment, and was, as he had expected, rearrested and returned to prison.

"As for North Carolina, the years have quieted the violent emotions of 1929. At least a certain section of opinion there is willing to concede that Beal was convicted when excitement ran high, that the prosecution improperly made use of his political and religious views to create prejudice against him, and that the shooting of Aderholt was part of a sequence of events in which strikers were attacked and one labor demonstrator, a woman, was shot and killed. Josephus Daniel's News and Observer maintains that 'a program of employer espionage and terrorism such as that which led to bloodshed in Gastonia would now be dealt with in due process of law and would not be left to the arbitrament of the riot.'

"Let us hope so. And let us hope that Governor Hoey, who was a member of the prosecution in 1929, will bear these factors in mind when he acts on Beal's application for pardon. Magnanimity may do far more to keep down the spirit of violence than the exaction of the law's last penalty in a doubtful case."

24 States Now Have Minimum Wage Laws

Women's Bureau of U. S. Department of Labor Finds Numerous States Co-operating and in Many Instances Minimums Fixed Exceed Those in National Act.

Washington. — The urgent need for both state and federal minimum-wage laws is revealed in Bulletin 167 of the women's bureau of the United States Department of Labor, made public by Miss Mary Anderson, director of the bureau. The report, prepared by Florence P. Smith, gives a detailed compilation of "State Minimum-Wage Laws and Orders" as of December, 1938.

State laws usually cover a broad group of industries, as compared with the federal act which covers only interstate industries, the report shows.

Rates Are Higher Than Federal Minimum.

Also, under the state laws, the wage rates are generally higher than the 25-cent minimum now in effect under the fair labor standards act of 1938. Nine in every ten of the wage rates set under state minimum-wage laws are higher than 25 cents an hour, and more than seven in every ten are at least 30 cents an hour, the rate which will go into effect under the fair labor standards act next October.

On the other hand, state minimum wage laws have been enacted by only 25 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico, whereas the federal act covers the entire country.

Agricultural and Household Workers Excluded.

Workers in agriculture and in household services are excluded from the federal law. Though eight state laws permit coverage of domestic service, only one state, Wisconsin, applies its minimum wage law to household workers, and in no state is the law applied to agricultural workers. These occupations employed more than 2,000,000 women in the United States at the 1930 census.

In most minimum wage states, the bulletin shows, wage rates are fixed in industry by industry after investigations of prevailing wages, cost of living in the state, and so forth.

A total of 108 different wage orders had been issued by December, 1938, in 19 states and the District of Columbia. A flat rate is provided in the laws of Arkansas, Nevada, South Dakota and Pueroto Rico.

No minimum wage rates had yet been ordered under the minimum wage laws of Arkansas, Kentucky and Louisiana. Court injunctions prevented enforcement of orders in Oklahoma and Utah.

The history of minimum wage laws in this country began only a quarter century ago, when Massachusetts enacted the first such law for women in 1912. Although several states passed laws in the following years, more than half of them became inactive after a supreme court decision in 1923 declared the District of Columbia law unconstitutional.

The reversal of this decision in March, 1937, led to an expansion of minimum wage laws in the states followed by the enactment in 1938 of the federal fair labor standards act. Today the states without minimum wage laws for women compare the three important industrial states—Michigan, Indiana and Missouri; a solid bloc of certain middle Atlantic and southern states, some of which have considerable manufacturing; and other largely agricultural states.

The states with minimum wage laws are: Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin.

Iowa Labor Asks Label League in Every City

Washington, D. C.—Demand for union label goods and services will soar in Iowa, if the state's unions acts on a declaration approved by the recent Iowa State Federation of Labor convention. The convention urged formation of union label leagues in every city, it was reported here by J. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department, A. F. of L. The text of the convention declaration follows:

"Whereas, we feel that the union label is one of organized labor's greatest weapons—equal to that of the right to strike. A united demand for it by union men and women will compel employers to employ union labor, therefore be it

"Resolved, that this convention instructs the officers of the Iowa State Federation of Labor with the duties of assisting in forming a union label league or its equivalent, in each and every city in Iowa that has a central trades and labor assembly or a building trades council, and be it further

"Resolved, that the principal aim of these union label leagues shall be to promote the demand and use of the union label, shop card and working button, and be it further

"Resolved, that the results of these organization activities be set forth in a separate report to be given at the next annual convention to be held in 1940."

Growth of AFL in Recent Years Shows Leadership Facing Toward Front

Not Content With Resting on Laurels, Labor Movement Is Directing Activities With Due Regard for Fast Changing Social and Economic Conditions

By W. R. GAYLORD

The other day the Cigar Makers' International Union celebrated its 75th anniversary. It was natural in that connection to point to the fact that its former leader, Samuel Gompers, had been the president of the American Federation of Labor for almost 50 years—half-a-century.

For those who must keep pace with the changing picture of today, who must maintain the average rate of travel in all matters affecting the movements of the community and of organized society, a half-century is a long time. To those whose life of active effort has included such a period, memory plays a large part. Traditions may come to be a dominant, or at least, a very powerful, factor in their judgment and plans.

In an Arab tribe, moving leisurely among the oases of the desert, traditions are a guiding and guarding element of thought. They partake of the quality of physical habit in a man. But even in the deserts today, airplanes are not waiting for camel trains. And the Arabs have to face a resurging wave of Hebrews, pounding again at the age-old traditions of their desert land.

Old Foundations Vanish

Skilled craftsmen come to love their tools, the tools to which their hands have become fitted by long usage. Equally, they come to accept as part of their very life, essence of its crystalized structure, the ideas and ideals which they have accumulated in the years during which the tools hav been used. It is hard for them, in these days when the functions of their hand tools are being appropriated to the movements of wheels, levers and rocker arms, to even imagine that the old foundations are passing into the discard along with the contents of their tool-chests.

We have a habit of referring to the Magna Charta of England, as the touchstone of our liberties and our democratic institutions. In its day, Magna Charta was a capstone; but it came to be part of a wall, and was referred to as a corner stone. But that very feudal system for which it was a signal of change, has all but mouldered.

Magna Charta Just Milestone

The Magna Charta of King John is no longer even a corner stone; it is just a milestone. It pointed, far off, to the Declaration of Independence. But it dealt, in its day, with matters which have long since passed out of common knowledge. And those who today would depend upon it for guidance, will find that their old chart has been superseded, by the action of the waves and currents of human history. It was written in 1215. That was 724 years ago.

The currents of time seem to move more swiftly today. We do not wait now for kings to die. The structure of society is more and more patterned after the architecture of those Japanese cities, which are built for earthquakes. They expect to be moved. There are no laws of the Medes and Persians now. There are no Medes and Persians, although there may be those who would like to play the part.

Facing to Past Dangerous

And there are impudent men who are trying to take apart the laws of gravitation, and see what makes them click. If they find out, we may even look for more rapid shifts in the solar system.

All of which is to emphasize the real danger which confronts any movement, any organization, not excepting the labor movement, which faces only and always to the past. We may define the radical as one who expects changes; and the conservative as one who neither wants nor expects change. But it has ever been true, that the radical of today is the conservative of tomorrow. It is the almost inevitable power of habit, of crystallization of ideas, of fossilizing of institutions.

Those to whom the cause of labor is important will do well to keep these principles in mind, and to act upon them, as far as their own powers are still free and flexible.

Leadership Looks Ahead

That the leaders of American labor are keeping their eyes to the front, is well attested by changes in organization methods, and also by the remarkable increase in union memberships in the American Federation of Labor. That this should have taken place when at least 25 per cent of of the working population is on the unemployment lists, in itself indicates some new methods in the attack upon the whole situation.

Another index of expansion in ideas is to be found in the rather astonishing growth among what have been called the "white-collar" workers, the clerks and office men and women. Of course, the depression has wiped out of the minds of these workers any lingering superstitions on their part that they were somehow superior to the workers who used tools and machines—other than typewriters and adding machines. The inevitable reaction was their entry into the ranks of organized labor.

Chain Stores Labor Organizes

And one curious fact in this connection is the part which the growth of the corporation chain stores have played in the education of their employes. The multitudinous and more or less uncertain corner groceries furnished poor ground for labor union organizations, both in limited incomes and in shifting and uncertain jobs. The chain store passes out of the "family store" field, and enters an area where organization becomes an advantage to all concerned. But this is a development entirely unlooked for, in the days of the "founding fathers."

Another departure is to be found in the breaking up of the great deeps of the "South," and the beginnings of a real labor movement south of the Mason and Dixon Line. The passing of the Cotton Era; the breaking up of the southern farm tenure; the increasing expansion of industry and factory production into the marvelous southern climate; the education of an English-speaking population in the experiences and meanings of machine tools and their uses; and the advertising of the social, economic and political realities throughout the South; these have all brought inevitably in their train the growth of the organized labor movement in the land of Dixie. Employers with feudal habits of mind are being compelled to face these facts; and many of them are showing that they are not afraid of the labor movement, now that they have actually seen its face.

Labor Spokesmen Develop

But southern spokesmen for labor have been growing up during the last decade, whose perspective takes in the industrial history of the North, and at the same time have the capacity to phrase in the language of their own neighbors the message which labor has for the workers everywhere.

World forces at work in every nation today, are giving new meaning to age-old shibboleths. "Democracy" is being re-examined, to find its essence and its vital content. "Liberty" is being better understood, just because it is being denied to those who had thought of it as something to be taken for granted. "Law," in terms of the rules for nations to obey, as well as for the sheriff to enforce, is being more clearly defined.

The inescapable bonds which modern machinery laws upon any society, and upon its members, and the functioning of those bonds as avenues to larger freedoms for the individual, have been arising into visibility, as communities have been forced to lay compelling hands upon the control of those things which have become essential utilities of the daily communal life.

Farm Labor Unions Accepted

It was impossible for the ordinary mind to think about these things at all, 50 years ago. Now the ordinary man and woman cannot escape thinking about them. And one result, as astonishing as any, is the extension of the labor union and its methods into the areas of farming. It has been said that more machinery is used in our farming operations than anywhere else in all our productive activity. Whether this be strictly true or not, it is so largely parallel to the facts as they become visible to any man with a mind, that farm labor unions are now accepted as being a matter of necessity.

...cking of Virus Disease in ...orses Leads to Hope Same ...an Be Cured in Humans

...Washington, D. C.—Labor has a direct interest as well as a broad ...ership interest in the war ...ich has another virus disease ...t licked. A virus disease is a ...eam whose agency can go ...ough the finest filter without ...ing any of its venom, and has ...ver been seen under a micro...pe. It would be more accurate, ...ewise, to say that disease is ...ter as to horses, while there is ...t yet only a fair reason to believe ...t the same treatment which ...ecks the poison in a horse will ...ve a human being.

...This disease when it strikes a ...rse is called "equine encepha...yelitis." In a man it is called ...ute encephalitis, or "sleeping ...kness," in horses, it is very ...ch more common now than for...erly. One account says that 23,... horses were listed as taking it ...193... I... there were 184,... horses reported with it; and ...l nine states took no account of ...at all. It is proper to say at ...e that a remedy has been found ...ich gives strong proof of being ...perfect preventive, and saves at ...st half the horses which have it already. And 750,000 horses have been "vaccinated" this last year.

Preparation of Remedy

Encephalitis means inflammation of the head; strictly, inflammation of the things inside the head. The poison from a horse's infected brain will kill a large number of chickens. But the scientists wanted something stronger, hen's egg takes twenty-one days to hatch. Eggs which have gone about 14 days toward hatching—it is needless to tell all the technique of it—are inoculated with the venom from the horse. They kill it in two or at most three days; and the whole embryo body of the chick is the same kind of venom, but 100 times as strong, as that from the brain of the horse.

To turn that poison chick to a cure, it is heated and treated with formaline; and then injected in the horse. It is claimed that more than half the 4,000 horses which in Kansas had this disease last year got well from this treatment.

But what about humans?

Humans have the same virus—that has been proved by transmitting it to mice, rabbits, guinea pigs, dogs and monkeys. Unquestionably, if human beings sicken in this way this year—and we're right up to the season for it, August—they should be treated with the sterilized virus that works so well with horses. There is plenty of it on hand.

Fifteen people got encephalitis in California last year, and five died. Twelve got it in Massachusetts and ten died. Several, but not quite so many, have died in other states—and in all probability, some deaths from encephalitis are not known. People get the infection from horses or other animals, through insects. A jockey or a teamster might get the disease from the horses; but it would have to be carried from the steed by the insect. The workers always is the goat of any new infection. Here there is what almost amounts to an occupational risk.

All Discoveries Helpful.

Do not imagine—as some writers have—that because this is a virus disease, it is like infantile paralysis or yellow fever, which are also virus diseases. That is not true. And yet, everything a scientist learned about ordinary disease germs, which he could see with a microscope and stop with a filter, helped him to learn other germs. The chances are that whatever he learns about one virus will help him to learn about another.

Q.—How is the date of Easter determined?

A.—Easter is the first Sunday after the full moon which falls upon or next after the vernal equinox (March 21). If the full moon occurs on Sunday, Easter is the following Sunday. Hence, Easter can come as early as March 22 or as late as April 25.

Union Label Leagues Urged by Iowa Labor

Washington, D. C.—I. M. Ornburn, secretary-teasurer of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, announced that the forty-fifth convention of the Iowa State Federation of Labor, held in June, passed a resolution urging the formation of Union Label Leagues in every city in the state.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, We feel that the Union Label is one of Organized Labor's greatest weapons—equal to that of the right to strike—an united demand for it by union men and women will compel employers to employ union labor; therefore be it

"Resolved, That this convention instructs the officers of the Iowa State Federation of Labor with the duties of assisting in forming a Union Label League or its equivalent, in each and every city in Iowa that has a Central Trades and Labor Assembly or a Building Trades Council; and be it further

"Resolved, That the principal aim of these Union Label Leagues shall be to promote the demand and use of the Union Label, Shop Card and Working Button; and be it further

The Saga of a Home-Made Trailer; Texas to the New York World's Fair

A Texas journalist built himself a trailer, loaded in his wife and 11-year-old son and started on a 2,000 mile trek for the New York World's Fair with $50.00 in his pocket. His experiences are related in the following story:

By TOM CAUFIELD

Reporter covers police, fire alarms, weddings, devils and all news in and around the Brazos Bottoms of Central Texas for the Waco Times-Herald.

WORLD'S FAIR, New York—Frances and the eleven-year-old boy who have seen the Fair and all the folks back in Waco told us it couldn't be done on the Caufield budget. The speedometer on Trailer History II reads 2,000 miles from Fifth and Austin; the bankroll is out $50, and we've got a job. I've just wired the boss for $25 he promised me to get home, and if the chewing gum baling wire on the trailer and the tires don't relax their holds we'll be the homeward 2,000 miles, we'll have made the whole trip on $85.

We've spent a little over $1.50 each per day on the Fair itself, counting the dollar on at the gates. Thomas, the eleven-year-old and Frances, the woman who tells me how to live, and I walked and walked and walked and stared, finally becoming convinced that the best things of the Fair are free. We could have stayed way two weeks here looking at the free shows, and never have paid and never suffer from what the book paper writers call ennui. We are leaving only because a wolf is howling at a door bearing the coat of arms of a certain small town newspaperman in Texas.

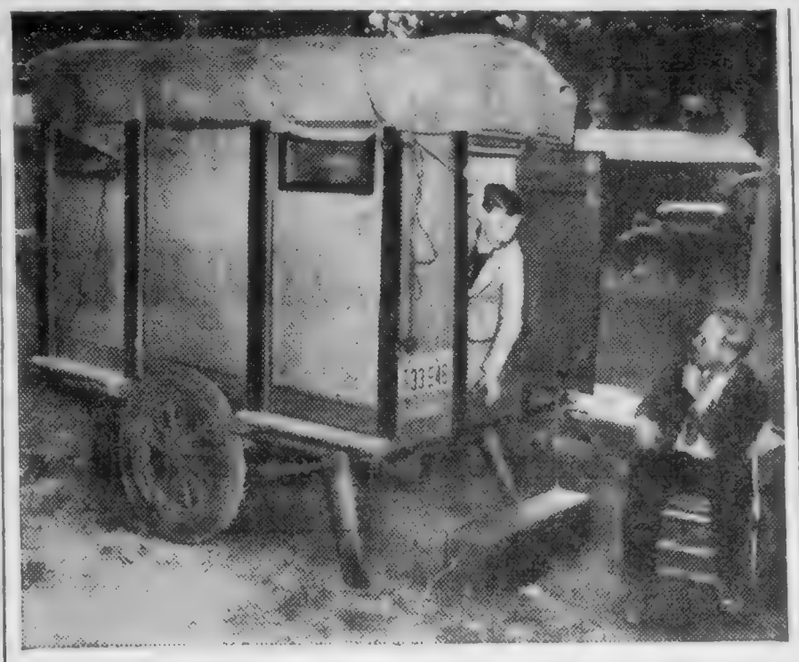
Nothing Like the Brazos

We stood and gulped when we saw the illumination at the lagoon of nations last night. Nothing like that along the Brazos, nor anywhere else.

A lightning bolt hit a telephone post as our car-trailer combination passed it on the road to Knoxville, coming up. It smashed the post, splattered our car with splinters, made an outrageous noise, scared us stiff. We saw it all over again, free, at the General Electric show here. They made 10 million volts for us—BANG! and we thought we were back on the Tennessee highway in the storm.

We fought good roads and bad coming up. General Motors showed us all good in a panorama that 27,000 people a day look at. GM parked us in upholstered chairs, started a public address explanation from the chair arms, and showed us the highway system of 1960.

If it hadn't been for that roads



Here is Tom Caufield's homemade trailer in which he, his wife and son traveled all the way from Waco, Tex., to see New York World's Fair.

system display, we might have thought, in the aviation building, that man was fixing to leave the ground for good; but GM gave us hope for the highways. We could hardly get the boy away from the aviation display. Instead of wanting to ride on the carnival gadgets, he wanted to go back and look at the model wind tunnels, the cross section of the Yankee clipper, and things like that.

Need for Adjectives

We heard the Voder. That's a contraption we had read about, a sort of talking typewriter. Pretty girl punches keys and make a combination of hisses and grunts that sounds like Charlie McCarthy at his worst, but is understandable.

I never was much on adjectives. The one adjective needed around here is "marvelous." Give me enough synonyms for that, insert them as needed, and that's the Fair.

There's a moving mural in the Ford building. Pistons, cogs, things like that fixed in the wall, all moving. Time for one of the synonyms. In the same building, walls hung all round with a one-piece yellow curtain made of spun and woven glass.

More free stuff; the City of Light, with 100,000 individual bulbs; the Forward March of America, showing how lighting has changed. They've got a fountain running over the exit of that building, and when I lost Frances and Thomas, by getting mixed up on a rendezvous, they waited an hour for me there, perfectly satisfied, while the fountain splashed outside.

They've got a real ship parked in a pond by the New England building. They've got life-sized toy monkeys climbing trees in a toy exhibit and real monkeys climbing on a rock inside the Frank Buck enclosure. The rock is higher than the bamboo walls, so you can see the monkeys without going in.

Escalators and Ramps

About transportation; this fair is great on saving shoe leather. It has to be, it is so big that unless there were a lot of escalators and moving belts the cobblers would have a field day at every exit. You go up into the Perisphere on an escalator, and ride around it on a moving belt; and there's the moving belt at the GM building. Everywhere you find ramps instead of steps, and the ramps are exactly calculated to ease your legs as you go up or down. Streets and walks are asphalt, and the buildings generally have rubber composition flooring. And if you want to ride, it costs a dime for a bus from any point on the grounds to any other point.

If your feet do get tired (and they oughtn't to often if you've got the right kind of shoes, which is important, especially to the women) you can stop in at any of the first aid stations and get a free foot treatment to ease them.

Now for the Tariff

Let's count the cost, after you get to New York. Figure you're in a trailer—that's $1 to get over the George Washington Bridge, which is the best way for a trailer; 75 cents a night at the trailer camp; a few cents for milk and whatever other groceries you need for eating at the camp; 25 cents toll over Whitestone Bridge for your car (leave the trailer at camp) and 25 cents toll back again (or ride a bus, fare ten cents each); 50 cents to park in the parking grounds at the Fair; 75 cents admission for adults, 25 cents for children; 25 cents each for the Perisphere, which is a must because it is the Fair's symbol; 10 cents for the Town of Tomorrow, which also ought to be a must for any householder, and gas and oil.

We ate dinner at one of many restaurants in the Fair grounds. My wife had chicken and mushrooms with coffee for 60 cents. I ate a salisbury steak with coffee for 60 cents, and lamb chops for the boy cost 75 cents. For lunch we had hamburgers and pie, which ran us 20 cents each. It costs a nickel for pop or root beer at any of a dozen stands. We got to the Fair for lunch one day and had dinner there that night. We had breakfast in camp next day, lunch at the Fair and pulled out late that afternoon for home.

Seeing New York

You can see something of New York while you're at the Fair, for the mere cost of gasoline. The night we arrived, we took a 50-mile drive across town, along the Hendrik Hudson Parkway and back from the Battery up Broadway to Times Square, then back to camp. We had a volunteer guide—one of the officials at the camp.

The policemen go out of their way to help a visitor. One of them talked to us for a half hour about things in general while we waited for an open-top bus next morning for a sightseeing trip in Manhattan. In fact, any New Yorker goes out of his way to help a Fair visitor.

We felt so much at home that when we parked our car to catch a bus to the Fair on our first day's visit, we forgot to make a note of where we left it; just walked away from it like we would have done in our own home town. And believe it or not, we found it when we came back in the rain—with the help of some of the passengers on the bus.

Bear in mind that the cost of coming to New York depends on how you are willing to come. We had a camp trailer, slept in it, using a trailer camp once, a cabin one night during a pouring rain, using school grounds twice with the permission of rural neighbors, and parking three times at filling stations. It took us six days to get here.

That $85 is an education worth thousands, for a boy of 11, and worth plenty more for his father and mother.—Reprinted from the New York Herald-Tribune.

Instantaneous X-ray photographs, fast enough to "stop action" on a heartbeat, can now be made by physicians with the Dynex, developed by the Westinghouse X-Ray company. A sort of "candid camera" among X-ray machines, the Dynex saves up its current for eight seconds in a bank of condensers, then lets it go all at once—to produce a powerful ray discharge which instantly prints a picture of the internal organs on a photographic plate.

Enforcing the Law

EDITOR'S NOTE This is the sixth and last of a series of articles explaining the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, written for the Labor World by the Information Branch of the Wage and Hour Division, United States Department of Labor.

During the first eight months the fair labor standards act has been the law of the land approximately 17,000 complaints of noncompliance were received.

Most of these had been filed by workers against their employers. Some were filed by employers against business competitors. Most employers have supported the law and have wanted it to succeed. The more conscientious an employer is, the higher the standards he tries to maintain, either in cooperation with organized labor or voluntarily, the more anxious he is to see that all other employers approximate the same standards. Naturally he complains if he believes that some competitor down the street is disobeying the law and reaping an unfair advantage by an unfair advantage by underpaying his workers.

Some of the complaints are duplicates—two or more persons complaining about the same circumstances. Some mistakenly are filed against concerns not in interstate commerce and therefore not subject to the act.

Any one may file a complaint. All complaints are held in strictest confidence by the wage and hour division and its employes. Complaint blanks may be obtained at any regional office, or by writing to the division in Washington.

All complaints, whether filed in a district office or not go first to the cooperation and inspection branch of the division in Washington for study. Complaints have to be disregarded if the concerns complained against are obviously not subject to the law. When the complaint seems to be meritorious and valid, field inspectors are sent out to make a searching investigation. They go over the employer's payroll records and talk to the employes. Also they check up to see if the goods produced later move in interstate commerce.

Thoroughly to investigate a single establishment may require several weeks. When this work has been completed, the information obtained is turned over to the cooperation and inspection branch for action. Sometimes, if the violation has not been flagrant, it is possible to obtain an adjustment whereby the employer pays to his employes back wages that have been unlawfully withheld and promises future compliance. Many thousands of dollars in back wages have been paid to employes in this manner.

If the violation is flagrant, and especially if payroll records have been falsified, the case is turned over to the legal branch for appropriate action. Some of the more aggravated cases are referred to the department of justice for criminal prosecution. In other instances injunctions are sought to restrain violations or to tie up goods from the stream of interstate commerce, and in every case of this sort the payment of back wages due has been obtained. So far the court action has been invoked in some 35 or 40 cases, and in every instance in which action has been completed the wage and hour division has been upheld.

Enforcement of the law began Oct. 24 with only twenty-three inspectors in the field to "police" the entire country and with an inadequate appropriation of $350,000. Yet by the end of the first six months it had been possible to place 131 representatives in the field. For the fiscal year which began July 1 it seems probable that the devision will have an appropriation which will make possible an enlargement of the staff and cut down the delay between the filing of a complaint and the completed action. Also during the coming year it is likely that the work of the division will be still further decentralized, with the field officers assuming a larger responsibility for acting upon complaints and the disposition of cases.

Further information about the wage and hour law and its administration and enforcement may be obtained by communicating with William M. Eaves, supervising inspector in charge of the Nashville office, at 119 Seventh avenue, north, or by addressing the information branch of the wage and hour division, United States Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

LABOR LAW VIOLATIONS FOUND IN N. J. SUMMER ESTABLISHMENTS

Trenton, N. J.—Department of labor inspectors have been conducting a thorough investigation of summer establishments in the north shore resort area. State Labor Commissioner John J. Toohey, Jr., says that the inspectors already have uncovered 164 violations of state labor laws in sixty-four establishments. Toohey says that prosecutions will begin immediately.

Speculation Declared Keeping Capital Out Of Low Cost Housing

Washington.—Gerald B. Lambert, a retired drug manufacturer of Princeton, N. J., but with definite experience in housing, told the monopoly committee that speculation is keeping private capital out of the housing where it is most needed.

"The USHA is taking care of the people who can pay under $5 per room a month," he said, "and the FHA is looking after those who can pay $10. But nobody's looking after the biggest market that lies in between."

He described the demonstration houses which he built at Princeton for $3,000 a unit. This was possible only by cutting out all speculation. He said he had known 27 per cent added to land values as speculative profit; and that he could find higher boosting if he looked for it.

"Bookmakers!" piped one bright lad.

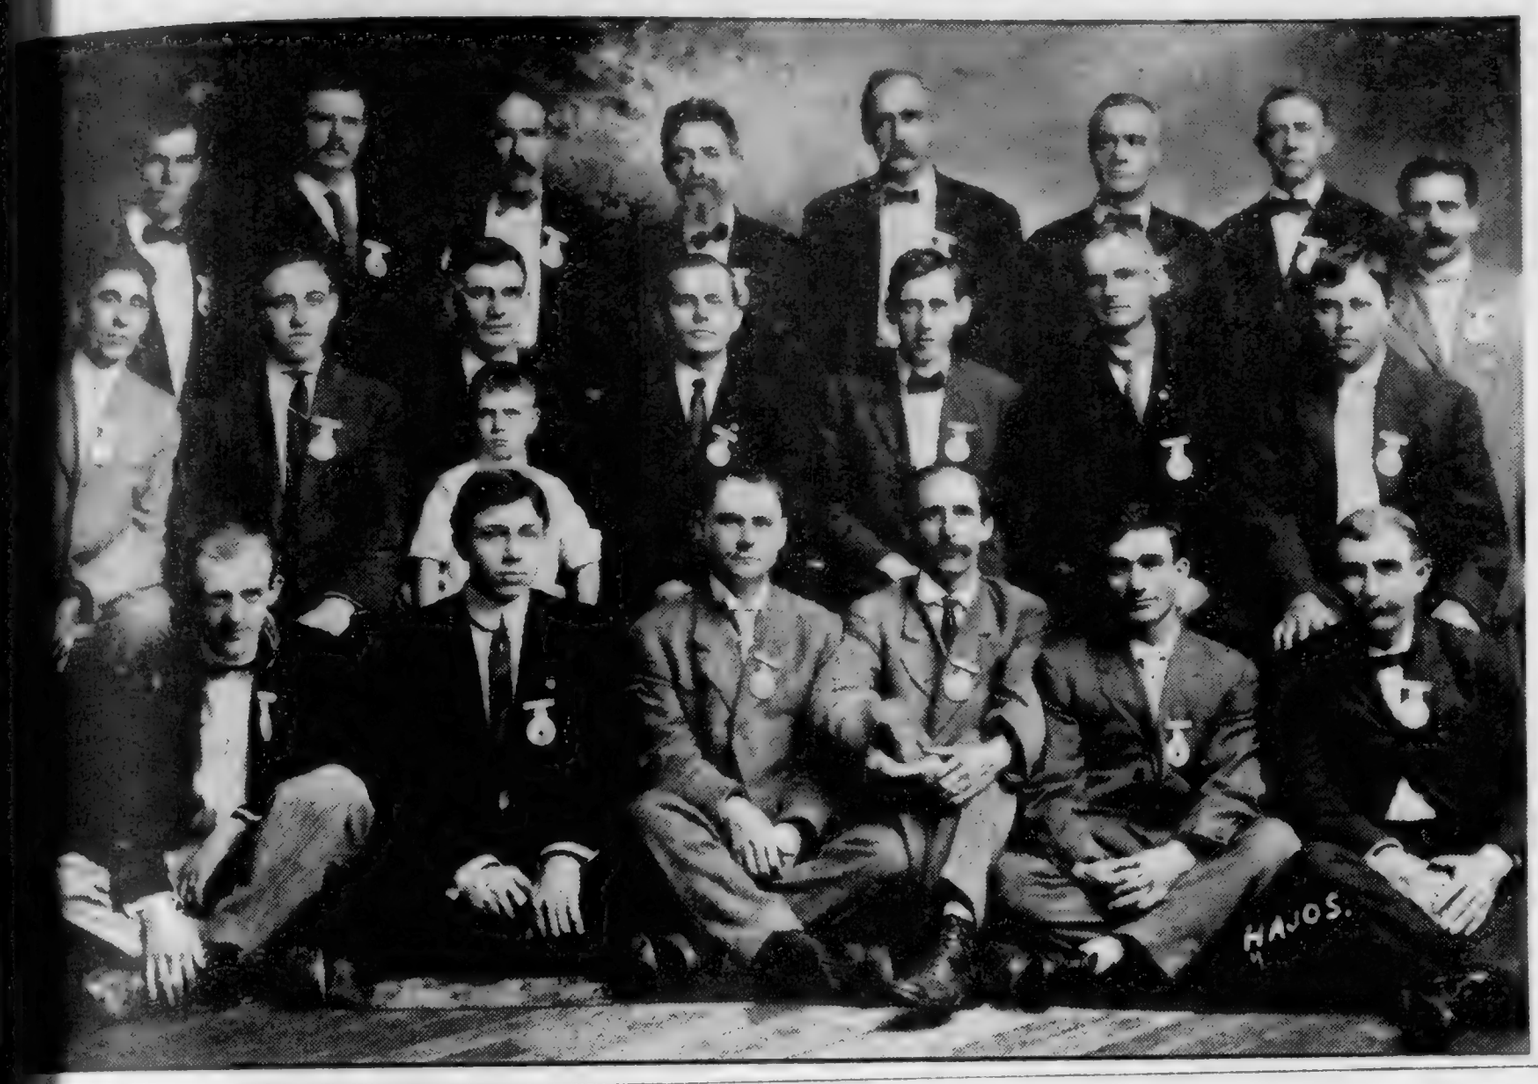
Photograph Recalls Local Celebration By Organized Labor Forces 30 Years Ago



"Looking Backward" might be the title of the photo above, for it pictures, in all their regalia 'n everything, the Labor day committee of 1909—just 30 years ago. And, according to some of the old-timers," the size of the committee harmonized with the elaborateness of the celevration of that year. This committee, said J. L. Carpenter, who furnished the photo, arranged probably the greatest Labor day parade which Chattanooga has ever witnessed, with a celebration following thoroughly in line with the immensity of the street procession.

Two members of the committee, Mr. Carpenter said, were not present when the picture was taken—George Forbes, Sr., then president of the Coopers union, and E. J. Anderson, of the Carpenters. Both these brothers have long since passed the Great Divide, as have a number of those pictured above.

Top Row—R. Earp, still a member of Lodge 56, Machinists; F. L. Dorsey, of the Blacksmiths; Tom Hall (with hair on his head, believe it or not) comes next, and is also yet active in Lodge 1450, Machinists; Joe Styles, next represented the Brewery Workers, and is also long since deceased. J. J. Forwalter represented the old Carpenters' Local 759, and was an active member of that union and its successor, Local 74, until his passing. Bob Morrison next, represented the Journeymen Tailors; Frank Nelson, also a Tailor, and Philip Capece, Barber, both deceased.

Second Row—J. L. Bell, Machinists, 50; D. M. Vogt, Browery Workers; Charles Ziegler, Cigarmakers, and Charles Ziegler, Jr., both deceased; John O'Brien, Typographical; W. E. Eckenrod, Cigarmakers; L. C. Leatherwood, Railway Carmen, and Albert Bridge, Brewery Workers.

Bottom Row—J. Harry Harting, Cigarmakers, deceased; Karl Weitzell, Tailors; G. D. Groner, Typographical; T. A. "Kid" Rogers, Typographical, who is retiring from the Chattanooga Times, after more than fifty years' service; J. L. Carpenter, Local 74, president of the Carpenters' Local, and active in the labor movement, and George Finch, Cigarmakers, deceased.

Each of the three representatives of the Typos pictured above was sent to the state legislature, and others attained positions of prominence in the political and business world.

The committee organization consisted of Charles Ziegler, president; Tom Hall, vice president; W. E. Eckenrod, recorder, and John O'Brien, secretary. President Ziegler led the parade, and Mr. Eckenrod was grand marshal, having as his aides Frank Dorsey, Jake Forwalter, Albert Bridges and Jim Bell.

Miners from Soddy and Graysville, and Molders from South Pittsburg participated in the parade, and made a great showing. The Barbers won the prize for the largest number of members in the parade; for the best uniformed craft the Glassblowers tied with the Typos, and for the prettiest float the Railroad Shopmen won first prize, Carpenters, second and Garment Workers, third.

For some reason, said Mr. Carpenter, Mayor W. R. Crabtree declined to deliver an address at the celebration, and did not participate in the parade. Ex-Governor Malcolm Patterson, however, rode at the head of the procession and delivered one of the principal addresses at the ceremonies which followed, at Warner (then Olpmpia) park. Also in the "front line," as Mr. Carpenter recalls it, were Senator James B. Frazier, Frank S. Carden and Judge Nathan Bachman. A representative of Samuel Gompers, a Mr. Terry, also delivered an address, he recalled.

"The parade," concluded Mr. Carpenter, "was one of the longest, best-outfitted and most effective in the history of Chattanooga, and the park celebration was attended by many thousands of citizens from all groups."

Headache, Bad Breath May Be Your Warning

The sea's thrilling S. O. S. means "Help is needed now!" And, so do most of those headaches, that billousness, coated tongue, or bad breath which are often signs of constipation.

VOLUNTARY HEALTH INSURANCE AIDS MANY WAGE EARNERS AND FARMERS

Industrial Workers Get Complete Medical Care for $3 Per Month; Hospitalization for An Entire Family Costs the Farmers $25 Per Year

By Constance Kent

In Baton Rouge, La., there are about 2,000 wage earners and their families who do not have to worry about oncoming and unexpected sickness costs because they pay for them every year in advance.

Fourteen years ago, the white employes of the Baton Rouge plant of the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, set up their medical service organization, the "Stanocola Employes Medical and Hospital Association." Since then they have built a clinic with laboratory and other facilities; they have selected their own medical staff by vote of their membership from among the physicians practicing in Baton Rouge. Three dollars per month, per member, provides almost complete medical care (except dentistry) for all these wage earners and their families.

Managed by Workers

No employe of the company is compelled to join, but about 80 per cent of the white employes have done so. The monthly payments are made through payroll deductions, the company co-operating in this respect; but the workers manage the association. There are seven doctors, including five general practitioners, a surgeon and a specialist in eye, ear, nose and throat work. These doctors spend daily time at the clinic and also look after patients at home or in any one of the local hospitals where any member or one of his family may go when hospital care is recommended by one of the physicians. The only limit is that not more than $250 may be spent for any single illness.

Voluntary Plans Benefit Millions

The Stanocola Association has weathered the depression and the original opposition of the local medical society. This is one of many voluntary health insurance plans organized by or for wage earners and their families. About two and one-half million people now secure their medical care in this way, although many of the plans are not as complete or as satisfactory as the one at Baton Rouge. Most of the industrial plans are in railroads, lumbering and mining for many years. More lately, organizations of wage earners or of consumers in several cities have started plans of voluntary health insurance, selecting their doctors or co-operating with an already organized group of doctors. Examples are in Los Angeles, Chicago, Milwaukee, Washington, D. C., and elsewhere.

Farmers Operate Their Own Hospital

In Western Oklahoma, the farmers have likewise set up voluntary health insurance for themselves. Six years ago, one of the local physicians started the idea with several co-operatively-minded farm people. Two thousand farm families have subscribed $50 apiece to set their plan under way. They have built their own hospital in Elk City, have a staff of doctors and have twice enlarged the hospital since it was started. Some members live as far as 50 miles away, but most are within a few miles of the center. Their organization is known as the Farmers Union Co-operative Hospital Association. It is not for profit. Each member is a stockholder with one vote—no more. They elect a board of five directors, who manage the association's affairs, and who employ a physician director for the medical staff, and a business manager for the hospital.

What does it cost? A member without dependents pays $12 a year. With one dependent, the rate is $18. For a whole family, no mater how large, the annual charge is $25.

Home Medical Service Provided

What do they get for their money? Members can get all the medical service they need from the doctors at the hospital. If they need calls at home they must pay $1.50 per call, plus 25 cents per mile one way. If they must stay in the hospital, they are charged $1 per day for room, board and general nursing in the hospital, up to 30 days for any one sickness; $2 per day thereafter.

Scope of Hospital Service

A charge is made for anaesthetics and operating room supplies. No extra charge is made for consultations, physical or laboratory examinations, surgical operations, or obstetrical care. Private nursing is provided for three days in the hospital without extra charge on recommendation of the attending physician. Dental examinations, X-Rays and extractions are free. There are eight physicians on the staff and two dentists.

Non-members who live in the locality may use the service of the doctors and hospitals, but must pay the usual fees charged by other physicians in the county. The local medical society and the State Medical Society of Oklahoma have fought the Farmers' Co-operative Hospital Association, but without success. The association is now building an enlargement to its hospital.

A number of other farmers' co-operatives are now trying to work out medical-care insurance plans of their own.

"Pass the Buck" . . . . or . . . . "Pass the Hat"

Time was when the unfortunate worker, meeting with mishap through accident or illness, faced the necessity of soliciting emergency funds from officials. Then a "buck passing" period followed, before the necessary loan could be secured.

Or, if that failed, it became a question of "Passing the Hat" among his fellow-workers, who might become reluctant to give if such misfortunes came in too steady a stream.

For moderate premium payments, made over the plant payrolls, both the worker and his dependents may have the comforting protection of the Provident Group Welfare plan, standing instantly ready to step in when sickness or accident strikes.

The Provident, a strong time-tested Home Company, with operations in 35 states from coast to coast, has been furnishing such dependable protection to many thousands of workers and their dependents under Group Welfare Plans for over a half century.

More than $46,000,000.00 in benefit payments has been paid at times when money was most needed. Such benefit payments are now being made at the rate of one every 1¼ minutes of the working day.

FOUNDED DEPENDABLE IN 1887

When you put your protection in a strong Home Company, such as the Provident, you are letting your premium paying dollars do double duty. For at the same time you and your family secure dependable protection, you are keeping those dollars at home, to work for the upbuilding of our own community, helping to furnish additional jobs for additional workers.

Interstate Fair Will Be Biggest Yet

With its prize list increased and many new entertainment features added, plans for the second annual Chattanooga Inter-State Fair were being completed here this week.

Promising to be "bigger and better" than ever before, the fair will throw open its gates at Warner park the week of Sept. 18-23. A cash prize list of approximately $7,500 has been arranged for this year's exhibition with the prizes increased in practically every department.

On the educational side the agricultural and livestock exhibits are expected to exceed last year's fair both in quality and quantity. Agricultural agents in the Chattanooga area of Tennessee, Alamaba and Georgia report that farm crops are of the bumper variety this year and that many farmers and their wives are planning to bring their cotton, corn and small grain, poulty, cattle and pigeons, as well as vegetables, canning, sewing and handiwork to compete for the cash prizes.

Much emphasis is being placed on the cattle show this year which is expected to be the biggest ever held at the inter-state fair. Entries are being received from over the tri-states area as well as from distances, Mrs. A. T. Atwood, secretary, said.

There will be a special department at the fair in which 4-H club boys and girls and future farmers can display their crops, cattle, poultry and handiwork.

An art exhibit, photography department, rabbit show, pigeon show and poultry show are other features for which reservations are now being received, Mrs. Atwood said.

On the entertainment side, fair officials have booked many shows, rides, acts and oncessions. The Johnny J. Jones Exposition with its fifty rides, free acts and other attractions has been booked for the midway. The Ernie Young Revue will be the grandstand attraction, bringing to Chattanooga some of the most outstanding singers, dancers, comedians and entertainment in the amusement world.

A mammoth fireworks display will be a free attraction each night.

LABOR, CAPITAL MUST TRY TO GO "SECOND MILE"

Rev. Hurst Says Labor as Honest as Any Other Group.

"Labor, the earning of one's bread by the work of hand and mind, is not only honorable but, in fact, divine," Rev. Alfred W. Hurst said last Sunday in a Labor Sunday sermon at the Pilgrim Congregational church. "Instead of toil being punishment for sin, Jesus looked upon it as a means whereby men might share in the creative purpose of the living God. It is an inspiring sight to see Jesus learning the carpenter's trade and by deeds as well as words vesting labor with dignity and honor. In keeping with this high conception of toil, America has set apart the first Monday in every September as a time for reaffirming our belief as a people that toil is good, and that justice and human rights and values are supreme.

"We believe it is in keeping with the spirit of Jesus' religion that on Labor Sunday the church voice its faith in the dignity of labor and the laborer. The labor union movement at its best is not solely interested in better wages and working conditions, but in securing a new dignity for working people as American citizens. The true church has ever possessed the prophetic spirit, judging the cause of the poor and needy, interested in the well-being of those who toil."

Quoting the words of Jesus that "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free," the minister stated his belief that "the public generally needs to know the truth about the labor union movement, and labor needs to face frankly and grapple courageously with the weaknesses of the movement. Graft and racketeering do exist in the labor movement and they demand the serious attention of the labor unions. Also there have been cases of excessive salaries paid to union officials and of

Speaking from the same platform, the three candidates seeking the seat in the national house of representatives from the Third Tennessee district, Monday afternoon at Warner park made appeals for the support of organized labor and presented their views on the various issues in the campaign.

Commissioner Sidney E. Bryant, of the state labor department, presided over the appeals of the three congressional contestants.

Another Union Drug Store in This City

Hodges' Drug Store No. 3, located at Fourth and Market streets, became Chattanooga's second union drug store a week or so ago, according to Louise Tinker, business agent of Culinary Workers' Local 574, who said, "We want the people of organized labor to know that this durg store is a 100 per cent union house. We urge each and every one of you to patronize this store—for eats or drugs. Messrs. Hodge and Dixon showed us every courtesy during the negotiations," and added, "Did you see their ad in last week's Labor World?" W. C. Hodge, speaking for the management, wants his friends in the labor movement to know that they are 100 per cent for organized labor and will appreciate their coming in to see them.

Two Weeks' War Games Cost Over $3,000,000

Statisticians estimate that the two weeks war games pulled off by 75,000 officers and men of he U. S. army at Plattsburg, N. Y., and Manassas, Va., cost the government more than $3,000,000. The purpose of the war games was to train soldiers in the art of successfully attacking an imaginary enemy and resisting an imaginary enemy's attack.

J. PLUVIUS HITS CRUEL BLOW TO LABORDAY PLAN

Rain Spoils Fireworks, Chases Crowd From Park in Afternoon

Jupiter Pluvius, sometimes popular, and sometimes unpopular, stepped in Labor day and presented a downpour of rain that just about washed out the main features of Labor day plans. A desultory attack of moisture in the morning did not scare the crowd as much as desired by the old villain, so at about 6 in the afternoon he really did his dirty work and spoiled the band concert and the display of fireworks planned.

Notwithstanding the bad weather the complete program of athletic events were carried though, with the following contestants winning the various trophies presented by Chattanooga Central Labor union:

A whole series of field, track and bicycle events in the afternoon entertained a grandstand crowd, particularly a five-mile bike contest in which Dan Oliver, in a six-man race, lapped the field to come in for first and fourth prizes. His time was 15 minutes and 5 seconds.

The program was directed by Ed Hargraves, of Commissioner R. M. ("Bob") Cooke's department, and sponsored by the Central Labor union (A. F. L.). Yarnell Barnes acted as starter; Harry Cochrane, scorer and clerk; Claude Watkins, announcer, with expert assistance furnished by Wade Craft, Fred Cope, Louise Summers and Dorothy Uptain.

Low-Rent Housing Plan Launched by New York

Albany, N. Y.—Edward Weinfeld, head of the New York State Housing division, took the preliminary steps to set in motion the New York housing program authorized by the recently enacted state housing acts, under which $150,000,000 is made available for low-rent housing loans and $1,000,000 a year for a state subsidy, with the provisions that only $50,000,000 in loans and $250,000 in subsidies may be disbursed in the 1939-1940 fiscal year. Two-thirds of these loans and subsidies may be allocated ot New York City; the balance is reserved for the rest of the state.

In acquainting political subdivisions with the funds available for housing work during the present fiscal year, Mr. Weinfeld pointed out that the act requires the locality negotiating a loan to match the annual state subsidies dollar for dollar, but that part or all of the subsidy contributed by localities may be made in the form of tax exemption.

In addition, he stressed the provision of the law that all housing projects undertaken with state aid shall be a part of a program for the clearance of slum and substandard areas.

When the state housing program gets under way it will provide employment for many jobless building trades workers and for more jobless in work at the site and in the manufacture of supplies.

Hollywood Producers Sign Five-Year Contract With Stage Employes Union

Los Angeles, Cal.—Organized labor in Los Angeles is definitely and justifiedly jubilant with the agreement signed by the major motion picture producers and the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada, A. F. of L. affiliate.

Representatives of the union interpreted the agreement as a pledge that will give members of A. F. of L. studio locals an undisputable closed shop, better working conditions and immediate wage increases, and, in addition, ending threats of a strike of 12,000 studio technicians and other locals on that group.

In an article giving an account of the terms and significance of the agreement the Los Angeles Citizen, organized labor's official newspaper, said:

"In the agreement, it was announced the producers also pledged themselves to 'enter negotiations within a reasonable time and to continue diligently until consummated,' upon collective bargaining demands for improved wage scales, hours and working conditions.

"The pact was signed by John F. Gatelee and Frank Stickling, representing tha AFL union, and Joseph M. Schenck, Walter Wanger, Frank Freeman and E. J. Mannix, of the producers' group.

"IATSE locals involved are cameramen, sound technicians, laboratory workers, propertymen, gripmen, laborers and utility workers, set electricians, costumers, make-up artists and studio projectionists.

"Studios affected by the agreement include Columbia, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, RKO, 20th Century-Fox, Universal, Warner Bros., Walter Wanger and Hal Roach.

"It was understood that other AFL studio locals signatory to former producer-employer basic pacts are negotiating for agreements with the studios through their international unions.

"The dual group backed by the CIO made strenuous efforts [illegible] several weeks to prevent the signing of the agreement by the IATSE representatives [illegible] studio managers, but evidently their claims to membership and possible dire action against the studios did not have very much effect.

"Other international groups [illegible] ties to the basic agreement between the unions and the producers, which has prevailed for a number of years, in addition to the IATSE, are International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; International Brotherhood of Carpenters; American Federation of Musicians; International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs."

. Y. State Fed. of Labor Bars Aid o Third Term; Roosevelt's Wage Stand Scored

New York.—The convention of e New York State Federation of abor refused to indorse Presi- nt Roosevelt for a third time by jecting seven resolutions seeking h indorsement and shifting ac- n on the issue to the American ederation of Labor on the ground at the matter concerned national nd not state politics.

This action on the third term sue contrasted markedly with e indorsements given Roosevelt the state federation in 1932 nd 1936. The federation is the rgest state unit in the A. F. of , with a membership of more an 1,000,000.

Never Indorses Candidates.

It was pointed out, however, hat the A. F. of L., as such, never ndorses candidates for the presi- ency of the United States, per- itting the officers and members follow their own discretion. The nly exception to this practice was 1924, when the federation acked Senator Robert M. La Fol- tte. Many consider the action the state federation as tantta- ount to a refusal to go along ith the advocates of a third term in the light of the A. F. of L.'s ttitude on the question, while oth- s attributed it to labor's bitter- ss over the abolition of the pre- ailing rate of wages for skilled orkers on WPA construction rojects. And, of course, the fail- re of the president to back the ade unions on that question.

Asks That Wage Rate Be Restored.

Whatever the opinion expressed y those seeking an answer to the ederation's action, the fact is that s body unanimously passed a esolution calling for restoration f the prevailing wage rate.

Other Resolutions Passed.

Other resolutions, all passed nanimously, supported the Wag- er-Steagall bill for an $800,000,000 ncrease in the U. S. Housing Au- hority fund; condemned the $180,- 00 cut in the state labor depart- ent workman's compensation udget; asked that a part of the otion picture industry be moved this city; demanded elimination f home work in the manufacture f artists' brushes, and urged leg- islation to "transfer taxes from men to labor-saving machinery."

Woll Warns Against Totalitarian Tendencies.

Matthew Woll, vice-president of the A. F. of L., in addressing the delegates, warned against what he characterized as totalitarian tendencies in this country, citing as examples the conduct of the national labor relations board in its efforts to prescribe to labor the form and manner in which it should organize.

Mr. Woll warned that "legislation designed to benefit labor may ultimately enslave labor to the powers of government."

Andrews Hits Dime-an-Hour Bloc.

Wake-Hour Administrator Andrews, addressing the convention, predicted that the United States never will have permanent prosperity until everyone learns that "mass production is impossible without mass purchasing power."

National wage increases, he said, result in "a tremendous total effect."

"It takes a lot of people with money to spend to keep our industrial machine running full blast," he said. "You simply can't have prosperity when some millions of people can't buy anything at all and have to be fed and clothed by those of us who have jobs, and when other millions earn so little that all they can afford is just enough food to keep body and soul together and just enough clothing to keep them out of a nudist camp."

Andrews appealed to organized labor to carry on the fight it waged to enact the fair labor standards act and keep it in force.

"I am not so naive," he said, "as to believe that our opponents are by any means through. On the contrary, they have only had their appetites whetted. Next January, the dime-an-hour bloc may be expected to come to Washington to renew its demands."

He said he planned to intensify his drive against violators of the law.

Co-operation Is Needed Among All Elements of Nation

(From Labor Sunday Message, 1939, Federal Council of Churches)

We would point out that the basic need, not only of farmers and labor, but of all economic including employers and consumers, is to develop a broad understanding, a sympathetic attitude, a mutual loyalty and a spirit of confidence and goodwill. The soundness of these fundamental principles of Christian brotherhood affords the only sure basis for democracy and offers the only hope of the economic adjustments necessary to a practical and material solution of the problems which now confront us.

With this vital spirit of brotherhood and determined goodwill, all ecenomic groups will be able effectively to deal with such basic violations of brotherhood and good economics as enforced unemployment, with falls with tragic effect on both rural and urban youth.

Until unemployment is abolished and economic life is stabilized on high levels of production and just distribution, there remains a danger to our democratic institutions. Until unemployment is abolished, there can exist neither a sound economic order nor a Christian brotherhood.

In conclusion we remind the church that if nations, races, industry, labor and farmers are to find a true basis of Christian democracy, it is her responsibility and privilege to sound in this hour the clarion call of brotherhood and lead mankind out of its present strife into the fellowship of Jesus Christ, who is our hope of brotherhood and the author and finisher of our faith.

American Federation of Labor Wins Decision Eliminating "Loan Shark"

Minnesota Supreme Court Holds Exaction of Usury Is a Public Nuisance Outlawed by Statute; Case Was Argued by Joseph A. Padway, A. F. of L. Counsel.

A notable decision has just been rendered by the supreme court of the state of Minnesota outlawing the "loan shark" evil.

The decision is of interest to the American Federation of Labor and its affiliates because the American Federation of Labor joined with the attorney-general of Minnesota and the county attorney of Hennepin county in the suit brought against the Metro Loan company, operated by R. J. O'Neil, which lent money to necessitous borrowers at rates of interest ranging from 300 per cent to 1,000 per cent.

The county attorney of Hennepin county instituted a suit for an injunction against the Metro Loan company and for a receiver for its notes, documents and business.

The trial court granted a temporary injunction and appointed a receiver.

The loan company appealed to the supreme court, whereupon the Minnesota State Federation of Labor joined with the state and county authorities in prosecuting this litigation and requested the American Federation of Labor to do likewise.

The American Federation of Labor through its counsel, Judge Joseph A. Padway, filed a brief and also presented oral argument to the court.

The issue in the case revolved around the extraordinary procedure by which the authorities secured an injunction against the "loan shark" from continuing in business and by which a receiver was appointed to take immediate possession of the notes, assets and business of the loan company.

Usury Laws Are Ineffective.

It was pointed out to the court:

(1) That for upwards of thirty years the American Federation of Labor had fought the "loan shark" evil;

(2) That usury laws were ineffective because borrowers invariably wish to conceal the fact that they have any dealings with "loan sharks" and usually are unable to bring suit through lack of funds for costs and counsel;

(3) That the American Federation of Labor in an effort to eliminate the "loan shark" had approved of sound small loan laws whereby legitimate lenders could engage in the business of making small loans to borrowers at limited rates of interest and under strict regulation of the state;

(4) That in Minnesota, at the time these proceedings were started, there was no small loan law and the only effective method of eliminating the "loan shark" was through the procedure adopted by the public authorities of the state of Minnesota.

Why Usury Is Forbidden.

In approving of this procedure the Minnesota supreme court said:

"* * * As stated, usury, by our statute, is not made a crime, so the state may not put a stop to the practice by criminal prosecution. However, our usury legislation clearly establishes the policy of the state outlawing the taking of usury.

"It is forbidden. Why? In the interest of public welfare, to protect the helpless and the poor, always present in every community, from the rapacity of the money lenders who exact usury.

"On principle, where there is no adequate remedy either by criminal law or by the ordinary civil suit, equity may properly come to the rescue by appropriate injunctive relief.

"* * * Does a business in which every transaction is usurious, thereby illegally extorting money from customers, being a considerable number of persons, and likely to affect their health, peace of mind and welfare, constitute a public nuisance?

"It would seem reasonable to conclude that the carrying on, advertising, and openly conducting a business so that every transaction thereof is an intentional violation of the usury law enacted for the protection of the large class of necessitous persons in every community is a public nuisance. Courts of high standing have so declared. * * *

"In this situation should defendant's books and evidences of the usurious debts be restored to him? If the notes are disposed of and reach bona fide purchasers for value before maturity, the defense of usury is not available. The court should not give an opportunity for this to happen."

Decision Kills Loan Sharks.

This decision is highly gratifying to the American Federation of Labor and its affiliates. It spells death to the "loan shark" and his illegal interest rates of 300 per cent to 1,000 per cent. It is a real achievement in the long and arduous program of the American Federation of Labor to rid the public of the "loan shark" who preys upon necessitous borrowers, chiefly wage-earners.

Judge Padway, counsel for the American Federation of Labor, who argued the case, said:

"A comprehensive brief was filed with the court. I hope the authorities in other states will proceed in the same manner as did the authorities of the state of Minnesota.

"The legal department of the American Federation of Labor stands ready to give every aid and assistance in similar cases to the end that the "loan shark" will be completely obliterated."

This brief is more than a legal document. It is a social defense of first rate importance. Copies may be obtained by writing Joseph A. Padway, counsel for the American Federation of Labor, Tower building, Washington, D. C.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL CHATTANOOGA

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1939

Little Men, What Now?

The fear of a possibility of the United States going into the European conflict to make the world safe for something or other again brings on an added fear.

Those who have read something of the "M" day plan authorized by congress might realize the complete preparation for war that the military minds of this nation have evolved.

Few people realize that under the "M" day plan, authorized by congress, a citizen can actually be in uniform and in a designated camp inside of one week of war.

In war time, under military rule, there is no "foolishness" about "dissension." Winning of the war is the prime objective.

Therefore we say to our dissension-mongers among labor, "Little men, what now?"

What will "M" day do about a strike in a copper plant between two unions? Copper is necessary in war. What will "M" day do about the NLRB elections for collective bargaining rights? And about a civil-war-torn labor movement in general?

Here is what will be done, little men: The "M" experts will hand down edicts. No more strikes. You will do as you are told. This union business will be declared "out" until after the war—and after the war we might find that it will be made permanent.

During war times, with a solid labor movement working harmoniously, we have a hard enough time keeping wages in step with advancing profiteering prices of commodities. With a dissension-torn movement we will certainly be helpless.

Profiteering Started Already?

The purchasing agent of the family tells the editor of this paper that within the past three or four days the price of sugar has advanced 8 cents for five pounds. This is for sugar already grown, harvested and marketed. We can see no real reason for this advance except the taking advantage of war conditions abroad and gouge fellow-citizens at home.

Well can we remember sugar selling for 35 cents per pound in 1916. Sugar that was grown in Cuba, with German submarines preventing it from being shipped abroad.

Only last week we were interested in a news report wherein J. Pierpont Morgan was asked if he would be the purchasing agent for the foreign powers as he was in the last war.

That wizard of "high-finance" (meaning the ability to juggle other people's money with a rake-off for himself) bought for the allies three billions of dollars of supplies, keeping for himself thirty millions of dollars as commission. In addition, Mr. Morgan "sold" one and a half billion dollars of bonds for the allies. Bonds that were sold to American people and which today make good wall paper.

We also remember the duPont's building of the powder plant at Nashville on a "cost-plus" basis.

Which brings us back to sugar, and bread, and meat . . . and wages. Food in abundance, harvested and in the hands of the brokers. And it is going up, boys. A war is going on and we must rally to winning the war for Mr. Morgan, first, and our country second.

Wm. Green Asks Brown of Omaha CLU to Resign

Washington.—A. F. of L. President Green has demanded the resignation of Mace Brown, Omaha Central Labor union president, "because Brown opposed AFL-sponsored Wagner act amendments," he said.

Green pointed out that Brown came to Washington to appear before the senate education and labor committee "as a CIO witness" against the amendments.

"He had a perfect right to differ on the wisdom of amending the act," Green said, "but when a convention of the American Federation of Labor unanimously adopts a policy, and instructs its officers to carry out that policy, all AFL officers, including central labor union presidents, must do so. Brown violated the instructions of the Houston convention, so I am required to ask for his resignation."

Green said Brown was the only CLU president that he knew of who had actively opposed the amendments.

CLERKS ORGANIZE THREE COLORADO SPRINGS STORES

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Officials of the recently organized Local No. 167 of the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association, A. F. of L. affiliate, announced that the employes of three large stores here were 100 per cent organized with an increasing membership in many other local establishments.

The 100 per cent unionized stores are the Sherwin-Williams Paint company, Reibcheid & Son, and Lorig's, all three of which display union window cards.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES FORM FOUR NEW LODGES

Washington.—The chartering of four new lodges was announced by officials of the American Federation of Government Employes, A. F. of L. affiliate.

In New England, a lodge was established at the Newport naval station. In Washington, D. C., a lodge was formed among custodial employes at Walter Reed General Army hospital. In Baltimore, the nurses at the Marine hospital formed a lodge, and at Austin, Tex., the custodial employes of the U. S. courthouse, internal revenue bureau and the postoffice formed a lodge.

Many permanently chartered lodges reported large increases in membership.

Permanent Progress Not Made by Force

By WILLIAM GREEN

The American Federation of Labor is based upon a philosophy of voluntarism—that is, the organization has no power to compel any union or person to do anything. Trade unions realize that force does not lead to permanent progress, but only realization of the value of better methods and better agencies. Membership and compliance with regulations are the result of voluntary decision, directed by enlightened self-interest. Because the union renders valuable service, it retains its membership.

The worker needs the union just as the individual union needs the support and co-operation of other unions in the same kind of work. Similarly unions in one trade or industry need the co-operation of other groups of workers.

Related interests are the strong ties that bring workers into unions—mutual help and service are what keep them in. Intelligent understanding of the welfare of the whole group is the disciplinary power that imposes policies and rules.

Prompt Help For A Listless Child

Scolding won't help a boy or girl who is listless, dull or cross from constipation. But, here's something that will!

If sluggish bowels have your child headachy, bilious, upset, give him a little Syrup of Black-Draught tonight. Like the original famed BLACK-DRAUGHT, its principal ingredient is an intestinal tonic-laxative. Helps impart tone to the bowel muscles.

Children like the taste of Syrup of Black-Draught. It is an all vegetable product. When simple directions are followed, its action is gentle, but prompt and complete. Comes in two sizes: 50c and 25c.

Tacoma Lumber Workers Support 450 Strikers and Their Families

Tacoma, Wash.—The strike of 450 employes of the Northwest Door company here went into its eighth week with the commissary set up by Tacoma District Council of the A. F. of L. Lumber and Sawmill Workers' union functioning smoothly and efficiently in taking care of the strikers and their families.

Union officials reported that ten thousand dollars worth of foodstuffs had already been distributed. The Puget Sound District council has contributed $2,000 in two months, and the Tacoma L. S. W. has paid out $8,000.

The strike had been brewing for a long hime before it was declared. Starting with an obsolete plant four years ago, the Northwest Door company was developed into an efficient plant with the production per man practically double what it was formerly.

Despite this increased effciency the company had refused to raise wages commensurately with the larger production. Union officials assert that nearly 200 of the employes have been receiving wages below the scale warranted by the type of the plant. When negotiations failed to produce the necessary adjustments the strike was called.

MORE ABOUT REV. HURST

embezzlement of union funds. These abuses should be faced with courageous action. But impartial studies show that racketeering is not prevalent in the labor movement as a whole. The rank and file of labor union members are just as honest as any other class in society. Tolerance and patience on the part of employes and employers will hasten the process of understanding.

"One reason why the public lacks knowledge of the fact that the relations between employes and employers have in many instances been harmonious is that the press does not consider it news when people get along nicely together. Strikes, dishonesty, upheavals in industrial relations are news, but the more significant daily round of peaceful labor relations is not considered news. If married life were judged from the press we should conclude that marriage is a failure. There are innumerable instances in which labor and management have cooperated in stabilizing industrial relations, in increasing efficiency and economy, resulting in great savings to the company and in raised standards and increased incomes for the workers.

"Labor and management need to recognize their essential oneness, and travel the second mile with a willingness to meet each other more than half-way. When this is done their problems will resolve themselves and bitterness will vanish as dew before the rising sun. The basic need is the development of understanding, sympathy, loyalty, confidence and good-will. The principles given society nineteen hundred years ago by the Carpenter of Nazareth are the sure basis for democracy and the hope of solving the economic problems that confront us."

902,827 Work for U. S. Government

Washington, D. C.—The United States Civil Service commission announced that employment in the executive branch of the government showed an increase in May, which was chiefly of a seasonal nature.

"Civil employes in the executive branch of the federal government," the commission said, "totaled 902,827 during May, an increase of 17,061 or 1.9 per cent since April. The May payroll was $136,387,131, as compared to $133,426,857 for the previous month, an increase of 2.2 per cent. This slightly greater increase in payroll than in employment resulted from the fact that there were more working days in May than in April, thereby increasing the earnings of the per diem and per hour employes.

"Employment increased 899 in the District of Columbia and 16,162 outside the District of Columbia, bringing the total number of employes in the District of Columbia to 122,902 and the total outside to 799,925.

"Of the 902,827 employes in the service, 79,543 were 'force-account' employes (persons employed directly by the federal government on construction projects, such as naval vessels or road construction), 784,250 were full-time employes, and 39,034 part-time employes engaged in other activities. For the month the compensation of part-time employes averaged $64.

"Employes paid from funds provided by the Emergency Relief Appropriation Acts of 1938 and prior years totaled 67,393 or 7.5 per cent of the total employes in the executive branch of the service. This was a decrease in this group of 1,133 employes, accounted for by a decrease of over 1,500 employes in the Works Progress Administration.

"In the District of Columbia the Departments of War, Navy, and Interior reported increases which were seasonal in nature; the Railroad Retirement Board reported a sizeable increase due to expansion of its functions. In addition, small increases were reported by the Departments of Commerce and Labor, and by the Federal Power Commission. The Treasury Department reported a decrease, which resulted from its policy of decentralization.

"Outside the District of Columbia increases, chiefly seasonal, occurred in the Departments of Agriculture, War, Navy, Interior and Commerce."

5,000 Truck Drivers Win Ohio Agreement

Columbus, Ohio.—Five thousand truck drivers belonging to locals of the International Brotherhood of teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, A. F. of L. affiliate, secured more advantageous terms of employment in the agreement negotiated here by committees of the Ohio State Highway Drivers' council, representing the employers.

The agreement, covering "over-the-road" and "peddle-run" drivers throughout Ohio, provides for the payment of minimum wage rates of 75 cents an hour and 62½ cents an hour. Union drivers now receiving more than the contract minimums will continue to receive their established rate. The agreement ends Oct. 1, 1941.

No More Jurisdictional Strikes on Building Jobs, Says Bldg. Trades Dept.

Atlantic City.—The A. F. of L. Building Trades Department and the Associated General Contractors of America announced jointly a new agreement barring jurisdictional strikes on building projects.

Spokesmen for both sides said the agreement, unprecedented in labor relations, would result in 'incalculable savings" to labor and industry and would "give the green light to construction."

Henceforth, the announcement said, when disputes arise on building jobs as to what union members shall perform what tasks, there will be no cessation of work while the jurisdictional issue is being settled.

The agreement provides that "presidents of all international unions shall immediately return all men to work on jobs stopped because of jurisdictional disputes between trades affiliated with the Building Trades Department. All work in dispute shall remain in possession of the work at the time of stoppage. Work shall continue pending an appeal to, and decision by, the president of the department."

John Coyne, of Woshington, a member of the engineers' union, was elected the new president of the department. George Masterson, of Washington, a member of the plumbers' union, was elected vice-president and executive council member.

The agreement was interpreted as a counter move to the CIO decision to enter the building field in an organization campaign to be directed by A. D. Lewis.

The Building Trades Department committee which helped to work out the agreement included President Coyne, Vice-Presidents Rarch J. Gray, of Albany, N. Y.; Master and Secretary Herbert Rivers, of St. Louis, Mo.

The contractors' committee included: E. P. Palmer, of New Nork, chairman; H. A. Dick, of Portland, Ore.; J. S. Miller, of Pittsburgh; B. P. Larkin, of Ridgefield, N. J.; E. J. Dunnican, Sr., of St. Paul, Minn.; B. F. Modglin, of San Francisco; W. A. Klinger, of Sioux City, Ia.; A. C. Tozzer, of New York; W. S. Bellows, of Houston, Tex., and George B. Walbridge, of Detroit.

A. F. L. Calls to Convention

The American Federation of Labor has issued its call for the fifty-ninth annual convention, which will be opened in Cincinnati, O., Oct. 2.

At 10 o'clock Monday morning, in the Hall of Mirrors, Netherland Plaza, the convention will be opened for business, to be kept open "until the business of the convention shall have been completed."

The call, signed by the Executive Council, specified that representatives will be on the following basis:

From national or international unions, for less than 4,000 members, one delegate; 4,000 or more, two delegates; 8,000 or more, three delegates; 16,000 or more, four delegates; 32,000 or more, five delegates; 64,000 or more, eight delegates; 128,000 or more, seven delegates; 256,000 or more, eight delegates, and so on.

From central bodies and state federations, and from local trade unions not having a national or international union and from federal labor unions, there will be allowed one delegate.

Many problems of paramount importance are scheduled to come before the convention, including political attitudes, the question of relief and other significant topics.

"Our Fifty-ninth annual convention will be the largest ever held," the call stated. "More delegates will be in attendance, and a larger number of visitors will be present. The economic, social and industrial problems which we have faced during the past year will be considered and acted upon by delegates in attendance at the convention. Definite plans for the extension of American Federation of Labor unions into unorganized fields will be formulated at this convention."

PRAYER

God, thou Father of us all, we praise thee that thou hast bound humanity in a great unity of life so that each must lean on the strength of all, and depend for his comfort and safety on the help and labor of his brothers.

We invoke thy blessing on all the men and women who have toiled to build and warm our homes, to fashion our raiment, and to wrest from sea and land the food that nourishes us and our children.

Grant us wisdom to deal justly and fraternally with every man and woman whom we face in the business of life.

Since the comforts of our life are brought to us from afar, and made by those whom we do not know nor see, grant us organized intelligence and power that we may send the command of our righteous will along the channels of trade and industry, and help to cleanse them of hardness and unfairness.

May the time come when we need wear and use nothing that is wet in thy sight with human tears, or cheapened by wearing down the lives of the weak. Save us, we beseech thee, from unconscious guilt.

Speak thou to our souls and bid us strive for the coming of thy kingdom of justice when thy merciful and saving will shall be done on earth.—Prayers of the Social Awakening, Walter Rauschenbusch, Boston, Pilgrim Press.

Bus Company Thwarted in Attempt To Use CIO Against American Federation of Labor Union

Detroit.—An attempt to use the "closed shop" to force workers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor into a CIO organization alleged to be company-dominated has been thwarted by a board of arbitration decision handed down at Huntington, W. Va.

The organizations involved are Division 1171 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, affiliated with the A. F. of L. and with international headquarters here, and Local 919 of the CIO Transport Workers. Their members are employes of the Ohio Valley Bus company.

"Squeeze Play" Tried.

The Ohio Valley Bus company recently entered into a "closed shop" agreement with the CIO organization. The latter promptly demanded that the Amalgamated men pay $15 initiation fees, and join up, or be discharged. They paid the initiation under protest and after considerable negotiation were successful in forcing he question to arbitration. A board was formed consisting of Dr. P. T. Ellsworth, of the University of Cincinnati, chairman; O. David Zimring, of the labor bureau of the middle west, Chicago, representing the Amalgamated association, and John B. Easton, representing the CIO.

The arbitration hearings brought out evidence to show that the Ohio Valley Bus company had on two occasions in the past formed, dominated and supported "company unions." Its workers who refused to be coerced formed Division 1171 of the Amalgamated association. Some of them were discharged. The labor board upheld their contention that the discharges were solely for union activity. One was reinstated with back pay and others were ordered reinstated.

"Closed Shop" Ruling.

The arbitration board said in its decision:

"While in no way denying the desirability in general of a closed shop contract, when such is in force between an employer and a bona fide union, it is the opinion of the board that to compel members of Division 1171 of the Amalgamated association, admittedly a bona fide union, to join Local 919, would, in view of all the circumstances, be unjust to these workers. Therefore it is the recommendation of this board that ... closed shop provision of the ... tract between Local 919 and ... Ohio Valley Bus company ... be inapplicable to members of ... vision 1171, and that the ... and regular initiation fees ... dues paid by them into escrow ... returned to them."

The article of arbitration ... both parties to accept the decision. They also agreed that there ... be no appeal from the decision ... the national labor relations board or any other agency.

Molders Appeal to Union Support of Moore Heaters

To All Central Bodies Affiliated With A. F. of L.

Dear Brothers:

The Central Trades and Labor Council of Will county is asking your assistance and co-operation in behalf of Molders Local No. 221, affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, in what we believe is a plan new and novel in conception for the breaking of the depression and the advancement of organized labor.

As you know, Joliet, Ill., is one of the great steel manufacturing centers of the United States. Among the important allied activities is the Moore corporation. This company has been engaged, for 83 years, in the manufacture of cooking and heating appliances—coal and gas ranges, coal-gas and oil-gas combination ranges, furnaces and circulating-radiating heaters for coal, oil and gas. Union workare are employed in their plant 100 per cent.

In 1857 the House of Moore's was founded and dedicated to the advancement of a newly created standard of quality in the manufacture of stoves and heating equipment. Down through the years every product which has borne the name of "MOORE'S" has exemplified the ideal of highest quality and greatest value, while union workmen have put the best of their experience, skill and artistry into their work.

The Moore corporation, one of the leading manufacturers in Joliet, has been in business for 83 years and is responsible for over 50 per cent of all major improvements in cooking and heating appliances which have been developed.

In 1888 Moore's made the first porcelain enameled heater available to the American home.

Moore's designed and built the first original warm air circulating heater in 1891.

Moore's patented the first lifting key plate.

Moore's introduced time and temperature control by the invention of the controller damper, the cooking chart and oven thermometer.

Moore's pioneered the double duty burner for gas ranges.

Moore's made and perfected the first one-piece cast iron top for gas ranges.

Moore's developed the first cast iron steel girder construction with floating enameled parts for gas ranges.

Moore's designed and patented the first broiler that raises without opening drawer or touching broiler pan.

Pioneering at Moore's still goes on and this pioneering has the backing of Molders Local No. 221, and the Central Trades and Labor Council of Will county, Illinois. All are working for the advancement of organized labor to overcome present unsettled conditions.

Your co-operation is asked in bringing to the attention of the delegates of your central body, its affiliated unions and all members of organized labor within your territory that there has been long and pleasant relations between the Moore corporation and its several hundred workers. Your support in "pushing" Moore's products in your territory will not only reflect itself favorably to Molders Local No. 221, but will have widening benefits to union workers in other industries if this one is successful. Its success or failure depends entirely upon our brothers' support.

Like all lines of organized labor, Molders Local No. 221 has suffered from present worldwide economic conditions. This craft has likewise been affected by inroads made by non-union manufacturers. Molders Local No. 221 has created a new philosophy of labor—boosting and paying tribute to the Moore corporation, who, as employer, has always been fair to union labor and who is organized 100 per cent. The Molders Local, No. 221, is seeking to work constructively for the organized labor movement by boosting union-made products, rather than using the negative thought of asking that products of non-union competitors be placed on the "We Do Not Patronize" list. They believe that action of this kind will be unnecessary in the future if central bodies, affiliated unions and members of organized labor will push with best only union-made products, such as the ranges, heaters and furnaces manufactured by the Moore Corporation of Joliet, Ill., instead of "blasting" non-union products and competitors, who, at the best, are poor competition.

The Central Trades and Labor Council of Will county, Illinois, joints Molders Local No. 221 in asking your co-operation and support in this fine program of boosting union-made products and manufacturers like the Moore corporation.

We are enclosing a handy stamped and addressed postal card in order that we may ascertain to what extent we are able to arouse a friendly attitude in this movement. We will appreciate it if your secretary will kindly fill in this card and drop it in the mail.

There is also enclosed a press release which Molders Local No. 221 is asking that you turn over to your local labor paper, or, if you have no publication connected with your Central Body, you will hand to your local paper having friendly relations with organized labor.

Fraternally yours,

W. E. WRIGHT,
Recording Secretary
Central Trades and Labor Council of Will County.

HERBERT KRIEGER,
Recording Secretary

Int'l Woodworkers' Federation Will Send Delegates to Building Trades Dept. Convention

Washington, D. C.—The International Federation of Building and Woodworkers will be represented in the annual convention of the building and construction trades department of the American Federation of Labor in Cincinnati Sept. 24 to 30, President John P. Coyne, of the department, announced.

The delegation will be headed by Richard Coppock, president of the international federation, who is also general secretary of the National Federation of Building Trades Operatives of Great Britain and Ireland.

The purpose of the visit is to discuss international aspects of the building industry.

"It is the first time," said President Coyne in making the announcement, "that our European brethren have attended one of our conventions and it is not unlikely we will send delegates to theirs. There is much in common and we can learn from one another."

It is probable that the international federation delegates will visit many American cities.

600,000 BRITISH RAIL MEN THREATEN STRIKE

According to press dispatches from England, some 600,000 organized railroad employes, after six months of fruitless negotiations with the representatives of the British railroads on the question of increased wages, decided to strike unless the railway magnates agreed to pay a minimum weekly wage of 50 shillings in place of the present minimum of 45 shillings.

Industry Must Operate Well Above 1929 To Make Work for All, A. F. L. Says

Washington, D. C.—Pointing out there has been a large increase in the number of workers seeking jobs since 1929, the American Federation of Labor monthly report on trade union unemployment declares that industry will have to operate at levels well above 1929 if all wage-earners are to have work.

"Actually, our productive industries as a whole in 1939 have averaged 20 per cent below the 1929 level," the report adds.

500,000 Back to Work

The report, headed "Ten Years of Unemployment," says:

"Striking business improvement in June, 1939, raised the production index 5 per cent and put 500,000 back to work; unemployment was reduced from nearly 10,900,000 to 10,400,000. Trade union figures for July (weighted) show no change since June in the general employment situation with 10.4 per cent unemployed each month. Building tradesmen suffered layoffs in July because of cuts in WPA forces, but with this exception there were no more than the usual seasonal declines, and in one trade, printing employment gained slightly, which is unusual at this time of year.

"This is the tenth year of serious unemployment in the United States. The 10,400,000 out of work in June represents a rise of 8,500,000 since 1929. This is due to an increase of 5,400,000 in our working population and a decrease of 3,100,000 in the jobs available for them. With this large increase in job seekers, industry will have to operate at levels well above 1929 if all are to have work.

Millions of New Unemployed

"The building industry, operating 44 per cent below 1929, is responsible for a loss of 1,250,000 jobs; manufacturing, at 21 per cent below 1929, has cut off another 1,250,000. Railroads, with their freight carloadings 40 per cent below 1929, have dropped 700,000; wholesale and retail stores, because of reduced sales, have cut off 350,000. Although power plants and telephone and telegraph companies are operating well above 1929 levels, 200,000 jobs have been lost in our utilities, due chiefly to labor-saving devices; mining industries have dropped 300,000.

"This makes a total of 4,000,000 lost jobs. However, increased employment in the Federal government, in schools and in a few industries such as restaurants and drinking places, has offset part of the job loss by adding 900,000 jobs since 1929; this adds up to the above noted net job loss of 3,100,000. This, with the 5,400,000 new workers, adds to a total of 8,500,000 new unemployed.

"These new unemployed have counted heavily on WPA, which has in the past often provided for more than 3,000,000. Today WPA is cut to 2,418,000, and further reductions will follow rapidly. Relief rolls of 1,645,000 in May included several hundred thousand unemployed."

Drive Begins to Organize 10,000 N.Y. Chinese Restaurant Workers

NEW YORK.—An organization drive to bring the approximately 10,000 workers in Chinese restaurants in Greater New York into the fold of the A. F. of L. is now under way, Miguel Garriga, international vice-president of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes International Alliance and Bartenders International Leangue of America, announced here.

Garriga said that a charter would shortly be issued for a Chinese restaurant workers local union.

At the same time, Garriga stated, official action was contemplated to lay before the proper authorities widespread cases of Chinese restaurant owners evading the social security and unemployment insurance laws.

Unbelievably low scales of pay under almost incredibly bad working conditions prevail in the industry, according to Garriga. He said that the pay for waiters ranges from $5 to $15 a month in some of the larger places and up to $25 a month in the smaller places where tips are even less than the trifling ones in the larger establishments.

The prevailing wages for chefs and dishwashers are $80 a month and $50 to $60 a month, respectively.

Hours average from 12 to 16 a day, and while the workers are supposedly entitled to regular meals, workers have placed evidence before Garriga that the food often consists of only the leftovers which no longer can be served to customers.

Truck Drivers Union Wins Milwaukee Strike

Milwaukee, Wis.—Truck Drivers Local Union No. 200 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, won a two weeks' strike against six wholesale grocery establishments here.

Union spokesmen said the agreements negotiated call for practically a closed shop, a guarantee of 44 hours work a week, with preference to the union men for overtime, one week's annual vacation with pay and pay for holidays.

The agreements also contain a stipulation that after the 42-hour week prescribed by the federal fair labor standards act becomes effective next Oct. 24 the employes will be paid overtime for all hours worked in excess of 42. In slack periods non-union men will be laid off before union members.

TEACHER TALK

As we review the national convention of the A. F. T., we find significance in the fact that one of the first subjects discussed was that of slashes in state educational budgets. A delegate from New York state charged that the State economic council has been responsible for many of the attacks on education there, and said that it is tied up "with reactionary, vested interests." The federation's defense tactics, he told the delegates, are "to make the fight for the preservation of the schools and preservation of the children. We can enlist the support of the small merchants, the small home owners, the parents' organizations. These people have nothing to gain by cuts in the educational budget, and they can be made to realize what the threat to education will mean to their children."

Delegates from several of the states emphasized the increasing dependence of the communities on federal aid, and the delegate from Wisconsin accused Gov. Heil of attempting to wreck the financial basis of education by introducing bills calling for limitation and cuts in the budgets for higher education and state aid.

A delegate from Philadelphia declared, anent the reactionary administration there, that "Teachers are learning that they have a real stake in the political fate of their state and they are losing their indifference to the tactics of reactionary parties controlled by big business."

The issue is graver than the laymen is likely to suspect. Dr. Franz Boaz, Columbia scientist and educator, and an anthropologist of worldwide fame, pointed out the larger effects upon our democracy that can be expected to follow the opposition to free public education as it should develop. "We all know that on the whole our schools are administered on purely authoritarian principles. The board of trustees or board of education controls the principal. The principal controls the department heads, the heads of departments control the teachers. This is all too frequently the type of administration of large schools, colleges and even universities, a system which precludes a healthy development of intellectual and spiritual freedom." Dr. Boas attacked a report brought out by the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York which, he said, "gave a mass of information on the behavior of descendants of various nationalities in the United States." He also charged that the report contained fascist and nazi ideology in its definition of the purpose of education. He quoted the report as saying: "As we see it, the great purpose for which the schools were founded was to preserve and strengthen the state by making better and abler citizens. Other benefits derived from it are secondary. There are many of them and they are important, but the preservation and strengthening of the state is the big objective." "This is fascist and nazi ideology," Dr. Boas said. "It asserts that the individuals composing the nation are there for the sake of the state, to whose interest the individual must be sacrificed. In a democratic nation the state is a means to further the well-being and happiness of the individuals. If I were to summarize the recommendations of the chamber of commerce in a crude, exaggerated form, I might say that they demand as aims of education the teaching of humility, so that the poor may accept with gratitude what is given to them; health, that they may be able to work effectively for their employer; and ignorance, that they may not ask questions."

Dr. Jerome Davis, retiring president of the federation, declared that the depression "has resulted in launching attacks on American education which, if successful, would undermine the very foundations upon which free public schools have been built." There are those today who question whether free public schools are worth the cost. Others would abolish free tuition and introduce the fee system. This proposal, of course, emanates from those so comfortably situated economically that their children would not suffer. Others charge that we are padding the curriculum with all sorts of useless fads. In our fight for maintenance of free education, we are fighting not for ourselves, but for the continuation of democracy. With fascism on the march in Europe, with the outbreak of a world conflict possible at any moment, we must stand guard against retrenchment in education, and for advance in the school system. If democratic ideas, values and standards are to be embodied in the thought life of America, it is the schools which will achieve this end. We must train the rising generation to recognize that democracy is impotent unless it is implemented in an economic life which is democratically organized.

"The school has a responsibility to help students to examine society critically and to weigh its practices. In fact, unless the school does this, society stagnates or decays until severe crisis or explosion occurs. Society should, therefore, protect the school in its critical and analytical functions," he told the convention.

Dr. George S. Counts, president-elect of the federation, expressed the view that communities, states, and finally the federal government were needed in order to give adequate support to the kind of education necessary to the life of a democracy, insisting that federal support "seems to be the only way to equalize educational opportunity, one of the prime objectives of a successful democracy."

On this subject of federal aid, which we in Tennessee need more than do most of the other states, George L. Googe, southern regional organizer of the A. F. of L., told the convention that labor will make it a dominant issue in the 1940 elections. "There is only one way to preserve the gains we have made under the great humanitarian in the White House," he said. "That way is for all of the progressives to get together in a united program."

Run-Off Election at Kingan Co. Plant In Indianapolis Won by Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workers

Indianapolis, Ind.—The Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, A. F. of L. affiliate, has again defeated the United Packinghouse Workers, a CIO union, this time in a run-off election conducted at Kingan & Co.'s big packing plant at Indianapolis by the national labor relations board.

The A. F. of L. union defeated the CIO union in the first election; but because a large number of employes voted for no union representation a run-off election was ordered, with the Amalgamated the only union on the ballot. It is alleged by A. F. of L. officials that the CIO union appealed to the workers to vote against the Amalgamated. The Amalgamated won the run-off election by a vote of 898 to 633.

A closed union shop agreement with the company was signed by the Amalgamated following its first victory and negotiations for a new contract have just been completed. The new agreement increases pay 6 cents an hour for men, 4½ cents for women, guarantees 36 hours of work per week and provides for a 44-hour week, to be reduced to 42 as the law requires, time and one-half for overtime, double time for Sundays and holidays, seniority and vacations with pay.

The Amalgamated has signed agreements covering employes of Kingan & Co.'s principal plants at Richmond, Va., Philadelphia, Pa., and Storm Lake, Ia. All branch plants are under contract. It employs about 7,000 of the Amalgamated's membership and is the fifth largest company of its kind in the United States.

Richmond Unions Picket Two Anti-Union Concerns

Richmond, Va.—The Richmond Building and Construction Trades council, affiliated with the A. F of L. building and construction trades department, picketed the offices of the Laburnum Construction corporation and the shoe store operated by R. C. Longan, Inc. Union officials said the construction company had refused to employ union labor on work being done to the L'Pell shop in the Arcade building and that the shoe store management had let a contract for construction work to Doyle & Russell, a firm which declined to use union labor.

300 PLUMBERS STRIKE FOR $13 DAILY WAGE

Washington, D. C.—Members of the Washington local of the United Association of Plumbers and Steam Fitters of the United States and Canada, an A. F. of L. affiliate, voted to strike against the employing plumbers organized in the Plumbers' Guild because of their refusal to sign an agreement raising the daily wage from $12 to $13. The strike order involved approximately 300 plumbers and affected a number of public buildings in course of construction.

Union officials said the $12 rate rate had prevailed since 1929, and that union members felt they were entitled to a raise.

House Committee Investigating Un-American Activities Fills Vital Need in Exposing German-American Bund.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington between-sessions doldrums has been broken by a highlight of unusual brilliance. This is the investigation by Representative Martin Dies' committee on un-American activities of the German-American Bund.

Chairman Dies seems to have stumbled upon something worthy of the attention of a committee of congress. Hitherto, the committee has shown a disposition to "view with alarm" every shade of thought and every form of organization not bearing the stamp of approval of the Liberty league, Ham Fish, the D. A. R. or the National Association of Manufacturers. Bogies were conjured up in every attic and "made in Moscow" ghosts in every attic except those belonging to the Tory wing of the republican or the Bourbon wing of the democratic parties.

The committee has shown a marked blindness to such un-American activities as the assault upon democratic rights of wage earners in which have been found usurpation of the military functions of government, expensive and vigorous ballyhoos to mislead the voters of great states; conducted in the self-assumed name of agriculture, patroitism, etc., etc.

Exposures of these transgressions of Americanism, frequently through the use of force, have been left to the more realistic committee on civil liberties, headed by Senator La Follette.

Now, the Dies committee seems to "have something." Its fishing expedition into the operations of the "Bund" indicate that it will serve a constructive purpose by going further into the various "shirt" rackets.

As near as has been so far learned, these buffooneries have for their principal purpose the furnishing of abundant material for sustenance and inflation for the megalomania of various screwballs. The testimony of Fuehrer Fritz Kuhn, of the Bund, furnished an enlightening case study. When first appearing, he assumed the boorish arrogance of the traditional Prussian drillmaster. When his table pounding, shouting "liar," refusal to answer questions, etc., had exhausted the patience of the committee, he proceeded to curl up in typical bully fashion. He was being browbeaten, he whined, the committee was unconstitutional, he wanted the protection of legal counsel, etc., etc.

As revealed, the operations of his organization has for a front an amazing collection of "heiling," heeling and toeing, goose stepping and other caperings. The actual objective appears to be that of reducing youths of German descent to be Germans first, in all that the present Germany implies, and Americans so far as necessity and expedience impel.

The dark-haired, swarthy fuehrer was clear on one point, that of "Nordic supremacy." Speaking with a strong Teutonic accent, he was certain as to the opposition of his bund to "der Chews." The grievance seemed to be that the Jews had achieved much greater influence than that to which their proportionate 4 per cent of the population entitled them. Just how the contributions and rewards of the Jewish and other elements in our American set-up were to be decimal pointed was not developed.

Our fellow-citizens of recent German, Irish, Scandinavian, Italian, Polish and other descents are making a fine contribution to the America toward which we are looking by building loyalty and understanding of democratic ideals upon the foundation of rich ancestral devotion to the same spirit.

Lifting the lid from such organized efforts to pervert this fine Americanism is a simple act of justice and vindication to them.

Kefauver Swept Into Congress Wednesday

Wins By Nearly 4 to 1 Majority

Estes Kefauver is the new congressman from the Third district! He was elected yesterday by an overwhelming majority which indicated that voters generally approve of President Roosevelt's program for helping the working man. Mr. Kefauver ran on a New Deal platform which upholds the Wagner act, housing program, social security, unemployment benefits, and all the other measures that have been advocated for years by the American Federation of Labor.

Labor generally feels that it has a friend in congress in Mr. Kefauver. Although quite young for such an important post, he has demonstrated to his folks at home that he is plenty big enough for the job.

Many are predicting that in due time he will become known as a statesman and that the place left vacant by the death of Congressman Sam D. McReynolds will be filled with the same high qualities and abilities of Mr. McReynolds.

The Labor World congratulates the voters of the Third district.

TYPO BARBECUE PROVES TO BE BIG SUCCESS

Union-Labeled Prizes Awarded in Spite of Fitful Rain.

Last Sunday was a big day at Pan Gap as the members and families of Chattanooga Typographical union staged their first barbecue, which is believed will turn out to be an annual affair.

Chairman Harry Maupin, of the arrangements committee, assisted by Ruby Williams, Ted Kirby and H. B. Stephenson, were given a situation in the barbecue department. Under their splendid management things worked out smoothly. They were assisted by the ladies' auxiliary in serving, and they made the potato salad, which was about the best ever made.

The transportation committee, composed of Horace Carpenter, Turner Bell and Horace Cathy, must have done good work, for at least 300 people came out.

Although an occasional drizzle of rain tried to spoil the day, the prize events were handled smoothly under President Jack Worthington and Levi Williams. Don White won a union-labeled shirt in the sack race, and Mrs. George Rice got for herself a nice pair of union-labeled hose for being the swiftest in the 50-yard dash.

The race for "old men" over 40 was won by Delegate George Brimlow. He ran pretty fast in the recent race for delegate also, and he won four pairs of union-labeled sox.

Little Billy McKenzie won in the race for children under 6, Jerry McKenzie in the race between 6 and 12, and Alfred Miller in the race for children over 12. All were given a box of union-made candy for their successful efforts.

JOHNSON FREIGHT LINE EMPLOYEE SHOOTS INTO PICKET LINE AND WOUNDS THREE

Office Worker Arrested And Placed Under Heavy Bond

R. L. Osborne, an office employe of the Johnson Freight lines, last Wednesday night fired point-blank into a group of pickets that were several rods away from the company office. The place has been on strike since Friday, when nineteen out of twenty-three employes left their jobs upon definite refusal of the company to bargain with the union.

It is related by eye-witnesses that Osborne came whizzing from the shipping yard in his car, made a skidding halt before the pickets who were sitting down in a group, pulled a pistol and fired point-blank, wounding three union men.

It is said that he then went up the street quite a distance, turned around and started back by the pickets, who had had time to arm themselves with bricks, which they used in self-defense.

Osborne was arrested on three charges of felonious assault and carrying a pistol. He made bond.

State Electricians Hold Council Meet Here Last Sunday

Delegates from all electrical unions in Tennessee met in Chattanooga last Sunday for an all-day session concerning problems of their trade. The meeting was in Local 175's new hall on McCallie avenue.

Mr. Bill Keese addressed the unionists regarding insurance companies' interest in assisting them in drawing up safe electrical codes with a view of reducing fire losses.

Mr. S. R. Finley, manager of the Electric Power board, explained the policies and aims of public power.

Mr. McMurchy, director of the safety division of TVA, made a talk on regulations that affect safety.

Clayton E. Miller, business agent for the Memphis electricians, and vice-president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, presided over the sessions.

Bradley & Bandy Kicks Out Union

Bradley & Bandy drug store, Sixth and Market streets, this week surrendered their union card to the Culinary Workers' union. HOLLAND FURNACE CO. ROARS AND THREATENS "RECOURSE"

Doesn't Like Being Placed on Central Body "Unfair" List

The Labor world got a telephone call this week from a person who said that he was "manager" of the Holland Furnace company. Here is the conversation as near verbatim as possible:

"Does your paper say that the Holland Furnace company is 'unfair?'"

"It does," says the editor.

"On what grounds?" said the voice.

"On the grounds that Central Body declared you 'unfair,'" said the editor.

"Well, we have a national agreement with the A. F. of L. that says we will sign up when you have 51 per cent organized, and you do not have 51 per cent. We are going to take whatever recourse possible against you fellows," said the voice.

"That's what lawyers are for," the editor informed the voice. "See your lawyer, not me. That's what he is for."

And the phone banged up.

The Holland Furnace company does not hire union men, fellows, and he does not like to be called "Unfair to Organized Labor."

And maybe his customers do not like his non-union employes, either. Hence the whooping and hollering.

RAGLAND-POTTER CLOSED TIGHT AS THREE UNIONS CALL STRIKE

Wholesale Grocery Firm Not Concerned With Raising Food Prices

Ragland-Potter, wholesale grocers, will not raise the prices on your food today because that necessity of life cannot be delivered by them to the retailers. All their employes, yes, every last one of them, members of bakery workers, teamsters and clerks, struck the place Tuesday.

The wholesale firm refused to bargain collectively to a conclusion with these three unions and strike action became necessary.

All the Ragland-Potter trucks are lined up in front of the building and nowhere to go.

King-Dobbs company, wholesale grocers, is operating under a 100 per cent closed shop agreement.

Milt Cooke Praises Home For Union Printers

Mr. T. R. Cuthbert,
Editor The Labor World,

Friend Remy:

A belated fulfillment of my promise to write you my impressions of the Union Printers Home. With my limited vocabulary, am afraid I cannot do justice to the only (and I say it without fear of contradiction) place of its kind on earth. However, here goes:

We will begin at the front gate and try and cover "the works," though I guess you have seen it and this is for those who have not. As we enter the archway the first thing we see is the union label, about twenty-five feet wide, made, I am told, of 85,000 separate and beautiful plants. All over the velvet-green lawn can be seen tens of thousands of every sort of beautiful flower you could imagine—and that is also the case in the rear of the home as far back as the hothouses. Behind these are the cattle barns, poultry houses and hog pens, where the very finest of stock in the state of Colorado is found. All this, you know, is kept in the very finest of methods by specialists in each line. Now we come back to the ground immediately surrounding the buildings. Here you will find shuffleboard, tennis and croquet courts for the entertainment of the residents who go in for these sports, all of which is well cared for by men who know their business.

Now let's go inside the main building: Everything here is first-class. The hospital facilities, for instance, are second to none. There are nine physicians and surgeons—all specialists in their lines, who are at all times available to every resident. The nurses, orderlies, housekeeper, dining room girls, maids, and even the porters, are well chosen, high-class people and, without exception, are very attentive and friendly. The meals, I venture to say, can be equaled only in the very best hotels in the country—plenty of everything for everyone. The home also maintains a first-class library, where any kind of respectable literature can be had by all. There is also a recreation room, where billiards, pool, chess and card games are available. Aside from this several kinds of entertainment are given weekly in a large auditorium, including one first-run picture (every Tuesday night) and church services every Sunday afternoon, orchestral concerts, etc. Everything all over the building is kept spotlessly clean, and there is absolutely no vermin of any kind to be found anywhere. In the rear of the main building are the tubercular sanatorium and the dormitory (two beautiful "twin" buildings) and the power plant. From the main building to all these are underground tunnels for the convenience of the residents and also for the transport of foods, clothing, etc. All laundry, cleaning and pressing are taken care of on various days of the week, and this is all called for and delivered to the rooms of the hospital patients. Those who are able deliver and call for their work, of course. About the grounds are rock gardens, drinking fountains, etc., all adding to the beauty of everything else.

I would not care to close without mentioning the genuine fellowship and fraternalism among the residents, which makes the word "Home" all that it signifies. The blind and infirm are looked after, without exception, I believe, by those who are more fortunate. Every day you see men who must suffer eternal darkness or those not able to walk being cared for on the grounds. All in all, it is a tonic for the soul to see the brotherly love practiced here at all times. As for the superintendent and matron, I think the International Typographical Union is very fortunate in having people of their type at the head of the institution. I say sincerely that the administration of the affairs here is "tops." No one is granted any special favors. We all share and share alike—which is as intended.

You probably know all this, but if you can see fit to publish this in whole or in part, I trust it may serve to bring some of our members a firmer realization of what they each own an 85,000th part of and of which they should all be proud that there is not one cent of debt on—in fact, there is quite a surplus in the Home fund. And all this accomplished and maintained at 40 cents per member per month. I have always been proud of my membership, but since coming and seeing and partaking of a share in this I can truthfully say I am doubly proud. I wish it were so every organized labor union could maintain a home of this kind. It is certainly an eye-opener to some of the union-haters who have been inside the gates. They have gone away "wiser men."

Fraternally,

MILT COOKE.

Agreement on Jurisdictional Strikes Declared Big Help to Building

Washington.—The recent management-labor agreement to eliminate jurisdictional strikes in the building industry already has released more than $100,000,000 in new construction, President John P. Coyne, of the A. F. of L. building and construction trades department, told the Rotary club here.

"This," he said, "means a lot of work for the 1,000,000 persons I represent. It means as much if not more work for men assembling heavy machinery in eastern factories, for men in the copper mines of Utah, Arizona and New Mexico, coal miners in Pennsylvania, men in the forests of the northwest, railroad men, and, if you please, workers in the cotton mills, for today a large amount of cotton goes into new construction. In a word, it helps everybody.

"That sort of thing—and we are getting a lot of it—is, I submit with all due respect to everybody, more practical than mere "pump priming.'

"We simply must get private construction going and that is our immediate contribution to that end."

UNION ACCORD AVERTS STRIKE IN THEATERS

New York.—A widespread jurisdictional strike involving the Associated Actors and Artists of America and the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada, which had threatened to paralyze the theatrical and motion picture industries, was called off here on Sept. 3 by an agreement between the two unions.

Under the agreement the American Federation of Actors will be dissolved and all its members will be admitted to a new union created by the Four A's, the American Guild of Variety Artists. This affiliate was set up after the charter of the A. F. A. had been revoked. Miss Sophie Tucker, president of the A. F. A., who was suspended by the Actors Equity association, an affiliate of the Four A's, and thus practically barred from stage appearance, was reinstated by Equity less than two hours after the agreement was announced.

Text of the Agreement.

The announcement of the signing of the agreement was made by Frank Gillmore, president of the Four A's. The text of the agreement, made public by Mr. Gillmore, follows:

"The controversy between the I. A. T. S. E. and the Four A's has been settled to the satisfaction of both internationals. The agreement given below is now in force. Any details will be worked out promptly by officers of the two internationals. The agreement follows:

"Agreement between the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (called IATSE) and the Associated Actors and Artists of America (called the Four A's).

"The parties have been engaged in a controversy which seemed likely to tie up the entire amusement industry. Realizing their responsibility to their members, the employers for whom they work, and the public, they have reached an agreement in settlement of the controversy as follows:

"1. In order to prevent a recurrence of the controversy now existing, the parties agree that the I. A. T. S. E. and the Four A's will enter into an agreement similar to that existing between the I. A. T. S. E. and the American Federation of Musicians. It is recognized that certain changes have to be made to make the agreement applicable to the Four A's. Subject to the consent of the American Federation of Musicians, the Four A's will become a party to the agreement now existing between the I. A. T. S. E. and the American Federation of Musicians with whatever revisions may be necessary to make the agreement applicable to the Four A's.

"8. The I. A. T. S. E. recognizes the jurisdiction of the Four A's as heretofore defined by convention and decisions of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, i. e., that the Four A's has jurisdiction over all performers in the amusement and entertainment world.

"3. The I. A. T. S. E. will concurrently revoke the charter heretofore issued to the American Federation of Actors.

"4. The I. A. T. S. E. will forthwith notify its locals all over the United States that the organization and the only organization having jurisdiction over variety performers is the American Guild of Variety Artists. And that such locals are to assist the American Guild of Variety Artists in every way, and that this assistance shall be mutual as between the I. A. T. S. E. and the American Guild of Variety Artists.

"5. All contemplated strikes arising out of the controversy shall be withdrawn. All litigation between the parties hereto shall be dismissed.

"6. The Four A's will cause all its branches to lift the suspensions of Sophie Tucker and Harry Richman.

"7. Neither party in the future will invade the jurisdiction of the other.

"8. The American Build of Variety Artists will admit all present members of the American Federation of Actors to membership without payment of initiation fees and without discrimination."

LUMBER AND SAWMILL WORKERS GET UNION SHOP AGREEMENT

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly.

American communists are singing mighty low these days. No longer do they split the welkin with praises of Soviet Russia as defender of democracy, freedom and light. Comrade Stalin has knocked the props right out of the argument that Soviet Russia is friend of democracy and foe of nazi-ism.

The Soviet-Nazi trade and non-aggression agreement did the trick and is taking a lot of the brashness out of communists here. They try hard to defend the Soviet-Nazi pact but it is plain their hearts are not in the job and that they are finding the going very rough. They could probably argue more convincingly on the thesis that the moon is made of green cheese.

Effect of the trade and non-aggression agreement on American communists was shown at the annual parade of the American League for Peace and Democracy, a communist "front organization." Parade was held in New York City, stronghold of the Stalinists. Last year it is said 15,000 to 20,000 marched. This year about 4,000 were in line, the New York Times reports. At a rally after the parade, speakers alternated between a defense of the pact as a blow at Germany and Italy and a confession that they were "confused" as to its ultimate significance. Chances are they won't be long confused as to its meaning. Rest of the world is not confused. It knows the pact for what it is, a blow at the democratic nations.

In all truth, the agreement must have been a tremendous shock to the communist rank and file. Leaders may not have been so much surprised, as they are fully aware of Comrade Stalin's capacity for duplicity.

In recent years the communists have based their tactics and whole policy on the idea of an inevitable war between Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia. So they gave up their program of revolution, for a time, and sought to woo American favor with every device of propaganda. The aim was American support for Russia in the event of war with Germany.

Former extremist measures and the ultimate program of communism were played down and specific reform measures advocated by the new deal and others were favored. Democracy, the antithesis of communism, was extolled to the skies. Even support of the hitherto hated church was sought.

Now comes Dictator Stalin shaking hands with Dictator Hitler and promising not to join any war on the Nazis! Years of communist effort to appear devoted to democracy apparently have been wasted effort, if Russia and Germany are to become chums. Sincere communists must be exceedingly peeved.

"Here we have been acting like good little boys, when we might have been raising hell and bringing the revolution," many must say. No wonder they are "confused."

So far, the communists have been doing a good job of making themselves ridiculous by their defense of the Soviet-Nazi pact. The more they talk, the weaker their arguments appear. Their labored explanations fail to convince but add to the gaiety of nations. And any gaiety is welcome in this time of world trouble.

TEACHER TALK

In Dr. George S. Counts, of Columbia university, new president of the American Federation of Teachers, we have a leader who commands the respect of the entire teaching profession in this country. By his public action and his books, as well as by his classroom work, he has aided the development and understanding of thousands of teachers in their role of building a democratic society. "School and Society in Chicago," "The Selective Character of Secondary Education," "Dare the Schools Build a New Social Order?" "The Prospects for American Democracy" have made him the most aggressive liberal in American democracy.

No one group will be in the ascendency under his administration of the federation, for he emphasizes a "vigorous and solidly unified organization which will draw into the A. F. T. all progressive forces in the teaching profession."

Dr. Counts intends making a national tour in order to present the case for joining the federation. From this alone we predict an increase in the rate at which our union is growing.

Dr. Counts' program follows:

I. The Extension of Democracy.

We should promote the development of a comprehensive program of education designed to sustain and advance the cause of democracy during the present critical period. This requires:

1. Intensified support of all measures (with particular emphasis on federal and state aid) designed to reduce and ultimately to remove inequalities of educational opportunity with respect to districts and regions, class, occupational, racial, national, and religious groups.

2. Reorganization and co-ordination of the tax structure of the nation on the principle of levying taxes according to ability to pay, of taxing wealth where it is found, and applying it where it is needed.

3. Establishment on the part of the school of the closest possible relationships with the democratic forces of the community and the formation of boards of education representative of the people.

4. Democratization of the organization, conduct, and administration of the school.

5. Organization of the life and program of the school to develop in the pupil those traits and dispositions essential to the democratic way of living:

a. A feeling of competence and confidence to deal with life.

b. An allegiance to the central democratic principle of human equality, brotherhood, dignity and worth.

c. A loyalty to the democratic process of free discussion, criticism and group discussion.

d. A mentality marked by fair-mindedness, integrity and scientific spirit.

e. A respect for and an appreciation of talent, training and character.

f. A sense of the fundamental social obligation to work.

g. An enlightened devotion to the general welfare.

6. The establishment of all forms of vocational and special training on a broad cultural base.

7. The support of all educationally sound measures, whether local, state or federal, designed to promote the education of adults.

II. The Teacher and the Community.

We should struggle for those conditions under which teachers may become dignified, honest and free, in the full awareness of their vital importance and heavy responsibility in guiding children and youth in the ways of democracy. This requires:

1. Support of all measures, organizational relationships and legislative enactments respecting the employment, promotion and dismissal of teachers which will guard the deepest and most abiding interests of pupils, teachers and community.

2. Support of adequate retirement legislation for teachers, and of general social security for all employes of the board of education, or educational institution.

3. Encouragement of teacher participation in the life of the community, defense of freedom of speech for teachers both as teachers and as citizens, and in short, demanding for the teacher all the rights of the citizen.

4. Struggle against all forms of discrimination against teachers because of race, religion, politics, sex, or marital status. Unwavering stand for tenure based squarely on merit; re-emphasis on the principle of civil service for teachers.

5. General drive for mobilization of funds and resources for the defense of teachers unjustly dismissed or deprived of their rights.

III. The Organization of Teachers.

We should build a vigorous and solidly unified organization which will draw into the American Federation of Teachers all progressive forces in the teaching profession. This requires:

1. Systematic Cultivation throughout the membership of the spirit of independence, power of critical judgment and capacities for leadership.

2. Defense of the principle that membership is open to all teachers alike, regardless of race, religion or politics.

3. Encouragement within the A. F. T. of critical analyses and evaluations of all political programs, but commitment of the union as a whole to no national party.

4. Recognition of the fundamental principle that adequate support of education requires the release of the productive forces of our economy so that expansions of the national income results.

5. Unification and democratization of the entire labor movement, co-operation of all democratic forces (including farmers and middle class groups), and participation in the organization of programs looking toward the increase of our productive energies. The teachers must participate in this unification and democratization.

6. Expansion of the services of the national organization to the locals, and development of fraternal relationships with other federations of teachers on the American continent.

7. The integration in "The American Teacher" of the practical and theoretical functional interests of teachers.

8. Active cultivation of friendly and co-operative relations between the locals of the A. F. T. and central labor bodies and the national organization of the American Federation of Labor.

FHA New Plan to Facilitate Building of Small Houses Reported Meeting Favor

Washington, D. C. — Favorable reception was reported by Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator, of the FHA's new plan to facilitate the financing and construction of homes costing less than $2,500.

McDonald said that the plan was widely viewed as a step forward in solving the problem of sound home ownership for families with small incomes. He said he expected a substantial number of such dwellings to be built during the coming year as a result of the FHA's more liberal terms under this section of the national housing act.

Plan Follows Long Study.

It was explained that the FHA had long been studying ways to bring home ownership within the reach of families not thus far conveniently able ot participate in the FHA's program. The results of these studies, the administrator said, induced the FHA to move toward extending this type of home building, especially in small towns and the environs of larger cities where land costs are low and neighborhood requirements and building codes are less restrictive.

He said also that these houses were especially adaptable for warm climates where basement and heating equipment are not necessary, pointing out that a fair number in this price range had already been built in the south and southwest.

Easy Terms Offered.

One of the features of the new plan under Title I. is that borrowers may have fifteen years to repay loans used for new residential construction. Furthermore, it is now possible for a prospective builder to borrow from an institution insured under Title I if he has cash or an interest in the land equivalent to 5 per cent of the total valuation of the completed property.

A loan may be insured under Title I for this purpose if the site is not eligible for the construction of a home financed with a mortgage insured under Title II. of the act, the major phase of the FHA's activities. A loan may be insured if the proposed new structure is substantially similar in tye and size to existing typical structures in the area, and if such large numbers of new single family dwellings are not being erected as to jeopardize the levels of values and rents in the community or to impair the continued marketability of these dwellings.

Padway Promises Finish Fight on Anti-Labor Law

Portland, Ore.—A fight to the finish against the Oregon anti-labor law was promised here by Joseph A. Padway, Washington, D. C., general counsel for the American Federation of Labor.

"We're going to take the Oregon law and tear it to pieces," Padway said. "I feel the United States supreme court will return the constitution to the people of this state."

Padway declared the A. F. of L. would push the fight against the union regulatory law, which recently was upheld by an Oregon circuit court decision. He also said the Oregon law, which labor charges curbs the rights of free speech and assembly, "is taking a determined twist in other states such as . . . Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and Pennsylvania."

State Troops Demobilized In Colorado Strike Area

Denver.—Gov. Ralph L. Carr on Aug. 29 demobilized the national guard troops which had patroled the Green Mountain federal dam project since Aug. 2, when seven men were wounded in a clash between A. F. of L. union members and vigilantes.

At Silverton, Colo., where CIO Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' union leaders want a union shop contract with the Shenandoah-Dives Mining company, A. S. Embree, of Denver, organizer for the MMSW, and Chester Yates, secretary of the Silverton local, were driven out of town on Aug. 28 by a mob which broke up a union meeting, according to reports made to Gov. Carr.

Gov. Carr demobilized troops at Kremmling, near the $4,000,000 dam and tunnel site on Green mountain, after A. F. of L. leaders and officials of the Warner Construction company, of Chicago, agreed on a union shop contract.

WARNS OF FASCIST DANGER

PITTSBURGH.—Unless the unemployment situation is solved, there is danger of a fascist upheaval in the United States, Msgr. John A. Ryan, professor emeritus of Catholic University, said here. Msgr. Just as the lighthouse flashes a friendly warning to sailors, so Nature sends out headaches, bad breath, biliousness, which often warn of constipation.

Too many misunderstand or neglect those symptoms and thereby may invite a host of constipation's other discomforts: sour stomach, belching, loss of appetite or energy.

A. F. L. Lumber Union Wins Good Agreement

Contract With Logging Company at Morton, Wash., Provides 40-Hour Week and Other Standard Union Conditions.

Morton, Wash. — Members of Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union No. 2767, chartered by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, are deservedly jubilant over the model union-shop, preferential hiring agreement negotiated with the Kosmos Logging company, of Morton.

The agreement, covering about 250 loggers, is replete with provisions adding to the security and welfare of the men who work in the woods.

Among the progressive clauses are those recognizing the union as the sole collective bargaining agency in the company's logging operations and limiting the regular hours of labor to eight hours per day and 44 hours per week except in case of breakdowns, with time and one-half for work performed on all Sundays and seven generally recognized holidays.

There are also provisions protecting the rights of the employes when transfers are made to different classifications of work and guard them against unwarranted suspension or discharge.

If a reduction in the force is made necessary, the agreement provides that men shall be laid off in the inverse order in which they were hired. When the force is increased the men are to be re-employed in the inverse order in which they were laid off, with the protective clause that no new employes shall be hired until the list of former employes is exhausted.

With regard to new employes the company agrees to give preference to members of the union when they are available and competent.

In addition, the agreement contains the following significant provision:

"There shall be no discrimination of any kind against any member of the union by the employer, foreman or superintendent because of union activities."

Finally, the agreement bans strikes and lockouts in the following language:

"During the life of this agreement no strike shall be called or sanctioned by the union and no lockout shall be ordered by the employer until every peaceable method of settlement of difficulties shall have been tried. At no time shall union employes be required to act as strikebreakers, go through picket lines or past armed guards."

Railroad Co. to Build 300 Cars at Reading

Reading, Pa.—Railroad shopmen are rejoicing at the announcement by Edward W. Scheer, president of the Reading company and the Central Railroad of New Jersey, that construction of 300 box cars would be begun at the Reading company shops here because of improved business conditions.

Scheer said the construction was a continuation of a program begun in April, 1937, when construction of 600 box cars, 50 steel flat cars and 50 cement hopper cars was authorized. During that year 300 box cars, the 50 flat cars and 50 cement hopper cars were completed, he said, but the program then was suspended "because of continued serious decline in our revenues."

OH, YEH?—

Moscow.—Pravda, newspaper organ of the communist party, declaimed editorially:

"Among the dirty intrigues of international swindle and the provocative gamble of war mongers, only our country, the great Soviet Union, is staying firmly aloof as a source of strength, honesty, and as a rock of world peace."

Green Asks End of Labor Rift And Co-operation of All in Solving Nation's Problems

Washington.—In a Labor day statement, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, urged co-operation by all to solve the nation's pressing problems, and asked an end of disunion in the labor movement.

"We urge every element in the nation's economic life," he said, "to join together in the coming year and try to solve our problems in a spirit of tolerance and reason. Something must be done about unemployment and business stagnation.

"Constructive action can be achieved if all sides will agree to let bygones be bygones and forget past hates in the emergency of present needs. The American Federation of Labor is ready to work with government, with industry and with the farmers in that spirit toward the common good.

"And in the same spirit of tolerance and reason, the American Federation of Labor appeals again for labor unity. Dualism only begets hatred and weakness. We urge every organization in the dual movement to come back home and take its rightful place in the democratic home of labor without penalty or discrimination of any kind. The door is open."

President Green also said that the American Federation of Labor had made considerable gains in membership since Labor day, 1937, and is now stronger than at any previous point in history. He pointed out that "hatred, intolerance, force and autocracy" menace the world, and said that the workers of America appeal to the workers of Europe to let their leaders know in unmistakable terms that they do not want war.

When your son or daughter is away at school, does your guiding influence remain at home?

As boys and girls leave for schools and colleges, homes are made lonely and the young people face homesickness and separation from the guiding influence of home.

The affectionate, sympathetic understanding present in homelife is difficult to maintain by letters, but by telephone, home ties can be kept alive and warm. Telephone visits at regular intervals with children away at school are as intimate as though the children were at home with you. They'll be happier, and do better work. And what a joy these inexpensive voice-visits will be to you.

The best plan is to arrange for your boy or girl to call home "collect" at regular intervals at a particular time. Then by using Station-to-Station service after 7 P. M. or at any time on Sundays, you can talk 100 miles for 35c, 200 miles — 65c, and greater distances at correspondingly low cost.

By W. F. McCARTHY

Well, the picnic went over in a big way. Everyone we talked to on the grounds were enjoying themselves and having a good time. Many thanks to those who were on the grounds Sunday and Sunday night and worked so hard for the barbecue to be a big success, especially chairman of the committee Charlie Watkins. Sorry he had such a long walk to find the wood.

There was plenty of eats, as the writer saw several (but we would not care to call names) going after seconds, and sometimes thirds.

The highlights were:

Sammy Dykes . . . and what kind of meat was on that plate?

R. T. Settles going after seconds.

Willy Champion carrying three plates and trying to get some good shots with his camera.

Frank Meacham on the skating floor—did we say floor, or was it skates?

Corry Bacchus got young again, cutting figures on skates.

Patterson and Lideaux giving a skating exhibition. At any rate the spectators at the skating rink enjoyed an exhibition that never before, is, was.

As for the ball game, well, the best side won, with the aid of the umpires, etc. Head Coach Harry Smith's team appeared to be having difficulty in following Harry's instructions, or were they instructed? The outstanding event of the game was a one-hand catch in deep center field by Bill Bruening. The snappy fielding of Bird, Nave and Bud and Bird helped.

The base-running by Frank Bruening was another outstanding event.

Oh, but what a crowd of tired, but happy, people we were as the day ended. Our many thanks to Mrs. Carl Dickson and her manager for their co-operation in making the day a success, which it truly was for all those who turned loose for a day of fun.

C. E. Smith is back from a vacation in Florida.

E. Varnes and family are visiting in Hot Springs, Ark.

John Mayberry and T. E. March took their rest at home.

N. E. Parker and family vacationed in Knoxville.

W. J. (Willie) Hunt got tired of living in the city, so he packed up and moved to the country. He says you can take the boy out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the boy. But no sooner had the family gotten settled in the country than Willie packs up and moves back to town.

LOOKOUT INCLINE—The Incline employes are still going strong for 100 per cent union, and invite everyone out to see them and enjoy a trip up the Incline—the price is only 40 cents, round trip. There's one thing about these boys—they do have ups and downs in their work.

G. R. Bice has returned home after being called to Dallas, Tex., on account of the death of an uncle.

Believe it or not—E. S. Smith has lost 3 pounds. Congratulations, Smitty, old boy!

GOSPEL OF SUNSHINE

Never imagine that you are an exception.

There are nights when the king cannot sleep. There are days when the president cannot toil. There are days when the millionaire wishes that money had never been created. There are moments when the famous man wishes that human recognition were an impossibility.

"Rubs, snubs and drubs" enter into the experience of all. No man is trouble-proof. No man is carefree. No man is an exception.

Social Security Board Plans to Expand Field Service

Washington.—With the date for the payment of monthly old-age insurance benefits advanced to 1940, the social security board announced here that it is completing the program for expanding its field service to take care of the increased number of claims for old-age and survivors insurance payments. The board expects to add about 100 field offices and 200 branch offices as soon as practicable to the already-existing 332 units throughout the nation.

"Selection of communities for the new offices," said John J. Corson, director of the board's bureau of old-age insurance, "is being determined. These offices will be so placed as to give the greatest possible service to the public, particularly to workers and employers covered by the old-age and survivors insurance provisions of the social security act."

He added that the wage-earner population of a community and its geographical position are factors which will be taken into consideration in the determination of location of field offices.

"This expansion in the field service is necessary," Director Corson said, "to take care of a possible maximum of about 900,000 benefit claims of various types, with approximate value of $114,000,000, which may be filed in 1940."

The field offices, Corson said, will be supplemented by an "itinerant" service extended to approximately 700 smaller towns, making a total of more than 1,000 points of contact at which the board's representatives may be consulted. Most of the "itinerant" service will be handled by men in charge of branch offices. They will visit designated towns at stated intervals.

National Unemployment Increases In July Over June, A. F. of L. And Employers' Group Find

Washington.—Unemployment in July was higher than in June, the American Federation of Labor and the National Industrial Conference board, an employers' organization, agreed in reports on the job situation. Totals as estimated by the two organizations were different, the A. F. of L. figures being higher.

"After reaching a peak at the end of June," the A. F. of L. said, "industrial activity remained at about the same level through July. Since there was no industrial expansion this year, a number of industries felt the effect of the summer dull period.

Building Jobs Gain.

"The building industry was in contrast to others. With the steady increase in home building through FHA insured mortgages, together with increased activity in other private building lines, employment continued to rise in July. In construction and roads, 44,000 were added to payrolls. The railroads also increased employment, adding 9,000.

"On the whole, however, summer lay-offs exceeded gains and there was a total employment decl... nearly 150,000. Our estim... all workers in the United ... showed 10,560,000 out of w... July compared to 10,863,0... June. This compares with 1... 000 in July last year.

"Trade union members r... ing for August show an em... ment gain, suggesting that in... try is now increasing a... again, preparatory to a fall ... season."

Question of Faulty Equipment Raised in Nevada Train Wreck

New York.—The Hotel Restaurant Employes union (AFL) has asked Atty.-Gen. Murphy to investigate the wreck in Nevada of the streamliner, City of San Francisco, on grounds it may have been caused by faulty equipment and neglect of the road.

George E. Brown, international vice-president of the union, said in a letter to Murphy that railroad workers can give "conclusive proof" that economies by the railroad industry have resulted in improper servicing of equipment.

"Passenger and freight equipment," Brown said, "are kept in service day after day without proper inspection or repair.

"We believe this to be an important, if not a major factor, in the wreck of the ill-fated streamliner," he added.

Prior to the strike three men ere discharged. These men dis- harged will be paid all wages st, and in addition a 15 per cent ay hike was secured, with a nice eduction in the number of hours r week.

ity Commissioners Pledge That Law Will Not Be Altered This Year

In voting last week to ask the ty commission to have the teach- s' tenure law altered, the Cham- r of Commerce education com- ittee, of which Prof. S. J. Mc- ade, headmaster of a private hool is chairman, drew a vigor- s protest from the Chattanooga- amilton County Teachers Feder- tion's executive committee, and surances from Mayor Bass and ommissioners Betterton and oke that they would not support y proposed changes. The law, ng from 1935, had been drafted d supported by the teachers' on, and they prepared a letter ering all the charges made nst it by the Chamber of Com- erce committee.

The critics of the law say that ficials of the department of ed- ation are unable to exercise dis- tionary powers in dismissing in- ficient or otherwise undesirable achers or principals. On the con- ary, say the unionists, the city mmission has full power to act, th on the relevancy of the arges and on the adequacy of e proof presented.

Without the protection of a ten- e law, the letter points out, the hools are subject to the spoils stem and the evils that come om it.

The letter follows:

The Chattanooga Label League ll meet Friday night, Sept. 22, 8 o'clock. The members have en invited to meet in the new me of Local 175, so the meeting l be held at their building, 723 Callie.

All members and delegates are ged to be present.

Vocational School Starts Night Class

Registration for evening classes to be given at the Chattanooga Vocational School during the fall and winter term are to be taken Thurs' y and Friday, September 21-22, it was announced today, and all who are planning to attend trade and industrial, apprentice, commercial, home-making, or distributive education classes are asked to register at the new building, 215 Chestnut Street, on either of these two days.

The office at the school will be open until 9 p.m. on registration nights, and someone will be on duty from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock at night to give additional information regarding the evening school program.

This year an effort is to be made to schedule all evening classes on Monday and Thursday evenings. If there are some groups, however, who cannot meet on these two nights, another time more suitable to the members of the class may be selected.

According to the plan as announced, the classes will meet from 7 to 9 p.m., the first meeting of the classes being scheduled for Sept. 25. To begin with, all classes will meet at the new building, which is much better suited for evening school work than the old plant, which has been used in the past.

In the past, blueprint reading, shop mathematics, sketching, drafting, sheet metal layout, welding, foundry practice, electrical, machine shop practice, printing and commercial art classes were offered to those employed in these occupations. In addition, classes in home-making, and classes for those working in the distributive occupations, which includes sales people and clerks, have been available. Commercial courses, including typing, bookkeeping, shorthand and business English have been popular in the past, and a large enrollment is expected in the commercial department this fall.

In announcing the fall registration, Prof. Kirkman pointed out that it was very difficult to plan a definite course in the evening school because the school will organize and sponsor a class in any subject of less than college grade if as many as 15 persons register for the course. For this reason, those courses mentioned above are only suggestive and the list is not complete. The school wants to meet the needs of the people and if those interested in getting a certain class organized will make their desires known to the school, an effort will be made to give them the kind of class they want.

Cadek Society Says Not Responsible For Read House Party

Mrs. Roosevelt's Manager Brought Her to Read House Unaware of Situation.

That the Cadek Choral society did not make the arrangements last week which brought Mrs. Roosevelt to the Read House was made known to The Labor World in a letter from Mr. J. Oscar Miller, conductor of the civic chorus.

Last week Mrs. Roosevelt allowed a press conference at the Read House, inviting The Labor World to participate, and of course The Labor World could not attend the "Unfair" hotel.

Mr. Miller's letter quotes from a letter written by Mrs. FDR'S New York manager:

"You are probably very anxious to know just what arrangements are being made for Mrs. Roosevelt's appearance with you on Sept. 12. Mrs. Roosevelt will arrive in Chattanooga on the Southern train, 4:34 p.m., the day of her lecture. Mrs. Roosevelt is accompanied by her secretary and upon her arrival they will go directly to the Read House, where they are staying."

Pres. Gerald Foley Visits Chattanooga

President Gerald Foley, of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, has been in Chattanooga several days on business for the Federation. He has been of invaluable assistance in the successful signing of the Johnson Freight Lines to a closed shop contract. Without him the job would have been very difficult, according to the teamster officials.

Brother Foley was greeted warmly by his host of friends here. The welcome mat is always out when he comes to this fine city.

Higher Pay Gained By Denver Printers

Denver, Colo.—Denver Typographical Union No. 49 accepted the counter proposition from the publishers of the Rocky Mountain News and the Denver Post offering an increase in wages of $2.10 for day work and $1.90 for night work, bringing the day scale up to $45.55 a week for day work and $48.25 for night work, 36 hours to constitute a work week.

CEMENT FEDERAL LABOR UNION GOES OUT OF EXISTENCE HERE

Now Known as Local Number One of Newly Installed International Union in A. F. of L.

Federal Labor Union No. 18269, Cement Workers, went out of existence last week in St. Louis when President William Green formally installed a charter of a brand new international union, to be known as United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers' International union.

The Chattanooga local was granted charter No. 1 in the new international union on the grounds that Chattanooga was the first organization of cement workers in the United States. Since the ball was started to rolling here in this up and going city, 106 other groups of lime, cement and gypsum workers have organized to the tune of over 15,000 members.

The American Federation of Labor was thereupon petitioned for a national charter, and it was granted.

The first convention was held in St. Louis Sept. 11 through 16. The next convention will be in Columbus, O., in 1941. V. O. Cunningham represented Local No. 1 at the St. Louis convention.

The national officers named are William Schoenberg, president, and Tony Gallo the secretary-treasurer. W. A. Pritchett, of Birmingham, is the second vice-president and will serve this district.

At the convention the executive board of the new national union was authorized to apply for admission to the Building and Construction Trades council of the A. F. of L.

Philly Orchestra to Appear Here

The Chattanooga Community Concerts Association will present the famous Philadelphia Orchestra as a major event of the 1939-40 season, it has been announced by I. B. Merriam, association president. Two or more other notable musical attractions will be included in the year's all-star series. The annual membership campaign will be held next week, with headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce, 819 Broad street.

Everyone interested is invited to join Community Concerts during the campaign as no new members will be enrolled until next year and no single admissions will be sold to any concert. At the end of the campaign artists are booked with funds on hand. Thus no financial risk is run in sponsoring the artist series and an audience for each event is assured in advance.

Arrangements for the campaign are in charge of Mrs. Walter L. Lamb, campaign chairman; Mrs. Alex Steward, co-chairman; Mrs. William H. Pryor, membership chairman; Mrs. Linton Flemister, headqu.rters secretary, and Thankful Everett, publicity director. Clay Johnson is speaker for civic luncheon clubs.

AFL AUTO WORKERS JOIN TOLEDO METAL TRADES

Toledo, O.—The Toledo Metal Trades Department, affiliated with the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, announced that it had accepted as members three locals of the A. F. of L. United Automobile Workers of America. The secretary of the council said its membership was increased to more than 11,000 by the addition of the Automobile Workers.

HOLLAND'S MAGAZINE IS NONUNION

YOUR DOLLAR

YOUR DOLLAR will be a regular monthly feature. The facts and opinions given are beased on the monthly reports of Consumers' Union, 55 Vandam Street, New York City, a non-profit membership organization whose object is to safeguard buyers by testing and reporting on consumer goods. Note especially the information on labor conditions under which products are manufactured.

Real mayonnaise must contain at least 50 per cent edible vegetable oil, mixed with vinegar and a small amount of egg yolk. Samples tested by CU actually contained from 63 per cent to 80 per cent of oil. Products sold as "salad dressing," at about the same price as mayonnaise or a little cheaper, have no set standards. They contain much less oil and more vinegar, starch fillers and sometimes water, which may run as high as one-third of the bulk.

Off-size jars, imitating larger sizes, are sometimes offered. Premier mayonnaise, for example, is sold in 11-ounce jars for 29c, about the average price charged for a pint (16 ounces) of other brands.

CU found the following brands of mayonnaise offer best value for the price: Home-De-Lite (19c pint); Reeves' Best (21c pint); Krasdale (23c pint).

Dandruff.

Is it a germ that causes dandruff, the widely advertised coat-collar curse? And can it be attacked by Listerine? The federal trade commission seems to doubt it, for they've asked the manufacturers to cease advertising that science has found the dandruff germ, or that Listerine can kill it. As CU has pointed out before, Listerine does not constitute much of a menace to germs, even the existing varieties.

. . . and Acid Blood.

While housecleaning, the FTC also dragged out of the closet Alka-Seltzer's claims that colds, neuralgia, indigestion and other "common everyday ailments" are caused by acidity or deficient alkaline reserve of the blood, and that Alka-Seltzer is the proper treatment for such conditions. The company agreed to drop the claims. CU pointed out to its readers many months ago that only victims of serious organic disturbances, close to the point of death, have acid blood and that "alkalizers" are apt to be more of a threat than acidity.

Canned Pears.

You should get at least 20 ounces of fruit (drained weight) when you open a No. 2½ can of pears. That is the honest measure set by the U. S. department of agriculture. But only four of the forty-three brands tested by Consumers' Union this year came up to standard weight. The remainder had excess syrup, added to fill up the can.

The word "fancy" on the label is supposed to guarantee fruit of Grade A quality. But neither the four brands labeled "Fancy" nor any of the other brands tested were Grade A. Inspection of color, uniformity, absence of defects, ripeness, tenderness and texture showed up 34 brands as Grade B, and nine as Grade C. Pirces proved no indication of quality, with most of the Grade C brands priced far too high. The best brand tested was one of the lowest priced (18c). The most highly advertised brands were by no means the highest quality.

Auto Radios.

CU ran across some startling twins in testing fourteen auto radios. Sears' Silvertone Cat. No. 6301 and RCA Model M-70, both manufactured by RCA, appeared to be the same in construction, circuit and performance. Yet Sears sell their twin for $24.95 while its own papa, RCA, prices its model at exactly $20 more.

Two more twins are Firestone Air Chief, selling at $19.95 to $24.95, and General Electric Model GA-62 at $27.95. Both are made by General Electric.

Why the manufacturer's brand name should cost you more is not too clear, but you can draw your own conclusion about the need of looking behind the label when you buy.

A $24.95 radio, the Sears' model mentioned above, proved to be best quality among the fourteen sets, ranging in price from $20 to $50, tested by Consumers Union.

Union-Made Auto Radios.

Firestone, General Electric, Philco, RCA and Sears Roebuck radios are made under contract with the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, CIO; Arvin under contract with the United Auto Workers, CIO; Truetone under contract with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, AFL. Motorola is non-union.

Waterman Pens.

In December, CU reported that Waterman fountain pens were union-made. The situation has now changed. The union, Fountain Pen Unit Local 134, United Rubber Workers of America, has been unable to renew its contract and is out on strike.

Building Trades Strike In Philadelphia Ended

Washington. — Settlement of a strike of Philadelphia building trades workers called as a disciplinary measure against two local unions of plumbers was announced here by President John P. Coyne, of the A. F. of L. Building and Construction Trades Department.

The strike was called by the Philadelphia Building Trades council for alleged violation of a standard agreement between the council and a number of contractors.

Coyne's announcement followed a conference with Acting President George F. Masterson and general Organizer Michael J. Garrett, of the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters, and Joseph F. McDevitt, president, and Jasper White, of the building trades of Philadelphia council.

He said that the agreement, approved by the Philadelphia council, provides that contractors not members of the master plumbers organization will be permitted to make individual contracts with locals of the united association on the same terms as are accorded to members of the plumbing and heating contractors' organization save that of arbitrating differences.

In lieu of arbitration it is provided that before any strike of plumbers or steamfitters is called its grievance must be referred to the Building and Construction Trades council. And in the event of failure to work out an adjustment it shall be referred to the international office of the United association for action.

ity Housing Authorities Urged o Work in Close Co-operation ith Unions and Civic Bodies

hicago.—How the housing au- rity, a local governmental ncy that was first created in United States in 1933, is work- out its role with the co-opera- of federal, state and munici- governments is described in a ort released here by the Na- al Association of Housing Of- ls. The report urges close co- ration between housing authori- and organized labor.

Housing authorities have been up at the average rate of 40 ear to clear slums and to pro- adequate dwellings at low ts for those who could not af- them otherwise, it is pointed These authorities are estab- ed by local governing bodies ng under state law, and their grams are supported by fed- l, state and local contributions. A though a housing authority is independent public agency in al- st all states, it is part of the rnmental or public machinery its area, and it needs to co- rate with other public and pri- e agencies, the report says. epared as the first manual on al housing administration, the ort describes the best methods organizing and operating housing authorities, as developed in actual practice during the past few years, and recommends practices for the future.

Cooperation with the municipal health, welfare, police and education departments is recommended, because "a housing project is not an institution or a welfare colony but an integral part of the community," and needs regular community services.

The report also recommends especially close cooperation between housing authorities and civic institutions, such as chambers of commerce, labor unions, women's clubs, and private welfare agencies.

The world's shortest air-mail route was inaugurated when an autogiro made the first regular six-mile flight from the roof of the general postoffice building, Philadelphia, Pa., to Central Airport at Pennsauken, N. J. Congress authorized the service in 1937 to test feasibility of using autogiros to facilitate air-mail handling. Round trips require about 10 minutes each, 35 minutes faster than a round trip by truck.

Wage-Hour Administration to Camp On Trail of All Act Violators, Official Warns Employers

Atlanta, Ga.—Major Arthur L. Fletcher, assistant administrator of the wage and hour division of the United States department of labor, warned employers here that the fair labor standards act would be strictly enforced. He declared the act was the "best thing that has happened to the south in a mighty long time."

Fletcher spoke before a joint gathering of the Southern Garment Manufacturers' association and the Association of Southern Textile Mills and Piece Goods Houses. He said that he was speaking as a southerner and that the same methods of "keeping everlastingly" a t enforcement, which he recalled he used as commissioner of labor of North Carolina, would be used to enforce the act.

"Our inspectors will be constantly in the field, and a good many of the lawyers will be too," he said. "We are going to catch up with the complaints on hand, sift every one of them, and prosecute in every case where we consider prosecution necessary.

"For the benefit of those who believe that the economic destiny of the south is inevitably tied up to low wages I want to point out that low wages are an economic sword that cuts both ways. The ephemeral benefits low wages confer, low wages can also snatch away."

First Wage-Hour Act Violator Jailed—Gets Six Months

Elkins, W. Va.—Federal Judge William E. Baker recently ordered a trouser manufacturer jailed for six months for failing to comply with the wage-hour law.

Sanford Lerner, the defendant, was the first person to be sentenced to jail under the act, government counsel said.

Lerner is vice-president and general manager of the Standard Trouser company, Buckhannon, W. Va., and an official of the Crown Trouser company, Williamsport, Pa.

The order of the court stipulated that if at any time during the six months Lerner should make payments of $3,152.23 the government contended were due his employes, he would be released.

Better Be Cautious About Bus Fares

We have been reading in the papers from Nashville that the mayor of Nashville is actively insisting that the Tennessee Electric Power company must reduce its bus fares to 5 cents. At the same time he insists that Tepco must spend some $700,000 tearing up street car tracks and repairing streets.

We are not trying to put our noses into Nashville's business except where Nashville's business might possibly affect similar conditions in Chattanooga.

Neither do we claim to know a great deal about running a street car or bus system. We hope, however, that the greatest of thought will be given before further reductions are made in bus fares.

We have always advocated cheap transportation charges by our utilities, and whenever we have thought that they were too high, we have done all in our power to have the rates reduced.

In advocating rate reductions we have not advocated such reductions as to cause a reduction in wages of employes operating the systems.

We are afraid that further reduction in bus fares might jeopardize wages now in effect. Let us hope that wage rates will not be sacrificed to good political war-cries.

It might be possible to cut fares to 5 cents and yet allow a reasonable profit for the investor. We believe, however, that thin ice is being reached when 5 cents is discussed.

Jurisdiction Strike Ended in Youngstown

Youngstown, O.—A three weeks' strike of the carpenters local union here against the Youngstown $3,000,000 low-rent housing project was ended when the local's business agent received orders from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners in Indianapolis to return the men to work.

The walkout was precipitated by the action of the Youngstown Building Syndicate in giving certain metal trim work on the project to the lathers union. The carpenters claimed it belonged to their union. The strike was ended following the agreement reached by the building and construction trades department of the American Federation of Labor with the Associated Contractors of America that work stoppage due to building trades jurisdictional controversies should cease and the disputes turned over to the building and construction trades department for adjustment in accordance with the department's constitution.

Kroger Signs Clerks Closed-Shop Contract

St. Louis, Mo.—Officials of Retail Clerks union, Local No. 655, of the Retail Clerks' International Protective association, A. F. of L. affiliate, announced the renewal of the union's agreement with the Kroger Grocery and Baking company here.

One of the principal gains over former agreements was the provisions stipulating the closed shop and the requirements that all new employes shall join the union.

TEACHER TALK

Here's news! As a tangible indication that the federation is a healthy, up-and-coming union, we are moving into our new offices next week. We'll be on the same floor, same building, but in two newly decorated rooms, 206 and 207, where we shall have ample facilities for conferences and committee meetings without interference by routine secretarial work. It's a busy time, what with upholding the tenure law and asserting our claims upon the city's budget, but we hope to be settled by the end of a week's time. Office hours are from 4 to 6 on school days, and 9 to 5 on Saturdays. Come up and see your new headquarters.

Inasmuch as the city commission agreed last summer, when consolidation was being discussed, to contribute $250,000 to the county toward upkeep of the proposed joint school system, the federation is proposing that the city give this sum to its own department of education. Of the increase (slightly over $100,000) we believe 85 per cent should be specifically appropriated to salaries, which have been neglected while the building program was under way. After all, if such increase were granted, it would still represent less than 10 per cent of the city's own estimated income at the present tax rate.

The board of directors at its first meeting of the year urged an early trial of the city salary suit.

From all reports we are going to have an impressive list of new members this year. Are you doing your part?

* * *

If you don't think the executive committee works for you, you should have seen them drafting the letter to Prof. McCallie on the tenure law. It required the best part of two days, but we believe it is an excellent statement of the facts in the case.

MEATCUTTERS No. 600

By George Henry

The Meatcutters met in regular session Tuesday night, Sept. 19, with a good attendance. A report was made on the local's books by the international auditor, who completed his audit this week. The audit was satisfactory to all concerned.

* * *

Contract time has come around again, and work on the new contracts will begin soon. We hope to improve on all past contracts and to make the coming year's contract better for both employer and employes.

* * *

At our next meeting there are ten new members to be initiated. Local 600 has made much progress in the past year as was shown by the auditor's report, and we intend to work hard and pull together even more in the coming year. We want our local to be one of the best.

NEWS FLASHES

Washington. — The employment of unskilled labor in the various branches of the bakery and confectionery industries by certain employers has grown to such enormous proportions that it has resulted in the formation of auxiliaries by the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America, composed of apprentices and helpers, according to an announcement from the international union. We consider it one of the most important duties of organized labor, and especially of our own organization, to interest ourselves in existing working conditions of the younger generationo and their obtainable union membership, the announcement stated.

Chicago, Ill.—Large population areas bordering state lines are the source of many problems in tax jurisdiction and law enforcement, the federation of tax administrator has reported. Municipalities so located, the federation says, represents about a fourth of the 96 metropolitan areas in the country, and contain one-fifth of the nation's population.

Washington.—Daily average sales of chain grocery stores in July were about 9 per cent larger in dollar volume than in July 1938, and higher than for any July since 1929, the commerce department has announced. Sales declined from June by about the usual seasonal amount, placing the seasonally adjusted index for July at 99.6 per cent, compared with 99.3 per cent in June, based on the 1929-31 average. Sales for the first seven months were about 4 per cent above the corresponding period of 1938.

UNIONS CONGRATULATE DR. PEPPER PLANT

ew $40,000 Building Is Constructed And Operated By Union Labor

Gratifying to union labor forces of Chattanooga is the w Dr. Pepper plant at 2201 McCallie avenue, corner of elly street, which has just been completed at a cost of 0,000.

Construction work on this plant s done entirely by union labor. ilding materials were bought in hattanooga, and all of the equipnt was built or bought locally, th the exception of the filter, rbonator and ice machine.

Conspicuous in the equipment is new Advance bottle washer d sterilizer, the first machine ilt by a new Chattanooga conrn which is just getting into oduction. This machine embods many new features of sanitan and efficiency not heretofore ailable to the bottling industry.

Marks Fourth Anniversary.

This new plant has been comted approximately on the fourth niversary of the Dr. Pepper siness in Chattanooga. The comny was established by Fred aley at a Main street location on pt. 10, 1935. The hearty welme Chattanooga gave the new nk soon necessitated removal to rger quarters at 1307 McCallie enue, and soon another move to 05 McCallie, where it remained til the new plant was completed.

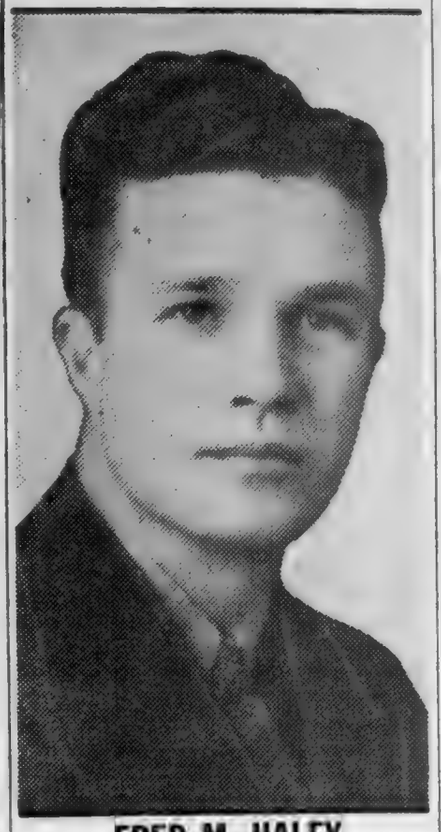
The first floor of the plant, enred from the Kelly street side, devoted to the bottling and loadg equipment and to toilets and owers for employes. The second or, on the McCallie street level, occupied by the general offices, large club room for employes etings, offices for the salesmen d a storage room for syrup.

Advanced Ideas of Industry.

The new plant represents the st advanced ideas in design and uipment. All machinery is aumatic, even to the boiler room—tomatic loading and unloading the washer, automatic stoker d automatic water feed. City ter used in the preparation of Pepper is filtered three times.

The site of the plant fronts 100 et on McCallie and 140 feet on elly street, providing ample om for large expansion facilities as demand warrants. The undation of the building is deigned to carry additional stories necessary.

Dr. Pepper President



FRED M. HALEY

The building is ornate in its treatment, finish and furnishings. The small auditorium, or club room, to the left of the general office will accommodate meetings of 75 or more persons. The convention of Tennessee bottlers of Dr. Pepper will be held in this room on Sept. 24. This meeting will be attended by executives of the Dr. Pepper company home office and visiting bottlers from neighboring states who come on that occasion for an inspection of the plant.

Haley Maintains Local Policy.

Dr. Pepper is the oldest soft soft drink on the market. Its production and sale began in Waco, Tex., in 1885. Its success in Chattanooga has more than kept pace with its sale in other sections, due to the enterprise and progressive policies of Fred Haley, president of the company. From the first, Mr. Haley has operated the plant strictly as a Chattanooga institution, buying everything possible at home. "We believe this is the way to make Chattanooga a larger city and a better field for our business," he said. The plant is 100 per cent union in its operation.

An outstanding feature of the business has been the small labor turnover. Most of the eighteen employes have been with the company almost from the first.

Another of the Haley policies is to permit employes to own stock in the company. Carl Smith, an employe of the concern, is vice-president.

The plumbing and heating installation of the new Dr. Pepper plant was by the Ridgedale Plumbing and Heating company. The millwork was furnished by the A. G. Stivers Lumber company. The furnishings of the offices were by the Commercial Stationery and Supply company. Circle C union-made bottles, manufactured by the Chattanooga Glass company, are used exclusively by the Dr. Pepper plant. Chattanooga made cases by the Chattanooga Box and Lumber company are used exclusively by the Dr. Pepper company.

MEATCUTTERS WIN CLEVELAND STRIKE

Sole Bargaining Rights and Wage Increases Included in Contract Negotiated by A. F. of L. Affiliate With Hygrade Food Products Corporation.

Cleveland, O.—Following a one week's strike against the Hygrade Food Products corporation of Cleveland, Packing House Local No. 500 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, negotiated an agreement with the corporation providing for upwards of 25 per cent increased wages for the big majority of employes in the plant, one week's vacation with pay, sole bargaining rights, 32-hour weekly guarantee, seniority rights and overitme pay.

The strike started when the company refused to negotiate with the local, although it was admitted that the union represented a large majority of the workers.

To hinder recognizing the A. F. of L. union the Hygrade corporation started negotiations with their own company union.

But the strike, which was aided by the international office of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and all of the A. F. of L. unions in Cleveland, soon persuaded the management of the company that union recognition was the best way to deal with wages, hours and work conditions.

HAPPY VALLEY DAIRY PRODUCTS ARE NON-UNION

Even the Bottle Washer Built Here In 100 Percent Union Machine Shop

Union workers will be particularly interested in the Advance Bottle Washer and Sterilizer, which is an important part of the equipment of the new Dr. Pepper plant, because it is manufactured in Chattanooga by a local company of men who have a fine union record, and is the only such machine on the market that is 100 per cent union built.

The machine in the Dr. Pepper plant is the first one produced by the Advance Bottle Washer and Sterilizer company, which is a subsidiary of the Chattanooga Welding and Machine company. The officers of the new company are: Charles E. Kimball, president and treasurer; Mark Holt, vice-president; Waldo Fischer, secretary; Robert J. Wynne, sales manager.

Mr. Charles E. Kimball has carried a union card since 1898, and is widely known and liked by union workers of Chattanooga. He is known as a loyal supporter of the union labor movement. Mark Holt, his nephew, has been associated with him for some time, and is also well known in union and business circles.

Waldo Fischer, the secretary, is the inventor of certain of the important improvements incorporated in the Advance washer. He came to Chattanooga from Chicago in 1938. His earlier experience was in the milk business at Chicago, where he made a study of the improvements needed in washing machines. He carried a union card while working in the milk business.

Robert J. Wynne, the sales manager, is a native of Atlanta. He was for a long time connected with the Miller Hydro Bottle Washer company of Bainbridge, Ga., as salesman and designer. In recent years he has been doing research work in connection with the bottle industry in the north. He came to Chattanooga in 1938, and has taken a prominent part in the design and manufacture of the Advance washer.

New Features of Machine.

In the Advance bottle washer and sterilizer, a definite forward step has been taken in milk and beverage bottle washing technique. It is smoother, quieter in action, and turns out cleaner and completely sterile bottles.

An important feature of the machine is automatic compensation in the handling of any standard beverage bottle from 6 to 12-ounce size without necessity of manual adjustments of any kind. It is fully automatic, from the operation of feeding bottles into itself, through the various treatments accorded in the machine and on to ultimately expelling the bottles on to the conveyor system for the succeeding steps of the bottle process.

Among the notable improvements are the automatic rinse units, the spiralator (an inside scrubbing action), a longer soak in hot caustic solution and a warm, soapy pre-rinse bath, gentler handling of the bottles and more positive control throughout.

An all-welded tank and superstructure are completed and erected as a single unit. All drive actions, rinse and spiralator units, pipes and fittings are added as the assembly proceeds, and are easily accessible for repairs if necessary.

100 Per Cent Union.

The Advance Bottle Washer is the result of fifteen years of study and experience in the operation of various bottling plants. It is regarded as having a bright future by Mr. Haley, who is giving it a practical test, and by others who are familiar with the problems of bottling plants.

The iron and steel used in the construction of the Advance Bottle Washer came from the Vance Iron and Steel company, whose officials were very co-operative in the work.

12 Per Cent of Idle In Milwaukee Get Work

Milwaukee, Wis.—The tragical extent of the jobless army in Milwaukee is visualized in the report of the Milwaukee citizens' committee on unemployment that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1939, only 14,784 persons out of 121,534 for jobs registered with the Milwaukee office of the Wisconsin state employment service were given work.

Another Fine Union Labor Job!

MODERN NEW HOME OF DR. PEPPER

HERE is one of the most sanitary and efficient bottling plants of the South, finished and occupied just a short time in advance of the fourth anniversary of DR. PEPPER in Chattanooga. It is distinctly a Chattanooga institution—built of Chattanooga materials by Chattanooga union labor, and almost wholly equipped with machinery manufactured in Chattanooga by union craftsmen. . . . It is our policy to keep this plant strictly local in character. We think this is the way to help Chattanooga become a greater city, and thus show our appreciation of the increasing support Chattanoogans are giving DR. PEPPER — the beverage that is pleasing to the palate and reviving for the tired body.

CO-OPERATING WITH ORGANIZED LABOR

FRED HALEY, president of the Dr. Pepper Bottling Company, maintains two cardinal principles of policy — to buy everything possible from Chattanooga concerns, and to employ only union labor and the products of union labor in the bottling and distribution of DR. PEPPER.

In our new plant, the ADVANCE bottle washer and sterilizer is a Chattanooga product, and the only such machine on the market carrying the union label. We are proud of this machine, not only because it is made in Chattanooga but because it employs so many new features that help to make DR. PEPPER a better drink. It is perfectly sterile and has automatic loading and unloading of bottles. The Advance Company also manufactured much of the other machinery used in the plant.

Dr. Pepper
GOOD FOR LIFE!

100% UNION

The bottles used by DR. PEPPER are manufactured in Chattanooga by the Chattanooga Glass Company, a 100 per cent union plant. The cases are made by the Chattanooga Box Company. In fact, the DR. PEPPER plant is as near 100 per cent Chattanoogan in its operations as it is possible to make it, and is 100 per cent union.

Another policy followed by President Haley is to permit employes to buy stock in the corporation. Carl Smith, one of the employes, is vice-president of the company.

DR. PEPPER makes a definite contribution to the welfare and pleasure of workers in Chattanooga. It is available in all industrial plants, and thousands of workers know what it means to "drink a bite to eat at 10, 2 and 4."

Headache, Bad Breath Tell of More to Come

Just as Paul Revere's famous ride warned of the Redcoats' coming, so Nature's messengers — headaches, biliousness, bad breath—often warn of faulty elimination.

Neglecting these signs may cause a host of constipation's discomforts: sour stomach, belching; no appetite or energy; mental dullness.

It's so easy to wake up your lazy insides. Just take spicy, all vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT. Its unusual help comes from its principal ingredient—an intestinal tonic-laxative which imparts tone to lazy bowel muscles.

Memphis Just Signs 'Em Up, One After Another

Memphis, Tenn.—Clayton Miller, business manager for the Memphis Electrical Workers union, announced this week that a union agreement had been reached with Q & S Neon Sign company, 881 Arkansas, which the union previously had declared unfair.

"A union accord has been reached," Mr. Miller announced, "and we are happy to remove the name of Q & S Neon Sign company from our unfair list."

Union boilermakers have just signed an agreement with fifteen big tank building companies who heretofore have operated under open shop conditions, Lev Loring, president of the Memphis Trades and Labor council, announced.

"Approximately 5,000 of our men are affected," Mr. Loring explained.

The proprietor of Liddo's Market, Midland and Josephine, has decided to cast his lot with unionism, and on Thursday of this week he signed a union contract with the butchers' union, it was reported by W. W. Rowland, business agent.

Union printing trades in Memphis announced this week they had obtained signed contracts with three formerly non-union printing shops, as the drive to unionize all non-union firms continued unabated.

The three establishments to sign with the union were Chickasaw Printing company, 231 Court; Davis Printing company, 253 Madison, and Eagle Printing company, 176 Linden.

W. J. McCain, Secretary of Iron Workers Association, Dies at 64

The progressive labor forces in America lost a valued member and the community an esteemed citizen in the death of William J. McCain, general secretary of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, who passed away Sept. 8 at his home in Olivette, Mo., following a three-month illness. He had suffered a collapse early in June, and never regained his normal strength. He was 64 years of age.

Mr. McCain had been an official of the Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers for a quarter of a century. He served in the capacity of general secretary from 1928 until his death.

Born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 4, 1875, Mr. McCain moved with his parents to Kansas City, Mr., when he was 4 years of age and made his home in that city until March, 1925, when he was appointed acting secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers.

Became Iron Workers Official in 1903

He had been closely identified with the trade union movement during practically all of his adult life. He was chosen a member of the executive board of the International Association of Iron Workers in 1903 and acted in an official capacity for the association from then until death beckoned him.

Local Union No. 10 of the International Association of Iron Workers in Kansas City elected him him their business representative in 1903. Later he was elected secretary of the Kansas City Building Trades Council, and while serving in that capacity was active in the promotion and construction of the Labor Temple in Kansas City.

In September, 1914, Mr. McCain was elected a general vice president of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, holding that office until March, 1925, when he was appointed acting secretary-treasurer. The office of treasurer was created in 1928, following which he served as secretary only.

Although he moved to St. Louis when he became secretary-treasurer of the International Association, he always kept in close touch with Kansas City, which he considered his home and where he was active in civic affairs.

Mr. McCain enjoyed the admiration of his fellow-workers and the employers with whom he dealt as the representative of the members of the International Association of Iron Workers, as well as the respect of many friends outside of the labor movement. All of his efforts were used to secure higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions for the iron workers.

The hundreds of communications of condolence which were received at his home following the news of his death were definite testimony to the great esteem in which he was held.

The body was taken to the Donnelly Funeral Parlors in St. Louis immediately after his death, where it lay in state for two days.

Funeral Held in Kansas City

Many of Mr. McCain's St. Louis friends and associates paid their respects to him in St. Louis. Special cars carrying twenty international officials of the Iron Workers Association, accompanied by a large number of representatives of local unions, escorted the remains from St. Louis to Kansas City, where the funeral was held. When the body arrived in Kansas City there were several hundred friends on hand to pay their respects.

Union Officials Are Pallbearers

The pallbearers consisted of the ranking officers of the International Association of Iron Workers. They carried the casket through a double line of honorary pallbearers through the Kansas City Union Station to the hearse from whence it was conveyed to the Forster Funeral Home.

The following general officers of the International Association acted as active pallbearers: P. J. Morrin, general president, St. Louis; J. H. Lyons, general treasurer, St. Louis; John T. Fitzpatrick, general vice president, St. Louis; J. A. Evenson, general vice president, Chicago; William Pope, general vice president, Boston; Daniel M. Gayton, general vice president, Pittsburg.

The honorary pallbearers consisted of thirteen other ocicers of the International Association, a large number of representatives of unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and many public officials.

Beautiful floral tributes were received from every major city in the United States. They taxed the facilities of the undertaking establishment. The body lay in state in Kansas City until 2:30 o'clock September 11, when services, attended by hundreds of Mr. McCain's friends from all walks of life, were held.

Buried in Forest Hill Cemetery

Dr. S. Willis McKelvey of the Kansas City Second Presbyterian Church conducted the services. The honorary pallbearers formed a double line a city block long through which the body was carried to an awaiting hearse. From there the cortege, a mile long and accompanied by police escort, proceeded to Forest Hill Cemetery where the body was interred.

Mr. McCain is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jennie B. McCain; a brother, Charles McCain, of Chicago; and a step-son, J. F. Borders. Mr. McCain had been previously married; his first wife died in July, 1930.

Headache, Bad Breath May Be Your Warning

The sea's thrilling S. O. S. means "Help is needed now!" And, so do most of those headaches, that biliousness, coated tongue, or bad breath which are often signs of constipation.
To disregard these symptoms may bring on a host of other discomforts from sluggish bowels: sour stomach, belching, loss of appetite. See how much better you feel the day after taking spicy, all vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT. By simple directions, it acts gently, cleanses promptly, thoroughly. Its principal ingredient is an intestinal tonic-laxative; imparts tone to lazy bowel muscles. Next time try BLACK-DRAUGHT!

MORE ABOUT TENURE LAW

committee of the Chamber of Commerce has made a recommendation that the tenure law for teachers be amended. The Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' Federation, after considerable research, drafted and sponsored this bill, and naturally we are interested in any attack upon it. After careful reading of the newspaper accounts, we realize that the committee is not publicly attacking the principle of tenure for public employes, but the average reader without any particular interest in the law is likely to so construe the action of your committee, because there were no specific recommendations except the abolition of the public hearing for a dismissed teacher. We regret and deplore the premature and untimely public announcement of this action.

The immediate cause of the enactment of the tenure law was the political dismissal by a former commissioner of approximately 35 teachers to make room for new appointees. Without the protection to the schools of the tenure law, such practices will eventually creep back into the administration to the detriment of the whole school system. The morale of the teachers is destroyed and the children suffer when the spoils system prevails.

We do not claim that the provisions of the tenure law are perfect, but we do contend that any proposed changes should contribute to the basic purpose of the law, which is not merely to protect the jobs of the teachers, but to protect the schools from the evil and destructive effects of the political spoils system which prevailed prior to its enactment. A return to this system would be disastrous in the extreme. In fact, what is needed is an extension of the principle of civil service initiated by the tenure act to more carefully control the selection as well as the dismissal of teachers.

In all the criticism of the tenure act one extremely important feature of it is overlooked. The tenure act established the first legal minimum educational standards for the employment of new teachers. Prior to it there were no legal requirements for admission to the teaching positions, and anyone could be employed irrespective of his qualifications. It is now a violation of law to employ any teacher who does not meet these minimum standards.

There can no longer be any doubt that the tenure law is beneficial to the school system. Even its opponents now admit its general benefits and in consequence direct their attacks upon another flank. The complaint is now confined to its rigidity and the lack of discretionary power in the school administration. The fact is we do not now have officials who act hastily in dismissing teachers, because they have to justify themselves in a hearing and cannot discharge teachers without good reason.

The law has been subjected to attack on the point that in the long run it will be harmful to the schools because the law makes it "impossible to get rid of an inefficient teacher or principal" and "is demoralizing to the schools." The tenure law gives the school administrators the opportunity to see that new employes who are suitable for school work do not come under tenure, for there is a period of two years probation to determine if they are desirable. It is not the fault of the tenure law if inefficient teachers are permitted to go on tenure or if there were inefficient teachers in the school system at the time of its enactment. As for any so-called inefficient or immoral person who is now employed, do not blame the law if he is permitted to remain, for there are adequate provisions for dismissal provided sufficient evidence is produced to support the charges. It is the duty and responsibility of the board which conducts the hearing to judge the facts as presented. They have full discretion in judging the nature as well as the truth of the charges. The difficulty of establishing inefficiency comes from the lack of adequate, comprehensive, and continuous records of the quality of service rendered by each teacher and principal. Any employe whose work is unsatisfactory is entitled to regular and specific notice of the fact, with definite suggestions for improvement and correction of faults. If improvement and correction are not forthcoming, a prima facie case will have been made and dismissal can and should follow. We maintain that it is highly unfair to suddenly and without warning charge a teacher or principal with inefficiency after years of service presumably acceptable because no complaint has previously been made to the employe.

When a teacher has been charged with immoral conduct it is a grave charge and one which should be supported with facts. No person has a right to make such charges on the basis of hearsay or suspicion. He should be able to substantiate the charges he has made. If a teacher or principal is to be charged with immorality, he should be privately told, and if a resignation is not forthcoming why should the administrators object to a public hearing? The teacher or principal involved accepts the possibly harmful effects to his reputation. Right of public hearing is the only safeguard against dismissal of competent and courageous teachers and principals on trumped-up charges, and is a right which no person would deny if his real interests were in the maintaining of a competent corps of teachers for our public schools.

It should be noted that information is not given out about teachers who may have accepted dismissal without a public hearing. Such cases do not come to public attention. Only teachers who feel that their dismissal was not justifiable and demand a hearing get the publicity.

When one says that the tenure law is protecting inefficient teachers and "demoralizing the school system" he is ignoring the real cause of dissatisfaction, which is the wholly inadequate salaries paid the public school teachers, together with suspicions of favoritism growing out of the lack of a definite schedule of salaries. The fact that private schools pay their teachers higher salaries indicates that they recognize this fact.

We recognize the increased motive force behind the opposition to the tenure law as stemming from the same sources which have always fought democracy in the administration of public schools. We realize that tenure is no longer simply a matter of teacher security, because the tenure law is one of the best methods of preventing the skeletonizing of the public school services, and we, the teachers, are prepared to come to the defense of it.

The time has passed when the teachers and principals can be attacked in direct proportion to mounting political reaction or for some undisclosed motive, or for any other unjust reacon, because the patrons of the public schools are no longer deluded by such tactics.

For some time there has been state aid to our public schools—aid intended to be supplemented to the funds already furnished by other governmental agencies rather than replacements of them. However, these funds are being used to replace part of the city's own appropriations, thus defeating the very purpose of state aid. This is a practice that should be condemned by all persons and organizations that want to see our schools raised at least to the national level. We will continue to have crowded schools, substandard libraries, unfurnished classrooms, lack of laboratory equipment, buildings needing repairs, an unequipped vocational school, and inadequate teachers' salaries so long as the friends of public education do not get together on the basic problems confronting our schools.

We are not trying to dictate the policies of your committee, but the Chamber of Commerce committee on education is vitally interested in public school education, there are several things such as the above that they can recommend which will be beneficial instead of making unjust attacks on progressive steps that have already been made. You will find our organization ready and willing to give assistance in any constructive step made toward the cause of education.

May we be permitted to express our high regard for you and the services you have rendered the cause of education in our community and in the south.

Sincerely yours,

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,
Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' Federation.

Faith—Unbelief.

Believe in yourself. The trinity of faith is faith in God, faith in man and faith in yourself. Believe in yourself and humanity will believe in you.

The best friend you have is the friend who believes in you. The worst enemy you have is the man who persistently doubts you.

Don't let any man tell you what you "can't do." The worst kind of "can't" is the can't which falls from the lips of the man who says, "You can't do this," and "You can't do that." No man knows enough to tell me what I can't do —only experience can tell me that.

Curved glass that does away with shop window reflections is no longer a novelty. But when the American Chemical society meets in Boston this month it will hear of a new "invisible" glass. This one is not curved but coated with material that increases the transmission of light. When spectacles are so coated the nuisance of reflection is ended. So with store windows, mirrors, automobile windshields and showcases.

New York Federation of Labor Flays Labor Board

New York. — Condemnation of the national labor relations board, charging discriminatory construction and administration of the national labor relations act, was contained in a resolution passed by the New York State Federation of Labor, at the final session of its 1939 convention. The federation demanded amendment of the law in a manner designed to eliminate abuses, if the board fails to alter its conduct.

The resolution characterized the conduct of the board as "unfair, inequitable and subversive of the true principles of collective bargaining," particularly with respect to the rights of craft unions and groups.

Board Charged as Bias.

The board was charged with having so construed the law "as to deny minority craft groups any right of direct, independent representation to bargain collectively with their employers" and as having "proven its bias against the fundamental rights of minority craft groups to bargain collectively for themselves."

The resolution stated that the law as now administered "is discriminatory, denying any right or opportunity to separate craft groups for meritorious consideration of demands which may be at variance or in conflict with purposes of arbitrary domination by other groups or combination of other groups in the same employment or industry, even though such dissenting minority craft groups thus subjugated were theretofore comprised of old existing trade unions."

Revision Demanded.

The resolution demanded that the NLRB so revise its construction and administration of the law "as to accord to each minority group of employes the right of voluntary determination of its own bargaining agency and of independent representation through representatives of its own choosing."

In the event of the board's failure to make the necessary revision, the resolution urged that congress be petitioned to amend the law in accordance with the proposed changes so as to make mandatory the revision called for.

Copies of the resolution were forwarded to the A. F. of L., President Roosevelt, Vice-President Garner, Speaker Bankhead of the house, members of the house and senate from New York, and the national labor relations board.

The resolution was sponsored by Edward W. Edwards and John E. McGarry, of the Allied Printing Trades council.

AUTO UNION SIGNS UP FROST GEAR DIVISION

Jackson, Mich—Officials of Local No. 623 of the United Automobile Workers of America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, announced the negotiation of an agreement with the Frost Gear division of the Clark Equipment company here.

The agreement includes a 5 cent increase in the minimum rate for day workers and an additional 5 cent increase for certain classifications of employes in the lower paid bracket. In addition, watchmen, boilermen, etc., will receive the 5 cent premium for night work which is paid to all other night shift workers in the plant.

The other important provisions in the agreement are the recognition of the union as sole bargaining agency for the employes, with the provision that any employes having a grievance must refer it to their shop steward, a full shop steward system being recognized by the management; a provision stipulating that if an employe fails to report for work when called he does not lose his seniority, but the next oldest employe in the seniority list gets the call and the employe who did not report must wait for the next call, and a stipulation that in case of layoff or shut-down employes keep their seniority for a period of five years.

All employes are given full protection by the union in case of disciplinary layoff or discharge. In such cases they must be given reasons in writing for the action and the case will go before the bargaining committee and the management. If a worker is reinstated he gets full back pay for all time lost.

Foremen and assistant foremen are not permitted to work on production except in the case of samples and short runs not to exceed twenty pieces.

Child Labor Provisions Wage-Hour Act Apply to Sea Food Packing

Washington.—Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the labor department's children's bureau, has ruled that the child labor provisions of the wage-hour act apply to sea food pickling, packing and processing plants.

The child labor law prohibits employment of children under 18 years of age.

At the same time, Wage-Hour Administrator Andrews extended the temporary and partial exemption for handicapped workers in "sheltered workshops," which are institutions conducted on a non-profit charitable basis to rehabilitate handicapped persons.

Cleveland Man Is Named Referee Under Plan to End Jurisdictional Disputes in Building Trades

WASHINGTON, D. C.—William P. Carroll, executive manager of the Building Trades Employers' Association of Cleveland, O., has accepted the position of referee provided in the plan to end jurisdictional disputes in the building trades, President John P. Coyne of the Building and Construction Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, announced. The plan was agreed upon by the department and the Associated General Contractors of America in Atlantic City on August 11.

Under the terms of the plan, where a dispute arises, the matter will be referred to Coyne, as president of the department for decision, with no stoppage of work pending his ruling, the disputed work, meantime, remaining in possession of the men then doing it, and with either side free to appeal to an impartial umpire for final decision.

Carroll becomes, therefore, the court of last resort on all jurisdictional disputes.

Held Well Qualified

"Mr. Carroll," said President Coyne in making the announcement, "is the unanimous choice of the executive council of this department and of the general presidents of the building unions not on the council, as a man who knows the industry and is eminently fair-minded as is demonstrated by his record in Cleveland."

Carroll, executive manager of the Cleveland Building Trades Employers' Association since 1923, was born in New York City, July 21, 1878. He received his early education in the elementary and high schools there and then attended Columbia University for a time, studying mechanical engineering.

Served Big Railroad

Leaving Columbia before graduation, Carroll entered the employ of the New York Central Railroad, where he became master mechanic and superintendent of shops in charge of motor power equipment. He served ten years, in New York, Albany, Rochester, and Buffalo.

During the World War, Carroll became special representative and consultant in labor relations for all shipyards under the Emergency Fleet Corporation of the United States Shipping Board. After the war, he became manager of the Whiting Company, brush and fiber manufacturers, with plants in Boston and Burlington, Vermont. He remained there until going to Cleveland in 1923 to become the executive manager of the Clevalnd Building Trades Employers' Association.

Fine Record in Cleveland

When the NRA came into being, General Hugh Johnson appointed Carroll to the National Construction Code Authority and he served on that body until NRA ended.

Carroll has made a remarkable record in Cleveland for his handling of labor relations in the building trade industries, President Coyne said. He has weathered two long strikes. One was in progress when he took up his work in Cleveland and it ran for three months. In 1926 there was another strike that lasted 14 weeks. Since then there has been comparative peace in the Cleveland building industry.

F. D. R. BACKED FOR THIRD TERM

LINCOLN, Neb.—The Nebraska Federation of Labor unanimously endorsed President Roosevelt for a third term and went on record in "favor of the aims and objectives of the New Deal."

Green Presents Charter to New Cement Union

St. Louis, Mo.—Under the most auspicious circumstances, the 106th national or international union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor was launched here by President William Green when he presented a charter to the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International union.

The first convention of this new organization gave convincing proof of the rapid growth and success of the A. F. of L.'s organizing drive. Starting from scratch only a few years ago, the cement workers, organized into federal labor unions, formed a national council and now take their place in the family of labor as a full-fledged international union with 25,000 members, a hundred contracts covering the workers in practically the entire industry and a fine record of progress in raising wages, shortening hours, bettering working conditions and stabilizing labor relations.

Hailing the achievement of the new union, President Green, in an address to the convention, pledged the delegates the full and continued support of the American Federation of Labor and its entire membership.

He emphasized that the chief objective of the American Federation of Labor is the "promotion of human welfare and the establishment of a better life for the men and women who toil." This can be accomplished, he explained, by organizing the workers and mobilizing their collective strength in economic, legislative and political fields.

A labor organization must be truly democratic to succeed, President Green declared. He added:

"No man in the A. F. of L. can be the dictator or autocrat. The power to decide the policies of our organization rests with the membership. The will of the membership, as expressed by majority vote, becomes the law.

"There is no room in the American Federation of Labor for communists or those who preach communist philosophy. On the other hand look at the CIO. Only the other day testimony was presented before a congressional committee identifying more than half of the members of the CIO executive board as communists."

President Green was given a rousing reception by the convention and warmly thanked for the support given by the A. F. of L. to the new union. William Schoenberg, A. F. of L. organizer who presided at the convention, turned to the delegates and declared:

"You are the answer to the lying charge that the A. F. of L. is not organizing the unorganized. Here is concrete proof that we are."

QUOTES

America Needs a "War"

We need a war, but it should be a war on poverty, insecurity, and unemployment. There are not too many people in the world. There are not enough jobs and we must evolve means to create enough so that every man willing to work may do so. That is the kind of war we need.

To the prosecution of such a war every American worthy of the name could dedicate his utmost effort.—The Railway Clerk.

Decay Within Real Peril

Our safety does not lie in fighting European wars. It lies in our own internal strength, in the character of the American people and of American institutions. As long as we maintain an army, a navy and an air force worthy of the name, as long as America does not decay within, we need fear no invasion of this country.

—Col. Charles A. Lindberg, In radio address to nation Sept. 15.

The Real Atrocity

As the atrocity stories from the European war increase both in number and in horror, let's all keep in mind one fact: That war itself is the real atrocity.

The atrocities of war are only outgrowths, logical products, of the essential atrocity that is war itself.

—New York Daily News Syndicate.
